The juniors also had their narrator but in their case they successfully worked him into the dramatic situation. They also succeeded where the sophomores and seniors didn't in preventing the constant opening and closing of the curtains.

With the exception of Alexander Hamilton's "invitation" at the banquet and Carl Wass' classic line about Mr. Hamilton's inability to come to tea, the script moved easily through an interesting episode in American history.

It was the senior class, however, who avoided most successfully the too religious attention to facts. By attempting a simple description of a historical situation they gave a dimension to their skit which the others lacked. By this they also escaped the need for the narrator and created a dramatic unity which in my estimate, should have entitled them to laurels of victory.

Rowland To Compete In Beauty Contest

Jacqueline Rowland has been chosen to represent Juniata College in the Pittsburgh Press Campus Cover Girl Contest.

Contestants' pictures will appear in the March 16 issue of the Sunday Rote and decisions on the five finalists will be made March 17 by the judges.

Miss Rowland, a senior elementary education major from Hanover, was Homecoming Queen last fall. She has been a member of the touring choir since her freshman year and has sung in the girl's trio of the choir.

Miss Rowland is active in FTA, JCA, JBSF and the Masque. She portrayed a leading role in This Way Heaven last fall.

The contest winner's picture will appear on the cover of the Rote Magazine. The four runners-up will appear as her court.

burg, is also running for secretary. She is recording secretary of JCA, a JWSF captain, a member of the touring choir and the student proctoring committee.

Third of the secretarial candidates is Barbara Zoellin, a home economics major from Ottsville. Miss Zoellin was a May Day attendent last year and this year is on disciplinary council and a member of Lambda Gamma, WAA and JCA.

Treasurer

Paul DeSesso, business major from Plainfield, N. J., will run for the office of treasurer. He is a member of the Tycoon Club and plays varsity baseball.

Sam Shore, a math major from McClure, is also a candidate for the office of treasurer. Shore is junior class treasurer, business manager of the Alfarata and a member of JCA, the Tycoon Club, the Debate Club and the proctoring committee.

JCers Contribute To 'Francis' Drive

by George Fattman

Students here have an opportunity to join with many other groups of people throughout the state to help ease the blow of the loss of nearby St. Francis College's library, recently razed by fire.

Here is an opportunity to be charitable painlessly, for all they want is your old books. Dr. William Hambacher, who is conducting the drive at Juniata, points out that they'll take anything.

Bring all your old texts—what use could you possibly have for Munn: Psychology, second edition, or The Biotic World and Man? Put them in the box just inside the south entrance to Totem Inn.

Without a library a school is nothing. Normally it takes years and years to acquire an adequate library but with the help of her neighbors, St. Francis should be able to rehabilitate in a much shorter time.

Senate President To Lead Seminar

The third and last of the leadership seminars will be led by Senate president, Del McQuaide next Thursday in Room G at 7:15 p.m.

McQuaide will discuss the general organization and procedure of student government at Juniata. A period of questions and answers will follow the discussion.

The meeting is open to the entire student body, especially to prospective senators.

WAA, J-Club Clash In Saturday's Contest

The WAA and the J Club will compete in a basketball game tomorrow night at 8:15 p.m. in Memorial Gym.

After the game the social committee will sponsor a record dance on the mezzanine. Gini Nixdorf, chairman of social activities added that refreshments will be served and dancing will continue to 11:30 p.m.

Students, Teachers Plan U.S.S.R. Tours

Following the recently signed cultural-tourism exchange treaty between Russia and the U. S., a series of student and teacher tours have been arranged to Russia in cooperation with Intourist, the USSR government travel agency.

Each of the tours will be conducted by an American college instructor and will cover highlights of Europe, the Brussels' World's Fair and historic cities of the Soviet Union. Members of the tours will have opportunities to meet their Russian student-teacher counterparts and to see their educational facilities.

The tour programs are economically priced and arranged only for students and teachers. Students who have been out of college for two years or less are eligible to join as well as students presently enrolled in college or senior high school.

The six scheduled conducted groups are privately organized, and information may be obtained from authorized travel agents or from the sponsoring agent, the Maupin Associates of Lawrence, Kansas.

Marine Officer Team To Arrive On Campus

The Marine Officer Procurement team will again visit Totem Inn Tuesday.

At that time any undergraduates who are interested in officer type training may talk with the team for information. Training will be held in Quantico, Va. for two six-week sessions during summer vacations from college.

The team is headed by First Lieutenant Ogden.

21 JCers Seek Chairmanships

Bruce Bennett

Brown, Wass, Teeter, Shore Win Senate Officers' Posts

Chuck Brown became Senate president for the 1958-'59 term with a 409 to 178 vote triumph over Bonnie Gunther in last Tuesday's election.

A close race between Carl Wass and Bill Lafe for the vice presidency finally elected Wass with 297 votes to Lafe's 288.

Senate secretary was decided in Wednesday's run-off election when Carol Teeter defeated Barb Zoellin by a count of 336 to 190.

The office of treasurer will be occupied by Sam Shore who tabulated 335 votes to senate-drafted candidate, Paul DeSesso's 227.

This year's election introduced a new method of voting which required that student identification cards be presented at the polls in order to qualify one to vote. A total of 588 Juniatians voted Tuesday.

Axworthy Announces Piano Workshop Plan

Piano workshops, an innovation in JC's music department, give students a chance to "practice performing," according to Miss Suzanne Axworthy, piano instructor.

A second purpose, Miss Axworthy added, is to give students a chance to hear other pianists in an informal atmosphere. They may discuss the music and learn their own weaknesses.

The workshops concentrate on music grouped according to the type, the composer or the chronological order. The students do not present finished performances but are working toward public performances later in the spring.

Next Thursday's workshop open to all music students, will center around works from the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries. Performers are Laura Castle, Joan Ciccarelli, Louise Hively, Eleanor Newton, Nick Pasquale, Jackie Rhodes and Peter Wright.

Senators To Conduct Red Cross Blood Drive

The student Senate will sponsor a visit by the Red Cross Blood Mobile Unit on March 26 from 12 to 6 p.m. in the women's gym.

Carl Wass will act as chairman of the day and Aliceann Wohlbruck will perform hostess duties. Two hundred pledges is the goal for the blood drive.

Serving as student solicitors in Founders Dorm will be Marcia Sweet, Vee Wilhelm, Shirley Raffensperger, Carolyn Long, Kerin Narbut, Diane Klebe, Gwen Piggens, Barb Fritchey and Aliceann Wohlbruck.

East Hall

East Hall solicitors will be Nina Fredenburg, JoAnne Stauffer, Nancy Phennicie, Jean Mattheis, Mary Ann Sikora and Barb Walls.

Sam Shore, Pete Sellers, Don Saylor, Ken Harlacher and Bill Lafe will solicit in North Dorm. Don Coughenhauer, Dick Reese, Ron Vinson, Terry Fouse and Jim Cain take charge of Cloisters.

The outside houses will be solicited by Pete Emerick, Saylor House; George Cline, Yoder House and Mel Wenger, N. J. House. The Village and day students will be solicited by Ann Amidon and Janice Hoyer, respectively.

Choir To Present Concert In Town

Juniatians will have an opportunity to hear the college choir's complete sacred concert at 7:30 p.m. this Sunday at the St. James Lutheran Church, 6th and Mifflin Sts.

Each year the choir presents its concert in Huntingdon as it is given on tour. A different local church is visited each time. All interested students are invited to attend.

New Alma Mater Receives Set-Back At Senate Meeting

The movement toward a new Alma Mater for Juniata received a severe set-back Wednesday evening when Margy White, chairman of the committee, reported that the music faculty gave unfavorable reaction to the version accepted by the Senate some weeks ago.

Miss White said the song was labeled no better than "barbershop" music by the faculty, and that the opinions of Miss Suzanne Axeworthy and Dr. Donald Johnson appeared to render a new revision impossible. Dissenting senators felt the song an appreciable attempt to better the present Alma Matersituation, long an unfavorite with student bodies, and moved to let the song take its place with the rest of the traditional Juniata music.

College Song

They will, however, release the song as only a college song, dropping any hint that it is an intended Alma Mater. If reaction is favorable among the members of the student body, legislation to instate it as the official Alma Mater will be made.

Two Senators reported that the election edition of the Smoke Signal had been met with disfavor in some quarters. After a lengthy discussion the Senate decided that the edition stimulated election interest instead of proving detrimental to candidates, and it was voted that the policy of election issues be continued. As a result, another issue will be printed Monday with student speculation on the chairmanship election outcome as its general content.

Vice-president elect Carl Wass was chosen to head the annual blood drive to be held here March 26.

Former JC Prof To Speak Sunday

The Rev. Jack Padgett will speak Sunday morning at Juniata's third all college worship service in Oller Hall from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Padgett, a former instructor in religion here until 1954, will use Moments of Decision as his topic.

He received his AB degree from Juniata, his STB from Boston University and has almost completed work for his doctorate, also at Boston University.

Padgett is making a special trip from Boston to be on campus Sunday.

O'Juniors To Sponsor 'Shenanigans' Dance

The wearing of a "bit o' green" will be in order for Shamrock Shenanigans, the St. Patrick's Day dance scheduled for Saturday night in the women's gym from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m.

The dance, sponsored by the junior class, will feature special entertainment, unusual refreshments and music on tape. Dress will be semi-formal—cocktail dresses for the women and suits and ties for the men.

The junior class wishes it known that the dance is being held this weekend because of the movie that will be here the weekend of St. Patrick's Day.

President, Veep Reach Disability Agreement

HERB DEUCHAR: News Of The Week In Retrospect

THE PRESIDENT'S DISABILITY PROBLEM—For 169 years the problem of the President's disability has baffled both the legislative and executive departments of our national government. The dilemma arises out of the Constitution's vagueness in stating explicitly who would decide when the President became so disabled that he could no longer run the functions of his office. The Constitution states that when a President does become disabled his "powers and duties shall devolve on the Vice-President."

It was reported last week that President Eisenhower had come to an agreement with Nixon over the Vice-President's future status should Eisenhower again become seriously ill. President Eisenhower stated that "Nixon knows exactly what he should do in the event of a Presidential disability." This agreement has been put in writing and does have the approval of Attorney-General Rogers. The statement certifies that "Nixon would assume the Presidential powers as 'acting President' until the President had recovered completely."

The fact still remains, however, that this first step must be transformed into a Constitutional amendment for it to have any lasting validity and power. Thus, in response, a bi-partisan proposal for a Constitutional amendment will be handed to the Senate by Estes Kefauver and Everett Dirksen.

The amendment will provide for the President declaring in writing the transfer of his powers to the Vice-President until he is well again, or if the President is too ill to delegate his functions, the Vice-President can take over with the written approval of a majority of the Cabinet. The President may resume his power when he has proclaimed in writing his recovery, provided the Vice-President and Cabinet agree. In event a conflict arises over this matter the issue will be taken to Congress for a vote by both houses.

According to the sentiments in Washington, this amendment has a fair chance of passing due to the bi-partisan support it is being given. Let us hope that this proposed amendment will be the end of the disability dilemma which has plagued our nation and will end the fear of a future lapse of executive leadership during a President's serious illness.

THE BENSON DILEMMA—In a special Congressional election two weeks ago in a rural Minnesota district, the Republican candidate Albert Quie edged by with a slim margin of 655 votes over his Democratic opponent Eugene Foley. Foley had directed his campaign against the policies of Secretary of Agriculture Benson. In Washington there was a quick reaction as Republican Congressmen from the midwest again began to pressure the Administration to relieve Benson of his Cabinet post. Representative Miller stated, "that if Benson remains in office . . . he is the best weapon the Democrats have." It is my contention that due to the increasing political pressure from within the Republican party, Benson will be out of his cabinet post by next fall.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Social Apathy

A fine example of student apathy concerning the "social situation" was exhibited last Saturday night at the WAA-J Club dance scheduled to follow the basketball game.

This time the social committee cannot be blamed for the failure, but the clubs in charge who apparently made no plans or preparations whatsoever for the dance. Chairmen in charge of music and refreshments were either unavailable or uncooperative when they were needed Saturday night. Consequently, a handful of students attempted to organize a dance at the last minute, but the evening ended in confusion.

This is just another proof that more than money will be necessary to improve JC's social life. As long as students don't care what happens on Saturday night and the sponsoring clubs make no effort to organize the event, the social situation is not going to improve. When campus organizations are given the opportunity to sponsor a social event, here is the chance to show some originality and to make it better than "just another Saturday night." Instead, witness last week's blunder. What we need is less complaining and more cooperation.

The Students' Viewpoint

Frosh Deserved The Victory

All-Class Night has been a topic of considerable discussion this past week. The majority of the student body has taken part in a number of conversations on this subject, myself included. The purpose of this letter is not to criticize any class or its production, but to straighten out some misunderstanding concerning the freshman production.

In the first place, we started out with no idea of what we were supposed to do or how to go about it. The only thing we knew was that the subject was history.

One of the biggest criticisms of our play was that it was too short. We knew that there was a time limit of 22 minutes and that ours was only half that length, but we decided that it was good the way it was, and since there was no minimum limit, we would be within the rule.

Finally, we have been criticized for using religion as our topic. I do not understand the reason for this because it plays a large part in history. Had we known, however, that religion was not supposed to be used, we would not have used it. But we did not know it; therefore, we should not be criticized.

I think the freshmen deserved the victory, and I would personally like to thank everyone who helped. Since our class has the reputation for never having done anything constructive, I am also glad we won for this reason.

I might add that I thought all the skits were good, particularly the juniors', and all I can say is, "Better luck next year." Just remember, we're after that cup again, too!

Congratulations, Freshmen

Following All-Class Night and the fine efforts exerted by the four classes, there seemed to be one major issue which prevailed above all others—that of the freshman victory. To many persons this came as a shock and has received criticism from numerous sources. Perhaps some of these criticisms were valid; but, on the other hand, many seemed to be invalid.

My purpose in writing this letter is not to criticize anyone. Rather it is to do the one thing which has been neglected—to congratulate the members of the freshman class, particularly those who were in any way associated with the freshman production.

Honor-A Growing Issue

JUDGING by last week's campaign for Senate officers, the honor system is becoming a real issue on campus. It has more or less been a factor in presidential campaigns for several years, but undoubtedly because of the advances toward this goal made by the '56 and '57 Senates, the issue is growing in importance.

It is generally agreed that the installation of an honor system at JC must come slowly by degrees and that its realization is still far in the future. In this light Senates have proceeded with caution, being satisfied with action paving the way toward an honor system such as the Campus Judiciary and the student proctoring committee.

Discussed in this year's presidential campaigns was the suggestion that more professors use the honor system in administering hour tests as a further step toward its realization at JC. This is a good idea and is logically the next step in the long-range plan. This is the best way to determine whether Juniatians want or are in any way ready for an honor system. Perhaps in the beginning profs could have trials in small classes of upperclassmen, and if these went well gradually increase the number of tests administered on the honor basis.

Certainly, if we expect to see the honor system at JC a reality, there must be noticeable, positive gains made every year. What new contributions the '58-'59 Senate will make in this direction remains to be seen. In any case, there is still much room for improvement in the Campus Judiciary, the student proctoring committee and especially in faculty use of the honor system —all have not reached their full potential in paving the way for a full-fledged honor system at JC.

Mario Lanza leads his guests in singing an Italian Calypso number in a party sequence of Seven Hills of Rome, Lanza's new musical romance, filmed in Italy for M-G-M. Occasionally we pick up items of interest from other papers; f'rinstance, an Indiana minister suggests that sadistic stories should be cleaned up so that they give a better impression of the lofty state of parenthood. Thus instead of "Shut up and get back in your sack!"

we should, keeping the concept of the virtues of motherhood well in mind, put it

"Mommy! Mommy". (same question)

"Hush, my darling, and crawl back into your nice sack!"

Case For The Judiciary

Two coeds decided last week that the list of songs in the Tote juke box could not possibly be complete without Swingin' Shepherd Blues and Click-clack. So they spent about an hour scrawling requests for the two numbers, each in a different handwriting and stufffed the ballot box.

Sure enough, both songs have been added.

Certain J Club members point out that their recent game with the WAA has brought "a going to the dogs situation" of J Club activity to a focus. The game had neither the show nor the participation which characterized the event in past years. The J Club is one of the most active clubs on campus with activities including the Homecoming Dance and spring picnic.

The present policy of awarding a jacket as soon as two letters are earned in a sport has brought peril to club activity, since when a jacket has been won members tend to lose interest in the club. A solution could be to hold jackets until the athlete's senior year and make club participation count more in determining eligibility. By the way, the J Club came from behind to defeat the women 22-21 despite Ann Hurley's 13 points.

Starting Monday at 3:30 p.m. the intramural wrestling championship will take place on the mats in Memorial Gymnasium.

The tournament will be held Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, on which day the finals will be staged at 2:30.

For the past three weeks practice sessions have been held for those men interested in learning more of the fundamentals of the sport and for those who wish to get into shape for the tourney next week. Seniors Cal Beam and Chic Henry headed these work-outs.

Val Means, chairman of athletics, has stated that those men who have not yet indicated their desire to participate in the tournament should see him before Sunday evening so a schedule of matches can be arranged and posted.

ENDS FOUR YEAR CAREER—Captain Mike Armstrong, the popular senior who sparked the Tribe to a successful even season, is held by Curt Gardner, Bob Lesnick and Dave Hogan.

10th Victory Gives Indians Even Season

Last Monday evening the Tribe topped off a successful season with an impressive 81-69 triumph over the Bullets of Gettysburg College.

The win gave the Indians an even slate for the season at ten wins and ten losses. It also marked the final game for senior captain Mike Armstrong. Mike finished his career with a flourish, retaining his double figure average and snagging numerous rebounds to pave the way to the Tribe's final victory.

The game itself started off slow, both squads being unable to break the scoring ice in the early minutes. However, the tempo soon picked up and before the first half was over, the Tribe began a surge which netted them a comfortable 34-24 halftime lead.

In the second half Gettysburg came back with a tight man to man defense designed mainly to halt Jack Heading. For a while the Tribe's lead was narrowed to eight points on several occasions, but when Gordie Ewers and Ron Wertz began to find the range midway through the half, the Tribe victory was assured.

Four players hit double figures for the Indians with Jack Heading's 22 markers leading the pack. Gordie Ewers netted 15 points, Ron Wertz hit for 14 and Al Dungan scored 10.

Bob Walsack led the Gettysburg attack with 18 points.

Typical, True-Life, Average LMOC His Ideals, Ambitions, Rise, Fall

by Carol Baish

Once upon a time on a certain college campus there was a Little Man. Darn little. He was the kind profs call on in class just to see if he's for real.

Sometimes he felt pretty bad because he was only a Little Man on Campus, but most of the time he just went plodding along doing what he was supposed to do because his fairy godmother said that if he didn't eat all his mystery cake and Brussels sprouts and go to the after dinner dances, he would never-ever grow up big and strong like John Foster Dulles.

Now you and I know that John Foster Dulles probably never went to an after dinner dance in his life—but the LM never doubted his fairy godmother. (Incidentally, she was a former Bandstand girl now living in a fancy Main Line flat—15 years old and a big help to her mother.)

The Downfall

Anyway, the LM was happy enough in his ignorance until one day Somebody scheduled chapel for Tuesday instead of Monday and his whole schedule was thrown out of kilter. He was never quite the same.

He started carousing in the student center to all hours. The coffee got its awful hold on him and when he was under the influence there was no managing him.

He went steadily downhill. When he started dating a bottle blonde from a neighboring school, his fairy godmother gave up and went off with a pensioned Civil War veteran who had cornered the market on left handed clarinet reeds during the Panic of 1837.

This was the final blow. Our subject took to imbibing lemon cokes mixed with Mailpouch, vintage 1921 and soon he joined the Debate Club. When he won the all-campus crazy eights tournament his fame was complete.

Political Life

Naturally he decided to run for an office—Lord High Chancellor of the Juke box. He won the election by promising a Sunday afternoon concert by Hank Snow and his Rainbow Ranch Boys and by advocating a return to the honky tonk standard.

Soon, graft crept in. There were dark murmurings about the glaring scarcity of dining hall punch but nothing could be proved. An astute business major uncovered the case of the missing bulletin board thumbtacks and all was over.

Our former LMOC was impeached and convicted, bringing his brief but glorious political life to a sordid close, However, when last seen our friend was thoughtfully chewing a mouthful of mystery cakes and contemplating a brand new frontier—IM wrestling.

But no one thinks he'll ever grow up big and strong like John Foster Dulles.

JC's WAA Enters Winter Sportsday

Members of WAA traveled via chartered bus to Penn State for the annual Winter Sports day Saturday, March 1.

Although as a group Juniata did not score a victory, Carol Ann Phipps captured the highest single bowling score, rolling a 181. In volleyball JC lost to Wilson and Bucknell, while Wilson and Dickinson won the basketball game.

Dickinson also won the single badmitten game. Juniata was forced to forfeit the doubles badmitten game in order to leave for home.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the games. The list of colleges competing in the afternoon's events included Lock Haven, Wilson, Bucknell, Dickinson, Penn State and Juniata.

JCers Choose New Chairmen

CHALK IT UP—Outgoing senators, hopeful candidates and JC kibitzers gathered in Room A, Students Hall last Tuesday night to watch the chairmanship election returns come in. Votes from three wards (men's, women's and outside houses) were chalked on the board while a WJC announcer (far right) relayed the latest tallies to listeners in the dorms.

CJ Plans New Trial Procedure; Outlines Future Judiciary Action

At the final meeting of the past year's Campus Judiciary, the members formulated a reorganized plan of hearing-trial procedure and made several other recommendations for the next Judiciary.

The hearing-trial outline which follows has been recommended for consideration as a by-law to the CJ's constitution. It was also suggested that the Judiciary plan to publish an information bulletin and/or to add the chapel cut discipline procedure to the Grey Paper.

The CJ hearing on each case is planned to eliminate wasted time by a run-down on each case to determine if there is enough evidence to warrant a trial. Present at the hearing will be CJ members, the referrer, the defendant and witnesses for the prosecution.

Referral and witnesses

Hearing procedure will include the reading of the referral and the hearing of the witnesses, to be admitted and heard one at a time. The CJ will accept a written statement if a witness is not able to appear; there will be no questioning except to clear factual points.

The Judiciary then will decide whether the evidence produced by the referrer and his witnesses will support a case, what the charge will be and whether it is to be considered a major or minor offense. A date for the trial is set and the chairman appoints a member who will study the case and be prepared to begin questioning on main points.

In most cases, the trial will immediately follow the hearing. However, the defendant may request a postponement of the trial if he does not feel prepared to defend himself at the time set.

The Trial

The trial will begin with a rereading of the referral, the charge and the defendant's plea. The defendant may enter his plea after all the evidence has been heard, or he may plead 'guilty' in which case the CJ will immediately retire to determine the sentence.

If the defendant pleads not guilty, the trial will proceed with the presentation of the defendant's evidence and all witnesses will be heard one at a time except when the testimonies of defense and prosecution are in direct contradiction.

The defendant may wait to hear his sentence or he may request to be personally informed by a CJ member. In any case, he will be informed by letter of Judiciary action and the right to appeal the decision to the student citizenship committee.

Senators Discuss Runoff Elections For Class Offices

A new method of choosing class officers was the main topic of student interest to reach the floor of the joint Senate meeting held Wednesday in Founders Chapel.

Because of the unusually large number of students running for class offices, it was decided that only the top two persons would be put on the run-off ballot whether their total constituted a majority or not.

Carl Wass reported that 90 men and 30 women have pledged blood donations this year. He indicated that many more pledges will be needed if the college is to meet its 120-pint goal. Alice-ann Wohlbruck has been appointed to solicit the girls dorm.

Students Hall

A letter from Dean Morley Mays was read requesting that students not disarrange chairs in Students Hall at club meetings and while studying there in the evenings. If the condition of disarranging rooms continues, privilege of using the building may be denied.

The faculty approved the plan for Spring Mountain Day and the measure has been sent to the administration for final approval.

President Del McQuaide reported that Chief Edward Morris of the Huntingdon Borough Police has been contacted concerning his "untimely" action on the campus last week. It was decided that Chief Morris will meet with the student body during Freshman Days and sometime early next fall to attempt to better police-student relations. In addition, he will not appear on campus unless summoned to the scene by the administration.

Movie Here Tomorrow

Mother Is A Freshman, a movie starring Loretta Young, will be shown tomorrow night at 8:15 p.m. The place will be announced later. A dance in the women's gym will follow the movie.

What Is It? Where Is It?

The picture shows a familiar scene on Juniata's campus, photographed so as to appear as confusing (we hope) as possible. It begins a series in the JUNIATIAN photo contest. The first person to identify the picture will be awarded two passes to the Clifton Theatre. Send your answers to the JUNIATIAN via the Tote mail service.

'Indians' Players Near Oller's 'Curtain Time'

Ten Little Indians, this year's spring Masque play scheduled for next Friday and Saturday night at 8:15 p.m., is now starting the last week of rehearsals.

Some of the problems faced by the lighting and properties committees are simulating wind and rain, arranging for disembodied voices, booby traps and convincing candlelight that still allows the actors to be seen and the production of gunshots at odd quiet moments throughout the play.

The cast and various committees during these last stages of rehearsal have been working to perfect character, lines, action and technical details. Students will be admitted to the production upon presentation of their identification cards.

JC Grad To Enter DuPont Research

Quayton Stottlemyer, a 1951 Juniata graduate, recently joined the research division of DuPont's Photo Products Department at the Parling laboratory.

Stottlemyer, formerly of Waynesboro, was graduated from Juniata with a BS in physical chemistry. After earning his MS degree at the California Institute of Technology in 1954, he completed work for his PhD in physical chemistry this year at Penn State University.

Lombardo To Play For '58 Charity Ball

Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians have been booked to play for the 1958 Charity Ball in Memorial Gym May 7.

A popular favorite throughout the United States and in foreign countries, the Lombardo band features soft, swing dance music. Advance planning also will be started soon to secure an intermission show for the ball.

Proceeds from the ball will go to the J. C. Blair Memorial Hospital. Chairmen of the function are Mr. and Mrs. Warren Yocum and Mr. and Mrs. William Germann.

Actor To Appear In Chapel Monday

Clarence Derwent, a dramatic actor, will be the guest speaker in chapel Monday.

Born in London, Derwent came to America in 1915 after many appearances in London, Belguim and Holland and has since appeared with such famous stars as Katherine Cornell, Josephine Hull and Tallulah Bankhead. His recent Broadway successes include Deadfall and Uncle Vanya, starring Franchot Tone. Derwent was also in the film version of this play.

Derwent was president of Actor's Equity Association for many years and is the current president of the American National Theatre Association. He is the donor of the Clarence Derwent Award in both New York and London given to actors and actresses for best performances in supporting roles.

Jan Hoyer To Review JC For College Board

Janice Hoyer, Juniata senior, has been chosen to be a member of Mademoiselle's 1958 national college board.

Miss Hoyer is one of 760 students who competed with applicants from colleges all over the country to win a place on the board. As a college board member she will represent the JC campus and report to Mademoiselle on college life and the college scene.

She will complete two assignments that will help her explore her interests and abilities in writing, editing, fashion and advertising in competition for one of 20 guest editorships to be awarded by the magazine at the end of May. The guest editors will be brought to New York for four weeks next June to help write, edit and illustrate Mademoiselle's August college issue.

JC Students Elect Senate In 'Tote' Poll

Tuesday's polls and Wednesday's runoffs elected new Senate chairman Dutch Boland, Janice Christie, Stan Davis, Jim Heck, Tex Holman, Dick Johnson, Sandy Johnston, Don Shover and Ron Wertz.

Candidates for general activities were Boland, Barb McIntyre and Carol Stiffler. A runoff between Boland and Miss Stiffler showed 332 for Boland over Miss Stiffler's 218.

Running for athletic chairman were Bill Ebner, Gordie Ewers, Jim Heck and Mel Kreps. A runoff between Ebner and Heck resulted in Heck's polling 407 votes to Ebner's 145.

Men's and Women's House

Elected to the chairmanship of men's house was Wertz who gained 250 votes over Ken Harlacher's 89. New women's house chairman is Miss Christie who won over Ann Larkin by a vote of 189 to 97.

Holman and Don Miller ran for the chairman of underclassmen post. Holman won by a vote of 362 to 225.

Miss Johnston, new chairman of social activities, won over her opponent Cary Shaner, by a vote of 348 to 241. Chairman of communications Johnson was elected by a vote of 335 to Rush Hodgin's 243.

Religious Activities

Candidates for the post of religious activities were Davis and Dick Quinn. Davis won by the margin of 526 to 31.

Shover and Jim Swarr ran for the newly-created chairmanship of educational activities. Shover polled 487 votes to Swarr's 60 and there were 32 write-in votes for Bonnie Gunther.

Last week's voting showed that approximately 580 Juniatians went to the polls. This is about 85% of the student body here.

The new senators attended a meeting with the retiring Senate body Wednesday night. They will hold one more joint Senate meeting before taking over their duties as 1958-59 senators.

Holman To Explain Catholic Service

Tex Holman will present the Stations of the Cross Tuesday at 7:15 p.m. in Founders Chapel.

Stations of the Cross is a Catholic worship service commemorating the twelve events leading to Christ's crucifixion. It is an essential part of the Catholic Lenten season.

The service is being presented here so that many of the students may have the opportunity to discover how Catholics worship as well as to have the opportunity to take part in the impressive service.

Dulles Denounces Soviet Summit Proposal

HERB DEUCHAR:

News Of The Week In Retrospect

THE SUMMIT DEADLOCK—A week ago it seemed as though a break-through had been reached between the United States and Russia over the fundamental dispute on how to reach the summit conference and just what issues were to be discussed. In a Soviet letter, Moscow made the "concession" to participate in a preliminary conference to work out the time, place and agenda for the summit conference. Moscow also stated that the participants of this preliminary meeting be composed of all the NATO nations and the Warsaw Pact members, plus several neutral nations. Russia also gave as an alternative the suggestion of a smaller foreign ministers' conference made up of the United States, Great Britain, France Italy, Russia, Czecholovakia, Poland, Rumania, India, Sweeden and Yugoslavia. But these nations would not necessarily be the same participants at the summit conference. Such was the Soviet offer as presented to the United States.

Last Tuesday, Secretary of State Dulles denounced the Soviet proposal as "'a fraud and hoax". He also stated that the exchange between the U. S. and Russia had not touched the "important matters where the known positions of the parties indicate a probability of argument." The State Department also attacked the Soviet proposal as "falling short of what would be required for adequate summit preparation."

President Eisenhower, at his press conference last Wednesday, criticized the Soviet move as unacceptable. The President summed up his views by stating, "It is absolutely futile and, in my opinion, damaging to attempt to hold a summit meeting unless the agenda and the subjects included on it are so well prepared as to give a genuine belief that real progress can be accomplished."

It has become obvious that Russia is determined to keep applying the pressure for a summit conference by every possible method available. The results of this move have born fruit in Europe as dissension has grown in many of the Allied countries against such a cautious position towards a summit conference. Russia is attempting to relax the European stand whereby the West will thus accept the "status quo" in Europe, that is, Russian domination of eastern Europe and a divided Germany.

For Russia to discuss German unification or the status of the satellite states would mean possible disruption of their "status quo" in Europe. In turn, the United States wishes to force Russia into stating explicitly, in advance, just what the issues will be at a summit meeting. Also, the U. S. observes a possible danger in the unity of the western Allies if dragged into a summit conference and possibly the breakdown of the Allied defense position.

We are still far from obtaining any settlement on a future summit meeeting. As the United States rejected Russia's offer so Great Britain and West Germany also refused the Soviet proposals. There seems to be an exterior appearance of unity and acccord between the Western Allies on their summit position. In essence, however, the negotians for a summit conference have evolved entirely into a bilateral status in the form of a diplomatic contest between Russia and the United States.

Editorially Speaking . . .

A Letter In Protest

LAST Thursday night a Juniata student was arrested by the Huntingdon police on a disorderly conduct charge, booked and fingerprinted and the following morning released with a 10-dollar fine. This would seem reasonable had the student been disorderly; however, he was just one of many bystanders watching the "revelry" after Thursday's Geneva-Indiana playoff game. Unfortunately, he was singled out of the crowd by the police to take the full blame for some students blocking Moore street.

The unwarranted arrest of this person, who will have a permanent police record, has brought protest from the student body. In response, the Senate has composed the following letter to the Huntingdon Chief of Police and the burgess of the town which it has requested the JUNIATIAN to print.

"This is to inform the Huntingdon Borough Chief of Police that the Juniata College Student Senate has unanimously passed a resolution of censure for his unwarranted arrest of a student of Juniata College on the night of March 6, 1958. We are aware that Chief Morris was acting in the line of duty when he appeared at the scene of the disturbance on Moore Street, but would like to remind him that he was not dealing with criminals on this occasion. Watching Chief Morris carry out his duties one received the impression that he thought he was quelling a prison riot when actually nothing serious was taking place.

Had Chief Morris arrested the students responsible for surrounding the car on a public road there would be no protest. However, he singled out an innocent bystander apparently because this person happened to be a student and charged him with disorderly conduct. The fact of the matter is that there was nothing disorderly about that student's conduct. Furthermore, we would like to remind Chief Morris that being an officer of the law does not give him the right to use abusive language on anyone; nor in this case was there any reason to keep the student in custody all night.

Finally, we invite Chief Morris to meet with the Student Senate to discuss fully the problem of student behavior. We are quite willing to adopt a reasonable attitude toward the Huntingdon Police but feel that such an attitude should be reciprocal."

In response to this letter the chief of police conferred Monday with Dean Heberling and Senate president Del McQuaide. It was then suggested that early next year Chief Morris meet with the male resident students for the purpose of promoting a better understanding between them and the Huntingdon police. Judging by last week's event, an improved relationship between the two is urgently needed. In any case, we of the JUNIATIAN are firmly in agreement with the Senate in protesting this police action and hope to see the accused student vindicated in the forthcoming settlement.

ID's Ideal

IT is unfortunate that the idea of voting identification cards did not occur sooner. It would have saved much time and effort and perhaps prevented mistaken identities and even a few stuffed ballot boxes. The cards worked well in both the officer and chairmanship elections and made the whole operation a great deal more efficient. We extend thanks to the post office for the extra work involved and congratulations to the Senators for their fine idea.

Election Recap

ALTHOUGH a plea for harmony following elections may seem trite and somewhat meaningless, nevertheless it is never out of place, especially here at JC where campaigns are vigorous to say the least. Smear tactics and hard feelings are sometimes unavoidable; however, they must now be forgiven and forgotten for the benefit of a unified Senate and campus in the year to come. We are not asking for the creation of one big happy family, just a "return to normalcy." In all seriousness, the '58-'59 Senate, as all Senates in the past, is going to need the cooperation and support of the whole student body.

A good sign this year in the campaigns was the almost universal use of platforms among the candidates. These helped to stimulate interest and obligate the senators to fulfill their promises, aided by occasional prodding of alert students.

WJC deserves a vote of thanks for its fine work in giving each candidate 15 minutes on the air for a campaign speech. These sessions were interesting and usually provided good indications of the candidate's competency. They were certainly well enough accepted to warrant continuance next year.

Finally, we of the JUNIATIAN would like to congratulate the 13 new senators and to pledge our continued cooperation in the coming year. We hope to see them become real instruments for furthering and strengthening student government on the Juniata campus.

Movie Of The Week

The Girl Most Likely

by George Fattman

Midterms once again have come to College Hill, but not without contributing to campus humor.

For instance, one prof announced unceremoniously, "The spring festival for this class will be March 14."

And if you're thinking of crying about your midterms schedule, you will be at least a little happier to know that there has been formed on campus a group devoted to the sole purpose of providing organized sympathy—for a fee. "We're all for professionalism," one of them told the JUNIATIAN.

For a price you can get a whole mob of coeds to cry with and/or for you. No matter what the occasion, to sob is their job. And to encourage wider use of this service they will give out free samples.

There will be complimentary tears for students whose soft-boiled eggs come out slimy, for those who sleep through eight o'clock midterms and for profs who blunder during lectures. In fact Sobs, Inc. has decided to cry the entire length of some lectures—when they feel it has been a great mistake for the prof to consider himself a teacher.

But let us turn from the coed of today to the coed of Juniata's yesteryear. We would like to pass along a couple of observations made by a man graduated from Juniata in '07. Said he at the recent county alumni association dinner, "Juniata women then didn't wear lipstick, they didn't wear rings, they didn't wear brecelets. In fact, it was somewhat like the building situation then—it's easier to say what they had than what they didn't have.

"And another thing—they didn't wear falsies. Either they had it, or they didn't have it. There was no camouflage."

* * * * *

"But you didn't eat your mixed fruit," said the table head with pseudo-concern.

"That's right," replied the coed. "I ate an apple last week."

From The Mouths Of Sub-frosh

"Where is the elevator?" asked the sweet thing who was staying on First Brumbaugh.

"We don't have any," was the reply.

"Well, then, do you have stairs?"

* * * * *

Someone in Founders left a sweater in the room of the coed who collects clothes to be sent to the cleaner's. But she thought that it belonged to her roommate, tried it on and wore it all day before she found out why it had been left in her room.

And that's it for this week. By the way, if you've heard anything funny, please address a note to the JUNIATIAN.

Chalk It Up!

by Val Means

After reviewing the platforms presented by the candidates for chairman of athletics, I find several good ideas which I believe are feasible and should be carried out.

From my experience, I believe that the Athletic Committee should become a functioning body. In the past the chairman has done most of the work. A good committee could work on ping pong, horseshoes, handball, mixed games and other activities which the chairman does not have adequate time to carry out properly.

Intergrating athletics with the social program as long as it does not interfere with the present IM program could be a good step. Mixed Saturday afternoon softball might go over well. Of course the problem here is to obtain sufficient interest.

Playoffs either between the champion of two leagues or the champion of each half would create even more interest in intramural basketball. Playoffs would depend on the length of the season because many difficulties crop up when basketball playoffs and spring sports practices begin.

On the other side of the ledger, I do not believe that any work should be done toward intercollegiate sports for women. There would be tremendous scheduling difficulties and a look at the women's IM situation shows that the interest is not really there.

The Whip intramural basketball championship was their second in four years. After a fifth place finish in '55, they won the title in '56, finished second to the Dukes in '57 by virtue of a one point loss and regained the title this year.

Harold Krause paced the Whips with 333 points for a 22.2 point a game average. Joe Sopata scored 150, Steve French 131 and Horace Carl 103 in the Whip scoring parade.

Ken Fassnacht also played.

April 11 marked the opening of the spring sports schedule. The baseball team opens at Millersville in what looks like the beginning of a tremendous season from all reports.

Faculty Approves Wrestling; New Program Rests On Trial

A recommendation to approve wrestling as a varsity sport in the athletic program at Juniata College was passed without negative vote by the faculty at its meeting Monday, March 10.

The recommendation carried a suggestion that an intercollegiate schedule be undertaken on a one-year trial in 1958-59.

Further action to approve wrestling as an intercollegiate sport now rests with the administrative committee which must consider two problems: a budget to undertake the program and a coach to provide instruction.

In presenting the proposal Dr. Edgar Kiracofe, chairman of the faculty committee on physical education and athletics, reviewed some of the reasons contributing to the committee's decision to recommend approval of wrestling. He pointed out that wrestling is a sport in which "the small boy can participate on the same program as the husky . . . and that it will provide opportunity for more boys to take part in intercollegiate sports . . ."

Another reason given was that while Juniata was competing academically with prominent institutions, it was not offering as broad a program of intercollegiate sports.

Earlier, Mike Snider, director of athletics, pointed out that every member institution of the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference has a wrestling squad engaged in an intercollegiate program except Susquehanna and Juniata.

The committee further explained that such natural mid-state rivals as Juniata's sister institution, Elizabethtown, Lycoming and Lebanon Valley have initiated intercollegiate programs in wrestling.

Snider stated that he hoped for "prompt approval" by the administrative committee because of the limited time now remaining to arrange even a curtailed schedule for next year.

Spring Sports Taking Focus

With Spring just around the corner, the eyes of most Juniatians are beginning to focus on the extensive spring sports schedules.

Coach Ken Bunn's baseball team has its sights set on bringing JC its most successful season in history. A large squad of returning upperclassmen and a fine crop of promising freshmen should give Bunn the material for that successful season. Last year the Tribe won 11 of 14 games with a freshman dominated team.

In track the thinclads of Coach Mike Snider are looking forward to their schedule with mixed feelings. Last year's young squad gave indications of a fine season this year but academic probation has taken its toll with the resultant loss of some good trackmen.

Last week the call was issued by faculty manager, Bob McFadden, for tennis aspirants but only a small number responded.

Bill Germann and his linksmen have not met in preparation for their season yet, but there is every indication that they will have a much more successful season than did last year's squad.

Spring Sports Hinder Intramural Wrestling

Due to the coming of the spring sports, the intramural wrestling program has been curtailed.

The IM wrestling championships which were held this week were in an abbreviated form because many fellows who had earlier expressed an interest in wrestling are now engaged in practice for one of the varsity spring sports.

Matches were held Monday and Wednesday, however in three weight classes with the following results:

147 lbs. Larry Fay dec. Al Quackenbos, 5-4;
157 lbs. Fay dec. Frank Hrach, 6-4;
157 lbs. Jack Shaffer pinned Joe Fedora;
167 lbs. Glen Miller pinned Ed Brockway.

Finals Here Tonight

The District 6 class B Finals will be held here tonight between Richland Township and Renova. Memorial Gymnasium will also be the scene of the Interdistrict Class A Playoff Wednesday night when Bedford plays the winner of the Altoona-Portage contest.

Erudite, Misinformed Juniatians Provide Laughs On General Exam

by George Fattman

Juniatians, at least some of them, are fairly clever if not too informed, according to the recent general information contest.

Some of the answers to the questions in the GIC (GIC—that sounds familiar) are fairly amusing. For instance in answer to the question "In his recent book, Robert Paul Smith asks a child two questions: Where did you go? and What did you do? The answers to the questions are:

"To London to visit the queen." was on one paper.

Furthermore, the GIC revealed that the three atomic submarines are the Nina, the Pinta and the Santa Maria; that Chief Sitting Bull is the author of Ten Little Indians; that the Decameron was written by Moses.

"Who succeeded Humphry as Secretary of the Treasury late in 1957?"

"Sam Shore." Someone else tried "John Fike."

According to some misinformed JCers the 1957 Nobel prize in literature went to John Wanamaker, and Blitzen is the name of a reigndeer.

Unquotable Quotes

The section of quotes to be identified brought forth some interesting answers:

"Here I stand, I cannot do otherwise! May God help me. Amen!" —General Custer.

"I do not choose to run."—Jayne Mansfield.

"Shoot if you must this old grey head."—President Ellis.

"It is not best to swap horses while crossing a stream."—Wyatt Earp.

"To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace." — Philander Smith.

Ah yes, what is an educated man?

College Choir To Take Two-Day Concert Trip

Juniata's college choir will make an unusual two-day weekend tour when it presents its sacred concert in the Churches of the Brethren at Lititz on Saturday evening, Elizabethtown, Sunday morning, and Palmyra in the evening.

This will be the first time that the choir has sung on the Elizabethtown campus. At the conclusion of the choir's regular concert, the E-town Choir will join the JC group to present two compositions chosen and prepared especially for the occasion.

The Juniata choir will be the guests of E-town College and choir in the college dining hall for Sunday dinner.

'Read New Book' In Library Week

by Sarah Hettinger, librarian

Since the time of our founding fathers' conception of free schools for the survival of democracy, another free agency has been established to carry on this burden of necessary enlightenment — free public libraries.

The written word is neceessary for directions, instructions and to preserve the worth-while ideas of history. Books and the ideas they contain not only safeguard our political freedom and enlarge our religious concepts, but they add much to the enjoyment of life.

By taking the printed page for granted much excitement has been forfeited. In surroundings where it is forbidden to look into any of the classics, there is enchantment in reading, a thrill in tasting the forbidden that seems to be lacking to those who possess books freely. Are we missing more than we realize by this lack of curiosity?

Visit the library during National Library Week.

Commencement Choir To Organize Monday

Students who like to sing are invited to join the Commencement Chorus which will begin weekly rehearsals Monday evening at 7:15 p.m. in the Stone Church sanctuary.

Each year, following a custom of many year's standing, campus singers from the student body, faculty and office staff join with the touring and chapel choirs for the presentation of an oratorio, or other great choral works, which is one of the highlights of commencement weekend.

This year Prof. Johnson, conductor of the chorus has planned to use Franz Josef Haydn's oratorio, The Creation. Accompanists will be Kathryn Holsinger, organist, and Jack Rodland, pianist.

CJ Looks Ahead To Honor System

Juniata, it was requested that the Campus Judiciary be given the responsibility for upholding the honor code. The CJ also called for the further investigation and extension of disciplinary measures, particularly in the cases of monetary fines for seniors who are no longer students.

CJ members also felt that the new Judiciary should request an allotment of $20 from the administration. The recommendation was made that next year's Senate expand the fall Meet the Senate meeting to include the Campus Judiciary.

Judiciary action on drinking was discussed. It was decided that the new CJ chairman should review, with President Ellis, college regulations on drinking.

Masque To Present Mystery

Collegians To Observe Traditional Move-Up Exercises Next Monday

Move-up Day this Monday will mark a big step taken by all freshmen, club and class officers, and senators.

The ceremony will take place in Oller Hall during the regular chapel period. The recessional to Founders Porch will be led by President Ellis, Senate advisers, and old and new Senate members and followed by each class leaving in their respective order from seniors to freshmen.

Seniors will line the front walk, the juniors will stand along the walk from Founders Porch to Students Hall and the sophomores will line the diagonal which the class of '61 will at last be permitted to use.

Move-up Day has come to be a great day for the freshmen at JC for it gives them the privilege of using the diagonal and the front steps of Founders Porch which, of course, no true freshman has dared to use. Also,all freshman women are now allowed 10:30's and lates.

JC Grads Of 1904-'11 To Hold Reunion Here

Captain Will Judy, Chicago publisher and former Juniatian, has extended an invitation to all who attended Juniata College from the fall of 1904 to the spring of 1911 to be his personal guests for a three-day reunion here May 30 to June 1.

A former president of Juniata's national alumni association, Captain Judy was a member of the class of 1907 and received his degree from the college in 1911.

SENATE MIXER—Both out-going and incoming Senators attended Wednesday night's meeting in Founders Chapel. This was the second of two joint meetings to help the newly-elected officers and chairmen adjust to their respective duties. Leading the discussion on various campus issues (see story below) were president Del McQuaide and president-elect Chuck Brown who will take over officially at Monday's Move-up Day exercises.

Classes Choose New Officers; Senate Approves 'Play' Plans

by Dick Johnson

Bill Lafe, Pete Douglas and Larry Johnson will head the senior, junior and sophomore classes respectively, Senate vice president elect Carl Wass reported at Wednesday's Senate meeting.

Other senior officers are Al Custer, vice president; Mary Shirk, secretary and Jackie Lee Rhodes, treasurer. Next year's junior class officers also include Bill Berrier, vice president; Roberta Savage, secretary and Bob Blair, treasurer. The freshmen elected Ed Costello, Jean Davies and Dick George.

Wass also reported that the bloodmobile drive may fall short of its 200-donor quota but will probably fulfill the 120-pint quota.

Chairman of educational activities - elect Don Shover reported that the comprehensive exam study groups are being organized, and the Senate approved tentatively a list of nominations to head the various groups.

All College Play Day

A proposed all college play day, sponsored by the JCA, was approved by the Senate and awaits administrative endorsement. It is scheduled for May 13 and will include varied games

JCers, Townspeople To Present 'Messiah'

A chorus, composed of 56 JC students and people from the Huntingdon area, will present the Easter portion of Handel's Messiah in Oller Hall Monday night at 8:15 p.m.

The chorus, under the direction of Prof. William Merrel, is jointly sponsored by the college and the Huntingdon Music Club. A string orchestra, piano and organ will accompany the singers.

Soloists will include Mrs. Jewett Henry and Lois Jean Dunlap, sopranos; Mrs. John Horn, contralto; Glenn Holsinger, tenor and Greer Bailey, bass. Prof. Currier organized the orchestra. Miss Elinor Banks will provide the piano accompaniment and John Rodland will be the organist.

JCA Planners Reveal Work On '58 Focus

Segregation versus integration will be the main theme of JCA Focus Days, April 9 and 10.

Speakers supporting both sides will be on campus to present their views. Among them will be Theodore Bran from Penn State, James Bray from JC and Charles Jones, a Presbyterian minister expelled from his church because he integrated it. Jones is a member of the Southern Educators and Religious Leaders Council on Integration.

Milo Manly

Milo Manly, from Harrisburg, will discuss the Levittown situation, and a movie entitled Crisis in Levittown will be shown.

Attempts are still being made to secure a Southern senatorial assistant and an integrationalist from Levittown. A student panel is also being composed.

In addition to the speakers, a chapel program showing the segregational and the integrational activities of the North and the South will be presented with the classic case of the North being the Levittown situation.

Dean Issues Warning On Campus Car Rules

Dean Heberling has issued the following statement, intended for all JC auto operators:

"Through cooperation with the Huntingdon Borough Police, we are giving you this advance warning that beginning Monday the parking regulations posted on Moore Street will be enforced. This means that parking is prohibited from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. each week day.

In addition, operators are reminded that parking against traffic is prohibited on any street and that this regulation will likewise be enforced.

This notice is intended for your information and convenience."

Team To Attend Debate At Geneva

JC spokesmen will travel to Geneva tomorrow to participate in the debate topic, Resolved: that membership in a union as a condition of employment should be illegal.

Registrar Directs Christie Thriller Today, Tomorrow On Oller Boards

by Carol Whitfield

JC Masquers will present Agatha Christie's mystery thriller, Ten Little Indians, tonight and Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in Oller Hall.

The play, directed by registrar James Bray, contains three acts and revolves about the ten little Indian statuettes standing upon the mantle and the inscription written above each one. As a planned coincidence, exactly ten guests, each one of which has a unique "murder" to his credit, are invited to the marooned house of the statuettes.

First Death

The first evening, as the guests assemble for cocktails, a voice comes out of the air accusing each of a murder. They find one of the statuettes has toppled over and broken.

Promptly, one guest chokes to death on potassium cyanide which is in his drink. One down and nine to go. Thus the play progresses until all but two have been dispatched. Suspicion and terror mount quickly at this fast-moving play draws to a close.

Hoyer and Fink

Starring in the role of Vera Claythorne, the pretty heroine, is Janice Hoyer. Ron Fink portrays Philip Lombard, the adventurer, and, as it turns out, the most rewarded character.

Don Miller appears as Anthony Marston, the giddy Oxonian and the first guest to be done away with. Mrs. Rogers, a servant invited with the other guests played by Shirley Raffensperger, never awakens from her first night's sleep.

Her husband, Mr. Rogers, played by Rush Hodgins., is chopped in half with an axe. Pete Wright portrays Dr. Armstrong, who has once operated while drunk and caused the death of his patient.

Klebe and Lafe

Diane Klebe takes the part of Emily, the spinster who has driven a servant girl to suicide. Bill Lafe plays General MacKenzie, who once sent his wife's lover on a fatal mission.

William Blore, a loud South African detective, is played by Lester Aungst, and Fred Narracott, a delivery boy from the mainland, is played by Lowell Moyer. Bob Reader portrays Sir Lawrence Wargrave, the judge who sentenc-

Others selected were Janice Bridges, Thiel College; Elizabeth Daurora, Duquesne University; Martha Hart, Allegheny College; Diana Mucinieks, Carnegie Institute of Technology and Wilma Shields, Potomac State College, W.Va.

Twenty-nine colleges and universities participated in the Campus Cover Girl judging. A photograph of each candidate appeared in Sunday's Press.

Judges then selected the six most photogenic campus cover girls and invited each to next Saturday's luncheon for personal interviews. A winner will be selected from this group.

Altoona TV Show To Feature Choir

Juniata's touring choir will appear on Altoona's channel 10, WFBG-TV Tuesday at 9 a.m.

The choir will present its regular sacred-secular program. The girl's trio and the male quartet will be featured as well as the entire choir.

The choir is appearing on the Horizons telecast, the program sponsored by JC once each month.

Editorially Speaking . . .

"A Year Of Selfless Work . . ."

ED. NOTE: The following article was written by George Fattman, former editor of the JUNIATIAN, in response to a special request from the present editor.

NEXT Friday another Senate president steps from office, leaving behind a year of selfless work, the fructification of a deep-rooted interest in obtaining "what is best for Juniata."

Certainly no other campus leader in the memory of the current student generation carried out his duties in a grayer fog of controversey than Del McQuaide. And, unfortunately, many allow this murk to blind them to the accomplishments of countless arduous hours and relentless retention of principle.

It is certainly not our purpose to veneer any of McQuaide's shortcomings. But we regret that he has been given so little credit for what he has done.

Important accomplishments based on his platform include permission for students to give their opinions on future construction on campus, IM wrestling, better lighting in the library, cafeteria breakfast, a reading day before finals, Students Hall open Sundays, acquisition of a more realistic attitude on the part of the Administration toward student drinking and better publicity of Judiciary meetings.

But there are several accomplishments not included on the platform that seem to us even more consequential than any noted above. Innovation of a student proctor system and the creation of a chairmanship of educational activities are two big steps toward an honor system. Furthermore, we find the Judiciary in a much stronger position now than it was a year ago.

Power delegated to it has been usurped on occasion during the year. But McQuaide fought back. No longer is a student "kicked out" of school because he was thought to have been drinking. No longer are blanket fines issued on the students every time something is broken.

Admittedly there are a few areas where he appears to have failed. Operation recreation seems to have been laid to rest (thanks to the flu), the committee to investigate the possibilities of an honor system and ways to bring it about never met, the academic affairs committee did little or nothing.

And if McQuaide occasionally had trouble with some factions in the student body, he managed to create and maintain better relations with the Administration and faculty than any of his recent predecessors. This was a most important achievement, since nothing weighty can be accomplished without their sympathy and cooperation.

In summary, we must conclude that McQuaide undoubtedly ranks with the better Senate presidents. We owe him our thanks and our admiration for his accomplishments, his devotion to principle and his unflinching approach to campus problems.

For Greater Efficiency

Mid-terms have come and gone and as usual have left many wearied, and worried, students in their wake. The perennial complaints were heard again—a tight schedule, tests too long, questions too difficult.

Although nothing can be done to remedy these ills, small improvements can be initiated toward making the exams less of an ordeal and as pleasant as circumstances permit. Such a thing, we believe, would be the use of blue books for mid-terms by profs whose exams warrant them.

With tests so lengthy and time so valuable, walking to the desk for additional paper might very well mean the loss of five points! Seriously blue books would eliminate this as well as the bother of having to write your name on each sheet. Profs would also benefit from using the books; the test would be in a compact form with no danger of lost or confused individual papers. The lined pages also guarantee increased legibility of handwriting and rule out the 45 degree angle scrawl.

We feel that mid-term use of blue books will improve student efficiency in taking the exams. And where else is efficiency more needed than in relating the accumulation of six weeks' knowledge in 55 minutes?

Congratulations, ISTC

WE were sorry to hear through ISTC's newspaper of their students' concern over the "Indian incident" at the NAIA playoffs. Had we realized the Indian was nearly so "beloved", we never would have laid our mischievous hands on it. In any case, we of Juniata would like to take this opportunity to congratulate Indiana on their fine performance and victory in the playoffs, and, although we were not their hosts, we were proud to see them make such a fine showing on our home court.

"DIDN'TCHA SEE TH' SIGN, BUDDIE?"

On Campus

by George Fattman

The creation of a party system in campus politics at Dickinson was received here with humor and amazement, although many DC students consider it a remarkable improvement.

The "'United" party recently swept an all-campus election, complete with conventions, platforms, voting machines and "straight" tickets. At a recent multi-college student government confab someone from the Carlisle school commented that the party system had done much to remove campus apathy.

"With the use of parties we managed to get a record number of voters out—80 percent," aDickinson leader boasted.

"But we get around 90 percent," a Juniatian was able to retort, "and we don't have to resort to parties."

The Dickinsonian, the school's newspaper, regarded the institution of the party system as adding more wood to the fire of bungling in student government. But it seems to have worked—for the time being.

The recent fire drill reminded a group of sophomore coeds about their first fire drill as conscientious but uninformed frosh.

When the fire alarm was sounded, they all leaped from their racks and rushed to the bulletin board for the instruction sheet, which they proceeded to follow carefully. It wasn't until they came to "Clear dresser tops" and "Empty wastebaskets" that they realized they had the wrong sheet. It was for going home for the Thanksgiving vacation.

The hall telephone had rung at least 10 times that evening, and when it rang for the 11th, the coed in charge of answering for the evening had become fairly disgruntled.

"Hello," someone heard her say. Pause "Well, goody!" And she slammed the receiver back into place.

"'What did they want,' she was asked.

"Oh, they just called to say they're selling hoagies downstairs."

And that's it for this week. See you at the play tonight.

Tax Cut Best Method For Recession Relief

HERB DEUCHAR:

THE RECESSION—As the nation's recession grew and deepened last week, Washington began to formulate steps to cope with the complex problem. There are differences between the Republicans and the Democrats on what measures to take, that is, either increase the Federal spending or pour money into the purchasing power of the nation's economy.

The two main proposals that are now under consideration in Washington are either a tax cut or increased Federal spending. If a tax cut were put into effect, it would increase the consumers' purchasing power and thus stimulate the investment in production culminating in more jobs. The feeling on Capital Hill is that tax cuts will be employed by May if the slump continues.

The one problem which a tax cut creates is that it increases inflation when prices are still at a high level. The other alternative for alleviating the recession is increasing Federal spending through public works which is supposed to provide more jobs for the unemployed. It is argued that this measure will also develop our national wealth with the construction of urban projects, new schools and other public projects.

In a time when quick steps should be taken, the tax cut proposal seems to be the most plausible. It will provide more money for the consumer and consequently stimulate business. As it was exemplified in the New Deal, the "pump priming" method takes too long to give any immediate relief to the unemployed. Also, the public works program may not always be in the same area where unemployment is the highest.

I think history will prove the New Deal "pump priming" program accomplished little for business until finally the demands of World War II stimulated our national economy. The legacy of the New Deal still lingers with us, but for instantaneous economic relief, a tax cut stacks up as the best bet at this time.

News Of The Week In Retrospect

THE BROKEN JINX—Monday Morning at Cape Canaveral, Florida, the Navy's repeated frustrations came to an end, for the Navy's Vanguard missile successfully launched and placed a tiny satellite, the Vanguard 1, into the earth's orbit. The three stage missile hurdled out into space at the speed of 18,000 mph and reached an altitude up to 2,500 miles. This places the Vanguard 1 in a much higher orbit than any of the Soviet satellites or our own Explorer I.

It was also reported that the satellite takes about 2¼ hours to circle the earth and will probably circle the earth for five years. With the announcement of this success, Vanguard officials disclosed plans to launch a 21 pound satellite in the immediate future. Let us hope that the mechanical obstacles of the Vanguard program have been overcome and that greater areas of exploration of space will soon be attained.

Ron Bergey of the Pals tops intramural bowlers with a 155 average. Teammate Harvey Wagner and Joe Sopata of the Rustlers follow with 145 averages. The top ten bowlers are::

Harvey Wagner, Pals 145
Joe Sopata, Rustlers 145
Dick Hite, Ten Pins 144
Glenn Williamson, Alleykats 143
Les Greenawalt, Pals 143
"Fats" Falcione, Rustlers 143
Wayne Housum, Champs 143
Dick Fyock, Champs 142
Three tied for tenth

The Pals are deemed a shoo-in in Division A while the Rustlers hold a slight edge in Division B. The Rustlers have come on fast after a slow start and should give the Pals a run for the bowling title.

Interest is not what it should be in the intramural wrestling tournament. The fault is in the timing of the tournament, however, not in the lack of wrestlers. Sports on an intramural level do not go over well during mid-term period, and early practice for spring sport athletes adds to the problem. If carried out a few weeks earlier, the tourney would be very successful.

The Pittsburgh Pirates have already found a settled ball club. A look at the Grapefruit standings show they have reached top season form already as they hover near the bottom. This is is indeed a constant contrast to their explosive starts in the past several springs.

The NCAA semi-finals will be played tonight—Temple vs Kentucky and Kansas State vs Seattle with the winners going tomorrow. Temple, riding a 25 game streak which is the longest in the nation among major schools, is favored to meet Kansas State in in the finals.

Rustlers Set New Record

Intramural bowling's high riding Rustlers rolled a new season record of 1488 pins Friday to take an easy 3-0 win over the last place Flashes.

Paced by Joe Sopata's 327 pin total, the Division B leaders smashed the previous 1422 record set by the Pals only last week. In the only other Division B clash of the evening, the favored Alleykats were edged from the runner-up spot as they suffered a 3-0 upset to Will's Gang.

In Division A the Champs dumped the Ten Pins 3-0, the Ranch Hands nipped the Gutterballers by a similar count and the undefeated Pals took a forfeit match from the Crusaders.

Dick Hite of the Ten Pins and Sopata shared the weeks top single game honors with 189 and 190 scored respectively. Hite's 356 pin total and Emery DiDonato's 346 total for the Ranch Hands were the high counts for both games.

Tonight the Champs meet the Ranch Hands, and the Ten Pins clash with the Harriers in Division A. In Division B the Alleykats go against the Flashes, the Holy Rollers take on Will's Gang and the Schlitzers battle the Admirals in what could decide the division runnerup position.

Outlook For Baseball Bright; Losses Hinder Other Sports

Word has come from College Field that the Indian baseballers will be the outstanding spring team to watch this year.

With letterwinners Joe Sopata, Don Ross, Don Shover, Jim Berrier and Bill Berrier as a strong nucleus to better last season's 11-3 slate, Coach Ken Bunn may well boast one of the best starting arrays in the state this season. Only one thing weighs heavily on everyone's mind, whether another good moundsman can be found to back up Pete McCauley. Great hopes have been placed upon the freshman class for a second line pitcher.

Two lettermen, Chuck Seeley and Del McQuaide, will lead the Indian netmen through a rugged 10-match schedule this spring.

Graduation has taken a heavy toll, but several promising freshmen should bolster the team. The netmen open the season on April 12 at Pittsburgh where they will face the Pitt Panthers. The tennis team had a 3-6 record last season.

Jay Gettig, Dick Hite, and Pat Conners will carry the fortunes of the golf team on their shoulders this year. These three letterwinners will lead the Indian golfers through a 10-match schedule, the longest in several years. The season will be highlighted on May 10, when the linkmen participate for the Middle Atlantic golf championship at Mount Union.

Juniata's trackmen will open their season at Lock Haven April 16. Led by Herb Deuchar, Dick Johnson, Lew Stratton and Kirk Wicker, Coach P. M. Snider's team should fare better than last year when they had a 1-5 slate.

Juniata Invites 35 High Schools For Relay Meet

P. M. Snider, director of athletics, has extended invitations to 35 high schools in central Pennsylvania to participate in Juniata's third scholastic relay meet here Saturday, April 19.

Snider emphasized that the meet will be conducted individuals rather than to determine a team champion. Awards will be made to winners, but no school trophy will be presented.

Interclass Meet Postponed; Date Set For April 11

The interclass meet, originally scheduled for next week, has been postponed until Friday, April 11 due to inclement weather.

This traditional interclass competition will consist of 13 events. Running events will be the 100 yard dash, the 220 yard dash, the 440 yard run, the 880 yard run and the mile. There will be two hurdle events. The weight events will consist of the discus, the shotput and the javelin. The other field competition will be in the pole-vault, the broad jump and the high jump.

Last year the class of 1960 nosed out the class of '59 for first place honors. The present junior class was the team victor in 1956.

Volleyball Tourney To Be Held In April

An intramural volleyball tournament will be held after spring vacation.

Under the direction of Jim Heck, new chairman of athletics, the program is now in the planning stage. No definite plans can be made until the gym is acquired for the tourney. Games will probably be held in the afternoons.

Interested persons should start thinking about the formation of teams. Rosters must contain at least six persons. Substitution is permitted.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Campus Judiciary - A Year Of Progress

THANKS to the 1957-'58 Campus Judiciary, this body has gained much in strength and influence since its initiation in 1956. Part of the job of any new organization is to set precedents and determine policy, and this the present Judiciary has done with remarkable insight. Its members promoted a clearer understanding of the relationship between the Judiciary and the Administration by insisting on handling all cases of discipline under the CJ's jurisdiction. Thus they immediately prevented it from becoming merely a mouthpiece of the Administration.

Other accomplishments were the abolition of blanket fines (now the students pay the cost of damage only), a more realistic attitude toward student drinking, better publicity of Judiciary meetings in the JUNIATIAN and an improved trial proceduure which will be recommended to the new Judiciary.

Monday students will vote to determine the membership of this new '58-59 Judiciary. Since these members will also have the important responsibility of guiding the CJ through its growing stages, it is important that they be chosen with care. In selecting your candidates, look for good judgement, fairness, a willingness to assume responsibility and most important a sincere interest in promoting a better and more unified Juniata community. For this is a real aim of the Campus Judiciary. By assuming some former strictly administrative duties, the Judiciary is helping to close the wide gap between students and Administration. No longer is the Administration thought of as a police force, since now the students themselves are taking over this responsibility, with the result of their better understanding administrative problems.

One of the advantages of student responsibility in this area is that Judiciary members will naturally fight to defend student rights. This is a healthy trend, yet carried to extremes it can become dangerous. Unless members remain fair-minded and impartial, the Judiciary can destroy itself through its own ineffectiveness.

Electing competent members, however, will not in itself insure an effective Judiciary. More than that, the students must be willing to accept the increased responsibility and must take an active interest in upholding the standards of the college. Only in this way will the Judiciary grow strong enough to one day become the main judicial body in a Juniata honor system.

The Camera Club Strike

WE of the JUNIATIAN were the first to feel the sting of the camera club's recent "strike" for an improved darkroom, since the club is solely responsible for the photography that appears weekly in the newspaper. Having tried working with a Huntingdon photographer, we found this would cause impossible inconvenience and added expense.

Yet aside from our own selfish reasons, we believe the camera club deserves better working conditions and that their requests have too long been ignored. Taking pictures for all campus publications, the club performs a valuable service. This year it took approximately 90 percent of the Alfarata's pictures.

We realize that at this time many demands are being made on the Administration for campus improvements, yet we feel that the camera club has been long patient and now deserves more than continued empty promises. We hope that their request that the Administration give "the urgent needs of the club their immediate and proper consideration" will be soon recognized.

Bulletin Board - Enough Delay

THE JUNIATIAN is happy to annuonce that construction of the "giant, lighted, glass enclosed bulletin board" has not been forsaken by the Administration. Students were beginning to wonder just which Christmas was meant when the Administration promised completion by the end of Christmas vacation.

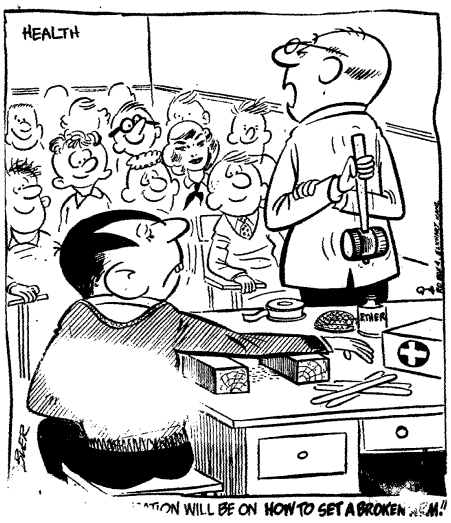
According to Treasurer John Fike, the delay has been caused by the admissions office construction which has required all the available manpower. However, Fike stated that as soon as the admissions work is completed or at a time when the men cannot work in that area, construction on the bulletin board will begin.

We are glad to hear this encouraging news, for the present framework just presents an ugly eyesore and certainly doesn't facilitate communication. Although we realize that the work on the admissions office is naturally more important, we feel that three months' delay is long enough. Surely by this time the Administration can produce the few men necessary to assemble the board.

Movie Of The Week

Run Silent, Run Deep

Burt Lancaster and Mary LaRoche in a scene from the exciting new motion picture, Run Silent, Run Deep, co-starring Clark Gable, which opens Wednesday April 16 for a four day engagement at the Harris Clifton Theatre as a United Artists release. Hecht, Hill and Lancaster produced the movie from the renowned novel by Commander Edward L. Beach.



On Campus

by George Fattman

By now Juniatians are back into the rut of higher education after a week of eating, sleeping (this is Juniata) and making merry—and they haven't lost their sense of humor.

There has been a bit of concern over the recently announced rise in room and board, but many concede that the college needs it. "I hear that if things get much worse," a recent grad quipped during a return visit, "they're going to install coin boxes on the toilets and turnstiles in the outside houses' bathrooms."

But according to one of the profs, living at Juniata is relatively cheap. "In a university town," he pointed out, "the townspeople take the students for what they can get. Even necessities are expensive . . . necessities, you know, like food . . . but then you wouldn't know—some of you haven't tasted any for four years."

* * * * *

When ask how she spent a recent Sunday afternoon, the coed replied, "Oh, we studied biology up on the cliffs. We were going over the muscles."

* * * * *

And we heard about another couple who took a trip, too, only this time it was "out to see the creek." However, by some quirk the jaunt ended up in the middle of a field—where the auto got hopelessly stuck. Moreover, the tow truck that came to extricate the mired mobile found a similar fate. How to solve having too many cars on campus in one not-so-easy step.

* * * * *

Vengeance And All That

Well, didn't anyone read the assignment?" the prof asked. "Mark my words: you'll regret it—and I'll do everything I can to accelerate your regret."

* * * * *

Many of the seniors had job interviews over the vacation. Explaning the fringe benefits of his company, one personnel manager pointed out, "If you get sick and can't work, we'll give you your full pay up to 13 weeks. After that you can go die."

* * * * *

When nearly everyone in the class tried to refute his statement, a prof pleaded desparately, "But what I am telling you is the truth. Why do you keep fighting me?"

* * * * *

Finally, on the plight of the camera club, currently threatening to strike because they were promised improved facilities and didn't get them: "First they (the administration) granted space for a new photo lab but not the money," a photog reported. "Now they have granted the money, but they haven't said how it is to be spent." Well, I think that's progress . . .

November — Prelude To 1960 Elections

THE TRIAL HEAT BEGINS —In an atmosphere clouded with recent and increased world tensions and the ever pressing problem of the slumping national economy, political leaders across the country are setting themselves for the tough mid-term election battle which comes this fall. The Democrats observe this election with confidence as the trial heat for the future Presidential jackpot in 1960. Not only will this forthcoming election be a test of party strengths, but it will also be a proving ground for prospective national ticket-heads who will be running this fall for key positions in their respective states.

The Democrats are basing their current optimism on three basic assumptions which they believe will be the gravy train that will ride them into office. These three fundamental issues are: that the recession still will be riding strong in November, that the unrest in the farm belt over Secretary of Agriculture Benson's policies will be reflected in the mid-West voting, and finally that there will be no divergence from the long term trend which gives the party out of control the edge in the off-year elections.

As the Congressional balance stands now, the Democrats have 49 seats while the Republicans 47 seats in the Senate, whereas in the House the Democrats hold a commanding majority of 232 seats while the Republicans only claim 198 seats. The Democrats would also like very much to hold their present 29 to 19 lead in the state governorships. They are out to pick up sixteen Senate seats this fall along with about 45 House seats up for grabs.

If the Democrats can fulfill their goal, they will have driven the Republican strength to it's lowest ebb since 1944. The Republicans silently view this dark political picture with apprehension and are working hard to stop the Democrats from reaching their objectives. The Republicans will not concede their now held Congressional seats and are basing their hopes on a business upswing by mid-summer which will balk Democratic maneuvers. They are also aiming for a few Democratic held governorships which are normally held by Republicans.

In Pennsylvania, the Democrats are out to gain a Senate seat being vacated by the retiring Senator Edward Martin, Republican. The Senate primary race will be decided in May with Republican Hugh Scott running against retiring Governor George Leader. The gubernatorial primaries will most likely see Harold Stassen pitted against Democratic Mayor David Lawrence of Pittsburgh. The Republicans are hoping that the split within the Democratic organization will off-set the economic trends to give them a chance to break even in the once Republican stronghold of Pennsylvania.

Though the elections are still in the distant future, the political battle has already begun and is steadily mounting in fervor and intensity. Unless the national picture takes a change for the better, I am afraid the Democrats will have a political heyday in this fall's elections.

HERB DEUCHAR: News Of The Week In Retrospect

Chalk It Up!

by Val Means

Coach Ken Bunn's baseball team will attempt to improve on a fine 12-3 record compiled last year in the start of another season at Millersville.

Four sophomores — thirdbaseman Don Ross, shortstop Jim Berrier, centerfielder Bill Berrier and pitcher Pete McCauley—leave a strong nucleus from last year. Ross clobbered the ball at a .361 clip, Bill and Jim Berrier hit .296 and .288 and Pete McCauley possessed a 6-2 mark on the mound. Outfielder Joe Sopata and infielders Don Shover and Barry Sipes should also have positions sewed up. Freshmen to watch are catcher Jack Meenan, pitcher Ron Reynolds and infielder Bob Melage.

Look for a 13-3 season.

Tennis should improve over their 3-6 record with added balance. Chuck Seeley, 4-5 in singles and 6-3 in doubles, and Del McQuaide, 2-5 in singles and doubles, are the only lettermen. Frosh prospects, however, look good with Jack Merrill and Jerry Leatherman heading the list.

Should take four out of ten.

Golf should also move up with the added experience of lettermen Jay Gettig and Pat Connors. Gettig tops holdovers with a 2-6 record in his first man role last season. Fortunes to improve a 1-7 record lay with Jim Cain and freshman Steve Gerlock.

Look for a 3-7 record.

Track is the same old story—too many events with little talent. Junior Herb Deuchar tops holdovers with 55 points gathered in competition last year. Lew Stratton took 24 in the hurdles, and Dick Johnson and Curt Wicker scored 22 each in the heavy events. Freshmen should carry the load led by distance man Don Layman and sprinter Ray Trimmer.

Should repeat a 1-5 tally.

Intramural softball is just around the corner. The Mumblers, Devil's Deacons, Crusaders and Ball Busters appear to have the top returning ball clubs, but who will win is anybody's guess.

The defending champion Mumblers feature power hitters Chuck Phillips, Bob Sill and Ken Fassnacht and Chuck Seeley who has pitched for the past two league champions.

The Devil's Deacons move under the hitting and pitching of Rod Sponsler, the Crusaders always finish high, and the Ball Busters have filled several weak spots to round out the top contenders.

Netmen Open Season With Pittsburgh Team

Tomorrow the Tribe netmen travel to Pittsburgh where they will inaugurate their 31st season of intercollegiate tennis.

Pitt's Panthers have never lost to the Tribe in six previous matches. This year the Indians have their sights set on ending that dismal record.

Only two letterwinners, Chuck Seeley and Del McQuaide, are on the freshman dominated squad. They hold two spots on the squad and will be counted upon to spearhead the Tribe attack this spring.

The number three slot goes to Jack Merrill, a freshman who has shown much promise so far this spring.

Rounding out the squad are a pair of freshman, Jerry Leatherman and Dan Davis, and one senior, Pete Wright.

Next Thursday the netmen will open their home season as they play host to Indiana State.

Classes To Vie Today

The interclass meet, consisting of 13 events, will be held today weather permitting.

Running events will include the 100 and 220 yard dashes, the 440 and 880 yard runs, the mile plus two hurdle events. The field and weight competition consists of the pole-vault, broad jump, high jump, discus, shot put and the javelin.

Rustlers, Pals Clash Tonight

The Pals and Rustlers will battle for the bowling supremacy tonight in the final match of the IM season.

The Pals will be gunning to keep their perfect 18-0 slate clean against the late-coming division B leaders who once held the cellar position. A tough Ron Bergy, Harvey Wagner, Les Greenawalt combination with a 147 pin average might give the division A champs the edge, while the Rustlers will be counting on high point men Joe Sopata and "Fats" Falcion with 145 and 143 pin averages respectively.

In pre-vacation contests, the Ten Pins dumped the Harriers 2-1, and the Ranch Hands edged the Champs by a similar count. In division B, Will's Gang out rolled the Holy Rollers 3-0, the Admirals lost a 2-1 decision to the Schlitzers, and the Alley Kats dropped the Flashes 3-0.

Baseballers Play Two Away; Host Shippensburg, LH Next

Coach Ken Bunn's baseballers travel today to open a two-day trip at Millersville STC and Washington College.

The Indians open their home schedule Tuesday when they face Shippensburg STC before hosting Lock Haven STC Wednesday.

Linksmen To Face West Virginia, Pitt

Juniata's linksmen clash with powerful West Virginia and Pitt squads this weekend to open their 12-match golfing season.

Coach Bill Germann's team travels to Morgantown today to seek their first victory over the Mountaineers in three seasons, while they oppose the powerful Panthers in Pittsburgh on Saturday.

Returning lettermen Jay Gettig and Pat Connors will form the core of this year's inexperienced squad. Both sophomores, Gettig and Connors, are the only holdovers from the 1957 team which compiled an unenviable 1-7 record.

Sophomores Al Pitt, Bob Schwalenburg, and Neil Donnor are competing for the other four positions along with freshmen Carl Nauroth and Steve Gerlock.

Unbeaten Raunchies Win Intramural Title

The Raunchies, undefeated in seven contests, won the girls intramural basketball championship.

Paced by high-scoring Ann Hurley, the Raunchies defeated Second Oneida 40-23, the Nitwits 39-28, and Third Brumbaugh 44-19. They also claimed a forfeit win over the Buffaloes.

The Swingin' Squaws turned back the Psyclones 33-28 and Second Oneida 33-28 while picking up forfeit decision over the Buffaloes.

In the remaining game played the Nitwits outpointed Third Brumbaugh 22-18.

Letterman Pete McCauley and freshman Ron Reynolds will probably get starting mound duties with Dave Goodling and Bill Miller as other possible choices.

Jack Meenan has the edge over Rex Donnelly and Skip Walasik at the catching post.

Infielders Don Shover, Barry Sipes, Jim Berrier, and Don Ross will probably open at their respective positions with Al Dungan, Bob Melago, Dick Gaskell and George Lingenfelter as capable reserves.

Thinclads To Play Lock Haven Away

Due to adverse weather conditions which prevented outside work-outs, and the loss of several of last year's lettermen, the Juniata track team is a question mark as it prepares for the season lid-lifter against Lock Haven STC next Wednesday at Lock Haven.

Coach Mike Snider has nine letter winners returning from last year's team, which compiled a 1-5 record. Leading the returnees are last year's high point man for the Indians, middle distance man Herb Deuchar, and javelin record holder Dick Johnson. Other lettermen competing this year are Kirk Wicker, Mel Wenger, George Cline, Frank Hrach, John Compton, Chuck Brown and Glenn Williamson. Also returning is javelin thrower Jerry Witt, who lettered two years ago.

Several newcomers hold the key to the thinclads success. Snider is hoping that freshmen Don Layman, cross-country standout, Jack Heading, Ray Trimmer, Chal Dilling and Galen Heckman and junior Bill Lafe will take up the slack due to losses.

For the first time in JC history, the annual Spring Carnival will be held outdoors on Tote lawn, Saturday night from 8 to 11 p.m.

To lend the real carnival atmosphere, the clubs will have booths and games. FTA has a telegraph booth through which you can send a message to anyone on campus.

Request Music

Music by request will come from WJC's disc jockey booth. To test your skill, IRC has a giant map at which you throw darts to hit national capitals.

J Club has a ball game, and WAA a backward accuracy toss game. These booths plus more will be directed by the club members.

Polka Band

Under the joint sponsorship of chairman of social activities Sandy Johnston and chairman of general activities Dutch Boland, the Carnival will feature block dancing on 18th Street to the music of the Polka Band, plus other surprise entertainment.

Popcorn, snow-ice and typical carnival refreshments will be available. Many door prizes and gifts will be given away during the evening.

Four Debaters To Go To Dickinson Tourney

Four members of the Debate Club will travel to Dickinson College today and tomorrow to participate in the annual Novice Debate Tournament.

There will be a series of four debates, two Friday evening and two Saturday morning. They will debate on the current national topic, Resolved that membership in a labor organization as a condition for employment should be illegal.

The purpose of this annual tournament is to provide experience for those members of debate clubs who have done little or no debating.

Dean Mays Pledges Cooperation, Shover Reports To JC Senators

At the regular Wednesday night meeting of the Senate, Don Shover chairman of educational activities, reported on the outcome of his initial meeting with Dean Morley Mays and said that Dean Mays would lend "100 percent" cooperation to feasible Senate policies in the field of educational affairs.

Shover also reported that Dean Mays was quite pleased that he was able to work with a student representative in order to discover the students' point of view pertaining to educational problems. Dean Mays, according to Shover, would carry a number of Senate recommendations and proposals to the next faculty meeting.

Cafeteria Meals

Dick Johnson and Carl Wass reported to the Senate on their meeting with Miss Frances Mathias, college dietician, concerning cafeteria style evening meals on weekends.

Although Miss Mathias made no definite promises, she stated that this type of meal would be served occasionally on an experimental basis for the remainder of the semester. The report was well received by the Senate and the committee was encouraged to discuss the matter further with Miss Mathias.

Elephant Walk

Jim Heck reported that due to adverse weather conditions, the New Enterprise Stone and Lime Company was unable to complete the reconstruction of the Elephant Walk during Easter vacation as was originally planned. The extensive use of the walk by North Dorn residents has necessitated the postponement of work on the walk until the spring semester ends.

Senate Appointments

Other business included the appointment of Mel Kreps as chairman of the Senate publicity committee, and Ron Vinson as campus co-ordinator of the National Students Association.

Juniata Orchestra To Give Concert

The Juniata College Community Orchestra, under the direction of Robert Currier, will present a concert in Oller Hall Thursday evening at 8:15 p.m.

The orchestra is composed of approximately 35 musicians from Juniata College, Huntingdon High School and the Huntingdon area. Three guest string players from Altoona, Paul Cianci, violin, Charles Redenberger, violin and Marco Branda, viola, will also participate.

A Handel Organ Concerto, with Jack Rodland at the organ, will be one feature of the program. Some other numbers which the orchestra will perform are: The First Movement of Beethoven's First Symphony; An Outdoor Overture, by Aaron Copeland; Bear Dance by Bela Bartok; Elsa's Procession from Lohengrin, byWagner and Prelude and Fugue in D Minor by Handel.

JCers To Attend Reading Festival

Juniata students will attend Penn State's 10th Annual Reading Festival April 24 and 25, according to Miss Esther Doyle, of Juniata's speech department.

At the festival, Bev McEwen will read The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock by T. S. Eliot. Sue Paxson and Jack Rodgers will give an arrangement of Christopher Fry's The Boy with the Cart.

Miss Doyle added that students from about 15 colleges in Pennsylvania will attend the festival. Juniata students have participated since it was started 10 years ago.

Editorially Speaking . . .

A Spring Mountain Day

WITH spring and nice weather returning to Huntingdon once again, the possibility of a spring Mountain Day is on just about everyone's mind.

Upperclassmen especially, knowing that Mountain Day is one of the best of the Juniata traditions, hate to see a year go by without one. This would mean a break in the cycle with the result of the present student body visiting only three parks.

The Senate has had a petition for a spring Mountain Day before the Administration for some time, but as yet nothing definite has been decided. There has been some reluctance to grant such a request because of the low mid-term grades and the day already lost last October on account of the flu. However, Juniata was fortunate in this respect since many colleges had to close and consequently lost much more time than we.

In addition, the Administration seems to feel that the spring events planned by the various clubs, along with a Mountain Day, would be devoting too much time to extra-curricular activities. This objection could be easily removed if the clubs would agree to give up their spring activities in return for an all-college Mountain Day. This, we feel, would be a small sacrifice on their part and should enable the Administration to grant the request with a clear conscience.

Certainly if this agreement were made, we see no reason for not devoting time this spring for a Mountain Day. This, we are sure, would mean more to most students than just getting out of a few classes. It is an event much anticipated each year — one of the few left in which the whole college community can participate. The year would not be complete without it.

The Bermuda Ban

JUNIATA men who wore bermuda shorts in the dining hall last Sunday did not deserve the indignant wrath and warnings of future misbehavior that were hurled at them.

They all were dressed smartly, decently and didn't disgrace the college in any way by their appearance. Most of the outfits looked far better than the dungarees or khakis commonly worn..

Unlike those of the women, men's bermuda shorts are not meant exclusively for casual wear, but now are almost universally accepted for dress occasions. They are most often worn with white or sport shirts and knee socks and are anything but indecent. Certainly every last Juniata man is not going to insist on wearing bermudas to all the meals. The majority of them probably would not be caught dead in a pair. Yet the few individualists who care to wear them to Saturday and Sunday night meals should not be forbidden.

No doubt a few pair will appear at the formal dances this spring. Surely clothing fit for a formal dance should be acceptable wear for the dining hall.

The Students' Viewpoint

Chairman Extends Thanks

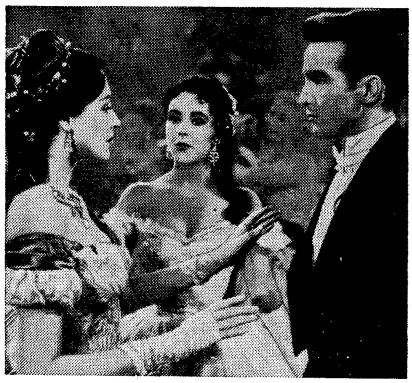
I think the financial report published in this week's JUNIATIAN shows the success of the 1957-'58 Juniata World Service Fund drive. However, this report will not speak for itself when it comes to thanking all the students that so willingly gave not only their money but also their time in making this drive the success it was.

Now that the final tally has been completed, I want to take this opportunity to thank all those students who as chairmen, captains and solicitors made the drive the success it was. And thanks go also to all those students and faculty who made the $1103.35 individual contribution possible. Checks have already been sent to the organizations receiving our aid; they have given many thanks for the assistance we here in the Juniata community have provided them in their work for students throughout the world.

Ross Nahrgang
Chairman of JWSF, 1957-'58

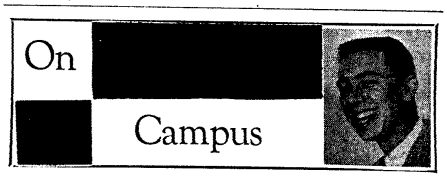
Movie Of The Week

Raintree County



A jealous Elizabeth Taylor interrupts a dance between Montgomery Cliff and Jarma Lewis in this scene from Raintree County, M-G-M's spectacular picture, which introduces the revolutionary new MGM Camera 65. Eva Marie Saint also stars in a cast of 119 speaking roles.

The film opens Friday, April 25 and runs for one week at the Harris Clifton Theatre.



by George Fattman

With comps looming just ahead nearly every senior by this time has made the conversion from such questions of dubious academic stature as "how short should short shorts be?" to decidedly more intellectual involvements as "what earmarks of pre-romantic English literature are to be found in Gray's Ode on the Death of a Favorite Cat Drowned in a Tub of Gold Fishes?"

Armed to encounter this life-or-death contention with borrowed class notes, survey course texts and the College Outline Series, our seniors are settling down to learn everything they can. "But as fast as I go over my text books, I forget what I read," one coed complained. This seems to be a common feeling among the class of '58 at the present.

Comp seminars help, and they're rather funny too. At one such meeting a coed, punchier than usual, cracked her gum, went off into the story of Sappho of Lesbos and the rather unsavory tradition she began, peeled exploded gum from her lips and read, "Browning wrote primarily for the hand-holding aristocracy."

* * * * *

Typical pre-comps tension, no doubt.

* * * * *

When little bubbles rolled up and down the screen of North Dorm's TV all during the Perry Mason Show, someone quipped, "They must be left over from Lawrence Welk."

* * * * *

A Most Sequestering Squelch

Anxious to hear the details of a recent date, the guy seemed just a bit eager as he asked a number of leading questions during Sunday dinner. Each answer his friend gave seemed to spur him into another inquiry until a third guy at the table snarled, "Maybe next time he'll let you go along, Boswell."

* * * * *

"And where do you go to college," asked the New England lady of a JC coed visiting a recent alumna.

"Oh, I go to Juniata, too," she replied.

The lady's reaction was sympathetic, "My, my. What a pity you didn't go to Vassar or Smith."

* * * * *

Wallflower's Saturday Night

Complaining about the status of the Juniata female in relation to the college social program, a slightly frustrated senior coed announced sardonically, "And when I leave here, no matter how far away I go, I'm coming back every Saturday night to go to the dance—and I'll bring my own wall."

Now back into hibernation until after comps . . .

Atomic Test Ban - Another Russian Hoax

THE PROPAGANDA MOVE—Last month Premier Khrushchev made a startling victory in the East-West propaganda war by announcing that Russia had stopped all nuclear tests as a positive step towards world peace. Of course with this unilateral test ban Russia invited the United States to also follow her move by calling a halt to our own forthcoming nuclear tests in the Pacific. President Eisenhower rejected Khrushchev's move due to it's vagueness and question of real significance. The President also pointed out the US proposals already rejected by Russia, such as the "atoms for peace" plan of 1953 and the "open skies" plan of 1955. Before we agree to any test ban we want concrete assurance of specific control measures for checking Russia and the sincerity of her nuclear ban proposals.

The move by Russia has developed out of the contrasting differences between the United States and Russia's military strategy. It is recognized that Russia has a superior group strength to that of the US, the figures being 10 million troops plus its satillites to 8½ million for the U. S. and her allies. Thus the United States has been relying more on advanced nuclear weapons both for herself and her European allies to counteract Ruussia's numerical strength.

It was to Russia's advantage to try to neutralize the West's atomic strength by pressing demands for a ban on both nuclear tests, and ultimately, nuclear weapons. Thus Russia's surprise move has not fallen on unattentive and unsympathetic ears. Both in the East and West there is the devastating fear of nuclear weapons and the fall-out from these radioactive tests. Consequently, up to this week Russia had made a definite propaganda victory on the nuclear tests issue.

However, on April 13 Denmark's leading newspaper, The Berlingshe Tilende, stated, "the recent Soviet nuclear tests had to be broken off because of a catostrophic accident." According to information obtained from Moscow through Copenhagen, an alleged accident had occured in which vast radioactive fall-out had covered parts of Russia, and Russia could not risk continuing the nuclear testing without serious defects.

The reaction to this Danish information brought no official comment from the Atomic Energy Commission, but Senator Hubert Humphrey stated that there was a great deal of evidence to support the Danish report. He called the Soviet tests "the dirtiest radioactive debris tests the world has ever known." He also stated that "heavy fall-out has already fallen on Scandinavia, northern Europe, Japan and even parts of the United States."

Thus as the nuclear test question further develops and the effects of Russia's propaganda are further evaluated on the international scene, it looks as though some of the hot air may have been taken out of Khrushchev's latest propaganda balloon. If a definite report can be made on the real cause of Russia's nuclear suspension, then the free world will have caught Russia trying to pull a fast one with her so-called peace proposal of nuclear test bans.

HERB DEUCHAR: News Of The Week In Retrospect

Chalk It Up!

by Val Means

Campus opinion has the New York Yankees and the Milwaukee Braves in the World Series again next fall.

Jim Cain picks the Yanks in the American League because of "five or six starting pitchers and the ability to knock off the top clubs when necessary." Bill Jacobs says there is "no other team possible except the White Sox and their pitching can't hold up."

Paul Desesso picks Milwaukee in the National League because they are "young, have good pitching and Hank Aaron", and Chuck Brown points out their "all around strength."

Among the dissenters Jim Heck likes the Boston Red Sox to edge the Yankees because "Frank Malzone should be great and Don Buddin is out of the army."

In the Senior circuit, Bob Schwalenberg takes the St. Louis Cardinals because of "Stan-the-Man", and Ed Beers goes with Brooklyn and its "new enthusiasm, pitching and short leftfield fence."

This writer will stick with the Yankees because they're the Yankees, but the Cardinals look good over the Braves with Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell and Ken Boyer returning to top form.

Of course we must quote our expert—Don "Killer" Conley—who has New York and Milwaukee as lead pipe predictions for "no special reason."

Don Shover's timely single scored Don Ross to climax a 12-11 victory over Shippensburg. The blow climaxed a thrilling but long opener for the college nine.

The team has not settled yet but should prove to be a solid ball club before too long. Frosh catcher Jack Meenan hit hard in his number three spot, and Al Dungan showed good power with two doubles. Don Ross was his usual fine self, and Bill and Jim Berrier topped off fine performances by each stealing home.

FLASHY FRESHMAN—Catcher Jack Meenan blasts a double to deep rightcenter to set up Jim Berrier, who later stole home, with the tying run. Meenan also contributed a single in the 12-11 slugfest victory over Shippensburg STC.

Linksmen Lose Pair; Rain Stops Netters

Powerful West Virginia and Pitt squads handed Juniata's linksmen a pair of shutout defeats as the Tribe opened its golfing season last weekend.

Friday Coach Bill Germann's Indians suffered a 6-0 loss to the Mountaineers. Charles Wollerton and Adolph Popp of West Virginia tied for medalist honors, covering the rain soaked course in a par 70. Wollerton edged Juniata's Jay Gettig 2 and 1, while Popp dropped Pat Connors 9 and 8. In other matches James Lane defeated Steve Gerlock 3 and 2, Bill Donlap downed Neil Donnor 5 and 4, Steve Rielkovick dropped Carl Nauroth 6 and 4 and Phil Over lost to Bob Danish 9 and 8.

The Tribe failed to take a single match at Pitt's Wildwood Club Saturday as the Panthers rolled to a 9-0 victory. Pitt's Ronnie Schwartzel and Bill Reily turned in the day's low score with par 72. Schwartzel defeated Gettig 5 and 4, while Reily took an easy win over Nauroth 8 and 7. Bob White dropped Gerlock 5 and 4, Bob Hixson beat Connors 6 and 5, Donnor lost to Wade Hershburger 7 and 6 and Dave Brown took a 9 and 8 win over Over.

The tennis match scheduled with Pittsburgh last Saturday was cancelled because of rain.

Pals Win Playoff; Capture IM Title

The Pals won the intramural bowling championship with a 2-1 decision over the Rustlers in the interdivision playoff.

The Pals, who won 18 straight decisions in league play, had to stage a comeback victory after being 50 pins down midway in the deciding game.

The championship was determined by the outcome of three games instead of the usual two-game, total pin system. After losing the first game 707-700, the Pals came back with 679-672 and 729-684 victories.

Les Greenawalt paced the winners with a 160 average. Ron Bergey was runnerup averaging in the 150's while Bob Schnably and Harvey Wagner finished at the 140 level.

Joe Sopata and "Fats" Falcione were high for the losers averaging around 150 apiece.

Ball Busters, Deacons Halupkies Win Games

The Ball Busters, Devil's Deacons and Happy Halupkies picked up opening day victories in the men's intramural softball league.

Paul DeSesso was the winning pitcher for the Ball Busters as they defeated the Basketeers 9-7.

Cary Shaner allowed only one run as the Happy Halupkies mauled the Maurauders 13-1.

Red Sponsler won his own game for the Devil's Deacons with a triple in their 7-6 conquest of the Crusaders.

Tribe Plays Indiana, Albright; Tennis Team Plays Two Away

Six events are scheduled on the spring sports schedule for this week with the baseball and tennis teams splitting four events.

Coach Ken Bunn's baseballers travel today to face Indiana STC before returning to play a Middle Atlantic Conference game with Albright College here Wednesday.

The tennis team has two away matches scheduled. Tomorrow the netmen clash with Elizabethtown and Wednesday with Penn State.

The trackmen, coached by Mike Snider and assisted by Charley Godlasky, will participate in a triangular meet in Reading Wednesday. Albright and Lebanon Valley are the other two schools competing.

Scholastic Relays

One of the highlights of the spring program will be the Juniata Invitation Scholastic Relays which will be held tomorrow for schoolboy trackmen in central Pennsylvania.

The golf team is idle this week.

Teachers Defeat Indians; Johnson Breaks Standard

Several fine performances, including Dick Johnson's new javelin record, were not enough as Juniata's track team lost to Lock Haven 79 2/3 — 52 1/3 Wednesday on the visitor's track.

Johnson's throw of 181' 5½", which bettered his old record of 180' 1½" last year, was the outstanding feat of the day. Johnson's feat was one of the six JC firsts in the 15 event meet.

Layman Captures Two Firsts

Freshman Don Layman led the scoring parade for the Indians with a first in the one and two mile runs with times of 4:50 and 11:13.2 respectively. Kirk Wicker picked up a first for JC with a heave of 41' 7" in the shot, while Frank Hrach won the 880 in a 2:08.6 clocking. The sixth Blue and Gold victory was in the mile relay which the Indians won in 3:43.7.

Lock Haven had nine second places to match their first place total to sew up the match. A sweep in the pole vault aided the Bald Eagles' cause immensely.

The charges of Mike Snider will be in Reading Wednesday to compete with Albright and Lebanon Valley. They finished second in the same triangular meet last year.

Relay Meet Tomorrow

The third scholastic relay meet will be held here tomorrow between high schools in a nine-county area in central Pennsylvania.

The meet is conducted for individuals rather than to determine a team champion. Awards will be made to winners, but no school trophy will be presented.

Approximately 200 schoolboy, track and field men are expected to participate.

Shover's Single Gives JC Revenge Victory

Don Shover's ninth - inning, RBI-producing single, scoring Don Ross with the winning run gave Juniata an opening day win over Shippensburg STC 12-11.

The triumph was a come from behind effort which enabled the Indians to capture their fourth straight over the past two seasons. Two runs in the eighth inning tied the contest at 11 all to set the stage for the climatic finish.

Captain Don Ross started the winning rally with a single to center. Bob Melago sacrificed Ross to second and then Don Shover blasted a smasher past third to bring home the 12th and deciding run.

Freshman Ron Reynolds, relieving Pete McCauley in the fifth, received the mound victory.

Juniata had 11 basehits with pairs going to Jim Berrier, Don Ross, Jack Meenan and Al Dungan. In the extra base department Dungan had two doubles while Berrier, Ross and Meenan had one apiece.

Lombardo To Play In Celestial Scene Here

"The Sweetest Music This Side of Heaven" will echo through a celestial atmosphere of glittering stars and turquoise skies at the Charity Ball Monday in JC's Memorial Gym.

Alex Steel, commercial artist in Huntingdon, has announced that preparations for the decorations of the ninth annual dance for the Blair Memorial Hospital are underway. The celestial theme will provide a romatic background for dancing to Guy Lombardo's band

Behind the orchestra stand will be a large expanse of sky. Upon this backdrop will be flashed natural cloud formations by the use of a projector. The bleachers will be covered with blue paper representing a midnight sky and a sprinkling of glittering shooting stars will add atmosphere.

Across the ceiling there will be a series of stars and planets sparkling green. Fiber glass curtains will be draped from the iron railing to the floor of the mezzanine.

Blue lights will be focused upon the ceiling while an array of colored lights will play about the rest of the gym providing a heavenly glow of soft colors.

Several Juniata students under the direction of Ron Knouse, junior, are working on the decorations in cooperation with Steel.

Rosenberger Lists Brethren Day Plans For Saturday At JC

A full-day's program has been planned for Brethren Campus Day at Juniata Saturday, according to Clarence Rosenberger, director of church relations.

Ministers and high school students have been invited to attend the day's activities. Registration will begin in Brumbaugh Hall at 9 a.m. and visiting students may select classes to attend during the first hour.

Reverend Ebersole

An assembly for all visitors is scheduled at 10 a.m. in Oller Hall when the Rev. Elmer Ebersole, president of the Middle Pennsylvania Ministerial Association, will conduct devotional moments and President Calvert Ellis will extend greetings for Juniata College.

Visiting students will meet in the Stone Church at 10:30 a.m. when Kenneth Wenger, director of admissions, will discuss the liberal arts program at Juniata in a talk entitled Learning How to Live as Well as How to Make a Living.

Ministers' Forum

Simultaneously, the ministers on campus will attend a forum in Oller Hall when Harold Bomberger will direct a forum discussion on The Direction I Would Like to See the Church of the Brethren Take in the Next Half-Century. Other members of the panel will be Clyde Carter, Western Pennsylvania representative; Luke Bowser, Middle Pennsylvania representative; and Donald Shank, North Atlantic representative.

All visitors will be guests of the college at luncheon scheduled at 12:15 p.m. Campus tours will follow. Meeting of district groups will be held in various sections of the campus at 1:30 p.m.

Tennis is scheduled at 1:30 p.m. and baseball at 2:30 p.m., both against Elizabethtown College.

Ellis Favors Senate Proposal For Large, Mid-Winter Dance

Sandy Johnston, chairman of social activities, reported at the Senate meeting last Tuesday evening that President Ellis is definitely in favor of a mid-winter dance.

Miss Johnston stated that the president said that a "big, band dance" was needed during the winter because of the long period between the Christmas Dance and the one culminating the traditional May Day festivities. The Senate voted that the dance should be formal, meaning that gowns and corsages would be in order. The idea will go to the calendar committee which will approve a date for the dance.

Fall Musical

Chairman of general activities Dutch Boland, reported that the fall musical would come under the direction of Professor Currier and the new coach for next year. Professor Currier will direct the music end of the production and the new man would deal with the dramatics.

The Senate voted that Diane Klebe be made the student coordinator or director of the production. A committee will be named at a later date to pick the theme.

Play Day

Final arrangements were made concerning all college Play Day which will he held on Thursday, May 15. Arrangements were made with the Dean of Women and Janice Christie, chairman of women's house, concerning freshmen room drawings on that day so that the freshmen women could enjoy most of the day's activities.

President Ellis, according to Boland, has called off Spring Mountain Day. The decision was made in light of the fact that various clubs on campus refused to give up their annual outings, and the president had stated earlier that this was necessary in order to have a Spring Mountain Day.

By-law Changes

Other issues discussed by the Senate concerned the by-law

Editorially Speaking . . .

A Freedom To Value

THIS IS Academic Freedom Week at Juniata—an annual program observed on college campuses throughout the country. Its purpose is to challenge the student to re-define and re-evaluate academic freedom and its value for him.

This is a difficult task at Juniata where the right of the teacher and the student to search for truth is not now a vital issue. We have not seen students expelled and teachers discharged because of "unpopular" opinions or associations; we have not seen special inquisitions of teachers who have refused to take a loyalty oath; we have not seen students unduly restricted in their choice of speakers to bring on campus. Had we experienced these things, academic freedom would undoubtedly hold more meaning for us.

But the problem being not close to us does not mean that we should ignore it or underestimate its importance. Without the right of free inquiry and discussion, learning becomes merely a farce. Thus, wherever academic freedom is found, it must be preserved by all those concerned with education—students, faculty and administration. It must be constantly reclaimed by each student generation.

For this to be done, students must continually defend such basic principles as (1) the right to petition the administration for changes in curriculum, faculty and school regulations, (2) the right of the whole student body to elect its officers, (3) the right of students to organize associations for political social or athletic purposes, (4) the right of student organizations to select their own faculty advisors and (5) the right of students to have their off-campus behavior free from administrative control.

Thus the main purpose of this week's emphasis is to help Juniata students become aware of the value of academic freedom and to encourage them to take steps, if necessary, to safeguard this freedom, in all its many facets, on their own campus.

A Spring Success

THE JUNIATIAN would like to formally echo the general student opinion about Saturday night's Spring Carnival. Having it outside was a great asset and added to the carnival atmosphere. WJC acting as emcee more or less coordinated the various activities and through the evening provided some fine music. Thanks go to the many clubs who through their hard work and enthusiasm made the evening the great success that it was. And a lot of credit goes to Sandy Johnston and "Dutch" Boland for their organization and planning of the event. Weather permitting, we hope to see the carnival held outside in the future; it is fast becoming a real asset to the social calendar.

The High Cost Of Education

With the recent $100 boost in Juniata's cost of tuition, the following article reprinted from the Cornell Daily Sun should provide some food for thought for hard-hit students and their families.

"The tuition raises and increases in faculty salaries listed at Harvard University point up dramatically the present financial crisis for colleges throughout the nation. Harvard announced a tuition raise from $1,000 to $1,250 and a concordant salary rise which puts full professor pay at an average of $15,000.

The student must pay; there is no question about that. For, as Columbia president Grayson Kirk says, 'Educational costs have risen sharply, the necessity for increase in faculty salaries for the maintenance of the highest teaching standards has become more pronounced and the nation's need for trained leaders has reached what is virtually a state of emergency.' To meet these crises, the government is trying to create the first major federal education program, private companies are putting a great deal of money into colleges, and alumni are being continually pressed for annual giving—yet the fact remains that these three sources are not enough. It is the stuudent that muust make up the deficiency.

We hope that the American student will recognize this, will appreciate this, when his tuition costs go up, as they are sure to do within a few years. It is an undeniable trend in American education, one that will eventually put the nation's colleges, and, equally important, the nation's faculties, in their proper place. For it has been too long that higher education has occupied a secondary place in the mind—and pocketbook—of the American public; it is time that its true worth is recognized and, hard though it may seem, paid for."

The Students' Viewpoint

On Campus

by George Fattman

The current wave of warm weather has given JCers a better excuse than usual for doing as little work as possible—or less.

In spite of the threat of comps, American history tests and what-have-you, the not-so-studious set on College Hill have taken to the North Dorm lawn, the Oneida Hall roof and Raystown Dam to bask in the spring sun, oblivious to the weakening call of textbooks.

And have you noticed the upswing in social activities, spontaneous (unscheduled, that is) and otherwise? "Five dances in six days," exclaimed a pseudo-shocked senior coed "—the school's going to the dogs."

* * * * *

A fashion-conscious daughter of one of our profs complained, "My father pays no attention to clothes. He has just one tie. It's reversable, plaid on the one side for winter and brown on the other for summer."

* * * * *

Relating to his class Elizabethan ideas on ghosts, prof pointed out, "Ghosts stayed out only during the night—they had to be in before dawn. That's one way you can tell them from returning dorm residents."

* * * * *

Fashion Note

Those who saw the chapel choir last Friday in chapel were amused to see the well-dressed chorister step into place attired in a fairly austere-looking black robe and not-so-austere-looking sneakers.

* * * * *

* * * * *

Comprehensively Speaking

While by this time comps have faded from the main ring, we just couldn't overlook a note from our favorite alumna to one of the English majors. It was included with a card expressing "sympathy in your moment of sorrow" and included the following phrases:

"Just adopt a devil-may care attitude. Afterall, who do you know in the English department? Best of luck. Comps are cute and lots of fun."

See you at the soph hop tomorrow night.

Ike's Plan Creates Congressional Storm

THE REORGANIZATION PROPOSAL— Two weeks ago President Eisenhower sent his plan for the reorganization of the Pentagon to Congress, which immediately touched off a sharp debate led by Carl Vinson, chairman of the house armed services committee. Eisenhower summed up his proposed plan by stating, "The waging of war by separate ground, sea and air forces is gone forever...We must achieve unity of our fighting forces." The President wishes to tighten the loosely unified commands of our armed services so that there will be less divided authority, a more efficiently coordinated defense system.

In his proposal, Eisenhower wishes to give full control of the services, commands and military operations to the Secretary of Defense who would issue unified orders instead of each individual service head. The Secretary would also be able to transfer appropriations from one servicce to another. This proposal is supposed to eliminate interservice rivalry and give a unified purpose to our country's defenses. The role of the present Joint Chiefs of Staff would be as planners with the Defense Secretary, as well as coordinators to their own service branch.

The President believes that "it is impossible any longer to diffuse strategic planning and control of military operations among these competing services... Modern war demands complete unity." This does not mean that each separate service will lose its indentity, but they will still recruit, train and equip their own branches with the exception of being able to propose their own recommendations to Congress or advance special interests.

The President has been applying a great deal of pressure in Congress to get his objectives passed and it has worked generally in the Senate. But in the House Carl Vinson is leading a strong opposition to block the President's plan. Here the President's proposal has been dubbed a "Prussian-styled' reorganization, and as Carl Vinson sees it, "The Department of Defense is essentially sounded... After all, the country won the last war."

In an age when this country is faced with a highly organized and coordinated military opposition we can no longer look back and say the structure of defense will do it again for us. We must adjust to meet the times. We can no longer sit securely behind our natural barriers of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans under the able, but still diffused and confusingly coordinated, defense system. We must recognize that Russia has a highly capable military system and is quite able to give the United States a run for her money in the event of war. But this country won't have much of a chance if it takes us time to coordinate military plans or conciliate divided opinions through a poorly controlled command system. Thus President Eisenhower, a highly capable military expert himself, sees the need for a reorganization of our higher defense command system to make it "an effective competent defense structure" which will strengthen our present military setup and preserve our country's safety and security in a world of increased hostility and threatening agression.

HERB DEUCHAR: News Of The Week In Retrospect

Chalk It Up!

by Val Means

Juniata, a Middle Atlantic Athletic Conference member, will compete in the northern division of the new MAAC football league.

Having similar allignments in basketball and baseball, JC will be in the college bracket with such teams as Albright, Dickinson, Hofstra, Lebanon Valley, Moravian, Lycoming, Scranton, Susquehanna, Wagner and Wilkes.

The championship in football is to be determined on a percentage basis, using one point for a win and half a point for a tie divided by the number of games played.

* * * * * *

The baseball team's biggest problem—pitching — received a big shot in the arm last week when sophomore Pete McCauley pitched scoreless ball for seven and two thirds innings. McCauley was very effective, only allowing three hits while striking out five.

The big booming bat of Jim Berrier, Jack Meenan and Don Ross continuued their torrid hitting. After the first two contests each had four hits apiece, over half of them being for extra bases.

* * * * * *

History almost repeated itself when in the last inning of the Indiana STC encounter the Indians trailing by one, Jim Berrier attempted to steal home only to be nipped at the plate.

* * * * * *

Juniata trackmen will enter the Penn Relays this weekend. The thinclads have been in the mile relays since 1920 and haven't won it since 1939 with a record time of 3:27.9 which still holds as a school record.

* * * * * *

Juniata won the MASCAC Golf Championship in 1951, 1952 and 1954 and finished runner up in 1950 and 1953. Since then they have finished 7th, 4th and 12th.

* * * * * *

The third scholastic relays proved to be highly interesting and competitive. Again this year eight meet records fell to a record field of 235 entries. State College, a strong relay entry and a well balanced United Joint unit, dominated the action.

JC Defeats Albright, Loses Indiana Battle

The Indian baseballers split two decisions over the past week defeating Albright 16-4 and losing to Indiana STC 5-4.

Most recently the Tribe backed up the relief offerings of freshman Ron Reynolds after Pete McCauley had to retire from the game after being hit by a line drive.

Reynolds hurled effectively yielding three hits in six and a third innings while striking out three.

Bill Berrier Collects Four Hits

Centerfielder Bill Berrier led the batting attack with four hits and two RBI's. Sam Veltre went two for four driving in three runs and Joe Sopata supplied two hits and two RBI's.

Last Friday the Teachers of Indiana jumped to a commanding 5-1 lead off the offerings of Reynolds and never lost it. Despite McCauley's great relief work, the Indians lacked the scoring punch.

The Indians stagged a comeback rally in the fourth, scoring twice on Don Ross' single, a stolen base, two walks and Veltre's two-run producing single, but the rally fell short.

Intramural softball action was abbreviated to a five game schedule this past week due to senior comprehensives.

Last Thursday the Mumblers outslugged the Sixty-Oners, 20-18, with Val Means of the Mumblers and Frank Smith of the Sixty-Oners leading the hit parade with four apiece.

The Yoder Howitzers came from behind in the last half of the seventh to edge the Unknowns 24-23 on Glenn Hassinger's two-run homer. In another game played Thursday the Crusaders defeated the Ballbusters 12-11 on Fran Cristina's single.

Two games were played with the Basketeers dropping the Crusaders 11-3 on Don Coughenour's four-hit pitching, while the Ballbusters beat the Unknowns, 19-10.

Teams Face Eight Contests; JC To Host E-town, Indiana

A total of eight contests are scheduled next week for the four JC spring sports teams.

Baseball heads the list with three games. Tomorrow the Bunnmen host the Elizabethtown Blue Jays in the first of two meetings between the sister colleges. Monday the Tribe will travel to Lock Haven, then return home where they will meet Indiana State Teachers College on Wednesday.

E-town led by slugging Jim Sarbaugh, will field a team which won the state NAIA championship last year. The Blue Jays finished their '57 season with a 14-6 log, two of the losses coming at the hands of the Indians. With only two losses through graduation however, the Jays will present a comparatively stronger starting array for tomorrow than they did last year.

While the E-town baseballers are playing the Tribe, JC's netmen will be trying to find the victory formula against the Jays' tennis team. Last year the two teams split their two matches.

On Monday, both the golf and tennis teams will journey to Albright for their encounter with the Lions.

The week's activities will be topped off on Wednesday at Muhlenberg College where the track team enters its second dual meet of the season.

Trackmen Finish Second In Meet

Coping only three first places, Juniata's track team finished second in a triangular meet with Albright and Lebanon Valley at Reading Wednesday.

The team scoring was Albright 69½, Juniata 49½ and Lebanon Valley 35. Don Layman gained victories in the mlie and two mile runs with times of 4:47.5 and 10:50, respectively. Dick Johnson took the top spot in the javelin with a throw of 174' 8". The Blue and Gold thinclads' depth in several other events proved to be the deciding factor in placing second behind Albright, who won nine of the 14 events.

JC's best showing was in the javelin where Johnson's winning toss was followed closely by Indian's in second and third place. Juniata took third and fourth place in the two mile behind Layman to gain 10 points in that event.

Individual point totals for Juniata found Layman leading the way with 10 points. Frank Hrach, seconds in the 880 yard run and mile and a third in the two mile, gained eight points. Johnson's first in the javelin and a third in the discus gave him seven points for the day. Jack Heading scored six points by taking second in the 220 yard low hurdles, third in the high jump and fourth in the 120 yard high hurdles.

MASCAC To Direct Golf Tourney May 10

The Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference will hold the 1958 Golf Championship at the American Legion Country Club, near Mount Union, Saturday, May 10.

The play is a 36-hole medal for four-man teams of member colleges. The champion team receives a plaque, and the first five are awarded individual medals.

This tournament was started in 1950 by Juniata as an Invitational Golf Tournament at the same site but since 1952 was recognized by the MASCAC and winners were rewarded the conference championship.

Indian Netmen Lose; Golfers Follow Suit

Juniata netmen opened their tennis season with a pair of losses to Indiana State Teachers and Elizabethtown, as the Indian golfers dropped their third outing to a strong Shippensburg squad.

Chuck Seeley and Dick Ott were the lone singles winners for the Tribe against the State Teachers, beating Ruth Martin and Dale Classon respectively, while a Pete Wright - Ott combination copped a doubles victory from Indiana's Andy Matey and White, in a 6-3 loss for the Tribe.

Saturday the JC net squad bowed to Elizabethtown by a 6-3 count.

In the singles matches Seeley downed Charley Groff and Wright defeated Don Price, while Jerry Leatherman and Bill Wise garnered Juniata's third point in the doubles play.

Shippensburg's Red Raiders handed the Indian golfers their third defeat 11½ - 6½ on the Huntingdon links Saturday.

Juniata's Jay Gettig dropped Gene Rhoads 2-1, and Steve Gerlock topped Jay Schmitt 3-0 for the only JC win of the day, while Phil Over split a 1½ - 1½ tie with Rick Kauffman under the 18 point system. Mike Czap of the Raiders took Medalist honors with a 71 score while Gettig was low for the Tribe with a 74.

Queen Of May Day

JC To Crown Queen, Prince On Oller Lawn

by Pat Varec

The JC campus will be a scene of festive activity tomorrow when students, parents and alumni spend the day enjoying the annual May Day events.

Beginning the scheduled events will be an open house from 10 to 12 noon with a DAJUMO meeting at 11 a.m. in Oller Hall. At 1:30 p.m. the college band, under the baton of Prof. Johnson, will present a concert on Oller Hall lawn.

The highlight of the afternoon will also take place in front of Oller Hall when Prince Charming Mike Armstrong crowns Queen Jacque Rowland, before a background of a picture story book. This part of the program will begin with a processional by the queen and her court, composed this year of seniors Ruth Perestam, maid of honor, Carolyn Long, Barb Orner; juniors Bonnie Meadows and Janice Christie; sophomores Judy Garman and Lucy Krieble and freshmen Jean Davies and Sharon Brammer, runner up to Ann Hurley who is unable to be present for the festivities.

Entertainment

A program of entertainment has been prepared for the pleasure of the royal group. Performing will be the Varsity Quartet, composed of Terry Fouse, Larry Landes, Charles Fox and Chuck Winters, girls from Fourth Founders in a skit entitled Prinderella and the Cince, Louise Hively doing several marimba selections and a group of freshman girls rendering the traditional May Pole Dance, after which will come the recessional by the Queen and court.

The lawn between Students Hall and Totem will be the next scene of action when all attend The Mad Hatter's Tea. Party. Open House will again be the attraction from 3 until 5 p. m.

Then of course at 8:30 p. m. the anticipated junior-senior reception in the form of An Evening in Storybook Land in Memorial Gymnasium will bring to a close the annual May Day program. Decorations will consist of every-

JC Senate Approves Harlacher's Plan For WJC-Radio Scholarship

Ken Harlacher, station manager of WJC radio, presented a number of proposals which constituted the main order of business at the meeting of the student Senate last Tusday evening.

His proposals included, along with the unification of all electronic equipment, that the scholarship now awarded annually to a student go to the technical director of WJC who would also assume the responsibilities that this student now holds. Also he stated that WJC would assume full responsibility for keeping the equipment in repair and making sure that anyone on campus would have prompt, efficient service when they desired electronic equipment.

The Senate approved the proposals and asked that Harlacher, along with Dick Johnson, chairman of communications, go to the concerned members of the administration to find their reactions and to report back to the Senate next meeting.

Freshman Library Books

A committee composed of Chuck Brown and Tex Holman reported to the Senate on their meeting with the library staff and proposed a number of ideas concerning books for freshman integration courses.

The proposals which were approved by the Senate stated that all freshmen would be required to sign for books even before they could be removed from the shelves and that student proctors would be assigned to the library to assist the librarian in this duty.

Mays Names Two Grads To Faculty

Two graduates of Juniata College have been added to the Juniata faculty beginning next September to meet the need for additional instruction in two more departments.

Dr. Morley Mays, dean of the college, announced the appointment of the Rev. Earl Kaylor, Jr., Johnstown, as assistant professor of Biblical studies, and Wilfred Norris, formerly of Ambler and Hanover, as instructor in physics.

The Rev. Mr. Kaylor, a native of Greensburg who received his BA degree in 1946, has been serving as pastor of the Westmont Church of the Brethren in Johntown since 1953. He will teach introduction to philosophy, philosophy of religion, the prophets and the life of Christ on the fall term program.

Norris, now completing work on his PhD in chemistry at Harvard, is scheduled to teach atomic physics and electricity and magnetism in his program of advanced courses in the department of

Editorially Speaking . . .

The Mid-Winter Dance

ADMINISTRATIVE approval of a mid-winter dance was welcome news to many Juniatians. Students have long realized the gap in social activities between the Christmas Dance and the one culminating the May Day activities, and were glad to hear that the administration found no objection in scheduling another dance in the interim.

Juniatians are eager to make this dance a worthwhile affair and several have expressed a desire not to have just any band but a big name band provide the music .The Charity Ball is now the only event of the year in which students can hear firsthand and dance to some really fine music. However, they have no voice in determining what band will play or when the event will be.

We realize that the college or Student Senate could not possibly pay the sizable fee that hiring such a band would entail, but many students have expressed their willingness to pay an admission fee to help cover the cost. If the majority of the students are of this opinion, then we see no reason why a big-name band could not be acquired for the mid-winter dance.

Many colleges such as Penn State constantly provide opportunities for their students to hear professional bands and the students from Juniata as well as Penn State flock to these dances, and pay willingly the cost. We would like to see Juniata provide such an opportunity for her students.

Students appreciate the present system in which the cost of all the dances is included in the initial activity fee and doubtless do not want to change this basic plan. Certainly paying admission for all the dances would not be agreeable. But sponsoring a dance once a year, such as the proposed mid-winter one, with music provided by a nationally known orchestra would be a great addition to social life at Juniata and certainly is not an innovation in the social programs of many small colleges such as Juniata.

61's Too Salient

IT is no credit to the class of '61 to still have signs of freshman days activities marring the campus.

We are speaking particularly of the colorful "61's" adorning college field grandstand, which should have been removed last fall. Upon request, the freshmen removed other such marks but apparently did not persist in their efforts long enough.

Classes in the past have never had such difficulty in removing their own signs of the traditional prank. This year it looks like a few will remain until May Day. This is a shame since they certainly detract from the general appearance of the campus.

If all freshman classes were as slow as this year's in removing these numbers, the campus would be a rare sight in another four years. Let's have some action, frosh!

Some Hospitality Needed

IT seems grossly discourteous that "guests" invited to attend the annual Mav Dav Breakfast were required to pay for the meal. A faculty wife or administrative employee was invited to sit at each of the tables, yet was also asked to pay a 50 cent charge for the breakfast. If the guest did not have a ticket, she was asked to pay at the door. This was a source of embarrassment to many students.

Surely the college can afford to admit guests free of charge once a year for this special occasion. It would be the gracious and proper thing to do.

Bookstore Efficiency

IF Tote bookstore is open during the hours specified on the schedule, it is probably pure coincidence. Seriously, just when the bookstore will be open is always a matter of conjecture; thus the trial and error method must be used which is always frustrating and inefficient.

If the present time schedule is not going to be followed, a more accurate one should be devised. Otherwise, a definite effort should be made on the part of the people who work there to open and close on time. The bookstore owes Juniata students this service.

Actually it seems a bit ridiculous and not at all journalistic, so in good old 8-point, 22 ems fashion let us dip into this week's campus humor.

The recent brawl staged in Memorial Gym and referred to ephemeristically as the Charity Ball certainly did its share to add to campus amusement. Not only did the college set find mirth in the style of dancing prominent at the ball, but they observed certain shocking deviations from grey paper standards.

One coed, watching from an East Hall window, saw a group emerge from the gym at regular intervals and come to the trunk of their car parked across the street for something to drink. For the occasion the rear deck area became a portable bar, complete with ice.

Inside the gym few could be found who were very sober and this combined with the crowded condition and all the bouncing led to considerable happy confusion. A man whined as he pushed his way through the people, "But darling, if I knew where I wanted to go, I'd go there."

Tito Denounces Soviet Interference

THE LATEST RIFT — Last week another disruptive phase in Soviet-Yugoslav relations took place when Moscow sternly criticized Tito's action and policy. Khrushchev denounced Tito's brand of nationalistic communism as "arbitrary and criticizes the unity of the invincible Communist camp headed by the Soviet Union." Tito has a toned down form of communism in Yugoslavia today with decentralized state controls, and, most heretical of all to communist theory, "nationalistic communism."

A week ago Tuesday Yugoslavia opened its Communist League congress with a program which magnified Tito's form of communism. It took little time before the leaders of Soviet Russia were criticizing and denouncing the theory and statements uttered at this Yugoslav congress. Tito's reasoning was denounced as "non-Leninist reasoning," "nonsense" and "wrong statement." Tito struck back verberally at the "shortsightedness and tactlessness in meddling in Yugoslavia's affairs." Tito also made an appeal to the Soviet Union to steer clear of the Stalinist methods which "in the past proved fatal."

Soviet Russia could not let this heretical doctrine of Tito's pass by without challenging it. A doctrine such as this could be highly inflammatory to Russia's satellite bloc. Khurshchev wants a firm grip on all of his subject countries and therefore, must discredit the Titoist ideology before it has any effect, especially on the uncertain status of Poland.

ANOTHER FRENCH CABINET FALLS: After much divergent pressure had strained Premier Gaillard's government a week ago over the Algerian question, the Cabinet fell due to lack of political support. Soon after Gaillard had resigned from office, President Coty began to look for a new Premier of France. At first Georges Bidaut was asked to attempt to form a Cabinet but failed with his "tough policy" towards Algeria and did not gain sufficient support. Thus President Coty turned to a more conciliatory faction in France led by past Premier Rene Pleven. Pleven believes in a broad policy towards the French colony of Algeria beginning with direct talks with President Bourguiba of Tunisia over the Algerian problem. Pleven advocates negotiations with the Algerian rebels plus a firmer declaration of French sovereigny in Algeria.

Pleven's status is still uncertain, and action will be taken soon on his bid for the Premiership. As foreign expert observe it, France will soon have to take a liberal stand towards North Africa, or possiblby lose complete control of her colonial possessions. At the moment the crux of the matter seems to lie in France's ability to form a government able to successfully cope with the Algerian problem.

HERB DEUCHAR: News Of The Week In Retrospect

Poet Ogden Nash Comments On Storybooks, JC May Day Scene

Along with the general theme of this year's May Day festivities, here's what Ogden Nash has to say on the subject of children's books:

Don't Cry, Darling, It's Blood All Right

Whenever poets want to give you the idea that something is particularly meek and mild,
They compare it to a child,
Thereby proving that though poets with poetry may be rife
they don't know the facts of life.
If of compassion you desire either a tittle or a jot,
Don't try to get it from a tot.
Hard-boiled, sophisticated adults like me and you may enjoy ourselves thoroughly with Little Women or Winnie-the Pooh,
But innocent infants these titles from their reading course eliminate
As soon as they discover that it was honey and nuts and mashed potatoes instead of human flesh that Winnie-the Pooh and Little Women ate.
Innocent infants have no use for fables about rabbits or donkeys or tortoises or porpoises,
What they want is something with plenty of well-mutilated corpoises.
Not on a legend of how the rose came to be a rose instead of a petunia is their fancy fed,
But on the inside story of how somebody's bones got ground up to make somebody else's bread.
They'll go to sleep listening to the story of the little beggar-maid who got to be queen by being kind to the bees and birds,
But they're all eyes and ears the minute they suspect a wolf or a giant is going to tear some poor woodcutter into quarters or thirds.
It really doesn't take much to fill their cup
All they want is for somebody to be eaten up
Therefore I say unto you, all you poets who are so crazy about meek and mild little children and their angelic air
If you are sincere and really want to please them, just go out and get yourselves devoured by a bear!

Student Editors Travel In Russia

Six American student editors will fly to Russia Sunday to visit universities there as a result of the exchange program between this country and the U. S. S. R.

Students participating in the exchange are: David Baad, University of Michigan; Ralph Della Cava, Fordam College; Judy Davison, MIT; Peter Eccles, Dartmouth; Peter Eckstein, University. The delegation was selected on the basis of experience in student publications, campus activities, academic achievement and knowledge of social and political affairs.

The students are now in the midst of a six-day orientation session in Cambridge, Mass. The purpose of the exchange plan is to develop understanding between the young people of the United States and those of Russia.

Magazine To Publish Sweet's Poem, 'Wind'

Marcia Sweet, Juniata sophomore, has written a poem which will be published in the May issue of Prosidia, the Contemporary American Poetry Association's publication.

Wind

Wind-abortive element.
Who says you are a product of God?
What is God-like about you? Your Power is that of Belial for you wrest
The leaves of summer from the trees,
And you snatch birds from their nests,
Send fires on the wing, carry rain,
And hail and sleet—and snow.
You race the clouds across the sky,
Give anxious temper to my heart,
Huddle children to fear. God-like?
Like the gods of hell you are—you Demon-wind. If I hate the rain, I Hate you more.

Let Us All Adjust To Society; Bring Fairy Stories Up To Date

by Carol Baish

Ah Spring! Spring—that time of year when Juniatians' fancies lightly (very lightly) turn to thoughts of finals, registration and "really studying next year when I come back."

Somehow registration always brings us face to face with the gruesome question, "How am I going to adjust to Society?" It may be phrased differently, such as, "What am I going to be when I grow up?" or, "Wonder if the contractor down the street still needs an extra water boy?" or even, "Good grief, tuition rates are going up-up-up; what haven't we mortgaged yet?"

Anyway, this problem of Adjusting to Society will come up again and again. Terrible things happen to those who don't Adjust; many of them make money But after all, there are other things besides money. Poverty hunger misery

Children's Stories

All kidding aside, though, it is very important that everybody adjusts! And to help things along, we suggest a revision in the stories people read as children. For instance, instead of those sweet little unrealistic books like The Five Little Peppers Commit the Brinks Robbery or I Remember Mau-Mau, why not something dynamic and alive like Temper Tantrums Made Easy or maybe a posthumous publication like My Six Days in a Satellite.

And something must be done about those nursery rhymes! It is most disconcerting to be reading to a child and have him look up at you all dewy-eyed innocence and say, "What's with this Muffet character anyway? Eating curds and whey without putting up a fight?" And it's even worse when he suddenly breaks into a detailed discussion on Jack Spratt's wife's vitamin D deficiency.

Essayists To Get $1000 In Awards

The New Republic will conduct a competition for young writers, offering $1,000 in awards.

Ten awards of $100 each will be given for the best essays on the state of American fiction considered in general or in terms of a single younger novelist or on any aspect of present-day television viewed as a medium for enlightenment or entertainment.

Ziegler To Speak Here On Brethren In Christ

The service climaxing the four day district rally celebration of the 250th Anniversary Year of Brotherhood will be conducted this evening at 7:15 p.m. in Oller Hall.

Dr. Edward Ziegler of Roanoke, Va., will be the speaker of the evening. His topic will be Brethren Under the Lordship of Christ.

Dr. Ziegler has been a college teacher, a missionary to India, an author, and at the present time is editor of the quarterly publication, Brethren Life and Thought.

Robert McFadden and the Rev. James Middlekauff will be in charge of worship. The college choir will present a half hour program with Jack Rodland as organist.

Juniata's Camera Club To Get Lab In Faculty Club Basement

JC's administration and Camera Club members have reached an agreement concerning new club facilities, thus ending the recent two week strike.

According to Pete Fahrney, newly-elected president of the club, the administration is supplying two enlarging rooms, a dark room, studio and office while the club members are responsible for supplying labor to finish the rooms and to construct the internal furnishings. Fahrney maintains that more new equipment is still needed.

The new facilities are located in the basement of the Faculty Club opposite the library and will be open for inspection during May Day. Club members will be on hand to show interested persons around and to explain the work of the club.

The photography club is responsible for most of the Alfarata photography, Juniatian photos, college sports publications and other campus photography.

The club is also planning to begin a school in photography in the near future. The purpose of the school, which will be open to all students and not to just club members, will be to teach the principles of good picture-taking, how to choose and take care of a good camera and how to develop and print both color and black and white photographs.

AT LAST—After much difficulty, Juniata's Camera Club will soon operate in new headquarters in the Faculty Club's basement. Students To Present Sunday Organ Recital

The first in a series of three student organ recitals will take place this Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in Oller Hall.

The program will feature organ soloists and two ensembles, organ, piano and cello, violins and organ. Organ soloists will be Alice Adams, Elizabeth Donnelly, George Fattman, Kathryn Holsinger and Marion Sue McElwee.

Carol Ann Stiffler, pianist, will join Alice Adams at the organ for a duet. Robert Pierson and Norma Jedinak, violinists, Marie Diaczynsky, cellist and organist Elizabeth Donnelly will perform two Mozart sonatas for string and organ.

The public is invited to attend the presentation.

Actress Jorgenson To Perform Here

Mademoiselle Louise Jorgenson, an actress from Copenhagen, Denmark, will be the guest speaker in Chapel Monday and will present a dramatic recitation of the Book of Job.

Mademoiselle Jorgenson has given over 1,500 readings in Denmark and has been a guest reciter at many European universities and institutions. The department of education of the government of Denmark has enabled her to visit a number of colleges and seminaries in America as a cultural ambassador of good will.

well that Red Riding Hood's grandmother was actually operating a floating crap game in the woods. The wolf was Mike Hammer (of Mickey Spillane fame) in disguise and Hood got exactly what she deserved for tangling with a second-story man!

Most children feel that the wolf is sadly misused, taking the heat all the time. Possibly his personality has become warped from all these years of never getting to marry the heroine and live-happily-ever-after. There are those who suggest that the wolf is merely a psychological measure aimed at little girls who, eventually, will grow up and need Principles.

So let's help everybody adjust! Down with fairy stories! Oh darn, they're coming to take my pen away again. We're not allowed to have sharp instruments here.....

Senate To Investigate Student Service Plan

Also, after the freshman class has organized (Homecoming) there would be a "skeleton crew" of freshman to take the place of the student proctors.

Charity Ball

The Senate appointed Carl Wass to meet with members of the J. C. Blair Memorial Hospital staff who were concerned with the Charity Ball. Wass was to investigate the possibility of having the dance committee establish a third class of ticket prices which would enable students of Juniata to go to the dance at reduced prices.

Student Service Club

Dean Heberling suggested the matter of establishing a Student Service Club at Juniata. Such a club has worked at a number of other colleges in creating better relations with off-campus associations and in relieving various difficulties found on campus.

The club in which membership would be restricted to campus leaders, would act as a reception committee and a campus tour-guide committee to air visitors to the JC campus. A committee was set up to investigate the possibilities of such a club. This committee includes Carl Wass, Tex Holman, Ron Wertz and Janice Christie.

The Senate approved the appointment of Jay Maust and Leroy Forney to continue as engineers of Snow Flake Lake. Maust and Forney were delegated to check with the administration concerning its future plans of construction in the Snow Flake Lake area.

Coach Mike Snider's javelin throwers have been a real right spot for the track team. Dick Johnson leads the way followed by George Cline and Jerry Witt. Johnson set the school record last year at 180' 1 1/2" and has already shattered his own mark with a 181' 5 1/2 toss against Albright this spring.

Who is better or rather who is more fabulous, Ted Williams of Boston and Stan Musial of St. Louis top almost every major lifetime record among active players. Williams leads the American League with a 350 batting average, 456 home runs and 1,639 runs batted in and is second in hits with 2,3522 in 16 season. Musial in the same playing span leads the National League with 340 average, 2,957 hits, 381 home runs and 1,572 runs driven in.

In pitching statistics, Early Wynn formally with Cleveland has won 235 games and registered 1,634 strikeouts in 17 seasons to lead the American League. Warren Spahn of Milwaukee heads National League pitchers with 224 victories and 1,633 whiffs in a 13 year career.

Red Sponsler of the Devil's Deacons boasts a 667 batting average to lead softball hitters in the first week of action. Red Clippinger is runnerup with a 636 average for the unknowns.

Top hitters include:

Rod Sponsler, Deacons	6- 9	667
Ron Clippinger, Unk.	7-11	636
Ed Beers, Ball Busters	10-16	625
Don Medwid, Mumblers	5- 8	625

A survey conducted by the International Association of Basketball Officials brought out interesting items on the past basketball season. The charge-block play was denoted as most controversial followed by steps, three second violation, and basket interference. According to this body of officials, the violations missed most were steps and the three second rule in that order. The results of this poll help to determine rule changes for the coming season.

Manchester United, a great English soccer club, has recovered from a disasterous airplane crash and sensationally played their way into the championship game. The Manchester outfit is as successful in England as the New York Yankees are in the United States. Three months ago, the plane carrying their team crashed and practically wiped out their first team. Eight players were killed, each of them as popular in England as Mickey Mantle and Duke Snider are in our country.

Sports Card Has Nine Events; Bunnmen, Netmen Play Three

A sports card, featuring six away meetings, a pair of home contests and a Middle Atlantic Conference event, highlight the artivities for this week.

JC's tennis team, winless in its first four outings, tops the week's activity with a total of three matches. Tomorrow the netmen travel to Lewisburg where they will encounter the powerful Bucknell Bisons. Tuesday they wil be at home, hosting the Dickinson Red Devils. Both Bucknell and Dickinson decisively defeated the Tribe in last year's matches and both have very strong outfits once again this year.

Middle Atlantic matches will be held next Thursday, Friday and Saturday at Haverford. The Indian netmen plan to participate in this annual affair.

Today the linksmen of Coach Germann are at Williamsport where they are trying to break into the win column against Lycoming College. St. Francis will provide the opposition for the golfers on Tuesday as both teams approach the mid-season mark.

They will try to increase that mark to 5-1 at Lock Haven today and against Susquehanna on Monday and Elizabethtown on Thursday. The track team only has one meet this week a home contest on Tuesday against the Teachers of Shippensburg. Coach P. M. Snider's thinclads will be looking for their second triumph on Tuesday.

Thinclads Win 1st, End 5th In Relays

Displaying extraordinary depth, the Juniata track team won its first meet of the season by swamping Muhlenberg, 90 - 36, Wednesday at Allentown.

Baseballers Out-Score E-town, Indiana STC

The Indian baseballers won two decisions over the past week defeating Indiana STC 7-3 and Elizabethtown 4-3 last Saturday.

Paced by team captain Don Ross, who is hitting at a .588 clip, the Tribe won both games behind the pitching of Pete McCauley.

The Indians jumped to a 4-0 lead in the second inning and added three singles to drop the Teachers who had defeated them earlier this year.

Ross Starts Rally

Ross started the big uprising with a sharp single; Joe Sopata was safe on a fielder's choice error which put runners on second and third. Roy Martin's single scored the baserunners, but was thrown out at second. McCauley then doubled to right and Jim Berrier walked before Barry Sipes doubled to tally two more.

Ross went three for four including a single, double, triple and one RBI.

The Indians added Elizabethtown to their victory list with a close 4-3 decision over the visiting Blue Jays.

The Tribe broke a three-all deadlock in the seventh on Bill Berrier's winning single to win the well-played contest. The tally was scored after Jim Berrier singled and advanced on a passed ball and Barry Sipes' sacrifice.

Bill Berrier Heavy Hitter

Bill Berrier was the big gun for the victors in going three for four including a three-run homer and the winning hit.

The Bunnmen scored the big three in the fourth on Jim Berrier's walk, Sipes' single and Bill Berrier's blast.

Fahrney Reports To Senate On Ogre Committee Findings

The main order of business at the regular Wednesday night Senate meeting concerned the Ogre Committee report compiled by Pete Fahrney, chairman of the committee.

Such issues were discussed as the consideration of a big "name band" for social and/or concert entertainment, the removal of the nails that "adorn" the campus, the possibility of a 'spring' or 'senior' supplement to the Alfarata and the investigation of why the administration is admitting more and more freshmen even though the present campus housing facilities are inadequate.

The Senate discussed these issues separately and after analyzing them carefully, several committees were established to look further into the various recommendations.

Leadership Conference Issues

Individual senators also presented proposals for the agenda for Leadership Conference to be held next September before the fall semester begins. Proposals included everything from washing machines to one o'clock lates.

The Senate reminds the student body that if there are any feasible issues a student thinks should be discussed at the 1958 Leadership Conference, he should get in touch with any senator to have them presented.

Student Proctors

The faculty has approved the Senate proposal that student proctors be used in final examinations. This practice will go into effect beginning next semester. It is to be understood that the faculty has not rejected the proposal for this semester, but rather that it is too late in the term for any satisfactory system to be set up.

Ike Proposes Pole To Pole Peace Pacts

THE ARCTIC INSPECTION PLAN — A week ago Russia's U. N. delegate Arhady Sobolev filed a formal protest against the United States for flying H-bomb laden strategic Air Command bombers up over the Arctic Circle, calling the flights "provocative and a grave threat to peace." The surprise Soviet move was another offensive attack in the East-West propaganda war.

Last Monday President Eisenhower sent a note to the Kremlin leaders proposing a "northern zone of international inspection against surprise attack." The proposal was also submitted before the United Nations the next day by the U. S. delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge. The crux of the U. S. proposal is to provide a "cordon sanitaire" up in the Arctic Circle which would include within the proposed arc Alaska, the Aleutian and Kurile Islands and the Kamchatka Peninsula. Within this area is situated the U. S., Canadian and Soviet air bases ready to strike at the heart of each other in the event of war.

A harsh debate followed in the U. N. Security Council with Sweden proposing an amendment that would couple the inspection plan along with disarmament talks. It was an attempt to sweeten the pill for Russia. But after a hot verbal struggle between Lodge and Sobolev, the measure was defeated by a Russian veto. With this vote, Russia has crushed a serious attempt to ease world tensions and has received a propaganda setback. Even more important, the Soviet vote has placed a more pronounced effect on the possible summit conference issue. Russia will only discuss such proposals and issues at a top-level summit conference. The West to call Russia's bluff should press firmly for a summit conference, whereby they can either expose Russia's unwillingness, or even better, come to a logical, peaceful understanding of the present world issues.

THE ANTARCTIC TREATY BID—May 3 the United States put forth a treaty plan to 11 nations to preserve Antarctica as a continent for scientific research and not as a future battleground. The plan was sent to the 11 nations who have claims in Antarctica and who are also participating in the International Geophysical Year research program. Under the proposal, all the territorial claims in Antarctica would remain in "status quo" and no new claims would be allowed. The aim of the treaty is to "assure the continuation of the fruitful scientific cooperation already under way." The United Nations would also take the responsibility of conducting peaceful relations between the territorial claimants in Antarctica. The proposal has been received by many nations as a peaceful and satisfactory solution to the growing problem of the status in Antarctica. Only with sincere cooperation of all nations can a plan such as this fully function in a peaceful manner.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Ruling Too Rigid

RECENT chapel programs in which exceptionally good speakers have been limited to 20 minutes dramatically illustrates the need for a more flexible policy concerning hour chapels.

Some years ago the public events committee set the number of hour chapels allowed per year at six, but now with the increased amount of "cultural" chapels, this rule has proven inadequate and a real deterrent to students getting the most out of the chapel programs. Last week many students were shocked to discover this policy so rigid that even such a fine speaker as Bishop Oxnam could be permitted only 20 minutues.

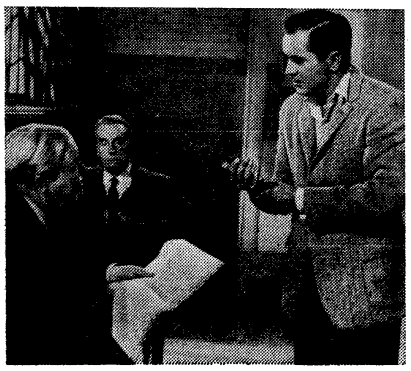
The JUNIATIAN would like to see the hour chapel limit raised to a more realistic figure or, better yet, the whole policy made more flexible to accommodate unexpected speakers who deserve more than 20 minutes.

If outstanding speakers per year exceed the number of six, it is ridiculous to unduly limit their time because of a now obsolete ruling. Certainly the few minutes lost in class periods on such days is time well-spent.

Students have expressed a strong objection to hour chapels twice a week as a solution to the problem because of its involving afternoon classes. The majority of of Juniatians are strongly adverse to this idea. Right now the only answer seems to be a general relaxing of the present overly-rigid policy to accommodate special speakers who obviously deserve more time.

Movie Of The Week

Witness For The Prosecution



Charles Laughton interviews Tyrone Power while Henry Daniel looks on in this scene from "Witness For The Prosecution."

"Tables Down Tonight"

IT is a marked inconvenience to have at least nine tables taken down each night in the college dining halls. Many students, often with their tables down twice a week, strongly object to the increasing number of empty tables. And they are justified in their feeling, for 72 people is too large a number to have no assigned seat in the dining halls every night.

Yet the head waitress has aptly pointed out that even with the usual number of tables down, every evening there are still many vacancies. Tables are taken down in proportion to the number of absent students and thus as vacancies increase, so do the number of tables taken down. It is a spiraling process, since the majority of students whose tables are down then do not bother going to the meal. As a result, as less people eat their meals in the dining halls, more and more tables go down.

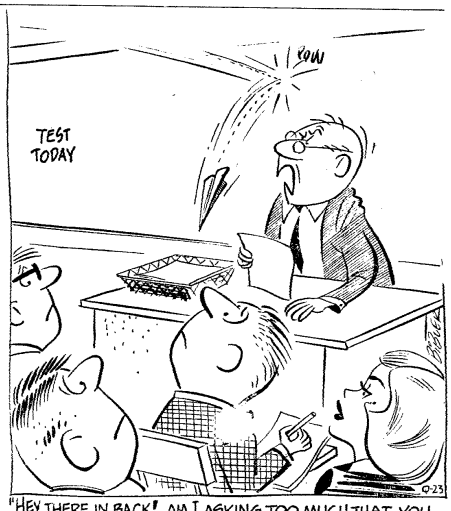
A big step toward alleviating this problem would be for all students whose tables are down to attend the meal. If this were done, no doubt extra tables would have to be set and thus the next time a smaller number taken down. The best way to increase the number of tables set each meal is merely for more students to attend.

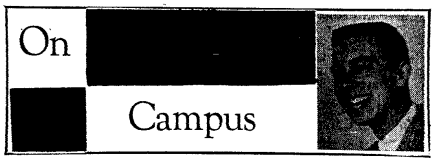
This whole process has its beginning in September when the original number of tables to be taken down is decided by the number of vacancies. Then when the process has begun and those with no assigned tables do not come to meals, the number grows to its present huge proportions.

The crux of the whole matter lies with the great mass of students who fail to come each night merely because they don't care to. If these people were there, no tables would go down. The only way to defeat this basic problem is to raise the quality of food to such a standard that there would seldom be a desire on the part of anyone to stay away from meals. Until this day dawns, the best thing for students to do is to come to meals when their tables are down and thus force them back up again.

Editorial Unnecessary

THE freshmen beat the JUNIATIAN to press last week by eliminating Thursday afternoon the cause for the "61's" editorial. By Friday morning the 61's on college field grandstand were well-covered. The JUNIATIAN would like to apologize to the freshman class for this undue castigation and congratulate them for a job, although not promptly, well-done.





by George Fattman

With apologies to all those who thought my last column "really sweat" (I agree wholeheartedly, incidentially), here is this week's attempt at campus humor.

For some reason or other one of the senior guys was changing into a rather unusual combination of swim trunks and a long-sleeved sport shirt. "Planning to do some exercises or something?" someone joshed.

"No, but I could use it—I haven't done a push-up in a month."

"Well, I guess it's about time for another one, then," his friend commented.

* * * * *

Prof to class: "This is exciting, this is interesting, and so forth."

* * * * *

"Berrier got a walk to first."
"But he's running to it."

* * * * *

A visitor here during a May Day weekend meal heard that once we even had pumpkin ice cream for dessert. "Oh, I wonder what that would be like," she mused.

To which someone quipped, "Well next time we have some I'll mail you a slab in a Manilla envelope."

* * * * *

Prof to half-empty classroom: "I think I'll just sit here and observe your absence."

* * * * *

Annoyed by the noise of the construction of the bulletin board, which regularly interrupted his class, the prof remarked sardonically, "Why don't they just buy them an Erector set?"

And the same prof on the removal of the ivy from the east wall of Students Hall: "Half the time they spend tearing it down, and the other half they spend planting little ones."

* * * * *

And have you heard of the Sunday excursion of a guy who was taking his weekend date for a ride, got his car stuck "looking for a shortcut" and had to come back to the dorm to ask some of his friends to push him out. The comments were quite interesting.

And so much for campus humor this week.

Chalk It Up!

by Val Means

Baseball Spring Sports Parade—Don Ross paces the hitting attack with a .500 clip. Jim Berrier follows with.400, Bill Berrier .375 and Jack Meenan .364. Pete Mc Cauley is 2-0 on the mound and Ron Reynolds 3-1 including a 2-1 victory over Lock Haven.

TRACK—Freshman Don Layman and Jack Heading lead the point parade after three meets. Layman has picked up 35 including three straight mile and two mile firsts. Jack Heading has tallied 27½ points including firsts in the low and high hurdles and high jump against Muhlenberg.

GOLF—Jay Gettig and Steve Gerlock, playing one and two positions respectively, held all Tribe wins thus far between them. Both sport a 2-2 record.

TENNIS-Seniors Chuck Seeley and Pete Wright lead the netmen in singles play with 2-2 records.

Baseball commissioner Ford Frick is after a 325 foot minimum on foul lines in new ball parks. Frick favors standardized playing areas and therefore wants this rule enacted before any new parks are constructed. If voted in the rule would be in effect by the All-Star game.

The left field screen in Los Angeles would not be effected since the proposed rule would only cover new ball parks. The Dodger's 250 foot left field foul line is 50 feet shorter than in any other major league ball park. This controversial fence problem will only be solved when the Bums move into a new home.

IM softball is in its usual close race. At this writing the defending champion Mumblers are the sole undefeated team at the halfway mark. The Mumblers have yet to face the Ball Busters, Devil's Deacons and Basketeers, all of which can cop the title.

The Mumblers pulled a real stunt against the Yoder Howitzers last week when Bob Sill, Chuck Phillips and Ken Fassnacht blasted successive home runs to turn a close contest into a rout.

Bunnmen Defeat Lock Haven, 2-1

The Indian baseballers won their fifth verdict of the season last Friday as they nipped Lock Haven STC, 2-1, behind the six-hit pitching of freshman Ron Reynolds.

It was a come-from-behind victory which enabled Reynolds to win his third of four decisions. Reynolds issued one walk while striking out three.

The Teachers jumped to 1-0 lead in the fifth inning but the Indians came storming back with a pair in the sixth.

Meenan Gets Winning Hit

The winning rally was started by Barry Sipes who walked. Bill Berrier then doubled with Sipes stopping at third. Don Ross was walked intentionally to fill the sacks. This set the stage for freshman catcher Jack Meenan to smash a single past first to score Sipes and Berrier with the tying and winning runs.

The Indians only had five hits off the offerings of the nifty lefty Jack Hall. The Berrier twins and Joe Sopata had doubles and Meenan and Reynolds came through with singles.

The game scheduled with Dickinson will be played today due to wet grounds yesterday.

Spring Sports Busy; Golfers Play In MAC

Baseball and golf top the sports card for next week as the spring sports season nears its conclusion.

This afternoon on the Huntingdon Country Club links, the golf team will try to break into the win column for the first time this season. Their opponent is Johns Hopkins University. Tomorrow they will participate in the Middle Atlantic Tournament to be held on the Mt. Union Country Club course. Colleges and universities alike will be competing for top honors in this annual tournament.

Tuesday, the linksmen return to familiar haunts as they play host to Indiana State Teachers College in their next to last match of the season.

Bunnmen Faee Pitt

The return match with Elizabethtown headlines the baseball card for next week. Tomorrow the Bunnmen travel to E-town where they hope to improve their winning record at the expense of the Blue Jays. Monday they meet Bucknell at Lewisburg, then travel to Pittsburgh for their encounter with the Panthers on Wednesday.

Coach Mike Snider's thinclads have but one meet this week, a home match against the Dickinson Red Devils Tuesday.

On the College Hill tenis courts this afternoon the Tribe netmen will host a power-laden Dickinson College team. Boasting a number of letterwinners from last year, the Red Devils rate as one of the better teams JC has met this season. Monday St. Francis will provide the opposition as the netmen play their second home match in four days.

Juniata To Host Golf Tournament

A record field of 18 colleges is expected to participate in the Middle Atlantic Conference golf championship at Mount Union tomorrow

Entries have been received from 92 men, but only 72 will be competing in four-man teams for the winner's plaque in the one-day, 36-hole medal tournament.

The top contenders for the team title are Bucknell, Lehigh, Hofstra and Lafayette.

A suggestion has been proposed to provide space for listening rooms and a record library in the basement of this building.

New Science Hall

The location being considered for the new science hall is the area north of NJ House on the west side of Moore St. extending to the tennis courts. Formal approval for this site has not been attained.

The proposed site for the new home economics building is in the general area south of East Hall on or across Oneida St. Three hard-surfaced tennis courts will be constructed off Scott St., this side of the 18th St. entrance.

Dada To Present Program Tonight

The following announcement was left mysteriously in the JUNIATIAN office; since it concerns an issue which has been steadily gaining in interest at JC, we feel it only wise to publish it.

The Dada Movement at Juniata will present at 8 p.m. today in Room C, Students Hall, a program of genteel recitations and other superior performances to the accompaniment of suitable background music.

For the delectation of their guests, members of The Movement have also arranged an exhibition of high-class art works, concerning the fields of painting and sculpture. Such persons on campus—students and faculty alike—as are capable of appreciating the finer things in life are cordially invited.

All others are asked to stay away!

Holman To Take Office As Region's NSA Veep

Tex Holman, junior pre-law major from Williamsport, has been elected regional vice-chairman for the Pennsylvania-West Virginia area of the National Students Association.

Holman served as NSA coordinator for JC's Senate for one year. In his new office he will act as area coordinator for all member schools in the Pa.-W. Va. region and will hold one of the two votes from this region on the national executive council.

He is also a voting member of the regional executive council of NSA. Holman will attend this summer's National Student Congress to be held at Ohio Wesleyan

NATO Shows Strength By Unified Policy

HERB DEUCHAR: News Of The Week In Retrospect

THE COPENHAGEN MEETING—In an air of uncertainty and divisions, the foreign ministers of the fifteen NATO nations met last week at their annual meeting in Copenhagen, Denmark, to bolster and restrengthen their position against Soviet diplomatic, as well as propaganda moves. The NATO members had been divided over the issue of a summit conference, and Russia had tried desperately to widen the split between the Western alliance nations. The division had occured over the United States' reluctance to negotiate with Russia, while the European allies wished to take a more liberal view towards Russia's "peace overtures."

But within the time from the last NATO meeting to this recent conference, much water has run under the diplomatic bridge of world affairs. In recent months the U. S. made diplomatic success by proposing to Russia the Arctic Inspection Plan, as well as diplomatic negotiations for a possible future summit conference. It was in this atmosphere that the NATO foreign ministers met, in a more harmonious and confident body.

At the meeting, the allied leaders investigated thoroughly the West's position in negotiating with Moscow. Led by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd and U. S. Ambassador to Moscow Llewellyn Thompson, the NATO nations came to these unified conclusions: a more cautious approach will be taken towards a summit meeting, with definite preliminary negotiations taking place first, an offensive move to break the disarmament deadlock by presenting a plan for "controlled nuclear tests suspension independent of nuclear productions" and, finally a more calculated view towards the issues of nuclear disarmament, disengagement and nonaggression pacts.

The meeting at Copenhagen left the West girded in a unified policy towards Russia, throwing down the gauntlet to Russia to show its faith in easing East-West tensions. Out of a maze of disunity the Western allies have rejuvenated themselves and have dealt Russia a possible diplomatic and propaganda defeat. Coupled by the Soviet diplomatic blunders of past weeks, the NATO organization has been able to heal its differences and achieve a greater degree of unity towards Red aggression.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN KICKOFF—In an atmosphere dimmed by current political issues, President Eisenhower kicked off the GOP campaign last week. Against an ever-increasing Democratic offensive, the President desperately tried to rally the Grand Old Party to the coming political fight. In his rally speech Ike only stepped into the political arena by stating, "the American people know that Republicanism is simply another way of saying responsible government."

But it seems as though there are slim pickings for the Republicans in the way of political issues. Former President Truman has been leading the Democratic offensive stating, "I don't believe the people will be gullible enough again to fall for the Republican Administration. The people are tired of getting liberal pep talks and reactionary policies." Unless some spectacular moves are made by the Republicans, the political horizon looks very black. As one correspondent put it, "unless the Democrats make some horrible mistakes, the Democrats seem to have the November elections sewed up."

Editorially Speaking . . .

Admissions For '62

CONTRARY to current rumors circulating around campus, Juniata is planning to admit a freshman class of 225 next year—a figure no larger than ones in the recent past.

False rumors that 250 or 300 will constitute the class of '62 originate because students do not fully understand the complicated and devious process the admissions office must go through before the desired 225 can be acquired. For example, few people realize that only a little over half of the acceptances actually come to Juniata. Many withdrawals come in both before and after the $50 deposit is paid, largely because the majority of applicants apply to three or four colleges.

Figures given to the JUNIATIAN by director of admissions Kenneth Wenger support these facts. From a total of 658 applications, 357 were accepted. As of May 12, there were 79 withdrawls, leaving 278, 93 of which, however, have not as yet paid the $50 deposit. Needless to say, the majority of these will constitute withdrawls. As you can see, it is a difficult task for the admissions office to judge just how many applications to accept in order to get the desired final figure of 225. Understandably, a substantial margin above this figure must be admitted.

The question arises, however, whether 225 is still too large a number to admit, considering the available housing space. But again we must remember that in order to have a graduating class of 100, almost twice that amount must be admitted as freshmen because of the high mortality rate throughout the four years. Yet housing space must always be the first consideration.

According to Dean Bechtell, there is no problem with the women. She can comfortably accommodate the expected 100, with only a few of the largest rooms housing three students and still 25 single rooms available. However, it seems to be a different story with the men. Rooms in the Cloister have been tripled up, with five men living in thee "ranch" next year. A total of 70 will be rooming off campus. It is unfair to house students under such crowded conditions. We realize that a new dormitory is definitely included in the future building program, yet we urge that until the men's housing is expanded, such a number not be admitted to cause unduly crowded conditions. The students deserve this much, especially with costs rising year by year.

The JUNIATIAN wanted to publicize the fact that admissions was working toward a freshman class of 225, not 300, yet also to raise the question whether this figure is still too high, taking into consideration the available dormitory space and the comfort of the present student body.

A Popular Pastime

THE incessant use of the new ping pong table in East Hall Rec Room indicates the need for more such recreational opportunities on campus. Another table in the men's dorm would be much welcome and possibly might eliminate the waiting list one almost always encounters for use of the rec room set.

Certainly more than one ping pong table would be desirable for a student body of Juniata's size. After all, one cannot play frisbee all winter too.

Views At SMU

AFTER Juniata's focus on academic freedom a few weeks ago, we were interested to learn through the Associated Collegiate Press of Southern Methodist University's struggle with the problem.

John Gates, former editor of the Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker, spoke at SMU April 23 on the subject Why I Left The Communist Party. After he was invited, overwhelming criticism and a multitude of protests flooded the administration, many in the form of withdrawn financial support. Although the majority of students were opposed to the invitation and considered it "untimely and in poor taste", they agreed grudgingly to back up "the mistake" and attend the meeting.

However, they agreed to take the precautionary measures of eliminating the dinner scheduled for Gates because it might appear he was being honored, notifying the FBI that Gates was in town and prohibiting him to make a formal address—only introductory remarks followed by questions from SMU professors.

Just what is SMU afraid of? The actions of the college and its supporters seem to reveal an immature approach to the problem. Surely they must realize that if we become afraid of ideas, we are losing faith in democracy which needs a free play of ideas to ultimately triumph over Communism.

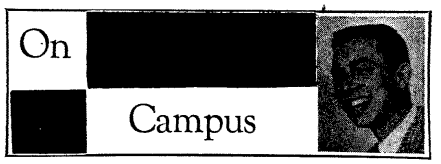
"SOMETIMES THEY GET PRETTY INDEPENDENT WHEN THEY GET HOLD OF THAT DIPLOMA."



by George Fattman

Censored, uncensored or whatever the borough of Huntingdon has decided to do about this column, here we go again with campus humor.

It was suggested that On Campus be converted into a dissertation entitled What Is Humor? or that I tell the "truth" about the charity ball. But since even with this mere mention of what to us seems fairly amusing, the local gentry will rise en masse to send a certain columnist out of town tarred and feathered on a rail, it is best we stick to humor of a less antagonistic nature.

* * * * *

Notice, sank-you-please, that the campus has been plastered with "Dada" signs. Rumors have it that they are advertisements for a wild soiree scheduled to come off at 8 p.m. tonight in Room C. Da-don't miss it.

* * * * *

Joseph Horne's, Pittsburgh's largest department store, invited a number of Juniatians to come into the city for job interviews, all expense paid. Thus all during the weekend they were in Pittsburgh one group of JCers remarked after every purchase, no matter how small, "Oh, just charge it to Horne's". Back on campus at the end of a very nice weekend, the group went to the diner for a cup of tea. On the way out someone remarked, "Oh just charge it to Horne's."

To which a local inebriate (sorry!) entering the diner quipped, "Why don't you charge it to experience?"

* * * * *

"But Oedipus, she's old enough to be your mother."

* * * * *

"We're solvent! We're solvent!" called the JUNIATIAN managing editor from the publications office door. Earlier that afternoon the publications committee determined that the campus weekly was far—well, far enough—from being in financial danger.

"Now I won't have to give up my new cord suit," remarked the business manager.

From Science Hall

The experiment called for saliva. "Where do we get it?" inquired the sweet thing.

"It's in a bottle in the stock room," someone told her. Believe it or not, she looked for it for 10 minutes.

* * * * *

And that wraps it up for this series. It's been a lot of fun collecting these bits of campus humor for you each week. Special thanks go to Third Founders and a rather witty prof who made regular contributions to On Campus. See you around the campus . . .

Chalk It Up!

by Val Means

For the class of '58, this is the last JUNIATIAN which four years ago appeared very far away. During this span, there have been many sport highlights, the following of which especially stick in my memory.

1954-55 FOOTBALL — Worry caused by the absence of "Killer" Conley in early practice, Fran, Wampler running 84 yards on an electrifying punt return to edge Moravian 14-12 in the dying moments, Fullback John Wintersteins' injuries and great kicking, tackle Joe Veto receiving Little All American and All State honors. BASKETBALL — Wolverines capturing IM crown as freshmen. TRACK — Gene Rothenberger performing as a team himself. BASEBALL — Barry Drexler's and Joe Hinish's home run blasts.

1955-56 FOOTBALL — Full back Bob Sill's flip over the line, Bill Haushalter, the watch charm guard, the 14-13 thriller over Lycoming, Pat Tarquinio to Barry Drexler pass combination and the Tangerine Bowl tie which stopped a 23 game winning streak. BASKETBALL — The graduation of Hallman, Froisland, Orris, Handzelek and Vanderbush after a 14-7 season ending the most successful regime in JC history, Handzelek,s long two handers and the resulting 492 points and the Whips back up their noise with the IM crown. GOLF — Eight wins with single losses to West Virginia and Pitt.

1956-57 FOOTBALL — Sill stricken with mononucleosis, our 25 game unbeaten streak snapped by Lycoming, John Staley, "Moon" Mullen and Charlie Haines in the line, Joe Trimber leading the team in five departments and Bill Berrier the high scoring freshman sensation. BASKETBALL — Krazy Kids nip the Five and the Dukes run away in men's intramurals. TRACK — Dick Johnson breaking the javelin record. BASEBALL — "Lefty" Aldefer and fine Frosh crop spark team to 11-3 season.

1957-59 FOOTBALL — Stellar line play by tackles Bernie McQuown and Al Dungan, aggressive defensive play by Jim and Bill Berrier, a runaway season and a 36-1-1 record over five years. CROSS COUNTRY — Don Layman leading the team to an undefeated season in the second year of the sport. INTRAMURALS — Collegians cop fifth IM touch football title and the Whips capture their second basketball crown. BASKETBALL — The graduation of Mike Armstrong one of our all-around greats.

Ballbusters Top Softball League

The Ballbusters vaulted into first place in the intramural softball league this past week to clinch at least a tie for the championship.

Paced by Ed Beers, the league's leading hitter, the Ballbusters picked up important wins over the Mumblers and Happy Halupkies by scores of 18-11 and 9-5 respectively. Beers collected three hits in both games and he, along with Paul DeSesso, Ron Wingard and Ken Opipery, blasted homers in the Mumbler contest.

Sponsler Pitches

The second place Devil's Deacons won three of four defeating the Basketeers 4-2, Mumblers 6-2 and Unknowns 8-0 while losing to the Yoder Howitzers 6-5. Rod Sponsler picked up three wins including the two-hit shutout.

The Howitzers' Glen Hassinger, who was the winner in the Deacon game, also beat the Marauders 10-9. The Yoder Boys nipped the Crusaders 8-7 for their third win of the week.

Linksmen Lose Pair; Netmen Drop Frankies

Juniata golfers dropped matches to Johns Hopkins and Indiana State Teachers this week while the Indian netmen lost to Dickinson and copped the season's first victory over St. Francis.

On Friday JC linksmen suffered a 4-1 setback to Johns Hopkins on the Mount Union course. Jay Gettig was the lone winner for the Tribe taking a 1-up decision over Bob Lentz. In other matches, Bob Swartz downed Steve Gerlock 6 and 5, Bob Williams beat Carl Narouth 5 and 3, Neil Donner lost a 3 and 2 contest to Hugh Pease and Bill Langan edged Pat Conners 2 and1.

Juniata failed to win a match as the Teachers of Indiana took a 14½-3½ victory on Tuesday. Narouth picked up 1½ points for the Tribe by virtue of a 1½-1½ tie match, while Gettig and Gerlock contributed one point apiece in a losing cause.

In the Middle Atlantic Championships held Saturday at Mount Union, the Indians finished 14th in a field of 18. Gettig was the JC standout, ranking fourth among 78 contestants with a 36 hole total of 160 strokes.

In tennis the Tribe garnered their first victory of the season dropping St. Francis 7-2.

In singles play Jack Merrill of the Indians downed Bob Bates 6-0, 7-5, Chuck Seeley defeated Hal Keefer 7-5, 6-2, Del McQuaide beat Al Nicotra 6-4, 6-3, Pete Wright scored a 6-22, 6-4 win over Paul Kline and Dick Ott dropped Bill Kozzub 7-5, 6-0. Jerry Leatherman was the only JC loser in a close 2-6, 6-4, 6-4 loss to Ed Petri.

Earlier in the week, Juniata netmen dropped an 8-1 decision to visiting Dickinson. A Wright-Ott doubles combination copped the Tribes lone point by defeating John Willard and Doug Wert 8-6, 10-8.

Teams Conclude Schedules Baseballers Host Lycoming

A rather full schedule of sports events crowd the calendar through finals, for the next two weeks.

Bill Germann's linksmen, still searching for their first triumph, will play the Gettysburg golfers today at Gettysburg. Next Saturday they host Bucknell on the home Huntingdon Country Club course, and finish off their season in the Alumni tournament to be held on Saturday, May 31. It is hoped that many of the golfers from recently-graduated classes will return and make this tournament a success.

Tomorrow will mark the last scheduled conference game for the baseball team, when they meet Lycoming on College Field. A game originally scheduled with Upsala for May 30 has been cancelled by Upsala due to its conflict with final examinations. However the annual Alumni game will be played as scheduled on Saturday, May 31.

The netmen of Bob McFadden will to finish off their season on a bright note tomorrow on the home courts. Lycoming's Warriors will provide the opposition for the upsey-minded tennis team.

Coach P. M. Snider's thinclads will draw their schedule to a close today. On College Field at 3 o'clock this afternoon they will meet Bucknell in the season wrapup for both teams.

Dickinson Drops Indian Trackmen

Juniata's track team extended Dickinson's undefeated thinclads to the last two events before bowing 68-58, Tuesday afternoon.

Jack Heading paced the Blue and Gold point producers with 14 points, with firsts in the high hurdles (16.8), and the low hurdles (27.9), and second in the high jump and a third in the broad jump. Dick Johnson and George Cline followed with 10 points each. Johnson gained his points with firsts in the discus (119' 6") and the javelin (187' 5½"), which reset his old record standard. Cline gained his total with seconds in the high hurdles, low hurdles and javelin and a third in the pole vault. Don Layman's victory in the two mile (10:35) and second place in the mile added eight points to the JC total.

Other firsts for the Indians were Nick Roth, with a leap of 20' 11" in the broad jump, and Kirk Wicker's 40' 6¼" toss in the shot.

Juniata was represented at the Middle Atlantic Championships at West Chester last Saturday by five members of the squad. Dick Johnson was the Tribe's lone place winner as he took fourth in the javelin with a heave of 183', which stood as the school record until he again set it Wednesday.

Buffaloes Clinch Volleyball League

The Buffaloes clinched the girls intramural volleyball league title after winning two 2-1 decisions over the Texans and Rafter Ringers in last week's action.

The All Punch Ten won two matches over the Rafter Ringers 2-0 and the Nitwits by forfeit.

In the only other match the Nitwits dropped the Swinging Squaws in two games.

Tribe Wins Three, Beats Pitt, 11-7

The Indian baseballers posted three big victories over the past week defeating Pitt, Bucknell and Dickinson while only losing once to E-town to bring their seasonal record to 8-2.

The Tribe exploded with a 16-hit attack in the come-from-behind victory at Pitt. The Indians scored 10 runs in the last three innings, including four in the ninth, to upset the Panthers 11-7.

Jim Berrier sparked the attack with two hits, including a three-run homer in the eighth. Roy Martin, Jack Meenan, Bill Berrier and Pete McCauley, who started hurling, also had two hits. Ron Reynolds picked up his sixth mound victory in relief.

Ross Gets Five Hits

Don Ross paced the Indians to a 12-3 victory over Bucknell by going five for five including a triple and three RBI's. Barry Sipes contributed three hits and four RBI's.

Before taking Bucknell, Reynolds hurled the Bunnmen to a close 3-1 decision over Dickinson in a MAC contest. Jim Berrier won the contest with a two-run homer in the fifth for the winning margin.

The Indians lone setback came at the hands of E-town by a score of 13-4. It was the first conference loss in two seasons.

Fahrney Lists Winners Of Picture Contest

Pete Fahrney, photographer for the JUNIATIAN's mystery picture contest, has named the winners for the series, which ran from the March 14 issue through May 9.

The first photo showed rows of seats in Oller Hall and was identified by Ron Wood. John Barger correctly named the second picture as the heating ventilator in Totem Inn.

Carolyn Long and Joyce Grant spotted the third as the hamburger grill in Tote. Miss Anna Winger, librarian, won the fourth contest by identifying the tile floor in the 17th St. entrance to the library.

The fifth photo showed the manufacturer's label on the green trash can by Students Hall and was guessed by Judith Brush.. The following picture was located by John Pessy and George Lindenfelder as the grill on the front of the jukebox.

Last week's picture contest was won by Ruth Perestam who identified the cracked wooden plate on the left-hand side of the stained glass window in the east wing of the library! All winners of the contest were awarded two passes to the Clifton theatre.

Vol. XXXV No. A | Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa. | September, 1958

College To Open September 14

An Early Edition ...

The JUNIATIAN, the campus weekly, in cooperation with the office of public information, presents herewith an early edition especially for incoming freshmen and prospective students at Juniata.

We hope this helps to introduce you to the JUNIATIAN and to further your campus orientation.

Brown, Wass, Teeter, Shore Serve As Senate's Officers

Juniata's student government consists of four officers and nine chairmen on the Senate and a judiciary body of ten.

Chuck Brown, who was elected last March, will serve this year as president of the Senate and ex-officio chairman of the judiciary. Brown is a senior history major from Bellefonte.

Vice-president Carl Wass is a senior history major from Harrisburg and Senate secretary Carol Teeter is an education major from Martinsburg. Sam Shore, a math major from McClure, will serve as treasurer.

Janice Christie and Ron Wertz are chairmen of women's and men's houses, respectively. Miss Christie is a senior education major from Jerome; Wertz is a senior business major from Lewistown.

Social Activities

Social activities chairman is Sandy Johnston, senior elementary education major from Lykens. Representing religious activities is Stan Davis, senior history major from Lansdale.

Tex Holman, junior history major from Williamsport, is chairman of underclassmen and Don Shover, senior sociology major from Lemoyne, was elected to the newly created post of chairman of educational activities. Dick Johnson, junior sociology major from Ardmore, will serve as Senate chairman of communications.

General activities will be directed by Dutch Boland, junior business major from New Kensington. Bill Ebner, senior history major from Harrisburg is chairman in charge of athletics.

The senators meet weekly and are advised by Dr. Kenneth Crosby, professor of history, and the deans, Paul Heberling and Miss Barbara Bechtell. The group considers all phases of campus life, academic as well as social.

Campus Judiciary

Juniata's two-year old judiciary is the group in charge of handling nearly all campus offences. They are currently working toward establishing an honor system at JC.

Senate president Brown is chairman of the CJ. Other ex officio members are Miss Christie and Wertz, chairmen of women's and men's houses. (see story above)

Faculty and administrative members who sit on judiciary are Dr. Donald Rockwell and deans Paul Heberling and Miss Barbara Bechtell. JCers who were elected to the judiciary last spring are Horace Carl, senior history major from Spring City; Bonnie Gunther, senior education major from Berwick; Jane Herbster, junior math major from Lewistown and Jay Maust, junior premed major from Somerset.

International Group Of Home Economists Stops Here For Tour

A total of 240 delegates from 56 countries en route to the International Congress on Home Economics last month toured the campus as guests of the home ec department and the public relations office.

The delegation arrived here following a similar tour at Penn State. President Calvert N. Ellis spoke to the group on the difference between a college such as Juniata and the publicly supported universities and also touched on the differences between American and European institutions.

Faculty language profs were on hand to serve as interpreters.

Delegates found the gym "amazing" and the food "delicious."

Following the tour they went on to several more stops at area high schools and colleges before arriving at the international congress at the University of Maryland.

Alumni Contribute $82,000 To JC

Alumni giving soared to another new high during the fiscal year ending June 15 with $82,191.83 contributed to the alumni fund as alumni, parents and friends of the college recognized the need for increased support of higher education.

In all 1,141 persons contributed slightly more than 38 percent of $212,457.93 obtained from all sources to bolster the current 10-year Build Juniata program, now in its sixth year.

The average contribution during the past year rose from $61 to an all-time high of $72.03.

The college also received $97,050 from industry and foundation gifts during the year, and $15,320.74 from the Church of the Brethren. Dajumo, the parents' organization, gave $10,500.

JC Delegates To Consider Year's Items

Juniata's senators and about 60 campus leaders chosen by the Senate will attend the annual Leadership Conference at Camp Kanesatake, Spruce Creek, September 12 and 13.

Each year a group of Juniatians meets to consider current campus problems and to make resolutions for the Senate to act on during the coming college semesters. The delegates will then remain on campus to help orientate the incoming freshmen.

First on the conference agenda this year are religious activities, with the discussion being led by chairman Stan Davis. Issues are the President's Bible class, a college chaplain and a location for a college chapel.

Social activities, issues which will be presented by Sandy Johnston, include name bands and entertainment, a mid-winter formal and remodling of the women's gym. Ron Wertz will then present men's house issues: washing machines for North Dorm and a meeting of JC men with Huntingdon Police Chief Morris.

Educational activities issues, led by Don Shover, will include check points for the honor system and the freshman academic aid program. Dick Johnson will lead the discussion on communications: a spring supplement of the Alfarata, a Juniata pictorial magazine and various proposals for WJC, the campus radio station.

Women's house issues, outlined by Janice Christie, will concern the choice of the house committee, the duties of the disciplinary council and 1 o'clock lates. Tex Holman will lead debate on underclassmen issues: freshman court and the freshman days program.

General activities chairman Dutch Boland will present these items: spring Mountain Day and the May Day theme. General issues will also be presented, with discussions being led by Senate president Chuck Brown and vice-president Carl Waas.

General issues to be considered are: waiter-waitress compensation, judiciary elections, senior hymn, campus service club, Students Hall policy and the Totem Inn assessment.

Nine New Instructors To Join JC Faculty

Nine men and women will join Juniata's faculty this fall to meet the need for additional instruction in various departments.

Dean of the College Morley Mays has announced the appointment of the Rev. Earl Kaylor, Jr. as assistant professor of Biblical studies. The Rev. Mr. Kaylor attended Bethany Biblical Seminary and Notre Dame and was ordained to the ministry of the Church of the Brethren in 1946. He has been pastor of the Westmont Church of the Brethren in Johnstown since 1953.

Wilfred Norris will instruct advanced courses in physics at JC. Norris was graduated summa sum laude from JC in 1954 and is now completing work on his Ph. D. in chemistry at Harvard, where he has held teaching fellowships for the past two years.

Miss Sara Ellen Procious and Hans-Otto Zbinden will join the Frosh Days Program To Include Registration, Recreation, Tests

About 225 freshmen will enter Juniata Sunday, September 14, when a four-day program will get underway to help orientate them to life on College Hill.

The new Juniatians will arrive on campus Sunday afternoon and will meet President Calvert Ellis and various members of the staff and faculty in Totem Inn from 2 to 5 p.m. Kenneth Wenger, admissions, will be host at a welcome supper that evening.

President Ellis will welcome the class of '62 at the freshman convocation at 7:30 p.m. in Oller Hall and the frosh will then adjourn to Memorial Gym for a songfest led by Prof. William Merrel. The evening will close with a party for the women and bull sessions for the men at 10 p.m. in their respective dorms.

Education at Juniata

Dean Morley Mays will conduct the first session — on education at Juniata — at 8 a.m. Monday in Oller Hall. Program conference will begin at 9 a.m. with members of the faculty.

Under a new arrangement, registration will not be held until Tuesday.

A battery of tests will be given to all new students during the Freshman Days program. Among these are the college ability test, English test, pre-engineering ability test and placement tests in languages, chemistry and mathematics.

Meetings with the deans, the Senate and a reception at the home of President and Mrs. Ellis have also been scheduled. A mixer Monday night in Memorial Gym and a square dance Wednesday night in Oller Hall's parking lot are among the social events planned for the week.

Classes Begin

Before the four-day program is completed, the majority of upperclassmen will have returned to campus. Classes will be officially opened Thursday, September 18, when over 700 Juniatians will begin attending classes.

In order to consider a number of significant freshman problems, a series of freshman assemblies has been arranged, beginning at 1:45 p.m. Monday, September 22. Discussions designed to help adjust to college life will be conducted by upperclassmen and faculty members.

Committee Plans Future Expansion

Juniata's President Ellis has appointed a special committee to consider plans for locating future buildings and playing fields which are under consideration.

Members appointed were William Engel, Jr., chairman, Miss Gertrude Butler, Mrs. Sarah Hettinger, Dr. Donald Rockwell, Mike Snider and Dr. Robert Thornburg. A progress report dated last spring indicated that the board of trustees is considering expanding in a north-west direction toward Round Top.

The approved site for the new library, for which plans have been drawn, is between 18th and 19th streets east of Moore Street. There is a suggestion on the board to provide for a record library and listening rooms in the basement of this building.

A science hall is being considered for the area north of NJ house extending to but not eliminating the tennis courts. The trustees have authorized the architects to draw plans for an L-shaped building for this site but formal approval has not yet been given.

A new home economics building has been proposed for the general area south of East Hall on Oneida Street. Approval has been given to construct three hard surface tennis courts just off Scott Street and work is under way on extension of the football field and track.

GO, FROSH, GO! After-dinner entertainment is provided for upperclassmen by freshmen, who discover hidden talent as they go along. (or else!) Here Sue Budd and Nick Pascale render some cool sounds at a Totem Inn jam session. Note the socks, name card, dink and ever-ready Scout — frosh regulations until Homecoming!

Editorially Speaking . . .

A Note To Freshmen

YOU, as incoming freshmen, will find you have many things in common with one another, first of all the identical question running through your minds, "Have I made the right choice in coming to Juniata College? Will it give me the things I desire?" We upperclassmen would not hesitate in answering yes. We speak from our own rich experience with Juniata's broad plan of liberal education, with its active and growing student government, with its democratic system of discipline, with its bigness which offers a wide range of activities and its smallness which permits familiarity with the college in all its aspects. We believe these things and many more will aid in making your four years a happy and profitable experience.

Yet as upperclassmen we do not deny the existence of shortcomings at Juniata. Classrooms are sometimes crowded, the administrative and student viewpoint do not always agree, weekend activities aren't varied enough for some, perhaps chapel programs at times lack universal interest. Very often we are overly harsh in our criticisms of these shortcomings and fail to make them constructive.

This is where you as freshmen become a great asset to Juniata, for with your enthusiasm and new ideas you will see campus life in a new light, perhaps with an eye toward change and improvement. Upperclassmen often become content to "let sleeping dogs lie" and, although voicing criticism, become satisfied with the status quo. Therefore, we look forward to your arrival and depend upon you as freshmen to each year renew our mutual desire to make Juniata a better place to live and learn.

Therefore, in addition to assuring you that Juniata has what you need, we say that you have what Juniata needs — enthusiasm, spirit and a fresh approach to old problems. If you believe this, your question, "What can Juniata do for me?" will be forgotten in your search for what you can do for Juniata. With this philosophy, 1962 will come far too soon.

Education at Juniata

Cardinal Newman once remarked, "A liberal education is one which gives a man a clear conscious view of his own opinions and judgment, a truth in developing them, an eloquence in expressing them and a force in urging them."

Juniata's educational program, in effect since 1938, is considered one of the most valuable developments in higher education. The general plan provides that every student shall gain a large fund of information as well as a clear understanding of the place his studies hold in the broad field of learning.

A similar program was begun at Harvard in 1940, where all entering students are required to take at least one course in general education. Freshmen are required to take elementary courses in the three fields of learning—the humanities, the social sciences and the natural sciences.

Similarly, the greater part of the first year's work at JC is devoted to introductory courses in the three divisions of study. Three well-planned courses in the first term, one in each division, serve to intergrate for the student the work of the various departments in which he will later study.

"By this means," states the catalog, "he also gains a sympathetic understanding of studies which he himself may not wish to pursue, but which may be of primary interest to his fellow students in the college."

"By the time they get here they don't know WHAT they're enrolling in!"

Old Jokes From College Hill

ON CAMPUS

Confident that incoming freshmen have a welcome spot in their sophisticated hearts for campus humor, we thought we'd review a few of the more laugh-provoking (but printable) occurrences from the last semester at JC.

You'll probably hear about the guy who didn't feel like answering the last two questions on one of his finals, wrote "time" on the last page of his blue book and walked out 20 minutes early only to encounter his prof, who was on his way into the room to see how things were going.

Perfect Squelch Department

Over a vacation a Juniatian telephoned a girl he knew to arrange a date for one of his friends.

"Oh, I'll be busy, she alibied. "I'm afraid I can't make it."

"Well, if that's the way you feel about it," he taunted.

"Oh, I know your type," she replied, "As soon as you hang up you'll just call up the next girl on your list."

"How do you know you aren't the last one on my list?" he sneered.

* * * * *

From a prof who found one of his classes to include over 60 students: "You mob you."

* * * * *

A student teacher reported this masterful bit of poetry from one of her third graders:

The autumn days are here.
You always expect them this time of year.

And a prof, when asked by his class to decipher a word he had just scribbled on the blackboard, defended himself thusly: "That's quite legible. Note the lovely J, the clear U, the bold M..."

* * * * *

"I can't afford to come back next semester — my mother lost her paper route."

* * * * *

In a discussion on the lack of "effect" in Totem Inn (student center) lighting, one coed remarked, "Do you remember when the lights were low at Christmas time? Everyone was so much friendlier."

* * * * *

Answer to the question "How can campus dating be increased?" — "The college should subsidize dating."

* * * * *

Well, anyway, that's enough for an opener. Watch for more campus capers in forthcoming Juniatians. And good luck as you embark in four years of hiliarity on College Hill . . .

COLLEGE HILL PANORAMA—Here are several random views of campus life. A. It is well-known that the most fun often comes from the most spontaneous activities. Here's one of the milder scenes from last year's frosh-soph hassle. Juniors and seniors were highly amused spectators. B. Juniata coeds fashion accepted attire for Mountain Day —a favorite fall event. C. Oller Hall, home of college and community programs. D. Speaking of activities, what can surpass the pastime of eating? Here waitresses pause to have their coffee pitchers filled from one of the giant-sized ones used at Juniata. E. All Juniatians love elections —they go all out for campaigns and radio and newspaper coverage. Here Senate officers, before a crowded room of interested voters, tally the results of the day's election for new senators. F. The spring carnival highlights early spring activities on College Hill. Here JCers try their skill at tossing darts at balloons.

SPORTS SHORTS

Memorial Gym, the college phys ed building, was erected in 1951 as a monument to the 675 Juniata men and women who served in World War II. It has a seating capacity of 1,400, but temporary bleachers, added during tournaments and other special attractions, increase its capacity to over 3,000.

* * * *

Juniata's .818 record in baseball last spring was only the sixth in 55 years over the .800 mark. The team has won 20 of its 25 games in 1957 and 1958 since Ken Bunn took over as coach.

* * * *

The cross-country team last fall placed seventh in the Middle Atlantics.

* * * *

Jack Heading, star basketball player, landed a second team berth on the All-Northern team in the Middle Atlantics conference last spring.

* * * *

Charles Bargerstock, JC's director of development, won the Hyatt Trophy as "most outstanding athlete" for the Indians in 1947.

* * * *

Jay Gettig, a junior this year, placed fourth in the Middle Atlantics Golf Championship with scores of 79 and 81. The team placed 14th.

* * * *

Last season was the first time the Tribe met Albright on the gridiron and won. They have played the Lions seven times since 1920. The score of last year's game was 40-13.

* * * *

Last fall's football games with Moravian and Lycoming were cancelled because of flu epidemics. Both teams are on this season's schedule.

* * * *

The football game with Kutztown State Teachers College was added to the schedule after the opening of the season last September. Juniata won, 46-0, thus doing some damage to the myth that state teachers colleges usually are much more powerful than the independents.

* * * *

Women's sports at College Hill, hockey, basketball, volleyball and tennis, are coordinated by the Women's Athletic Association and Miss Barbara Cochran, phys ed instructor.

* * * *

Juniata offers a wide variety of intramural sports as well as varsity. Among them are football, basketball, softball, volleyball, horseshoes, track, tennis, golf, ping pong, wrestling and bowling.

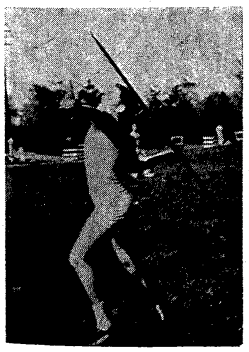
Willard Mullin, cartoonist for the New York World-Telegram and Sun, whose material is syndicaetd across the country, twice last fall depicted Juniata in his cartoons, noting nationally the success of the grid team.



SETS RECORD—Dick Johnson, junior track man, last spring set a new record at Juniata for javelin, 187 feet, 5½ inches. He ranked fourth in season scoring, earning 33 points.

● Mike Snider ●
Director of Athletics

Top Athlete Too

Snider Head Of Phys Ed Department

A college man doesn't spend much time on campus before he becomes acquainted with Mike Snider, director of athletics at Juniata.

Hundreds of JC athletes—whether Little All-American nominees or just guys who like to putter around on the basketball floor—have come to admire him, for not only has he accumulated a number of laurels himself in the sports world, but his first concern has been the development of strong bodies and clean sportsmanship amoung the young people with whom he works.

Mike was a 4-letter man in football, basketball, track and tennis when he was a student here in the 20s. He established a college record in the two-mile run at 10:29 which held until 1938.

Currently an associate professor of phys ed and coach of track and cross country, Mike returned to Juniata in 1930 to become assistant football and basketball coard and head track coach. He was named director of physical education in 1941.

Work In Navy

In 1942 he took over the top coaching job of football and basketball. Mike went into the Navy in 1943 where he served as an instructor in the physical training program for aviation cadets and as athletic director at naval bases in the Pacific-Philippine area.

Returning to JC late in 1945, he resumed the head coaching post. Since then he has resigned from all sports but track, but took the job as mentor of the cross-country squad when the sport took on varsity status two years ago.

Freshmen no doubt will refer to Mike as Professor Snider for a while, but sooner or later everyone starts calling him "Mike." It is not testimony to any disrespect for JC's number one man in athletics, but rather shows that those who know Mike feel a closeness that surpasses formality.

His contribution to Juniata can be seen in his own records, in the young men with whom he has worked and in JC's rise to a place of prominence in small college athletics.

Top Athletes Get Loving Cup Award

The top graduating athletic each year receives the Stanford Mickle Athletic Award.

Estab ished in 1949, it recognizes "that man in the graduating class who . . . loves athletics, participated and manifested a wholesome interest in sports and contributed to the promotion of athletics at Juniata . . ."

A loving cup is presented annually by the J Club, and the name of the recipient is engraced on a plaque presented to the College by Mickle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Mickle, New Paris.

Bernie McQuown, Punxsutawney, captain of the football team, won the honor this year.

Season Record Of 33-31 Not Whole Story

The Indians' 33 win, 31 loss record for the 1957-58 season is certainly not the whole story of the sports situation on College Hill.

While all the spring sports but baseball had records that proved a blow to the overall tally, football and cross-country showed unblemished cards. Basketball again hit the .500 mark.

Briefly, football showed seven wins, no losses; cross-country, four wins, no losses; basketball, 10-10; tennis, 2-6; track, 1-4; golf, 0-9, and baseball, 9-2.

In cross-country Don Layman, then a freshman, led in scoring by placing first in all four meets.

Heading Leads Cagers

Jack Heading led scoring in '57-'58 basketball with 338 points. A member of the class of '61, he also held last season's record for most points accumulated in a single game, 29, February 20 against Susquehanna. Heading also led in percentage of attempts scored, with .451.

Other high scorers were Gordie Ewers, Mike Armstrong, Curt Gardner, Bob Ewald and Al Dungan.

Leading the tennis squad were seniors Pete Wright, 8-6, and Chuck Seeley, 6-10. Track scorers were Layman, 53; Heading, 52½; George Cline, 37, and Dick Johnson, 33. Jay Gettig was top man on the links with a 5-3-1 record.

Don Ross, then a sophomore third baseman, led the baseball team in batting with .543. Pitching honors went to Ron Reynolds, class of '61, a righthander who won seven, lost one and had a 2.75 earned run average.

Football information is contained in the sports section's lead story.

Cross-Country Team To Face 7 Contests

The hill and dalers' 1958 season will include seven contests, an increase of three meets over last year's slate.

Home races will be against Dichinson, September 27; Moravian, October 11; F and M, October 17; Elizabethtown, October 30, and Albright, November 15.

Away contests include Muhlenberg, October 3, and Gettysburg, November 7. The Middle Atlantics championship is November 21.

To Get Ready For 8 Games; Open Sept. 27

The football squad will be back on campus Tuesday, September 2, for opening pre-season practice.

Two-a-day sessions will begin Tuesday morning in preparation for the tough 8-game schedule opening with Scranton September 27 at College Field.

Two new teams appear on this year's card, Scranton and Alfred, the first two games of the season. The third game, Moravian, will be Juniata's Homecoming contest.

Last year the Indians won all seven of their games, and the situation appears that the Tribe should come close to matching the record since most of its talent last season came from the underclassmen. There were six seniors on the squad.

Sparking the team will be the B-Boys, Bill and Jim Berrier, junior twins, who last year scored 114 of 253 points. Juniata's opponents last year garnered a mere 27 points.

Bunn Head Coach

Head coach Kenneth Bunn, Jr. came here in 1956 and in two years has seen only one loss, to Lycoming. A 1951 Penn State grad, he was all-state center in 1950 and rated by Coach Rip Engle as "one of the most valuable men we had on the squad."

Before coming to Juniata Bunn was head coach at West Shore High School in Lemoyne during 1954 and 55. His teams won 11, and lost 7 and tied 1.

Charles Godlasky, a teammate of Bunn at State, is assistant coach. In 1955 he assisted in coaching the PSU freshman squad. He came to Juniata in 1956. Godlasky also is an instructor in sociology.

College Initiates Varsity Wrestling

Varsity wrestling has been added to JC's intercollegiate competition.

Three meets have been scheduled on a one-year trial basis with Lebanon Valley, home, December 4; Elizabethtown, away, December 13, and Lycoming, home, February 7.

Intramural wrestling has been included in the college program for the past two or three years as a preliminary measure to making the sport an intercollegiate one.

Wrestling on a varsity basis has come to Juniata following pressure by the student Senate and formal requests from the committee on athletics.

Miller, Heck, Burkett Edit 1962 Freshman Handbook

Don Miller, senior sociology major from Huntingdon, is editor of the '62 Scout, the freshman's guide to better living at Juniata.

Miller was advertising manager of the JUNIATIAN and a staff member of the 1961 Scout. He played the leading role in last fall's college musical, This Way Heaven, and was assistant director of the Masque's spring presentation, Ten Little Indians.

His assistants include Jim Heck junior business major from Royersford, who serves as business manager and Kim Burkett, junior business major from Huntingdon, who was chosen advertising manager. Others on the staff include Johanna Barbarulo, Dutch Boland, Chuck Brown, Janice Christie, Sally Grove, Tex Holman, Jerry Kagarise, Gini Nixlorf, Marsha Sweet, Mike Trigg, Ron Vinson and Barb Walls.

QUEEN FINALIST—Junior home economics major Edith Campbell, known at JC as "Edie," was a finalist in Pennsylvania's Queen of the Furrow contest. Miss Campbell is a contestant from Center County.

Class Of '48 To Establish Scholarship

Juniata's class of 1498 has voted to establish the Margaret McCrimmon Class of 1948 Scholarship by pledging its contributions through the Alumni Fund to establish the principal.

This scholarship has been established "to honor the great contribution of Miss McCrimmon to Juniata College . . . and more specifically to those thousands of students who learned to know her and respect her influence to give of their best, whether it be in the classroom or in other activities."

In notifying Miss McCrimmon of the action, Jack Buckle, fund agent for the class and now dean of students at Lycoming College, stated that the scholarship was established "as a small measure of our deep appreciation and gratitude for the example you set us as students." Miss McCrimmon, now professor emerita of modern languages, is living at Port Hope, Ontario, Canada.

Mr. Buckle explained than any student with a B average is eligible for the scholarship as they are not restricted to majors in any one department. Recipients will be known as the McCrimmon Scholars.

department of modern languages. Miss Procious, who will teach French and Spanish, is a graduate of Muskingum College, Ohio, holds an MA from Wisconsin U. and is now in France leading a group for an experiment in international living.

Instructor in German

Zbinden will instruct German during the one year leave of absence of George Dolnikowski, who holds a Danforth study grant. He is a graduate of Wittenberg College, Ohio and holds an MA in German literature from Pennsylvania U.

Donald Durnbaugh, a doctoral candidate in the department of history at Pennsylvania U., has been named instructor in history. He is a graduate of Manchester College, Indiana, holds an MA from Michigan U. and served as director of the Brethren Service Commission in Austria from 1953 to 1956.

Ronald Cherry will become the third full-time member of JC's expanding department of economics and business administration. Cherry was graduated from Juniata with a BS degree conferred summa cum laude, holds an MA from Princeton U. and is a candidate for a Ph.D. in economics at Princeton.

Dr. Richard Bromer, who will instruct classes in psychology, is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College and earned his MA in sociology at Virginia U. For the past 10 years he has been staff psychologist and assistant to the director of marketing and social research for the Psychological Corporation, New York City.

The appointment of an associate professor of mathematics and an instructor in English completed the faculty.

Miss Ellie Mae Sowder, Chattanooga, Tenn. head of the department of mathematics at Flora Macdonald College, Red Springs, N. C., for five years, took the post in the math department. During the past year she was a visiting professor at St. Frances Xavier University, Nova Scotia. In addition, she has taught at Duke University, University of Tennessee and University of the South.

David H. Weston, Jr., Staunton, Va., was named instructor in English and director of dramatics. He is a graduate of the College of William and Mary who has been a professional actor playing the lead role of Thomas Jefferson in The Common Glory at Williamsburg, Va.

SENIOR MAY COURT—These four lovely coeds were the senior girls chosen to participate in Juniata's annual May Day fetival. Jacque Rowland (front), elementary education major from Hanover, reigned as Queen of the May. Her attendants were (left to right) Barb Orner, Huntingdon; maid of honor Ruth Perestam, Morrisville and Carolyn Long, Hagerstown, Md.

The Presses Roar At Juniata

AND if your blood includes enough printers' ink to excite you at the thought of seeing something you wrote in print, the Junitian staff certainly can use you — whether you were the newspaper "wheel" in your high school or if you —just have a yen to write.

Senate Considers '58 Fall Musical, Cafeteria Supper

A committee composed of Dutch Boland, Dianne Klebe, and Prof Currier reported to the first Senate meeting held last Wednesday evening, that specific plans for the All College Musical had been arranged and that it would be held November 14 and 15 (Parents Day).

The production entitled The Boy Friend, an English musical comedy written by Sandy Wilson was chosen by this committee during the summer recess. The first payment for scripts has been sent to Music Theatre Inc. and tryouts will be held sometime next week.

Leadership Conference Resolutions

The list of Leadership Conference Resolutions was accepted by the Senate without debate except in four areas. Two of these, one concerning the President's Bible Class and one concerning the spring supplement to the Alfarata, were held in abeyance until Senate committees can be set up to investigate these fields more completely.

The other two, concerning election procedure and athletic letters, were passed as proposed after considerable debate.

Cafeteria Style Suppers

A short report concerning cafeteria suppers on Saturday and Sunday evenings was submitted to the Senate by Dick Johnson and Carl Wass. Mr. Moore, the dietician acting in the absence of Miss Mathias is in favor of this type of meal but before any de-

The Faculty Reception Saturday night from 8:15 to 11:30 p.m. in Memorial Gym will emphasize the big-little brother and sister program.

Prof. Johnson has been at JC 14 years where he is head of the music department, college organist and director of the touring choir. He is a graduate of New York University and has studied at Bush Conservatory, Chicago, Christiansen Choral School, Chambersburg, the Julliard School of Music and Union Theological Seminary School of Sacred Music, both in New York City.

This is Prof. Currier's second year at JC where he is conductor of the college-community symphony orchestra and the college band. He holds a bachelor's degree from New York University, and a master's degree from Boston University and has studied violin at the Julliard School of Music.

Prof. Johnson will play Fanfare in C major by Henry Purcell, Variations on the Song of the Caballero by Antonio de Cabezen and the St. Anne Fugue by Johann Sebastian Bach. Prof. Currier will accompany him on the violin in Arcangelo Corelli's Sonata in D major and Carille Saint-Saens' Introduction and Rondo Capriccio.

JWSF To Launch Drive October 13

Solicitors for the Juniata World Service Fund drive will campaign October 13 to 18, striving this year for a goal of $1953.

The organization is aimed toward building better international relationships. Money collected during the drive will be divided among such organizations as the Japanese International Christian University,World University Service, Foreign Students' Fund, and Brethren Missions.

Officers of JWSF are: chairman, Bonnie Gunther; chairman of solicitations, Larry Landes; secretary-treasurer, Norma Jedinek and social program, Carolyn Wiant. Dr. Crosby is the faculty advisor.

Plans Get Underway On Coming 'Boyfriend'

Juniata players will present The Boy Friend, a musical comedy by Sandy Wilson November 14 and 15 as the annual fall musical.

Miss Diane Klebe was named by the Senate as student director of this year's production. Robert Currier will work with the musical parts while David Weston, a new member of the faculty, will coach the cast in acting.

The setting for the musical is a boarding school for girls located in the French Riviera. While it is a modern play in that it was written recently, the action takes place in the 1920's. Unlike many musicals which have one or two leading parts, Boyfriend has an ensemble of parts,with the plot revolving slightly around one girl.

The exact time of tryouts has not yet been determined but will be announced at a later date. Profits from the presentation will go to the Juniata World Service Fund.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Juniata Does Change

JUNIATA upperclassmen returned to a much improved college campus this September. As if in answer to the perennial complaint that "Juniata never changes", an unusual number of improvements were made over the summer months.

Foremost on everyone's mind is the food. Under Mr. Moore's guidance Juniata students have experienced a new sensation in eating enjoyment. The food seems to be of better quality and more plentiful. Needless to say, JC students appreciate having the former holiday dishes of pie, fried chicken and griddle cakes. Yet Moore is also economizing in such areas as breakfast milk and butter which previously had been wasted in large amounts. Although the dreaded mystery cakes are still expected to make their appearance, we of the JUNIATIAN in representing the student body would like to express our thanks to Mr. Moore and hope that he becomes a permanent addition to the college staff..

Other changes observant upperclassmen will notice are the revised chapel program, the new admissions office, tennis courts going up in Sherwood, new paint on outside steps and in the girls' dorm,a parking lot behind Cloisters and the road in front of East Hall paved. No doubt, minor improvements have been made in many less noticeable areas.

Leadership Conference delegates have seen to it that improvements will not die out at this point, however, for many new ideas in the form of resolutions resulted from the '58 conference (see page 4). It will be up to the studnts to give their full support to these resoultions if they wish to see them eventually realized. A student chapel, higher quality entertainment, a campus service club and a winter weekend present attractive goals for us to work toward.

Realizing how Juniata has grown in previous years as well as during the past summer should encourage the present student generation to work confidently toward projects which they believe will improve college living in all its aspects.

A Note To Upperclassmen

AT the risk of acquiring the enmity of the whole freshman class, we would like to urge upperclassmen to support whole heartedly your newly elected chairman of underclassmen. Because of the late election this year, he'll need your full cooperation in making the freshman initiation a success.

Take full advantage of freshman court in enforcing the frosh regulations but don't make a farce out of it. Also, Kangaroo measures shouldn't be necessary if we have a really effective court.

Everyone but the freshmen realizes the importance of the few remaining weeks until Homecoming in giving solidarity and spirit to the classes of '62. Keep alert for violations and give the frosh a memorable three weeks.

L. C. Echoes

ONE of the livliest arguments at Leadership Conference this fall concerned the question of big-name entertainment at JC. Many sides to the issue were discussed but no definite decisions made, since no one knew exactly the desires of the majority of the students. This is absolutely necessary because ultimately they will pay for any famous entertainers that appear at JC. Whether the students are willing to pay and if so, how, is the question.

Since the Administration is opposed to students paying at the door at any college function, the suggestion was made that the activities fee paid at the beginning of the year be raised to provide for better entertainment. A few delegates were opposed since this method would tax everyone whether they attended the affair or not.

Other questions raised were whether the desired big-name entertainment would be a concert or dance music and whether the event would be open to townspeople. Still other delegates suggested we concentrate less on acquiring one famous entertainer and more on raising the general coliber of all the dance music.

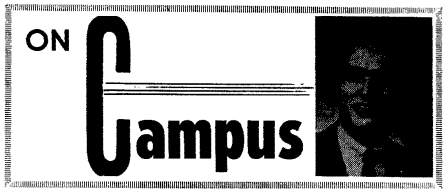
The Senate is planning to work on the project this year, but to do this it must be aware of student feeling. Talk up the subject and make the Senators aware of how you feel.

ED. NOTE: Student comment and opinion on campus affairs are always welcomed by the JUNIATIAN. Letters should be submitted to the editor no later than Wednesday noon and must be signed.

Movie Of The Week

Rock-A-bye Baby

Jerry Lewis registers laughs a-plenty in his new movie ROCK-A-BYE BABY playing Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 2, 3, 4 at the Harris Clifton Theatre.



by Don Miller

With the start of the new fall term, classes and other incidentals, attention naturally focuses on the freshmen—more particularly the female half. Juniata men can be seen almost anywhere holding up a jukebox or anchoring a piece of sidewalk while they size up and file away for future reference each little gal that trots by. This is an old, old Juniata "tradition", and besides its more fun than a Brigitte Bardot movie! So girls don't be shy, don't be nervous, don't be scared — be prepared!

* * * * * *

How's that again?

Up at the President's Tea last week, over punch and cookies, one freshman co-ed turned to the attractive member of the same sex beside her and politely inquired, "Are you a freshman too?

"No, I'm not," beamed Mrs. Ken Wenger.

And overheard in Tote: "Say, who do you have for nature of society?"

"Me? Professor Smith."

"Oh, is that the blond boy with glasses?"

Then there was the co-ed who bragged to her "big sister" about being such a smooth operator. Seems she used the fire escape to get to her room and didn't get caught. Tell me, honey, how was Freshman Court?

* * * * * *

In almost every bull session it's sure to come up — the subject of dining hall food. Only things have picked up this year. One girl remarked, "And they actually served appetizers with our fish last night!"

I'm told that after one of the guys examined every inch of his plate, he pointed to the meat on it and sneered, "Awright, let's not play games. Who took the grease?"

Hats off to Mr. Moore and the good job he's doing.

* * * * * *

It was five minutes after the hour and the professor was captivating his audience with theories of such and such, when the door creaked open and a head appeared.

"Oh, excuse me! I guess I'm in the wrong class." stammered the freshman.

"That's all right, blubberhead!" was the prof's sympathetic reply.

* * * * * *

When, during a recent class session, a certain prof was being "unusually" incoherent, one collegian leaned to another and drawled, "Maybe, if we're lucky, this class will be taught in English yet!"

That's it for this week. See you at the Grand March.

Controversy Over Quemoy

THE QUEMOY PERIMETER—Under a consant barrage of Red artillery which formed a deadly curtain of fire, Nationalist supply ships managed to run the artillery blockade of the Quemoys again this week. Unfortunately, this has not been enough to supply the 90,000 troops, plus the 40,000 civilians living on these tiny offshore islands. Outside this perimeter the naval forces of the United States' 7th Fleet patrol the waters of the Formosan Straits, while in the air American fighter planes obtain by radar the activities of the Red forces on the China mainland.

At the present the United States has restrained Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek from taking any type of offensive against the Red mainland. While we are deeply committed to the defense of Nationalist China, the United States does not wish to provoke any overt clash with China, if possible. The principle objective of the U. S. is to obtain an agreement with Red China for a "neutral corridor" between Red China and Nationalist Formosa.

In Warsaw at the Myslicweicki Palace, two principle figures Wang Ping-nan, the Chinese Communist ambassador to Poland, and Jacob Beam, the United States ambassador to Poland, held negotiations

— Herb Deuchar:

News Of The Week In Retrospect

to find a solution to the hostilities in the Quemoy area. This country also wants an agreement with Red China, renouncing the use of force against Formosa. What the U. S. would concede to Red China for this concession is still a diplomatic secret. If the talks in Warsaw breakdown, then Secretary of State Dulles is prepared to take this inflamatory crisis before the U. N. General Assembly. Dulles does not wish to appease the Chinese Reds by surrendering any of the Nationalist territory. But he has left a loophole open for the possible demilitarization of the off-shore islands.

In the United States, public opinion has been wavering over the President's firm stand on the Formosan crisis. The mutterings of the critics are "to abandon Quemoy and defend Formosa." Yet Premier Khrushchev has bluntly stated that the prime objective of Red China is to conquer Formosa.

A line has been drawn both militarily and in principle by President Eisenhower to show both the Reds, and what is left of the Asiatic free world, just where this country stands in the common defense of freedom. To backdown and retreat from such a firm stand (as history has proven) all other positions would easily decay. If we do not make a United stand for freedom now, where will we make that stand? Formosa, or some area closer to the United States when it may be too late!

Chalk It Up!

by Walley Berkey

The only two undefeated JC units of 1957 will kick-off their respective schedules tomorrow at home when the Bunnmen host Scranton and the cross-country team entertains Dickinson.

Looking over the gridiron situation, one must say the Indians should be in for another enjoyable season. With only four lettermen lost via graduation, the squad is bolstered with 19 letterwinners, 14 non-letter holdovers and 20 freshmen.

Coach Ken Bunn credited the Indians 1957 success to "all-out-team effort," particularly in the defensive play. Opponents were held to a total scoring of 27 points for a new low mark for Juniata in its 35 seasons of intercollegiate footoball.

The Tribe in setting a new total defense mark of 129.3 yards per game — 65.6 yards rushing and 53.7 passing — ranked second in the ECAC and seventh in small college total defense across the nation.

Fullback Bill Berrier's 72 points led the offensive scoring department for the Indians. This total was good enough to tie him for the state scoring lead.

* * * *

Scranton, playing out of their class while losing 48-0 last week to Boston College, who is a darkhorse for the huge Lambert Trophy, will provide stiffer opposition for the Indians.

The Royals, from a campus of approximately 1200 men, have experienced men at every position with 16 of 22 lettermen returning, eight of them regulars.

* * * *

This year's new conversion rule is the first change in point scoring since 1912.

Under this a conversion is scored two points for rushing or passing from the three or a single point for an accurate kick from the two.

The rules committee also loosened the substitution restrictions in that a player may reenter the game once in each period.

* * * *

The cross-country team may face its toughest 1958 opponent.

Dickinson also went undefeated last season conquering Albright 21-40, Franklin and Marshall 21-37 and Elizabethtown 28-31.

Intra-mural touch football is slated to swing into action early nert week.

Today is the deadline for rosters, which should be turned into Chairman of Athletics, Jim Heck.

CO-CAPTAINS—Seniors Ken Opipery and Joe Sopata, both two-year lettermen at end and halfback respectively, have been elected co-captains of the 1958 Indians.

Opipery, Sopata Head Squad; Experienced Team Big Factor

Ken Opipery and Joe Sopata, a pair of senior lettermen who have helped spark the Indians to 12 straight victories, have been elected co-captains of the 1958 Indian eleven.

Opipery, a 6-0, 190-pound end from Stowe High, McKees Rocks is considered by Coach Ken Bunn as "one of the finest ends in eastern small college football." He's a constant threat as a pass receiver and tough on defense.

Sopata is a 5-8, 180-pound tailback from South High, Pittsburgh. He's a quick, shifty runner who gained 276 yards and scored 24 points last season as a regular in the "first-platoon" backfield.

Returning "first-platoon" lettermen include linemen Harold Krause, Al Dungan and Opipery while the Berrier twins, Bill and Jim, Bob Schwalenberg and Sopata started in the backfield.

Other lettermen include ends Gerry Zack and Jim Seacrist with only Horace Carl not returning because of a leg injury, tackles Jim Middlekauff and Bob Solomon, guards Bob Devlin, Bob Melago, Emery DiDonato and "Fats" Falcione and center Frank Rocco.

Quarterback Dave Goodling, fullback Dick Ott and halfback Stan Walasik lettered in the backfield.

All-state fullback of 1955 and two-year lettermanBob Sill, returning after a two year layoff, completes the experienced roster.

Indians Enter MAC; Scranton First Foe

Juniata, the top small college eastern independent in 1957 with a perfect 7-0 slate, will enter the newly-formed Middle Atlantic Conference this year.

The purpose of this football league is to provide MAC schools with more to shoot for than just a winning record.

The college group in the MAC is divided into a Northern and Southern division. Each member must play at least five games with a minimum of two in one's own division to be eiigible for the 1958 championship.

Along with Juniata in the Northern division are Albright, Dickinson, Hofstra, Lebanon Valley, Lycoming, Moravian, Scranton, Susquehanna, Wagner and Wilkes. The Southern contenders include Drexel, Franklin and Marshall, Haverford, Johns Hopkins, Penn Military College, Swarthmore, Ursinus, West Chester and Western Maryland.

There will be no play-off between the Northern and Southern divisions but rather two champions.

The Indians oppose Scranton. who does not qualify for the 1958 championship, Moravian, Llcoming, Wilkes, Drexel and Albright this year.

Footballers Kick-off Season; Host Scranton Tomorrow

Coach Ken Bunn's gridders kick off the 1958 football season tomorrow against the powerful Royals of Scranton University at College Field.

Despite losing the season's opener against power-laden Boston College, the up-state school boasts a combination of speed, power, and experience that gained it the pre-season nod to win the newly organized Northern Division of the Middle Atlantic Conference.

16 Lettermen

Coach Peter Carlesimo's squad is bolstered by a hard core of 16 veteran lettermen. All state center Leo Broadhurst provides power in the pivot position, while PAT specialist Gus Graziano and senior Joe Scaccia hold down the guard suots.

The Royals also boast experience at tackle with seniors John Devitt and Frank Dwornikosk, Scranton's punting ace. Freshman sensation Bill Francis and junior John Herrling round out the Royal line at ends. Both boys played stellar ball in the season opener at Boston.

Tomorrow's contest will be the first meeting of the two schools.

X-Country Team Meets Dickinson

Juniata's cross-country team will open its third season against the Dickinson Red Devils here Saturday afternoon.

The Indian harriers, again coached by Mike Snider, will be attempting to extend their undefeated string to five. Last year the JC thinclads chalked up a 4-0 record, after having their schedule cut short by the flu.

This year's strength lies with the six returning lettermen headed by last season's unbeaten Don Layman. Other returning letter winners are Herb Deuchar, Bill Lafe, Frank Hrach, Jim Pettit and Chal Dilling. Also back from last year's team are Al King and Galen Heckmen. Additions to the team this season are freshmen Ned Smith, Charles Mack, Eric Belusar and Dale Whitsel.

Four Cheerleaders To Join '58-59 Squad

Seven cheerleaders for the 1958-59 season were chosen from a field of 21 who tried out last Tuesday afternoon in front of Memorial Gymnasium.

Judges, Miss Barbara Cochran, Mike Snider and Dean Heberling, elimnated six girls after the first tryout and made their final choices on the third tryout. Returning cheerleaders are Jill Muir junior captain, Mary Taylor, Judy Knepp and Jean Davies, sophomores.

New members of the squad are Kathy Alevander, sophomore, Nancy Lindsey, Pauline Nagao and Judy Frye, freshmen.

Johnson was delegated to get this approval, if possible, so that plans for the installment of this fountain could get underway.

Traffic Regulations

Because of the new parking lot east of Cloisters hall and the one-way parking on 18th Street, new parking regulations will have to be set up. It was reported that Dean Heberling and Wass would evaluate the parking situation on campus and report back to the Senate.

According to Senate president Chuck Brown, a Senate Smoke Signal will appear in the near future.

College Adds New Conference Room

Among the improvements added to JC this summer is the new conference room in the room formerly occupied by the admission office.

The room will be known as the Founders conference room and will be under the supervision of Dean of the College Morley Mays. Dean Mays added that the room has been prepared for conference purposes for committees of the administration and faculty.

Student committees or other small groups may use the room for meetings. Arrangements for the use of the room are handled through Miss Marjory Johnston in the Dean's office.

Administration, Moore, Senate Institute Cafeteria-Style Meals

Carl Wass and Dick Johnson reported at the regular Senate meeting last Wednesday night that negotiations had been successfully completed with the Administration and Paul Moore concerning cafeteria-style suppers.

This innovation will begin Saturday, October 18 with the evening meal and will continue as regular college policy for weekend evening meals as long as the students do not abuse this privilege. Moore, according to the committee, stated that the meals will be served from 5:15-6 p.m.

He also reminded the committee that the cafeteria doors will close promptly at 6 p.m. Because of this factor the Senate urges the student body not to wait until the last possible minute before going to meals. In addition, the Senate suggests that table heads be more accurate in making out the weekend table slips.

Gym Initiation

Sophomore class president Larry Johnson, presented the sophomore plan for a gym initiation to the Senate. After considerable deliberations, the Senate accepted the plan subject only to review by the deans and the

Juniatians Plan Day In Woods

In Spite Of Reversal 'Boyfriend' Continues

Despite a fleeting reversal in plans earlier this week, JC students will present the originally-planned Parents Day production of The Boyfriend.

According to Dianne Klebe, student coordinator - director of the musical, the plans were changed because it was thought there was too little time in which to put together a finished production. A suggested substitute included a series of one-act plays.

Miss Klebe added, "It was the rush of student enthusiasm which brought back the original plan to do the three-act musical. Let's hope this enthusiasm and determination continues during the next five short weeks until curtain time."

The musical by Sandy Wilson will be directed by David Weston, instructor in speech, who will take charge of the music and Mrs. Edwin Blaisdell will advise the choreography department.

The 15-part cast has been chosen and posted. The play's directors have provided a list on Founders bulletin board for JCers who wish to help with the technical end of production.

Judy Establishes Lectureship Here

Captain Will Judy, a 1911 graduate and friend of Juniata, has contributed $20,000 toward establishing a series of lectures intended to "supplement and enrich the academic program of the college."

Each year the Will Judy Lectureship will bring to the campus speakers of note who are leaders in government, education, the arts, natural science, business and other areas of interest to ehe college community. A faculty committee will make arrangements in consultation with the appropriate departments and student organizations.

In any year the lectures may be presented by a single lecturer or a series of lecturers. In either case the college will invite the lecturer to remain long enough to enter into the conversation generated by his formal remarks.

Harlacher Reports New WJC Set-Up

WJC listeners will recognize many improvements this evening when the college station goes on the air for the first time this year.

Station manager, Ken Harlacher, reports that this year's staff will be divided into three areas with a department director over each. Heading the engineering staff as technical director will be Bill Holsinger. Program director will be Ron Vinson and Bill Lafe will serve in the capacity of continuity director.

Yesterday marked the beginning of a series of announcers' seminars, aimed at coordinating the announcing and continuity staffs. Another improvement plan underway concerns the expansion of the record library to include 15 different companies.

Advertising Breaks

During the course of the evening programs there will be approximately 20 breaks for the purpose of advertising the station and various clubs and organizations on campus. WJC hopes to increase its reception area to include North Dorm within one month and East Hall by the end of two months.

There are approximately 50 people on the combined staffs of WJC this season. Those on the engineering staff are Jeff Funk, Dave Schneeberg, Doug Stauffer, Barney Swaney, Mike Pentz, Dick Frontz, Ray Trimer, Ray Pfrogner, Ron Garner and John Rummel.

Included on the announcing staff are Carl Wass, Judy Passmore, Jim Means, Bill Ebner, Terry Fouse, Rush Hodgin, "Moose" Newman, Stan Davis, Gwen Piggins, "Dutch" Boland, Carolyn Wiant, Peggy Chidster, Larry Landis, Judy Dinning, regulars, and Bill Stump, Bill McCreary, Stan Smith, Phoebe Cup-Johnson and Roger Gardy as substitutes.

The continuity staff is made up of Tony Estus, Phoebe Cuppett, Kay Haviland, Nancy Fitch and Kay Gillies.

College To Cut Day's Classes For 'Paradise'

Juniata's students and faculty will travel to Paradise Furnace Wednesday, October 8 for this fall's traditional Mountain Day.

Buses will leave here at 8 a.m. and return for the evening meal. The day's schedule includes hiking in the morning, a picnic at noon and recreation in the afternoon.

Mike Snider is this year's chairman of Mountain Day activities. The rest of the committee includes Prof. Berkebile, Paul Moore, institutional manager, Dutch Boland, chairman of general activities and Jim Heck, chairman of athletics.

Each year JC students plan an outing at one of the four scenic areas in Huntingdon County; the other three areas are Greenwood Furnace, Whipple's Dam and Spruce Creek. Paradise is a mountainous area about 21 miles southwest of Huntingdon.

Wednesday's Mountain Day will be the first for sophomores as well as freshmen since last year's picnic was called off because of the Asian flu epidemic. There will be no noon meal served on campus and everything will be closed during the day.

JC Senate To Set Up Travel Bulletin Board

Jim Heck, speaking for the JC Senate, announced a plan concerning a travelers' bulletin board to be posted on the middle section of the bulletin board outside Students Hall.

Places will be provided for those who want rides east or west and for those who can take passengers to post notices as to time and destination. The Senate requests that JCers use this more systematic method instead of the Totem Inn bulletin board.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Missing Murals

A misunderstanding occurred last weekend which we would like JC students to help rectify.

Sunday afternoon when the Faculty Reception decorating committee entered Memorial Gym to remove the large murals, all were gone except one. The conclusion was immediately drawn that students had taken them as souvenirs of the dance. Since these murals took much time and effort to paint, the faculty had made plans for their disposal — a few were promised to teachers for school use, the rest were going to be stored for future decorative purposes.

We realize that the disappearance of these murals was not student vandalism but merely a desire to keep an attractive souvenir from the dance. Therefore we would like to ask these students, after realizing their mistake, to return the murals to the decoration committee headed by Dr. Clemens.

A Letter From The Senate

Seniors—how would you like to receive your yearbook through mail during the summer months? Juniors, sophomores, freshmen—how would you feel about receiving your yearbook when you return in the fall as opposed to the traditional spring edition?

Concern over our present yearbook content was expressed at Leadership Conference this fall when it was brought to the attention of the delegates that a few of our spring activities are included in the Alfarata, and those that are included are from the spring of the preceding year. With this thought in mind a resolution was made to the effect that the feasibility of a spring supplement be investigated. Upon investigation it was found that a yearbook could be produced with 16 extra pages (which would include all current spring activities) for approximately the same price as last year's Alfarata.

Including current spring activities will, of course, make it necessary to hold the yearbooks until after they all are completed, the advantage being the inclusion of these current activities. You will have the opportunity to voice your opinion on the above when you go to the polls for the Homecoming election on Tuesday. Think now and act Tuesday in expressing your approval or disapproval towards the Alfarata's distribution in the summer and fall as opposed to the spring.

A Familiar Complaint

We have observed that milk has been served much less frequently than in years past. On many days if a student misses breakfast, he consequently goes without milk for the entire day, since milk is quite often served at neither lunch nor dinner.

It does not seem that having milk at least twice a day would be too much of an expense. We know that many students at Juniata share in this feeling. We are writing this letter in hopes that it might arouse a response in the student body that would eventually lead to the rectification of this situation.

Respectfully,
Bob Catando, Ed Moore, Charles Appleby, Mike Trigg, Ed Hoffman, J. F. Brown, John Nicholas

An Improved Plan

The new plan of freshman after-dinner sessions in Tote announced by Don Miller Tuesday night shows a big improvement over the former arrangement.

Previously, after five nights of the same thing, the novelty wore off for both freshmen and upperclassmen and the frosh were listlessly performing for a mere handful of people. Now with the plan of alternation in which two groups perform every other night, finishing up together on Monday, the problem will, we hope, be solved.

The shows this week have been entertaining and also, the freshmen must admit, relatively fair. We were glad to see no more peanut races, or the like, since this type of humiliation is often difficult to take lightly. However, the Monday night head shaving incident carried out by a self-appointed kangaroo court was certainly not admirable. The upperclassmen chose their victim at random, only to satisfy their own desire for some excitement. Again, we say that the Court is capable of taking care of all offenses without any aid from bored upperclassmen. After events such as happened Monday night with no provocation whatever from the freshmen, can you blame them for any subsequent uprisings or revolts?

In conclusion, we do believe that the Totem shows are basically a good idea and successfully fill the gap left by the absence of gym initiation. The frosh have been good sports thus far, and we congratulate them for taking all in good fun. It looks like the class of '62 is going to be a hard one to beat.

Movie Of The Week

Kings Go Forth

Frank Sinatra tells Natalie Wood that he is in love with her, but she can't return his love. The dramatic film, "Kings Go Forth," in which the two are starred with Tony Curtis, will open Sunday at the Harris Clifton Theatre for a three day engagement.

"DID ANY OF YOU HAPPEN TO FIND THAT BOTTLE OF ALCOHOL THAT WAS MISPLACED YESTERDAY?!"

ON Campus

by Don Miller

I hope you'll bear with me this week if my column "sweats" somewhat, but it's a little hard trying to write in a hanging position and the light isn't too good here in the arch! Anyway I want to thank the frosh for the new suit of clothes (the pants are a little short). I can tell the freshmen like me by the way they belt me in the . . . off . . . stomach as they pass by, causing me to swing back and forth. Yessir, I'm really hangin' in there!

* * * * * *

Now that things are pretty well under way here at Juniata, one notices how the number of couples is increasing 'round about campus. Just the other day, B.R. (before the rope) I heard this blaze of conversation coming from one of the dark corners of Tote:

He: Why don't you buy me a Volkswagon for Christmas?
She: Like ?? I'll get myself one first, Dad!
He: Okay, keep cool! I'll just take back the five carat rock I got you.
She: So? It would be vulgar to wear one that big anyway. Dream on teenage queen!

And from a recent after dinner dance comes the classic remark of a scorned woman:
"There's always one girl at every dance who makes the others wish they'd gone to the movies!"

* * * * * *

It's common knowledge that the members of freshman court are to remain anonymous (for security reasons—their's), but if you are really interested in knowing, they are the ones walking campus in a state of semi-shock—at least I imagine this condition still exists after Monday's court sessio. One little freshman girl marched into her ordeal like an R.O.T.C. officer, pealed off complete (and I mean complete) answers to every question fired at her like she was heading for the $64,000 one, and proceeded to turn the court into an uproar! She even knew who Mr. Zook was! Frosh take a bow.

* * * * * *

And from deep within the pages of Storybook Land, alias the Faculty Reception, comes the plea, "Why don't they open some doors in here? It's too hot."

"Can't replied his date, "somebody might get out!"

Seriously though, a word of thanks to the faculty and administration for a really top notch dance. And their version of My Fair Lady was more than fair, it was a big success. Orchids to the faculty "hams."

That's it for this week.

De Gaulle: A Landslide Victory

On Monday, in a near record vote, France and Algeria voted overwhelmingly in favor of Premier De Gaulle's plan for a new French constitution and the formation of a Fifth Republic. In France a four to one margin voted yes for De Gaulle's plan, while in Algeria the margin was even greater. The overseas colonies of France also gave approval to the proposed plan with the exception of one French African colony. They voted no, and thus for independence.

There was little organized resistance on election day with only the Communists staging demonstrations. In Algeria there were scattered outbreaks in an attempt to disrupt the voting, but no serious demonstrations occurred. Despite the threats of Algerian rebels, a large turnout of voters voted yes, and this due to the women voters balloting for the first time. The support of Algeria for De Gaulle's plan was not to his constitutional reforms, but rather as a personal tribute to De Gaulle, the leader of free France in World War II.

On October 5 the new constitution will be proclaimed, and according to it's articles presidential elections will be held later this fall. With the beginning of 1959 the Fifth Republic will formally begin, built on the remains of the old post-war republic.

During the interim between the proclamation and elections Premier De Gaulle had almost absolute power, ruling by decrees. It has been speculated that during this interim period De Gaulle will try to cope with the three general problems that now plague France. These are as follows: the crisis in Algeria, the Algerian terrorism in France and finally the heavily criticized voting laws now being used in France. In all three of these areas changes and compromises are foreseen.

The significance of De Gaulle's victory both to Europe and France is manyfold. First of all, the country of France is obtaining a new chance to rise in power and equality among the free nations of Europe. No longer will France necessarily be the faltering and faction-weak country of the post-war days. By De Gaulle's proposed revisions France soon may be able to stand in equal status among the family of free nations in the western world. On an internal basis, France has achieved what she has direly needed for many years, an end to the party faction strife which has crippled the French government and made her virtually impotent. Instead, France has within her grasp a strong central government fashioned more closely to the United States system of government with a strong executive leadership.

Finally, the people of France have dealt Communism a severe blow in attempting to maintain the splinter-party type of government in France, thus keeping her a weak nation. With this popular approval, the people of France have bestowed upon Premier De Gaulle the job of restoring France to her former status as a power in Europe and as an example of European democracy. To the French people De Gaulle is the only hope to lead them out of the current chaos.

News Of The Week In Retrospect

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

The opener for the Indians turned out to be quite successful as they pleasantly surprised the optimistic home fans with a 24-0 conquest of Scranton University.

Scranton, rated over Juniata in the Middle Atlantics in preseason selections, fielded a huge experienced team which just couldn't punch.

Several fumbles gave the Tommies possession deep in Indian territory but the Redskins stymied their drives with terrific defensive play.

Respect for the Bunnmen by the visiting Scranton reporter can be shown in the Sunday Scrantonian. "It's true, every war-painted word of it, what they say about the Indians, the Redskins of Juniata College, that is, and their fabulous, almost fictional five-year record, which shows but one loss and a win collection as long as Main St. The Indians proved it to the satisfaction of the University of Scranton's football forces."

Field general Bob Schwalenberg was selected " back of the game" on the basis of being the key man in the attack. Besides scoring on a 33-yard roll out, "Schwal" also pitched for a TD and netted 55 yards on six carries.

Top linemen honors went to tackle Al Dungan and Scranton's center Ken Broadhurst. Dungan played a terrific all-around game, threw the key block for the second TD and averaged 43.9 yards on seven punts—the longest being for 61 yards.

Dungan's eflorts on Saturday were rewarded by a first team birth on the All-ECAC squad of the week. Schwalenberg received honorable mention.

This will be the first time since 1947 that Juniata has played Alfred University, a 36-0 loser to Cortland St. in its opener.

The Saxons hold a decisive 4-1 edge in the series. The Indians only win came in 1928 by a 13-12 score.

Dickinson's Hoyt Matt, pacesetter in Saturday's cross-country meet, lowered the standard by 50 seconds. Sophomore Don Layman previously held the old mark with a 24:35 timing.

Matt was the only person to beat Layman in the mile run in track last season.

Indians Beat Scranton In MAC Opener

The Indians pleasantly surprised the home crowd with an opening day 24-0 victory over Scranton University last Saturday afternoon.

It was the lidlifter for the Tribe who extended their win skein to 13 straight plus 24 in rotation on the home premises.

The Bunnmen took advantage of fumbles and interceptions to score four TDs, two by fullback Bill Berrier and one each by Bob Schwalenberg and Bob Sill.

They scored first in the second quarter when co-captain Joe Sopata recovered a loose pigskin on the Tommies 16. Three plays later Berrier bolted over from the three but was nailed in his tracks trying to run for the conversion.

With seven minutes remaining in the game, the Tribe busted the game wide open when Scranton went into a passing attack. Three quick touchdowns — resulting from pass interceptions — sent Scranton home with their second straight loss.

Sill Scores Aerobatic TD

Sill started the TD parade with a one-handed catch of Schwalenberg's pass from the five to score. Berrier ran an intercepted pass 28 yards for paydirt and Schwalenberg tallied the finale on a 33-yard rollout.

Stellar lineplay was the key factor, as the powerful aggressive defense limited the Tommies to 70 yards rushng and 31 yards via air.

It was the first contest in the Scranton-JC series.

WAA To Sponsor Hockey Playday

A Juniata first will take place October 25 when the Women's Athletic Association will be the host to five area colleges for a girls field hockey play-day.

According to general chairman Barb Fritchey, the schools invited are Elizabethtown, Penn State, Lycoming, Bucknell and Indiana State Teachers College.

All six teams will participate in three games beginning at 2 p.m. Following the contests the visitors will be served a meal.

IM Hockey

Girls intramural hockey will begin next week. Anyone interested must sign up this week.

Indians Open Card Successfully; Coaches Praise Team, Players

Coach Ken Bunn's Indians started the 1958 campaign in the right direction last Saturday when they upended a tough Scranton outfit.

Coach Bunn, interviewed after the game, was high on his praise of the team's desire and will-to-win. "They blocked hard and worked hard, and just wouldn't settle for anything but a victory," he said, "We were sloppy the first half and couldn't get our defense going, but these kids earned everything they got—they all played a good game," he remarked.

Berrier, Dungan Praised

Pete Carlesimo, the Scranton mentor, was shaken by the loss, his second shutout in a row this season. "Juniata fought hard and ran hard all day. Our kids just couldn't overcome it," he reflected. The Royals' coach singled out full back Bill Berrier and tackle Al Dungan for individual praise. Berrier tallied twice for the Tribe and netted a total of 60 yards in 18 smashes through the line. Dungan, besides playing an outstanding defensive game, did some excellent punting, averaging 43.9 yards in seven boots.

After this more than successful start, the coaches and players are looking expectingly toward tomorrow's encounter with Alfred.

Harriers Defeat Dickinson, 23-33

Over-all depth was the deciding factor for Juniata's cross-country team last Saturday as the Indians downed Dickinson, 25-33, on the College Hill course.

The Red Devil's Howie Matt was the victor as he raced over the 4½ mile course in 23:43. He was followed across the finish line by JC's Herb Deuchar, who was timed in 23:45. Galen Heckman was Juniata's next harrier to finish as he was third. Dickinson's Jim Bartoli followed Heckman to the wire.

The Blue and Gold then clinched its first win of the season copping the next three places. Ned Smith finished in the number five spot. Bill Lafe took the sixth place, a step ahead of Charlie Mack. After the visitors grabbed the next two places, the Indians' Don Layman rounded out the top ten. Other JC harriers competing in the year's first meet were Chal Dilling, Jim Pettit, Al King and Joe Senft.

This afternoon the Tribe hill and dalers will be in Allentown to run against the cross-country squad from Muhlenberg College. The Indians will be attempting to extend their two year winning streak to six.

Tribe Seeks 14th Victory At Alfred U.

Alfred, New York is the scene of grid action tomorrow evening as the Juniata Indians attempt to cop their 14th straight victory against the Saxons of Alfred University.

Coach Alex Yunevich's squad boasts a veteran line of six letterwinners but is lacking in depth and backfield experience.

Only three of last year's starters remain to bolster the massive forward wall which averages nearly 200 pounds per man. They are all juniors— Thomas Cechini, 210 pound end, Joe Yannuzzi, 215 pound tackle and 190-pound guard Bill McAlee. Rounding out the Saxon line are center Al Feather, guard Bob Cranston, tackle Bob Parke and Joe Kelly, a converted halfback at end.

For the first time in his 18 years as Alfred coach, Yunevich will be starting a trio of freshmen backs. The boys show speed and hustle but lack of experience may be a fatal factor this fall.

Neil Ritz who tips the scales at a mere 160 pounds will handle the fullback chores while Andy Lopez and Dick Falcigno flank him at the halfback slots. Junior Mike Thrasher will be the probable starter at quarterback for Alfred.

Only two seniors, Cranston and tackle Lyle Wiederman, appear on the squad which Coach Yunevich calls "a team with a future."

Eight Teams In IM Touch League

Eight teams are entered in this year's intra-mural touch league.

The entrants include the Collegians, the defending champions, 61ers, Barons, Creamhousers, Cloister Squashers, 7 Secret Sinners, Trojans and the Freshmen.

Games are played through the weekday afternoons with the exception of Friday.

Edie Campbell, a member of Outing Club, various class committees, May Day committee, JCA and Lambda Gamma, also competes in intramural sports. Edie is a home ec major as is Judy Garman.

Judy Garman

Judy Garman, who plans to work as a dietician, is a majorette at JC, a member of Lambda Gamma and a 1958 May Queen Attendant.

Lucy Kriebel, an elementary ed major from Souderton has been a May Queen attendant for two years. Lucy is an active member of the band and SEAP. She is also the art editor of the 1959 Alfarata.

Cheerleader

Head cheerleader and home ec major, Jill Muir, is a member of Women's House Committee, as well as Lambda Gamma. Jill has for two years been a participant in intramural sports.

Election for the Homecoming Queen will be held Tuesday, Oct. 7. The girl receiving the highest number of votes will be queen. The two runners up will be her attendants.

Iowan Staff Publishes 80-Page Newspaper

An 80-page special edition of the Daily Iowan, University newspaper at the State University of Iowa, was issued August 23 to acquaint new students with the campus and city.

Although the tradition of a special opening-of-school edition is more than 30 years old, the 80 page paper produced this fall was the largest ever issued at SUI. It was mailed to all freshmen and transfer students who intended to enroll at SUI this fall. More than 8,000 column inches of advertising was sold for this edition.

chairman of underclassmen. The initiation will be held next Thursday in Memorial Gymnasium after the evening meal.

It is to be understood that the only persons allowed in the initiation area will be freshmen and members of the sophomore class who have been chosen to aid in the program.

Alfarata Optionaire

Tuesday, in the Homecoming Queen election, there will be a space on the ballot for students to give their opinions on a proposed Alfarata change. A Senate committee has suggested that the additional cost of a spring supplement to the Alfarata can be avoided by having the entire Alfarata printed during the summer. Before acting on this matter however, the Senate felt that it was necessary to consult student opinion.

Literary Magazine

Acting on a Leadership Conference resolution, the Senate appointed a literary magazine committee to look into the possibilities of publishing such a magazine. Heading the committee is Barb Walls, a senior English major and editor of the JUNIATIAN. Also on the committee are Carol Baish, Jack Merrill, Carol Teeter and Dick Johnson.

Senate advisor, Dr. Crosby, in giving a report concerning his participation in a summer conference of the Danforth Foundation, told of the plight of Madras Christian University in India. He explained that the University was badly in need of funds. Although the speaker, a faculty member of Madras University, at the conference was not soliciting aid, Dr. Crosby felt that Juniata was in a position to give the needed aid through its annual Juniata World Service Fund drive.

Madras University

The Senate acting on this report, decided that Madras University should replace the Japanese Christian University as a recipient of JWSF funds. Japanese Christian University has been receiving aid for quite some time from a large number of American Colleges, whereas Madras University has received nothing. Therefore Madras Christian University will be the foreign university to which JWSF will designate a portion of this year's funds.

A new by-law was added to the Senate constitution when the Senate agreed that the chairman of general activities should be provided with a committee to aid him in carrying out his duties.

15 Student Teachers Start At Area Schools

JC education majors under the direction of Prof. Kiracofe, are training at four area schools and with the help of their critic teachers, are preparing themselves for the teaching profession.

Students teaching at the Huntingdon High School are: James Ake, math-science; Herb Deuchar, history-English; Bonnie Gunther, English-Spanish; Phil Over, math-science; and Marlene Shugert, French-Spanish.

Traveling to Tyrone High School are Sandra Cohick, math-biology; Danny John, math-science; Nancy Swartz, English-Spanish and Aileen Wright, history-English.

Francis Cristina, biology-Spanish; Barb Shafer, English-Spanish and Mary Shirk, English-history practice in the Mount Union Senior High School. In the Mount Union Junior High are Horace Carl, history-sociology; Bev McEwen, English-history and Joe Riegel, math-science.

Girls To Perform At Game Halftime

Final tryouts last Thursday and Friday nights determined this year's squads of pom pom girls and majorettes.

From a field of 11 aspirants Edie Campbell, Junior, Nancy Cook, Phyllis Sholly, and Nancy Werner, sophomores, and Joy Mebs, Doris Reed, Zilla Hetrick and Katharine Gillies, freshmen, were selected as pom pom girls. Sandy Graner is captain and organizer of the squad.

Mary Shirk, senior, will captain a group of five majorettes. Performing this year will be Judy Garman, junior, Delyn Mathias and Carol Snyder, sophomores, and Linda Mitchell, freshman.

Both squads perform during the halftime of home football games.

Dean To Nominate Danforth Fellows

President Ellis has named Dean of the college Morley Mays as Juniata's liason officer to nominate to the Danforth Foundation two or three candidates for the 1959 fellowships.

The Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Mo. invites applications from college senior men and recent graduates who are preparing themselves for a career of college teaching and are planning to enter graduate school in September, 1959 for their first year of graduate study. The Foundation welcomes applicants from all fields of specialization.

The maximum annual grant for single fellows is $1400 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students with an additional stipend of $350 for each child. If a man receives the Danforth appointment, together with a Rhodes, Fulbright or Woodrow Wilson scholarship, he becomes a Danforth Fellow without stipend until those other relationships are completed.

All applications, including the recommendations, must be completed by January 31, 1959. Any student wishing further information should make contact with Dean Mays.

Juniata Queen To Greet Alums During Halftime

The coronation of Bonnie Meadows tomorrow by last year's queen Jacque Rowland Walters will highlight a weekend of anticipated activity on JC's campus.

Selected as attendants to the queen were Lucy Kriebel and Judy Garman. The three were elected last Tuesday from 10 nominees chosen by the male members of the JUNIATIAN staff.

Miss Meadows, an elementary education major from Hollidaysburg, served as Homecoming attendant to Miss Rowland last year. She has participated in All Class Night activities and intramural sports.

The queen was seen last fall in the musical This Way Please. She has a leading role in the forthcoming presentation The Boyfriend.

Garman and Kriebel

Junior home ec major Miss Garman served as a 1958 May Day attendant. She is a member of Lambda Gamma and a majorette.

Miss Kriebel is a junior elementary education major. She has been a May Queen attendant for two years, is present art editor of the Alfarata and a member of the band and SEAP.

After the coronation, scheduled to take place during halftime of the Juniata-Moravian football game, the freshmen will present the traditiontl Indian dance. The dance, in honor of the royalty and alumni, is under the direction of Ed Costello.

Rowlands To Present 1958 Queen's Crown

The crown which the Homecoming Queen will receive tomorrow afternoon at her coronation is being donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Rowland, the parents of last year's queen, Jacque Rowland Walters.

The crown which was especially designed by a jeweler, contains a plaque on the inside for the names of the queens and their reigning year. In honor of Miss Rowland's reign, her name will appear first on the plaque and will be followed by the name of the 1958 Homecoming Queen.

Prose, Poetry, Punch Series To Start Soon

The first of this year's Prose, Poetry and Punch programs will be next Thursday at 6:45 p.m. in East Hall Rec Room.

Directed by Miss Esther Doyle, the programs consist of readings by students in her class in Oral Interpretation. Participating in Thursday's session will be Bonnie Meadows, Bill Lafe, Dick Schaum and Nina Fredenburgh presenting selections from Our Hearts Were Young and Gay, Gertrude A Governess, Mary White and several others.

After the readings refreshments will be served. All students are invited to attend.

WAA, J Club Plan To Create 'August Moon Teahouse' Here

Juniata's WAA and J club will create a Teahouse of the August Moon setting for the Homecoming Frolic tomorrow from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. in Memorial Gym.

Plans for the decorations include oriental mountain scenery along one wall, a pagoda-like arrangement over the bandstand and a pond, according to Bobbie Savage, president of WAA and publicity director for the dance. Peggy Chidester is serving as general chairman.

Music for dancing will be played by Charlie Lockard and his band, Lakemont, Pa. Lockard is vocalist and the seven-piece band also does group vocalizing.

Ventriloquist Act

Sandy Cohick, chairman of the entertainment committee, reports that Bill Lafe will emcee for the event. A featured performance will be freshman Bonnie Lafferty and "Geraldine" in a ventriloquist act.

Following the acts, Ken Opipery, president of the J Club, will introduce Homecoming Queen Bonnie Meadows and her attendants Judy Garman and Lucy Kriebel. The J Club will provide refreshments.

Aileen Wright, WAA secretary, has extended invitations to the Faculty for the dance. The program committee, headed by Carol Brueckman, will provide oriental-style dance programs.

Axworthy To Give Piano Recital Here

Miss Suzanne Axworthy, assistant professor in JC's music department, will present a piano recital tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Oller Hall.

Miss Axworthy, who teaches piano and theory courses here, is from Monclair, N.J. She received her AB in music from the University of Rochester and her MA at the Eastman School of Music, Rochester.

She has also studied at Duke University, the University of North Carolina, Columbia University and Aspen Institute of Music. She came to Juniata last year. Her program will include Prelude in G Minor by Bach-Siloti, Papillons by Schumann, Les Jardins dans le Pluie by Debussey and Piano Sonata number 3 by Norman DelloJoio. Ushers for the event are Alice Adams, Joan Ciccarelli, Joan Fyock and Jack Rodland.

The recital is open to the public as well as JC students.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Welcome, Alumni

THE JUNIATIAN would like to take this opportunity to formally welcome back to the campus those alumni returning for tomorrow's festivities. We hope you will have an enjoyable day renewing old acquaintances and making new friends among the present student body.

To the students we would like to say that the success of the day depends mostly on you and your hospitality. A friendly hello will go a long way toward making a grad feel at home. The dorms are also your responsibility—that means no locked doors during open house to conceal that "lived in look." Clean your rooms! In addition, we urge you to stay on campus; a free Saturday should not mean a week-end at home.

With full cooperation from all, tomorrow should be a memorable Homecoming for alumni as well as a day of relaxation and fun for students. Make the most of it by taking full advantage of all the special activities..

By Way Of Explanation

FAINT protests have been heard from the students concerning the 15 minute decrease in cafeteria breakfast time. The reason for this, however, is a valid one. Previously, students entering the dining hall about 8:25 would sit over coffee until close to 9, thus making it almost impossible for the waitresses to get to their own classes on time. The new arrangement should remedy this situation, we believe, without causing students too much inconvenience.

The Student Viewpoint . . . .

A Slam At Social Apathy

What's wrong with the students on this campus? All weekend they were complaining that "JC sure is dead this weekend. Everyone's home or at Alfred." Sure a lot of people were away, but nevertheless there were plenty of things to do. Saturday night was the Treasure Traipse. The only reason it was a flop as everyone said was that no one went. If everybody still on campus had gone treasure hunting, the place would have been jumping! The same thing goes for the dance that was held after the Treasure Traipse.

And the Wednesday night dances - - what about them? The guys and girls are lined up in the gym like they are about to do a stroll, or maybe there's a glass wall between them. Juniata boys just can't be so shy that they are afraid to ask a girl to dance, and most of the girls would love to dance. After all, why would they be there otherwise?

So let's go gang. Let's go to the activities planned by the Social Committee, and let's go to take part in them - - not just to stand around and watch!

Appalling Appearance

TOTEM Inn, because of its central location and snack bar facilities, has since its opening been a meeting place for students, faculty and visitors. Therefore, it is important that we keep it looking its best.

Lately, however, this ideal has been far from a reality. Especially after the rush hours, a visitor might suspect that Tote had been in the direct path of a hurricane—chairs out of order, food wrappers and dishes scattered over the tables, old newspapers left lying where read by the last person, books packed in every available space.

Those who have noticed Totem when the floor is polished and the place is relatively clean realize how attractive it can be. The only trouble is these rare times are few and far between.

We realize it is impossible to keep things in order during the rush hours or the freshmen shows. What we are asking is that, especially after such times, students make it a point to clean up. Return the chairs to where you found them, carry your dishes to the counter, throw away your trash, and even if you don't plan to read your JUNIATIANS at least don't leave them lying around by the hundreds in Tote for Mr. Fisher to clean up.

We are very fortunate in having a student center such as Totem; before 1953 JCers enjoyed no such luxury. Therefore, let's show our appreciation by taking some pride in how it looks. A little extra effort on the students' part will improve its appearance 100 percent.

Movie Of The Week

A Time To Love

John Gavin and Lilo Pulver with the headwaiter of the bombed-out deluxe restaurant in which they have just dined are shown in a scene from Erich Maria Remarque's "A Time to Love and a Time to Die," the best selling novel of World War II by the author of "All Quiet on the Western Front." Gavin and Miss Pulver are starred as the young lovers and Jock Mahoney, Don DeFore, Keenan Wynn and Erich Maria Remarque, himself, as the professor are co-starred in this Universal-International Color-CinemaScope production

"I'M SO GLAD YOU'RE THRILLED ABOUT FRATERNITY LIFE, SON — WHEN WILL YOUR 'PLEDGE TRAINING' END?!"

ON Campus

by Don Miller

Picture this: it's 9:35 p.m., Students Hall and you and one other male have just locked yourselves in a room with ten beautiful females. The lights are low (in fact thy are out) and not a word is spoken. Sound like an ideal situation? Well not quite, for just three stories below you some 250 freshmen are crying for your scalp! What would you do? Carve your answer in 25 words or less on the butt of a sawed off shotgun and mail with ammunition to room L, Students Hall. All members of the freshman class and their families are ineligible for this contest.

Old C.U.'s never die . . . . . .

Have you heard about the frosh who was in Altoona on a shopping expedition, wearing her dink and name card and a pair of white socks over top of her regular blue and yellow ones? While waiting for a train to return to Juniata, she was approached by a young man who asked, "Miss, where are your blue and yellow socks?"

She was somewhat surprised and about to call a cop until he explained that he had gone to Juniata and was once the chairman of underclassmen.

* * * * * * *

As every good professor knows, one of the most discouraging atmospheres in which to tell a joke is the college classroom. Even the best ones can go over like the proverbial pole vaulter. But hold on good people, for one in your midst has found an air tight alibi for this situation! After a very weak response to several of his jokes, this martyr to the end faced his room of blank stares and replied. "Well, it's not time for the bell yet, and after all a teacher has to fill up time somehow!"

Argue with that one!

* * * * * * *

And what freshman will forget the assembly at which representatives of all campus clubs and organizations came to speak. Each person was to introduce himself and explain the nature of that which he represented, and it went something like this

"I'm from the Debate Club and our purpose is to debate."

"Now the German Club doesn't have anything planned for this year yet, but when I get hold of that vice president"

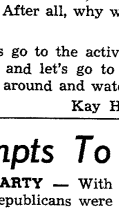
Finally one tall red-haired lad stood up, shrugged his shoulders and said, "Actually I don't represent anything, but here I am!"

Such is senior poise!

That's it for this week. See you at the crowning.

Nixon Attempts To Fire Up GOP

THE APATHETIC PARTY — With the startling defeat the Republicans were handed in the Maine elections, many of the Republican rank and file members have been falling into an apathetic and complacent mood. The crux of the matter lies in the fact that GOP leaders have been keeping the information about the party's difficulties from President Eisenhower. Not until the Maine election returns were tabulated did he see what was happening to the party strength.



Thus Monday the President called a conference of all GOP leaders to examine the plight of the party and to find a way to revitalize the sagging Republican campaign. The President stated that he would conduct a campaign of his own, putting in major appearances at New York and California, the two important states of which the Republicans must gain control. But the major role of this congressional campaign will be led by Vice-President Nixon who will bear the brunt of selling the GOP's policies to the American people.

Nixon is faced with many difficulties in trying to sell the Administration's policies. First of all, traditionally the mid-term elections go against the party in power. Besides this, there are the major domestic problems which the Republican Administration has been faced with. The recession of 1957-58, the Middle and Far eastern crises, plus the Goldfine-Adams controversy have all left serious scars on the Administration. Thus it has become Nixon's job to exhort the Republican candidates to produce a fighting campaign against the Democrats.

The strategy which Nixon will use is one of making the congressional contest a direct vote of confidence for the Eisenhower Administration, rather than having a series of isolated state and local campaigns. If a Democratic Congress is elected this year, Nixon charges, it would mean higher taxes, cheapened money and a stifling of free enterprise which is now expanding. Worst of all, if the Democrats control Congress there would be a change which would mean a weak foreign policy, and a weak policy towards Communism might result in an all-out war. The Republicans have been and would remain firm to Communist advances, and would with a strong defensive strength preserve peace. Nixon also stressed the divisions in the Democratic party, mainly in the conflicts of the southern and northern Democrats over integration.

It will take such a man of exceptional leadership as Vice-President Nixon to bind the Republican party into a fighting unit. By appealing directly to the people Nixon has asked for a yes or no vote of confidence for the Eisenhower Administration. In a mid-term election this is a dangerous course for it might undermine the Administration's prestige and diminish its power in Congress on internal issues. Yet Nixon has put his faith in the American people that with clearness and foresight they will understand the principal issues. No one can say whether the Vice-President's plan will work, only Nov. 4 will decide whether the Administration has the backing of the American people.

News Of The Week In Retrospect

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

The Greyhounds of Moravian College, fresh from an impressive 30-8 victory over Wilkes, will be the next rival seeking to end the longest collegeiate win streak in Pennsylvania.

Last year the Greyhounds were really primed to bite the Indians after losing 26-0 in 1956 to ruin their unbeaten season, but didn't get the chance because the flu hit the Bethlehem campus.

Halfback Jim Berrier will be definitely out of this week's important homecoming tilt, X-rays show his wrist is not knitting as fast as they anticipated.

Tackle Al Dungan, sustaining a severely sprined ankle in the Alfred contest, may be forced to see limited action if his ankle gives out. Despite his injury Dungan managed to continue his fine punting. Booting three — all forty plus—he now carries a 43.8 average.

Comparing the first two games, the Indians didn't appear as sharp at New York as they did in the opener.

The first half showed the two teams statistically even, but the Indians played an impressive second half limiting the host to minus yardage rushing and no pass completions.

Alfred was better than the team had anticipated and improved after the 26-0 loss to Cortland St. It took the Indians a whole half to realize this.

Fullback, Bob Sill, playing an outstanding game, relieved Bill Berrier of the burden by carrying the ball 65 yards on 13 tries. Berrier only toted the ball six times for 26 yards.

Harry Long, looking extremely sharp in the second platoon backfield, netted 60 yards in 10 carries.

Coach Mike Snider's cross-country team outclassed Muhlenberg in their recent meet. It was their second straight win and the sixth in a row over a two year span.

Juniata's opponents are all busy this week except Scranton

Lycoming should take Albright easily, Westminster should get past St. Vincent, PMC will take Wilkes, Gettysburg won't have any trouble with Drexel and Alfred will rebound with a win over St. Lawrence.

Tribe Takes Snappy Alfred; Gains 14th Straight Triumph

The Tribe won their 14th straight last Saturday night over stubborn Alfred University by a 20-0 score.

The Indians received stiff opposition from the New Yorkers in the first half but completely dominated the second half. Holding a 7-0 halftime margin, the Bunnmen tallied once each in the remaining two quarters to clinch the contest.

The first touchdown resulted from a Moose Krause pass interception which he returned from the enemy 28 to the five. Bill Berrier plunged over the two after he had advanced the pigskin on the previous play. Bob Schwalenberg added a placement kick to make it a 7-0 edge.

The second TD was set up by an Al Dungan punt from the 43 which landed dead on the one. Soon after, a poor Alfred punt put the Indians in business on the opponent's 36. Short gains by Skip Walasik, Bob Sill and Berrier gave the Redskins a first down on the 22 before Schwalenberg tossed an aerial to Sill for the score. Schwaley again added the extra point by placement.

In the final quarter co-captain Joe Soptata scored on a three yard off-tackle slant following Emery DiDonato's recovery of a fumble.

The Indians are still on the short end of the seven game series winning only two and losing four while one ended in a tie.

Favorites Win Games In Intramural Touch

Last Thursday another intramural football season got underway with both pre-season favorites chalking up impressive victories.

Led by the aerial arm of George Lindenfelter and the pass-catching of Sam Shore and Barry Sipes, the Barons swamped the Creamhousers by a 52-7 count.

The defending champion Collegians downed the never-say-die '61ers by a 12-0 score. Fine blocking and running were featured in this contest for both teams.

On Monday both leaders ran up gigantic scores against the Cellar Dwellers. The Barons downed the '61ers 45-0 and the Creamhousers bowed to the Collegians 50-6.

Wenger Standout

Mel Wenger was the big gun for the Barons as he passed and ran for several scores in the one-sided contest. The Collegians, held to a 19-7 score at halftime, erupted for 31 points in the second half to push themselves into a first place tie with the Barons.

In a hard fought contest, the Freshmen, a new team in the IM circuit, edged the Trojans 13-7 to inaugurate their season on a happy note.

Indians Face Moravian Eleven In Tough Homecoming Match

Coach Ken Bunn's Indians will be gunning for their 25th consecutive home win as they battle the powerul Greyhounds of Moravian College in tomorrow's Homecoming Day highlight.

A faster backfield, two glue-fingered ends and an experienced passers are the ingredients that go into Coach Rocco Calvo's recipe for a wide open split-T offense. Last year the Greyhounds showed a powerful ground attack but the 1958 club exploits a dangerous passing game as well.

Despite the loss of 12 gridders from last season, the Bethlehem school boasts a strong forward wall with lettermen at every slot.

Junior Fred Lipari will play pivot position in a line which averages nearly 200 pounds per man. At tackles are Jim Kritis and Bob Haney, who tips the scales at 230, while Mike Payonk and Gus Rampone fill in at the guard slots. At ends Calvo will be starting junior Paul Nooman and sophomore John Olsen who are both boys who stand out as excellent pass receivers.

Three year letterman George Hollendersky supplies the Greyhounds with backfield power. The 200-pound fullback is the backbone of Moravian's crushing ground game and is rated as one of the East's best small college punters.

Senior Joe Esposito and sophomore Jeff Gannor will be starting halfbacks while sharpshooter Tony Matz is the probable choice for the quarterback slot.

Juniata holds an 8-4-1 edge in the series between the two schools.

Drub Mules 15 - 40; Undefeated Harriers Face Moravian Next

Juniata's cross-country team turned in its most impressive win in three years with a 15-40 victory over Muhlenberg last Friday over the Mules course in Allentown.

Seven Blue and Gold harriers crossed the finish line before the first home team runner. For purposes of scoring only the first five Tribe finishers figured in the final score. Herb Deuchar and Don Layman led the parade of Indians to the finish line as they both were timed in 24:30 to tie for first place. Galen Heckman was the next Juniatian to complete the 4 1/2 mile course. Ned Smith and Bill Lafe rounded out the scoring for the winners. The other Tribe harriers, who did not figure in the final tabulation, were Charlie Mack and Chal Dilling.

The first Muhlenberg finisher was Dick Lewis. Other Mule scorers were Bob Sabol, Bob Voorhees, Bill Durham and Stan Schlect.

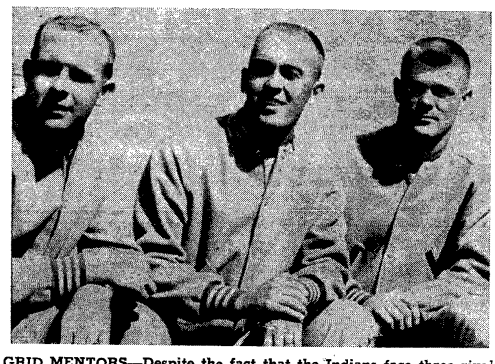
Tomorrow afternoon the charges of Mike Snider will be seeking their third straight win of the season and eighth over a two year span against the hill and dalers of Moravian. The meet will be held on the College Hill course.

Girls Hockey Teams Begin League Action

Girls intramural field hockey began activity this week with four teams participating in a league.

Teams, which represent each class, play their games in weekday afternoons at 4:1.5 p.m.

Following the completion of the schedule, two all-star teams, the "Blue" and "Gold", will play an exhibition game. The girls on these teams will be selected by a board of judges chosen by the WAA.



GRID MENTORS—Despite the fact that the Indians face three rivals in the next three weeks who thus far have unblemished 1958 records, the coaches—Charley Godlasky, head coach Ken Bunn and Don Shover —seem apparently happy over the team's early victories.

Players Begin Practices For Fall 'Boyfriend'

The newly-chosen cast of The Boyfriend, a musical farce in 3 acts to be presented by the Masque for Parents Day, began rehearsals last Monday evening.

The play, written by Sandy Wilson, takes place in Madame Dubonnet's refining school for young ladies at the Villa Caprice. Designed mainly to poke fun at the life of the 1920's and life in England, the play will make use of English characters.

The mood of the comedy will be set by highly exaggerated stage actions, make-up and costumes, and will be completed by the use of simple sets, framework and a small staging area.

Boy Meets Girl

The plot of the play revolves mainly around Polly Browne, a lonely little rich girl in the exclusive school, and Tony, the messenger boy, with whom she falls in love. Act III will tell whether Polly's and Tony's deceptions prove tragic and will reveal Tony's true identity.

The play itself is basically a simple one, but involves 12 singing and dancing numbers. Perfect Young Ladies, The Boyfriend, Sur Le Plage and Safety in Numbers are only a few of the routines which constitute the musical part of the play. Director David Weston feels that, " . . . if everyone continues the cooperation and initiative already shown, The Boyfriend will be a fine, unusual show."

Polly Brown will be played by Peggy Chidester, and her classmates at refining school by Vee Wilhelm, Harriet Nickels, Carole Miller and Dee Briggs. Tony will be portrayed by Terry Fouse, Madame Dubonnet by Jan Brumbaugh, Hortense, the maid, by Bonnie Meadows, Bobby Van Husen by Don Miller, Percival Browne, Polly's father by Rush Hodgen, Lord Brockhurst by Ed Jones, Lady Brockhurst by Judy Baraclough and the young men by Bob Martin, Dave Gilespie, Gary Pote and Jay Gettig.

Pittsburgh Radio Station To Pick Miss Brick Throw

Who will be Miss Brick Throw of 1959?

That will be decided Saturday evening, Nov. 8, when the eagerly awaited Miss Brick Throw finals and show are staged at Syria Mosque, Pittsburgh.

Perpetrators of the event, of course, are Rege Cordic and Company, KDKA Radio's zany wake-up entertainers and the chief advocates of the sport of brick throw as a safe outlet for excess energy and an expression of the desire "to do something."

The evening will include a demonstration by Buffy Budekovitch, the Stan Musial of brick throw (audience participation will not be encouraged during this portion of the program), the world premiere of a new Cordic and Company film on the romance of bricks, concert selections by Mother LaFarge, accompanied on the drums by her son Roquefort, as well as entertainment.

Meanwhile, Cordic and Company are encouraging individuals and groups to send in their nominations for the Miss Brick Throw title.

Nominations should include the name, address, phone number, descriptive material and a photograph. The candidates brick throwing ability will be taken for granted, and she should be able to perform in some other field.

Married women as well as single ones are eligible to compete, and there are no age restrictions. Entries should be sent to KDKA Radio, Pittsburgh 22.

An ever-growing list of prizes for the lucky winner is topped by an expense-paid weekend trip for two to New York City, a hi-fi

Addresses and discussions led by Langmede Casserley will keynote the JCA focus on the modern age October 14 and 15, according to Stan Davis, chairman of religious activities.

Casserley from Episcopal Seminary, New York City, will begin the activities with his chapel speech Monday in Oller Hall. Characteristics of the Modern Age. There will be a discussion period Monday at 4 p.m. in Founders social room.

Prof Casserley and members of JC's faculty will present a discussion on the Sciences vs. the Humanities in Education Monday at 7:15 p.m. in Oller Hall. The focus will continue with a voluntary chapel Tuesday and another informal discussion period that afternoon.

This is the second in a series of programs planned by the JCA this year.

JC Campus Judiciary Convenes, Outlines New Chapel Cut System

President Chuck Brown called to order the first meeting of this year's Campus Judiciary last Monday evening at 7 p.m. in the Dean of Men's office.

Secretary Bonnie Gunther read the minutes, which were approved as read. Chairman of women's house, Janice Christie, reported that elections were being held that evening for disciplinary council representatives. There was no report from Ron Wertz, chairman of men's house.

Under old business a resolution concerning the chapel cut system was adopted. The new resolution states that each student shall be allowed four chapel cuts per semester.

Judiciary will issue warnings to those who have taken three cuts and informing them that they will be allowed only one more cut. In the case of a fifth cut, the student will again receive a letter stating that the judiciary will take action.

Any offender with six chapel cuts will automatically be suspended for a period of four days.

New Procedure

The topic of new trial procedure was also discussed under old business. It was decided that copies of the new procedure would be distributed to all students, under the direction of the chairmen of men's and women's houses.

Under new business the leadership conference resolution concerning a joint meeting of the outgoing and incoming staffs was considered. No definite conclusions were drawn.

The meeting was adjourned by the president with plans to meet again the first Monday in November.

Shore Reports On Tuesday's Alfarata Vote

Sam Shore, on behalf of the Alfarata committee, reported to the Senate last Wednesday night, that according to the opinion poll the student body is in favor of having the Alfarata published during the summer.

The official tally on the poll was 379 affirmative, 71 negative, with 56 abstentions. Having received this report, the Senate voted unanimously to accept the resolution submitted by the Alfarata staff.

Chairman of communications Dick Johnson will carry the issue to its next step by submitting it to the Publications Committee.

Trip to Lycoming

President Chuck Brown, acting on student ideas, started the ball rolling toward obtaining bus service to the game at Williamsport Saturday, October 18. Jim Heck was delegated to contact the Administration and the Blue & White Bus Co. of Altoona to make arrangements for the excursion.

Another issue concerning the Lycoming game which was discussed was the proposal of shortened classes on the morning of the game. Brown was empowered by the Senate to attempt to make arrangements with the necessary parties and to report his findings to the Senate next week.

Traffic Regulations

Control and simplicity were the key words of this year's traffic regulation program according to Dean Paul Heberling. In attempting to avoid the mix-up that occurred last year, the Dean stated that the regulations would

All College Worship Speaker

Puzzled Guest Asks Explanation Of Zany 'Collegiate' Activities

by Kay Gillies

To the Editor:

Say, has everybody gone stark-raving mad at Juniata College? The other day I was visiting there, and Miss Walls, just what is the matter with the students? Have they taken up a new course in sandwich board advertising or poster-painting?

I tried to be a part of these unusual circumstances. First I yelled Air Raid and almost immediately, I was shot down with a broom. Then I watched some poor girl try to scrub Founders steps with a toothbrush: She should have had enough sense to know that a toothbrush would never do the job—a hairbrush is much better!

Can you give me any good reason why I should care if there is a real 17-year-old Indian maiden on your campus (even if she does have blonde hair), or if someone likes the Ajax song, or if there is a certain smile plastered on some girl's face?

I really did appreciate having a doorman at Tote. And Cindy may be a dunce, but she was a good sport and smooth dancer.

The idea of a fire-escape guard appealed to me also, as I guess you never can tell who might steal one, so all in all, everyone wasn't too haywire—maybe just a little off-balance.

Sincerely,

An interested bystander

P.S. I have never been anywhere except at JC where the girls wore two different colored socks. That's really a unique fad you've started!

A $10 fine will be assessed to any student who has failed to register his motor vehicle. Violation of any other regulations will result in Judiciary action.

President's Bible Class

The President's Bible Class has officially been discontinued. A few weeks ago, the Senate, acting on a Leadership Conference resolution, voted to hold the resolution in abeyance until a trial period could be initiated .

According to Stan Davis, chairman of religious activities, this trial period has been completed. Davis reported to the Senate that due to lack of interest and opposing external forces, it was not feasible to continue the Sunday morning activity. The Senate, therefore, voted to accept the Leadership Conference resolution which officially discontinued the class.

Snowflake Lake

Some work may be done this fall on Snowflake Lake. Brown, reporting for Jay Maust and Leroy Forney, student co-ordinators for the construction of the recreational facility, said that since the New Enterprise Stone & Lime Co. was going to do work in the Snowflake Lake area this fall, perhaps their equipment could be employed to work on the lake itself.

Maust and Forney were delegated to investigate the matter further.

Cider and Doughnuts

Immediately after the game, the dorms will again be open to visitors. Cider and Doughnuts will be served for JC alumni and students on the mezzanine of Memorial Gym at 4:30 p.m.

Concluding these events will be the Homecoming Frolic sponsored by the WAA and J Club. The dance will begin at 8:30 p.m. in Memorial Gym with Charlie Lockhard's band providing the music.

The Typographical Error

The typographical error is a slippery thing and sly.
You can hunt till you are dizzy,
but it somehow will get by.
Till the forms are off the presses,
it is strange how still it sleeps;
It shifts down in a corner, and it never stirs or peeps.
That typographical error, too small for human eyes,
Till the ink is on the paper, when it grows to mountain size.
The boss just stares with horror,
then he grabs his hair and groans;
The copy reader drops his head upon his hands and moans.
The remainder of the issue may be clean as clean can be
But that typographical error is the only thing you see.

The U.S. Civil Service Commission has just announced the details for this year's Federal Service Entrances Examination.

This is the examination through which several thousand college graduates in non-technical fields enter government employment each year. Written tests will be given each month, from November to May. Applicants for the special management internships must take the test no later than March.

For applications and more information, contact the placement office, the local post office or the Regional Director, Third US Civil Service Region, Customhouse, 2nd and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia 6, Pa.

record player and a special Miss Brick Throw trophy.

Through the courtesy of various district business and industrial firms, she will receive dozens of somewhat less orthodox gifts including:

A 1950 Studebaker completely reconditioned plus such "extras" for the car as a paint job, clutch work, insurance, spark plugs, lubrication, oil change and a year's service on the car radio.

Also a pinball machine, a specially fashioned throne on which she'll be crowned, one beer bologna per week for six months, a lifetime pass for foot-long hot dogs at a local stand, three wooden shoes, a year's supply of light bulbs including flood lights for the winner's back-yard brick throw court, a cooler full of Lotta-Cola, a dog and six months' supply of dog food and a wheelbarrow in which to take home her loot.

More prizes are being added to the list each day—and, despite their unusual nature, Cordic and Company (Karl Mardman and Bob Trow) assure everyone that the gifts are for real.

No less pleasing to the winner will be the use of her picture on the cover of Thud, the oft-discussed magazine of brick throw, which will be published later this year.

Seniors To Sponsor Pep Rally, Bonfire

Juniata's senior class will sponsor tonight's Beat Moravian pep rally beginning at 7:15 p.m. in front of Memorial Gym.

JC's cheerleaders, twirlers, pom pom girls and band will be on hand to lead the cheering. Plans also include burning a Moravian football player in effigy on a bonfire in Sherwood Forest.

After the pep rally the band will lead students downtown to greet the Greyhounds at the Huntingdon Hotel.

Jazz Fans To Get Monthly Magazine

The Jazz Review, a monthly international publication, will make its debut this month.

The first issue will provide criticism, reviews and a forum for serious discussion of all phases of American jazz. The magazine will be published by jazz experts, Nat Hentoff and Martin Williams.

Subscription to the Jazz Review will be reduced for college students to $4.25 per year and $4 each for groups of five or more. For further information write to The Jazz Review, Box 128, Village Station, New York 14, N.Y.

Juniatian Ranks 'First Class' In Press Scoring

The Associated Collegiate Press has conferred upon the JUNIATIAN a First Class rating for its publications during the 1958 spring semester.

First Class, according to the honor rating chart is comparable to excellent. An All American rating, which is the highest possible conferred and indicates distinctly superior achievement, requires a total of 3500 points. The JUNIATIAN missed this rating by only 60 points, receiving a score of 3440.

The judges included Gareth Herbert, columnist and former assistant city editor of the St. Paul Dispatch; Duane Andrews, public relations staff, Minneapolis Honeywell, formerly of the staff of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune; Mrs. Peter Pafiolia, former reporter on the Redwood Falls Gazette and former editor of the College Reporter, Mankato State College, Minnesota; Dick Kobak, assistant to the editor, Minneapolis Sunday Tribune; Allen Uhl, St. Paul Pionner Press and Dispatch and Dick Gray, doctoral candidate, University of Minnesota School of Journalism.

JWSF Sets Year's Drive Goal At $1958

The annual Juniata World Service Fund drive for 1958 is now underway, directed by chairmen Bonnie Gunther and Larry Landes.

Solicitors will visit all people personally in an attempt to reach this year's goal of $1,958. Also, on Saturday night, there will be a dance for the benefit of JWSF.

This year, Juniata has adopted a new university in Madras, India as a beneficiary. Dr. Kenneth Crosby informed JWSF of its need and the Senate approved supporting it in the annual drive.

The other beneficiaries include Foreign Students' Fund, Brethren Missionaries and World University Service. Juniatians can choose to which beneficiary they wish to contribute, if they have a preference.

Senate Issues Traffic Rules, Considers Ogre Report Items

Carl Wass, at the regular Senate meeting last Wednesday, reported that he and Dean Heberling had worked out a list of traffic regulations, which he then submitted to the Senate for approval.

Unanimous consent was given and the following traffic regulations as approved by the Senate are now in effect:

1. No student shall have an automobile on campus withoue having it duly registered with the Dean of Men in acordance with college policy.
   a. Failure to compiy will result in a fine of $10.
   b. Failure to pay the fine within 14 days will result in Judiciary action.
2. No student with a resident sticker (blue) shall drive his automobile on campus between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.
   a. Failure to comply will result in Judiciary action.
3. No student shall park his automobile in any place other than his assigned parking area.
   a. Failure to comply will result in Judiciary action.
4. A student traffic coordinator shall be appointed by the Senate to enforce the above regulations.

Ogre Committee Report

Pete Fahrney, chairman of the Ogre Committee, submitted the committee's report to the Senate. The committee advocated changes or improvements in several areas of campus life.

The problem of improving after-dinner dances in regard to lighting, music and accoustics was the first area under discussion. Sandy Johnston, chairman of social activities, informed the Senate that improvements were presently being made in these areas and should be completed in the near future.

Another of the committee's recommendations concerned the improvement of the physical beauty of the campus. The elimination of the tennis courts beside Totem Inn was one of the main Topics in question. Several suggestions were offered as to what should be done with the eyesore. Stan Davis was appointed to talk with the Administration and find out what their plans are for the tennis courts. Davis was also delegated to see what could be done about obtaining more bench facilities on campus.

Fouse Heads Student Proctoring Committee

Forty five students have been named by the Senate to serve on the student proctoring committee under the direction of Terry Fouse, chairman.

This continuation of the proctoring program begun last year is believed to be progress toward the ultimate goal of an honor system at Juniata. In this program the professors have a choice as to whether or not they want students proctoring exams and if so how many they want.

Besides working during examinations, these students will be assigned to proctor in the freshman reading room in the library. There will be a proctor in these rooms every afternoon and evening.

It is believed that the problem of missing library books will be lessened when the proctoring system goes into effect.

Performers Plan Piano Workshop

JC student performers will hold a piano workshop October 23 at 7 p.m. in Swigart Hall.

Students will have the opportunity of hearing various types of piano literature and of learning to perform in public. Music will be discussed and played not only as literature but also as problems encountered in piano playing.

Performers will include Joan Ciccarelli, junior; Elizabeth Lichliter, sophomore; Claire Johnson and Jack Berkey, special students. The workshop is an informal gathering of piano students of Mrs. Currier and Miss Axworthy, but is open to all students.

Gay Tyroliers To Appear Here Tonight In Folk Songs, Dances

A company known as The Gay Tyroliers will present a program of folk songs and dances from Europe's Alpine regions at tonight's civic concert at 8:15 p.m. in Oller Hall.

The company, currently on its third tour of America, is directed by Anton Praxmair. The 16 members come from the village of Kitzbuhel in the Austrian Tyrol.

While not "professional" in the usual sense of that word, the members have appeared all over the world presenting the culture of their region. They will appear here through the courtesy of the National Artists Corporation.

Spring Dances

The first part of the program is entitled Spring in the Mountains and includes such dances as the Bandl, or Maypole dance, the Eifersucht dance of two girls contending for a boy or the Ranggl of lads trying their strength. Songs tells of the opening of hunting season, the mountain spirits freed after the long winter and the country folk driving the farm animals out into the fields.

The second part, entitled Summer, tells of the season of hard work for the peasants in the fields, the woodcutters in the forest, the Sennerin on the Alm and the miners in Kitzbuhel's ancient copper and silver mines. The songs describe corn growing in the fields, the hammering of scythes in the woods and love and courtship.

Autumn Festival

The third section, Autumn, tells of the return from the mountain pastures to the valleys. It is the season of weddings, fairs and harvest festivals and the songs are of wedding serenades, dowries, the setting up of homes and the blessings of children.

Juniata students will be admitted by identification cards.

JC Tycoons To Take Madison Avenue Tour

JC's Tycoon Club is preparing for a field trip to New York City, December 5 and 6, to inspect the business aspects of the Stock Exchange, Federal Reserve Bank, Macy's Department Store and the American Shipping Lines.

In order to raise money for the trip, business majors, under the guidance of Profs. Nolan and Cherry, will sponsor several projects on campus. The first of these will be in the form of a pizza sale in the dorms Tuesday and Thursday nights at 10:30 p.m. Pizza will be sold for $.20 a slice and $1.50 for a large pie.

A car wash service will be in operation in front of Saylor, N.J. and Cherry Houses today, or, in case of rain, Monday, at the price of $.75 a car. Interested car owners may call MItchell 3-2226; cars will be picked up and delivered upon request.

Additional activities the business majors are undertaking include the sale of balloons and cushions at the remaining home football games and doing odd jobs on the campus grounds.

Class To Present Readings, Poetry

The second program of the Prose, Poetry and Punch series will be held in East Hall Rec Room Thursday, October 23 at 6:45 p.m.

Judy Barrowclough will present an excerpt from Life Without Father by Muriel Resnick. Betty Blunt's The Honeymoon will be read by Mary Snyder.

Larry Landes will present an adventure story, The Monkey's Paw by W. W. Jacobs. A comedy monologue, The Ideal Pet, by C. S. Jennison will be read by Jackie Lu Rhodes.

After the program, light refreshments will be served.

Dean Of Wittenberg Donates Prize Money

John Stauffer, president of Juniata's Alumni Association, presented the $10 prize which was awarded to fourth Brumbaugh for its Homecoming display, Humpty Dumpty.

Stauffer, who was graduated from JC in 1936, is dean of Wittenberg College. The second and third winners were second floor, East Hall, with the stork display and third Brumbaugh with the cemetery scene.

CAREFUL, FROSH! 'Helpful' sophomores lead a bewildered freshman through Juniata's own amusement park in Memorial Gym. The funhouse was set up last week by the class of '61 for the enjoyment and enlightment of the class of '62. Since that time, however, the frosh have won the Homecoming games and discarded their regulations. This, according to the sophomores, makes them almost people — —

"BEFORE WE GO TO THE LAB – WE HAVE SOMEONE HERE WHO WOULD LIKE TO TELL YOU WHAT HAPPENS WHEN WE MIX POTASSIUM PERMANGANATE WITH CONCENTRATED SULFURIC ACID!"

Editorially Speaking . . .

On Trial

TOMORROW night the new system of weekend cafeteria suppers will begin but, the JUNIATIAN would like to remind its readers, "will continue as regular college policy . . . only as long as the students do not abuse this privilege."

This involves several considerations. First of all, don't be a latecomer. Director of food service Paul Moore has announced that the suppers will be served from 5:15 to 6 p.m. at which time the doors will close promptly. Therefore, don't wait until the last possible minute to appear; you might be disappointed, for the doors must close at 6.

The second suggestion is be more accurate in filling out your weekend table slips. Currently, this information is often inaccurate mainly because of student carelessness. In order for Moore to judge how much food to prepare, he must have reasonably accurate information concerning attendance.

Thirdly, when you have finished eating, leave the dining hall. There will be too many students and too few tables in East Hall dining room to permit after dinner socialization. Remember, the entire student body must eat in one dining room, so do your socializing in the Lounge. Also, when returning your dishes, don't just drop your entire tray with its varied contents and walk away. Discriminate! Use the trash cans (we might suggest here that a few more should be available) and deposit your silverware in the designated pan. This makes things easier for the kitchen staff and prevents a bottleneck and general chaos in that area.

Since weekend cafeteria suppers are beginning on a trial basis, it will be the students' decision whether they will be adopted permanently. If we like the idea, let's do our best to make it workable and an improvement over the past system.

Sharing The Credit

WHEN the JUNIATIAN ranks high in the Associated Collegiate Press national rating, the staff rightfully takes the opportunity to congratulate itself and feel not a little self-satisfied and proud of the semester's work. When the paper is compared to similar student weeklies across the country and judged first class, the staff certainly deserves to take the credit.

However, we would like at this time to acknowledge also the part the students and Administration play in keeping the paper journalistically good. Because of the Administration's liberal policy, the JUNIATIAN has no faculty censor and is completely student run. This gives us the opportunity to reflect student opinion as we see it without fear of harmful consequences. The staff becomes more conscientious because of this freedom as it realizes its responsibility.

And because of the consistently high degree of student interest we see, the staff never becomes apathetic toward the work. As long as the students continue to show interest we will gladly work hard toward improvement.

Thus, the editorial board would like to thank not only the staff, but also the students and Administration for the part they played in making the '58 spring semester of the JUNIATIAN "first class."

An Urgent Request

AFTER dinner dances are a problem again this year

We feel, however, that their unattractiveness is not entirely the fault of the social committee but mainly due to the enviroment in the women's gym. Although improvements in the gym have been planned and promised, we urge that something be done immediately if not sooner to make it a more desirable dancing area.

The Ogre Committee has shown concern over this matter and has requested the Senate to do all they can to speed up operations. Their suggestions for improvement, which the JUNIATIAN fully endorses, are more effective lighting, better music and additional speakers in the gym. More specifically, we feel that a system of indirect lighting would be desirable to eliminate the present atmosphere of gloom and glare. Concerning the music, we agree with the following statement from the Ogre Committee, "It is true that the current hits are popular . . . but it is felt that these records have monotonous effects when repeated often. It is further felt . . . that since the campus populace is in favor of professional entertainment, records by "big bands" be used more liberally." Finally, an extra speaker, we believe, would distribute the sound more evenly and allow everyone to hear the music equally well.

If the Administration does not find it feasible to undertake these improvements in the near future, we suggest that the mezzanine of Memorial Gym be used for the after dinner dances until the women's gym be made more suitable. The mezzanine has been used in years past, and we believe it is better equipped for dancing than is the women's gym in its present condition.

Movie Of The Week

The Key

William Holden and Sophia Loren are a romantic team in "THE KEY" filmed in Cinemascope. The film plays Sunday-Monday-Tuesday at the Harris Clifton theatrs.

ON Campus

Splish splash, I came close to taking a bath 'long about Saturday morn! The place: Sherwood's sunken tub. The reason: I needed it? The result: thanks to the sophomore storm troopers I stayed high and dry! There is a moral to this story; if you plan to someday be a chairman of underclassmen, DON'T—

More gems from our campus "babe"

Tripping through Tote, he spied a female from one of his classes. Greeting her with a friendly clout across the shoulders, he quipped, "Congratulations, honey, you made the highest grade in my exam-an F!" (grades ranged from F to K).

Continuing on, he passed a student perched on the back of a sofa near the television set. Without batting an eye, he gave said student a shove backwards and amid the screams sneered, "That's for reading in chapel!" So what can you do?

* * * * * *

And over on second floor East Hall, a group of co-eds ganged up on one other defenseless little thing and proceeded to lecture her about her choice of foul smelling hair spray. In protest she wailed, "Don't blame that junk on me. My mother just can't resist traveling salesmen!" I'm told that she is still trying to get her foot out of her mouth.

Guilty ? ? ?

From the last freshman court comes this item. One coed was turned into the members of the court for osculating (slang for necking) behind North Dorm. When later questioned about this activity, she indignantly replied, "It was not behind North Dorm!"

Warning to the biology classes. Be careful when you are roaming around Taylor Highlands with those paper bags in your hands. The ladies "on the hill" think you are out to get their flowers.

While we're on the subject I heard another report from the biology department and it goes something like this: On a college birdwalk the instructor identified the first birdcall. When the next call was heard, he asked, "What was that?"

"A chipmunk," one of the girls volunteered.

"No," the instructor said patiently. "That's a tufted titmouse."

"Well," said the girl proudly, "at least I knew it wasn't a bird!"

That's it for this week.

U.S. Moon Bid — A Partial Success

— Herb Deuchar: News Of The Week In Retrospect

THE PIONEER—Ever since the beginnings of time man has dreamed of someday reaching the moon. In past generations the subject of a flight to the moon was embedded in what we today know as science fiction. But today what seemed like an impossible goal has almost been attained. Last year the first positive step was taken by Soviet Russia when she successfully launched an earth satellite into the earth's atmosphere. Then in quick succession a race developed between the United States and Russia as to who would send the most the farthest in relation to earth satellites. Thus before long both nations were talking of attempts at a direct moon shot.

Last week the United States made its second attempt to place an earth satellite around the moon's orbit. Although failing in its primary goal, the U.S. achieved something no other nation has yet accomplished on this earth. It has placed a rocket some 80,000 miles into space besides picking up valuable space data on its trip.

The rocket which the American scientists used was a modified Thor intermediate-range ballistic missile. The second stage of the Pioneer was a modified Vanguard rocket, while the third and fourth stages were solid fuel rockets. In the nosecone of the Pioneer were instruments to collect and relay valuable information back to the U.S. on the magnetic fields of the earth and moon, to measure the intensity of radiation, to record the number of micrometeorites and finally to take a picture of the moon's surface.

The problems which the scientists faced were immense, and all had to be carefully calculated for the Pioneer to reach its goal. At 3:42 a.m. Saturday, the Air Force launched the Pioneer into space from Cape Canaveral, Florida. As the missile soared into space it became evident that the Pioneer had strayed off its intended path and was travelling at a higher trajectory than had been planned. This was later confirmed when information relayed back from the rocket indicated that the first-stage engine had pushed the Pioneer a few degrees off course.

The effects the Pioneer has had on our country and the world are far-reaching. First of all, we have shown Russia that we do possess a rocket system of tremendous power and that militarily we have made great gains in the field of long-range ballistic missiles. Also, there is the political significance of this great achievement. Russia's propaganda program which has tried to weaken and degrade the quality of American technology in the eyes of the world has been dealt a serious blow. Thus the Pioneer has in all fields shown the world that this country is able and will lead in the fields of science and technology.

But most important of all, what should be the paramount significance of the Pioneer flight is that it has added and increased man's knowledge of space and has brought him closer to his goal in sending a rocket to the moon. The Pioneer is now on the doorstep for space travel explicitly what the name states—man and a new age is before the world.

Two years ago the Indians, with the longest winning streak in Pennsylvania collegiate football at 25 straight, journeyed to Williamsport to meet the gridiron rival Warriors of Lycoming College on their Homecoming Day.

This year Coach Ken Bunn's eleven will be facing the same situation with only the present 15-win streak differing and hoping that history will not repeat itself.

The Bunnmen figure that this is the roughest game remaining and possibly the roughest of the year because of the circumstances. Lycoming will go to extremes to win especially after the Indians' disputed 14-13 victory in 1955.

To date the undefeated Warriors have defeated Bridgeport, St. Lawrence and Albright and won't hesitate to add another scalp to their growing collection.

The Tribe will have to cope with an experienced backfield—All-Stater John Grier, fullback John Joe and quarterback Frank Agnello, all of whom figured directly in the 1956 Lycoming victory. Joe dashed 10 yards for the first TD and Grier scored on a pass from Agnello, who also added a conversion.

Bill Berrier, named to a first team berth on the All-ECAC team of the week, was the only backfield starter from the Alfred contest to retain his position.

Berrier played a terrific game scoring twice—once on a spinning 32 yard run—and gaining 85 yards on 13 carries.

Quarterback Dave Goodling took full advantage of his first starting opportunity and looked extremely sharp. Completing four of nine aerials for 57 yards, Goodling hit hard on defense, added two placements and took over the punting chores for the injured Al Dungan.

Juniata is ninth in the race for the Lambert Cup with the University of Connecticut topping the list.

The showdown between the Collegians and the Barons will probably be a fine pitching duel between the defending champions' Ron Tarquinio and the Barons' George Lindenfelter.

Soccer and an elimination handball tournament are the next intramural programs planned.

In college football, Westminster to upset Geneva, Wilkes to nip Ursinus, West Chester over Drexel, Gettysburg over Albright, Scranton over King's, Hobart over Alfred and Moravian to take PMC.

Bunn's Indians Treat Alumni With 28-6 Moravian Victory

Coach Ken Bunn's high riding Indians treated Juniata alums as they copped a 28-6 victory over Moravian College in Saturday's Homecoming highlight.

Bill Berrier, Joe Sopata, Skip Walasik and Dave Goodling chalked up the points in a contest which saw the Tribe dominating all the way to extend their win streak to 15.

On the first series of downs the Indians demonstrated a wide open offense as they marched 80 yards in nine plays for the opening score. Goodling's 35-yard pass to Ken Opipery and Harry Long's 25-yard aerial to Soptata moved the pigskin to the Greyhound's five yard line. Two plays later Sopata smashed inside tackle to paydirt. Berrier added the placement and the Indians led 7-0 with only minutes gone from the first quarter.

Not until late in the second quarter were the Indians able to spring Berrier loose for the most sensational run of the day as the junior fullback bulled, weaved, and spun through the opposition in a 32-yard touchdown scamper. Goodling's kick was good to make the halftime score 14-0.

Late in the third quarter Moravian took advantage of a JC fumble to become the first opponent to cross the Juniata goal line this season.

The Tribe rallied in the closing period as Skip Walasik tripped off 23 yards for the third touchdown, and Berrier ploughed over from the two following a sustained ground assault to add the final score.

X-Country Team Drops Moravian; Meet F&M Today

Once again over-all team strength was the deciding factor as the undefeated Juniata cross-country team downed Moravian, 20-35, last Saturday afternoon.

The Indian harriers gave up the first place position in the race to the Greyhounds' Terry, who completed the course in 23:-52.5. The next six finishers were Juniatians. This insured the Blue and Gold of its third straight win this season. Don Layman was the first of coach Mike Snider's harriers to cross the finish line with a time of 24:21.5. Herb Deuchar was 14 seconds behind him in third place.

The next four finishers were Galen Heckman, Bill Lafe, Ned Smith and Charlie Mack, who gave up his position in the official scoring to Moravian. To round out the first ten Moravian had Worman, Herman, Gunyak and Gross.

This afternoon at 3:30 p.m. here on College Hill, the Tribe Harriers will host the Diplomats from F&M in their fourth dual meet of the season.

Juniors, Sophomores Win Hockey Openers

The juniors and sophomores opened the women's intramural hockey league with opening week wins.

Diane Klebe and Bobbie Savage led the attack for the juniors, tallying three and two goals respectively in the 5-2 victory over the seniors. Sandy Rupenthal was the sole senior scorer.

The sophomores, paced by the scoring of Ann Hurley and Gwen Piggins, scored a close 2-1 win over the frosh, whose lone freak goal occurred when the ball glanced off defensive sticks.

Indians Meet Rival Lycoming In Top Eastern College Game

Tomorrow's game at Williamsport between the Tribe and the Warriors of Lycoming College is one of the top small college clashes in the East this weekend.

Both teams sport identical 3-0 records and both teams have displayed beautifully synchronized scoring machines in early season competition. Lycoming has rung up 85 points compared to a total of 29 points by Bridgeport, St. Lawrence and Albright, while JC has outpointed its first three foes 72-6.

In the last meeting between these two clubs the Tribe, riding a 24-game win skein, was dumped by Lycoming, 13-6. A similar situation will present itself tomorrow, with JC carrying a 15-game victory streak into the contest.

All-State Grier

Spearheading the Lyco attack will be All-State halfback John Grier who has had some of his better days against the Tribe. Grier will be remembered for his fine running four years ago in the Indians' 14-13 triumph on College Hill. Along with Grier in the Warrior backfield will be Bill Smith, a 165-pound senior speedster, and John Joe, hard-driving 225-pound fullback. Calling signals for Lyco will be two-year veteran, Fred Agnello, a dangerous passer as well as a fine runner.

The Lycoming forward wall, averaging 195 pounds, features 210 pound junior, Bob DelBono at the pivot position. He will be flanked on either side by a pair of three-year letter winners, Norm McGraw and Frank Agnello, brother of the Warrior quarterback.

At the tackle slots will be two heavies, Don Federall and Jerry Thompson, both tipping the scales at an even 200 pounds. At the end positions and on the receiving end of those Agnello aerials will be John Cox and Jim Miller.

Unbeaten Teams Pace IM League

Two undefeated teams, the Barons and Collegians, top the intramural football league.

Only two games were officially played recently with forfeits accounting for the other decisions. The Barons defeated the Cloister Squashers 27-7 and the '61ers dropped the Creamhousers 27-12.

The showdown between the league pacers will probably be next week for the league championship.

Fullback Berrier Paces Statistics

Fullback Bill Berrier is the Indians pacer in statistics in three major departments after the first three games.

Berrier is the high scorer with 32 points on five TD's and two placements. He also is tops in rushing and total offense both at 171 yard totals.

Dave Goodling is the ace passer completing eight of 23 for 102 yards while Bob Schwalenberg has completed four of 13 for 51 yards and two touchdowns.

Tackle Al Dungan owns the best punting average with a 43.8 average.

Chemists To Look For Club Emblem

The JC Chemistry Club is currently conducting a contest to find an emblem by which to identify itself.

The contest is open to all students and will close Wednesday, October 22. The person who submits the winning emblem will receive a one year subscription to The Scientific American.

Emblems must pertain to science, preferably chemistry and the design must be a simple one in black and white. Entries should be mailed to Ron Tyson, box 185.

Other areas that were discussed were the laundry facilities in the men's dorms and the maintenance of Totem Inn. It was made known that work in these areas was already being done.

Lycoming Game.

Due to lack of student interest there will be no bus going to the game tomorrow. Jim Heck reported that at the final count only seven students were still interested. At least 29 persons are required to fill a bus.

Also concerning the game, Chuck Brown reported that there would be no change in class schedules tomorrow morning. It was found that it was not feasible to shorten the periods because they would have to be shortened to a point where they would benefit no one.

Senior Hymn

Jack Rodland is presently working on a new Senior Hymn and Carl Wass will report periodically to the Senate on his progress.

Freshman class officer elections will begin next Thursday. Petitions can be obtained in Freshman Assembly Monday and must be returned to Carl Wass or Carol Teeter by Wednesday noon.

To allow men to report for active duty as soon as possible after graduation, seniors may apply for these programs at any time during their senior year.

'Sanforized' Labels Impress Collegians

One of the most publicized named on campus in the last few days has been "sanforized."

This name is symbolic of quality and the patent is held by the Cluett Peabody and Company, Inc. The popular belief is that "sanforized" and "pre-shrunk" are one and the same.

However, people who are connected with the clothing industry recognize "sanforized" not only as an established name but also for the basic principles the letters "sanforized" represent.

Witmer 'Now' Quote Tells Of Quaker Work

Ann Witmer, a second semester sophomore who spent her recent summer vacation on a Quaker community project in St. Louis, Mo., received the following comment in a recent issue of Now, official newspaper of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Missouri.

"She was in St. Louis as a member of an American Friends Service Committee Interns in Community Service Project. The group lived in the Christ Church Cathedral apartments and Miss Witmer was assigned to assist Marguerite Hyner, director of religious education on the cathedral staff.

"During the Inner City Churches Art Program at the cathedral she helped with the children. In August Miss Hyner loaned her to St. Stephens Chapel in south St. Louis, to help lead the Summer Adventure With the Church program among the underprivileged there."

Miss Witmer, who was a member of the Quaker Peace Caravan in 1956 and worked in the programming department of the Philadelphia regional offices of the American Friends Service Committee, transferred to Juniata from William Smith College, Geneva, N.Y. She is the daughter of the Rev. Frederic Witmer, Class of '30, and Mrs. Witmer, Jersey Shore, Pa.

UN To Establish Volunteer Group

Two-hundred and sixty-five persons have volunteered to serve at subsistence pay for one or two years in a United Nations Voluntary Service Corps when and if one is established.

Raymond Magee, executive secretary for Volunteers for the United Nations Projects, Inc., recently reported to the board of directors of the organization that negotiations are nearly complete for four volunteers to work in Morocco. They would be employees of the Moroccan government, and it is highly probable that their work will be related in a significant way with the activities of the United Nations in the area.

Such UN related projects are one step toward the realization of the goal of a United Nations Volunteer Service Corps. Another is the building of a file of volunteers to present to the appropriate United Nations officials to back up the idea of establishing the corps.

Several colleges have started VUN committees. "The price of peace is personal sacrifice," says the VUN flier.

The address of the organization is: Volunteers for United Nations Projects, Inc., Box 179, Cambridge 38, Mass.

Davis Reports To JC Senate On Brumbaugh Building Plans

Stan Davis, reporting for the building committee, told the Senate at its regular meeting last Wednesday that renovation plans in Brumbaugh basement will commence in the near future.

Included in the proposed remodeling plans are a women's day student's room, a kitchenette and maintenance of the changing room for the waiters as well as the faculty lounge.

Lawn Furniture

In conjunction with this report Davis also reported that there is no permanent outdoor furniture on campus. However, there is some at the North Dorm which will be brought out when spring arrives. Stan reminded the Senate too, that unless the furniture is treated carefully by the students it will be returned to storage.

The Senate suggested, in conjunction with the Ogre Committee report, that permanent benches be placed around the campus as a gift by future graduating classes. It was recommended that the classes of 1959 and 1957 look into the possibilities of obtaining such benches with the treasury reserve they have at their disposal.

Totem Inn

Sam Shore reported that the main problems in Totem Inn are at present the arrangement of the chairs and tables and the carrying of the dishes to the kitchen window. A campaign with the aid of posters and WJC will be started to help in eliminating this problem. The Senate also suggested that the hired help in Totem be instructed to aid in this general cleanup.

Also connected with the Totem Inn report, the Senate will suggest to the Administration that when the tennis courts east of Totem Inn are removed the area should be landscaped as a campus improvement measure.

Don Shover will be in charge of showing the movies of the Lycoming and Westminster football games to the Juniata students. Students will probably be able to see these movies next Friday night after the pep rally.

The Senate is going to check into the possibility of obtaining class excuses for all registered voters who wish to go home to vote in the coming state elections November 4. This is in harmony with the proposed Senate "get out and vote" campaign.

Also connected with this measure, the Senate will try to conduct a Republican and a Democratic Day on campus as soon after the elections as possible.

Two of the main attractions of the party will be the judging of Hallowe'en costumes and a spook room as part of the decorations. In addition to games and refreshments, there will be dancing to music on tape.

FIRST COME, first served is the rule at JC's library. The picture shows freshmen waiting in line for the library to open at 7 p.m. Reserved books for the freshman integration courses are at a premium so the frosh come early to be first in line. However, no one has yet been known to miss dinner!

Campus Sign Observer Uncovers Collegiate Subliminal Advertising

Sometimes it seems there is a deep plot afoot under the surface of the gay and enlightened lives we lead. And it is not a colony of moles nor a reactionary group from the other institution in town nor even refugees from Pittsburgh's hill district.

We, of Madcap Laboratories, Ltd., having conducted extensive research through questionnaires, espionage agents and a housewives' poll, would not go so far as to say this plot is dangerous. It may only mean a small amount of brain washing. If you have a small brain you're in trouble, but that's the breaks.

The plotters proceed in a clever fashion—they use SIGNS. There are signs on trees, in buildings and under tables — which is probably wishful thinking. These signs are fairly innocent, for the most part, for instance: JCA meeting tonight. No one would question the verisimilitude of any such sign.

Ominous Sign

But don't go way. What about this: The Masque is coming!? That, you must admit, sounds somewhat ominous. We noticed at least one collegian, who, upon reading this sign, shuddered, dragged nervously at his reefer and slinked furtively around the corner. There are a few who get the word.

Then there are the signs which slip in unexpectedly. The poor man's subliminal advertising. For instance, peeping out from an IRC sign the other day there was a small, but effective notice: Remember the Alamo! And of course, there was the sign on a JCA focus poster: Save Your Confederate Dollars, the South Will Rise Again!

And will you ever forget the Sanforized signs? We doubt it. But we hope you don't believe all that front about the business management classes, do you? We have uncovered a subtle plot by the pre-shrunk people designed to make everyone so sick, sick, sick of the word sanforized that the mere sight or sound of it will cause them to fall into a fit of apoplexy and rush out immediately to buy 15 pairs of pre-shrunk, left handed hula hoop covers.

Watch out for those organizational signs. Most of them urge you to join WJC, the dean's list, operation posy or the society for the reinstitution of Sunday afternoon listening hours. But there are those quietly subversive ones pushing you toward Dajumos, the Mafia, the Debate club, the War Hawks and various and sundry civic associations like the one planning to install street lights along the cliffs for the safety of collegians.

Mademoiselle Contest Offers New York Trip

Mademoiselle is now accepting applications from undergraduate women for membership in its 1958-59 College Board.

The magazine's College Board Contest offers a chance at winning one of the twenty Guest Editorships, a month on the staff of Mademoiselle. Those who are accepted on the College Board do two assignments during the college year. Assignments give College Board Members a chance to write features about life on their campus; to submit art work and fashion as well as feature, fiction or promotion ideas for possible use in Mademoiselle; to develop their critical and creative talents; to discover their own abilities and job interests; to win cash prizes and possibly publication for outstanding work submitted during the Contest

The top twenty Guest Editors will be brought to New York next June to help write, edit and illustrate the August issue. They will be paid a regular salary for their month's work, plus round-trip transportation to New York City.

While in New York each Guest Editor takes part in a full calendar of activities. She interviews a celebrity in her chosen field, takes in the theatre, parties, fashion shows, manufacturing houses, stores and advertising agencies, besides working daily with the Mademoiselle editor to whom she is assigned. November 30 is the deadline for applying for College Board Membership.

Successful candidates will be notified of acceptance on the College Board during Christmas vacation; the first College Board assignments will appear in Mademoiselle's January issue.

JCers To See Company In 'Oedipus Rex'

Players, Incorporated, will usher in the fall theatrical entertainment in Oller Hall Wednesday, November 5, with their presentation of Sophocles Oedipus Rex

The touring company of Players, Incorporated, which is currently celebrating its tenth anniversary season, has become the longest running classical repertory theatre in the United States in the 20th century. The theatrical company begins its tours in early October and is booked solidly through early spring, giving as many as 150 performances in this time.

In Oeidipus Rex the story is told of the downfall of a great ill-fated King of Thebes. The tracking of the murderer of his predecessor comprises a story comparable to today's detective story.

The Players have also traveled and performed in Canada, Arctic Circle, Japan and Korea.

Students To Give Third 'PPP' Party

The third program of this year's series of Prose, Poetry and Punch programs will take place in East Hall Rec Room Thursday immediately following dinner.

The program will include The Tell-Tale Heart presented by Mike Trigg, excerpts from All Quiet On The Western Front read by Stan Davis and Patterns presented by Joan Fyock.

All students and faculty are invited to attend. Light refreshments will be served following the program.

Mays Reminds Seniors Of Graduate Records

Seniors planning to enter graduate school next year are reminded of the admissions requirement of the Graduate Record Examination, according to Dean of the College Morley Mays.

The first administration of the exam will be Saturday, November 15. Registration for this test closes October 31.

Copies of the bulletin of information and application blanks are available in Dean Mays' office. Seniors planning graduate study should check with their chosen university to see whether the exam is a requirement there.

Community Choir To Give Program

The Juniata College-Community Chorus, under the direction of William Merrel, associate professor of music, has held two rehearsals for its performance of Handel's Messiah December 7.

The Huntingdon Music Club and the college are joint sponsors of the cantata. Soloists will be used but will not be announced until later.

Rehearsals will be held every Tuesday evening in the sanctuary of the Stone Church. Any one interested in participating is welcome to attend rehearsals.

Editorially Speaking . . .

A Cool Homecoming

SATURDAY night when the football team returned from the most important game of the season, the bus was greeted by barely a handful of people. This was the perfect time for the student body to demonstrate its appreciation for the fine showing the team made, yet, judging from the size of the group that met the bus, the students might have been indifferent to the outcome of the game.

Many of us remember two years ago when Juniata was defeated by Lycoming, the huge assembly that greeted the returning bus. All the students were anxious to show the team they were still strongly behind it. But why meet the bus only after a loss? Surely showing our appreciation after a victory is just as important.

For the team returning victorious to campus, being greeted by absolute silence isn't exactly great for the morale. So from now on, as well as sending the team off with a pep rally, why not welcome them back with some show of support and appreciation. JC students are anything but indifferent when it comes to football—let's prove it by rolling out the red carpet when the team returns from away games.

The Student Viewpoint . . . .

An Open Invitation

When the 1958-59 Social Committee met for the first time last spring, it was with great interest and enthusiasm. The members of this committee still meet in the same spirit, with a common goal — to improve social conditions on J.C.'s campus for you!

With this major goal in mind, we set other standards and began our work. Sub-committees were formed, action was taken and our enthusiasm spread. One notable accomplishment was the initiation of a Juniata first when we obtained permission for having a mid-winter formal. Plans for a winter weekend centering around this formal in February are now under way.

Needs and wishes of the students have always been our first concern. You have asked for more outdoor events, more parties, variety at the dances. These we have tried to give you. Thanks to Nels Griffith and his combo we even had live music at one of our after-dinner dances.

As a sampling of what you can expect and what you should look for in the future, let us mention some specific events. Next Saturday, the Masque has an unusual evening planned. November 2 - 8 has been decided upon as TWIRP Week and women's and men's houses have a TWIRP party planned for November 8. Also this year you can look for ping pong and pinochle tournaments. an ice skating party and two good movies.

You ask what this is leading to. We want to take this opportunity to revive your interest and to invite you personally to one of the events with the most "fun potential" of the year - the Halloween Masquerade Party tomorrow night at 8:30 p.m. There will be a spook room, games, prizes, refreshments and dancing. Don't miss this one. Bury your inhibitions and dig out your costumes. Come alone or bring a "ghoul" friend.

What, Me Worry?

(ACP)—"Sing ho for the life of the modern collegian! There is something wonderfully serene in the attitude he assumes during those four years spent in the security of the ivied halls. Something that is realy gratifying.

"In the face of world-wide strife, our student has somehow attained an inner peace. While the Arabs are carving their initials in each other and Governor Faubus is making a fool of himself, the student's soul is at rest.

"The world isn't really starving to death, you know: we're sending them money. I wonder how money tastes. AMERICAN money that is washed down with jet fuel or something.

"He sounds apathetic, doesn't he? He really isn't, though. He has places to go and people to see, man! Like big problems to solve! Like whats the easiest way to get a three point. Or, who is the best date in the freshman class? Or like how can I get a permanent chapel excuse?

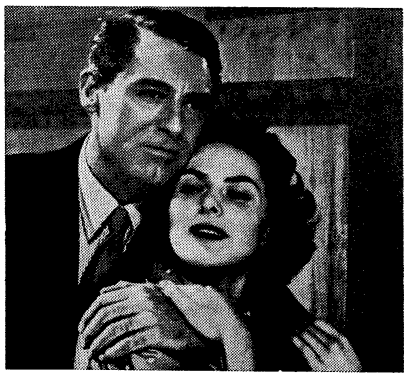
"But he'll solve 'em, these big problems, yessiree. And even if he doesn't he can survive, because his soul is at peace. In the face of any dilemma, if his own hide isn't in jeopardy, he will sit leisurely on his ivy league buckle and say 'So what? Tomorrow's Christmas.'

"We should publish a commemorative stamp, praising this collegian. We shall have his picture on it, and beneath the picture we shall inscribe, 'What, me worry?' "

—From Tan And Cardinal, Otterbein Colege, Westerville, Ohio.

Movie Of The Week

Indiscreet



Cary Grant and Ingrid Bergman star in the Warner Bros. release "Indiscreet," the story of a romance between a rich American diplomat and a famous European actress. The lavish Technicolor film, produced and directed by Stanley Donen, starts Sunday for 3 days at the Harris Clifton Theatre.

"WELL, YES, YOUR ENROLLMENT CARD DOES SAY 'HOMEMAKING', — BUT I'M AFRAID —"

ON Campus

by Don Miller

Probably everyone who does any kind of writing for a newspaper likes to know the general public reaction to his work. So it's always kind of a special treat to me when I hear someone comment about On Campus. Take for instance the other day. This coed (who appeared in last week's column) strides up to me, kicks me in the shin with her steel tipped sneaker and then coos, "You know, I've decided that I'm going to strive to make your column every week—as sort of a booby prize!" Well anyway—

Juniata Turnpike

The place: behind Cloister Dorm. A sleek, black limousine containing two well stack-er-bred females pulled up in front of a disinterested Juniata male and stopped. Leaning her head out the window, the driver, a blow torch blonde, inquired, "Honey, what's the best way to get to North Dorm?"

"You go right up the driveway there," he drawled, pointing to the Elephant Walk. She did!

* * * * * *

And how about the way contact lenses are catching on! They are so small that you can't see them and even your best friends won't tell you. One collegian has come up with the sure fire answer as to who does and who doesn't wear them. You tap your fingernail against their eyeball and if they scream, they aren't; if they don't, they are. Simple?

One girl liked her contacts so well that she swallowed one. Quipped one coed, "She is the only girl I know with a seeing-eye stomach!"

* * * * * *

One JC'er was remarking to me how a certain course he is taking is going to help him dazzle all his friends, and he proceeded to define (with the aid of said subject) the following words: "Chicago means skunk smells, and Schenectady means place of big beasts." How 'bout that?

* * * * * *

Memo to Black Tom: Don't fret, guy. Your reputation is still as good as ever. No one can take your place. Affectionately, The Business Majors.

That's it for this week. Keep cool and play it chilly.

Congressional Campaign Increases In Tempo — Herb Deuchar:

Eisenhower and Nixon Barnstorm—Within two weeks the Congressional elections will be held, and at stake on November 4 will be 33 seats in the Senate, the whole House, except Maine which has already elected its delegation, and 33 gubernatorial offices. This is what will be at stake; how the two parties approach this coveted goal is another thing.

Up until last week the Republican party was wallowing in a seat of defeatism and confusion. Its leaders were indecisive towards party principles and, most of all, hesitant in making a bold appeal to the voters of the nation. With many ill omens facing the Republican party, Vice-President Nixon set the pace for the Congressional campaign for his party. Nixon held to the Republicans Truman's campaign in 1948 as an example of how to win an uphill fight. He aimed his opening rounds at domestic issues, stating, "if the Democrats were elected they would produce a spending binge," as under the Truman Administration where more money was "spent on peanuts than on missiles."

The blast from the Democrats was a declaration on foreign policy, when they declared that in foreign affairs "the Republicans have given us six years of leaderless vacillation." This attack brought a quick rebuttal from the sharp tongue of Nixon as he stated that "in a nutshell, the Acheson foreign policy resulted in war, and the Eisenhower-Dulles policy resulted in peace.

This feud over the foreign policy brought criticism from both the Democrats as well as Republican camps. Truman stated that he opposes partisan attacks in the field of international relations and that both statements were "outside the limits which I hope both sides would observe." Both Eisenhower and Dulles reaffirmed Truman's statement on foreign policy and wished that it would be kept out of the political campaign. Nixon later flatly contradicted the President's stand replying "we have allowed people to criticize our policies and we have not stood up and answered them effectively." Before long both Eisenhower and Dulles had come around to Nixon's viewpoint and endorsed it. Out of this, it appears that Nixon will be in command of Republican campaign strategy in relation to foreign policy, as well as domestic relations.

The President and Nixon have given the Republican campaign a faster tempo to follow. But it appears that through this barn-storming trip across the country, Nixon will bear the brunt in both domestic and foreign matters, with President Eisenhower standing aloof from the partisan strife. Whether Eisenhower and Nixon can stem the hostile tide that is swamping the Republicans cannot be predicted; only the election results will clearly tell the story.

News Of The Week In Retrospect

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

Westminster, having already clinched the Western Pennsylvania Conference title, is the third straight team the Indians meet with an undefeated record.

This is the same team that Coach Harold Burry wasn't too optimistic about in pre-season even though he had 15 returning lettermen—a veteran at almost every position—and some fine upcoming freshmen backs.

The Titans have limited their opponents to 13 points in their four victories over Thiel, Waynesburg, St. Vincent and Geneva and rank high defensively across the nation to indicate that the Indians will be in for another real tough encounter.

Westminster may be faced with double-trouble tomorrow with Jim Berrier scheduled to return to at least part-time action after missing the first half of the season with a fractured wrist.

Nothing was more satisfying than the Lycoming victory. To sum it up in eight words — we waited, we wanted, we went, we won.

The smashing, bruising game proved to 3800 fans, including Governor George Leader, that the Indians couldn't be denied the victory and wouldn't settle for anything less.

The determined team, who holds the longest collegiate win streak in Pennsylvania at 16, jumped from 9th to 5th in the Lambert Cup race still behind Connecticut, Amherst, Lafayette and Tufts.

The high-scoring fullback Bill Berrier, easily chosen "back-of-the-game", is still in second place for the state scoring lead—unofficially eight points behind the leader.

The Indians front line played an extra good game against the Warriors. Though all contributed effectively, guard Bob Solomon and center Frank Rocco were cited for their outstanding hindrance to Lycoming's offense.

It was the Indians' Third Middle Atlantic win which allows them to share the northern division leadership with Susquehanna who also has the same undefeated mark.

Without taking due credit from the unbeaten-harriers, coach Mike Snider's boys outclassed the Diplomats of F. & M. for their eighth straight.

Displaying great depth, the Tribe took 1st, 2nd, 4th, 5th, 6th and 8th out of the first ten with sophomore Don Layman winning.

Art instructor James L. Thomas has been officially named as tennis coach for the coming intercollegiate season.

Indians Scalp Lyco-Warriors In Bruising Revenge Victory

Fired by the desire for revenge, Juniata's unbeaten Indians trampled the Warriors of Lycoming, 27-7, Saturday in the season's most bruising contest.

Coach Bunn's squad lost no time in turning two first period "breaks" into touchdowns. Frank Rocco's recovery of a Lyco fumble on the enemy 24-yard line set up the initial score. On the next play from scrimmage, quarterback Bob Schwalenburg moved the ball to the 11 on a roll out 'keep-play'. Bill Berrier and Skip Walasik alternated carries to move the ball to the one-yard line and Berrier blasted over guard for the six pointer.

Juniata's next "break" came when Lycoming's Bob Martz booted a poor punt to the Warrior 23-yard line. The Indians took possession, and Schwalenburg passed into the end zone where Walasik snatched the ball from the Lyco's Paul Motta for the second JC touchdown. Berrier's boot was good and the Tribe took a 13-0 lead into the second quarter.

The Williamsport squad rallied in the second period when a Motta to Jim Miller jump pass netted 39 yards to the Indian 14. Five plays later fullback John Joe crashed the middle for the score and Burt Richardson added the extra point.

Berrier Scores Two More

It was not until the final period that the Tribe broke the game wide open. On a sustained drive from the Lyco's 42 the Indians reached paydirt in 10 plays as Berrier again hit over right guard for the score. Schwalenburg added the point to make it 20-7.

Minutes later Berrier snagged a Warrior pass and scampered into the end zone untouched. Schwalenberg booted the final point to clinch the score at 27-7.

Cross Country Team Drubs F&M, 18-40

Juniata's cross-country team continued its winning ways last Friday afternoon by soundly whipping Franklin and Marshall, 18-40, in a home contest.

Don Layman was the first Juniata finisher as well as winner of the race with a time of 23:56. Galen Heckman was second in the meet as well as for Juniata with a clocking of 24:46. Dick Clapp of F.&M. followed Heckman across the finish line in 24:-30.

Finishing in a space of 21 seconds, Juniata's next three harriers sewed up the meet. Herb Deuchar came in 16 seconds behind Clapp and Charlie Back and Ned Smith were the next two JC finishers.

The Tribe harriers, winners of four straight meets this year, have a breather this week with no meet scheduled. The Blue and Gold gets back into action the next Thursday with a home meet with a highly rated team from Elizabethtown.

Sophomores Pace IM Hockey Race

Only one game was actually played in the womens intramural hockey-league which has the undefeated sophomores holding first place.

The juniors tied the frosh, 3-3, with Bobbie Savage scoring two counters and Diane Klebe scoring the other. The freshman individual scorers were Peggy Wise, Dot Meyer and Elanie Spences.

The sophomores, with two wins and no losses, recorded a forfeit win over the winless seniors.

Tribe To Battle Westminster In Clash Of Unbeaten Elevens

Tomorrow the Tribe journeys to New Wilmington where they encounter the high-flying Titans of Westminster College in a major battle of the unbeatens.

Coach Harold Burry of Westminster has his charges in top shape for the contest and has his eyes hopefully focused on his third undefeated season in four years. Now in his seventh year as head mentor of the Titans he has compiled the amazing record of 42 wins, 7 losses and 1 tie. This compares very favorably with JC's record of 46 wins, 3 losses and 1 tie over the same period of time.

In four games to date, Westminster has shown its ability to guard its own goal line as well as provide a constant barrage on that of their opponents. They opened the season with a 12-0 decision over a highly-touted Thiel outfit, then smashed Waynesburg 46-0, after which they posted a 38-6 win over St. Vincent. Last week they extended their win streak to four with a 7-0 victory over their top competitor for the Western Pennsylvania Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title —Geneva.

Bestwick Directs Attack

Directing the exposive Titan attack tomorrow will be Jack Bestwick, a pinpoint passer and a sharp signal caller.

Filling the halfback slots will be a pair of three-year veterans, Jack Barnes and George James, both regarded as top notch runners. Gerry Furguson, an All-State fullback from Shaler High School, is the only freshman in the lineup. He will be running from the fullback slot.

In a defensive line averaging 203 pounds from end to end the Titans will feature Dave Edwards and Fred Kilkes at the ends, Joe Fusco and Ron Opfer at the guards, Bill McConnell and Tony Smarra at the tackles and Glenn Smith at the pivot.

Hoopsters Open Drills; Five Veterans Return

Five returning lettermen were on hand last week when coach Doc Greene's basketball team began pre-season drills in preparation for the 1958-59 season which opens Dec. 1.

Pacing the returnees is the leading scorer and rebounder from last year, Jack Heading. Although not a regular until after Christmas last year, Jack Heading scored 338 points for a 18.8 average in 18 games and grabbed 192 rebounds.

Other lettermen include forwards Gordie Ewers and Mike Miller, 6-6 center Bob Ewald and playmaker Curt Gardner.

Armstrong JV Coach

Mike Armstrong, the only regular missing from last year's quinet that compiled a 10-10 record, was graduated but will be back this year as the junior varsity coach.

The Tribe wil play 20 games including 12 Middle Atlantic States Collegiate Athletic Conference games. Last year they had a conference record of 7-4.

Barons Capture IM Championship

The battling Barons used three long scoring passes to defeat the defending champion Collegians by a 18-12 score for the intra-mural touch football championship.

Paced by the passing of George Lindenfelter, the winners used Sam Shore and Barry Sipes on a stop and run pass play to surprise the losers on the rainy sloppy day. Shore scored two TDs while Sipes added another.

Larry Duffy tallied the two scores for the Collegians on a kickoff return and a short pass from Ron Tarquinio.

Freshmen Choose Juniata For 'Size'

The small college atmosphere which characterizes Juniata College, rated number one with freshman students when they were asked to check why they chose Juniata.

Ranking a close second was the scholastic reputation of the college, and close behind in third position were the college ideals. For their fourth reason, students placed a check that Juniata was superior in their chosen fields of chemistry, home economics, pre-med, science, education, music, pre-law, mathematics and Spanish.

Although a large number of students received scholarships this year, scholarship or student aid was listed in fifth place. Proximity or near location to home, its church college atmosphere and the lost cost of tuition, room and board, ranked in order.

In spite of Juniata's winning record in football, the athletic program was not considered important by the freshmen.

The most important media through which the frosh became aware of Juniata was literature which was sent by the college. Also 99 alumni, as well as relatives and friends who were former Juniatians were mentioned as influencing factors.

Student Voters To Be Excused From Classes, Bechtell Reports

At the regular Senate meeting held last Wednesday evening, Dean Bechtell reported on a memorandum that she received from Dean Mays concerning the coming state-wide election on Tuesday.

The following is an excerpt from this memo: "I would recommend that you honor requests for absence privileges on Election Day, subject to the following conditions. The student should make the request prior to his leaving to go home to vote in order to make sure that he is of eligible age to vote. Moreover, if a student can get home and back within a reasonable period of time, say half a day, no application need be approved. The assumption would be that at the most, for those at a distance, the privilege would pertain to only election day itself."

General Activities Committee

Chairman of general activities, Dutch Boland, submitted the following names for approval by the Senate to serve as his newly-formed general activities committee: Leora Furlong,Dick George, Doris Reed, Roberta Savage and Pat Varec. The list was approved and those people will serve as the committee for the ensuing year.

Building Committee

Stan Davis reported that since John Fike has been away most of last week, he knew little more of the Administration's plans for rennovation in Brumbaugh basement. Dean Bechtell, however, informed the Senate that construction is scheduled to begin this week. The old offices of the Rev. Mr. Rosenberger will be the new day students room. A lounge for TV and recreation will be constructed in the other available

JC's DAJUMOS To Meet Nov. 15

The Juniata Parent's Dajumo will meet Saturday morning, November 15, at 11 a.m. at the annual fall Parents Day.

This organization started two years ago. Da stands for dads, Ju for Juniata and Mo for mother. The organization has grown out of the annual Parents Day meeting which has brought the parents to a closer association with the campus life and the affairs of Juniata College. Through this organization it is hoped that there will be a better understanding of the aims and the problems of the college.

In addition to the two meetings on the campus at Parents Day and May Day, the parents are encouraged to attend the local alumni assiciation activities in their own communities. The parents will have a better opportunity to meet with other parents and also they will have the privilege of greeting members of the faculty. The president of the organization is Robt. Over of Roaring Springs, vice president is H. E. Raffensperger, Elizabethtown; secretary, Paul Hively, Williamsport and another member of the committee is Bernard Mattheiss of Baltimore.

JOCASTA and OEDIPUS are shown in a dramatic scene from the forthcoming production Oedipus Rex. The Greek tragedy by Sophocles will be presented by Players Incorporated in Oller Hall November 5. The play is open to the public. Juniatians will use their identification cards for admittance.

Players Incorporated will present Sophocles' Oedipus Rex in Oller Hall, Wednesday, November 5 at 8:15 p.m.

The 15 members of the company are graduates of the famous speech and drama department of the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. The group was organized and is still being supervised by the Rev. Gilbert Hartke, head of the Catholic University Drama Department.

The adaption of Sophocles' play used on the tour was written expressly for the Players Incorporated by Leo Brady, professor of speech and drama at Catholic University. Brady has also directed past Players' productions.

Marines To Arrive In Tote Thursday

A Marine Corps officer selection team will visit Totem Inn Thursday, November 6 to speak with interested students concerning the officer training program.

The Platoon Leader Class is open to college freshmen and sophomores and the Officer Candidate School to college seniors and recent graduates. The student stays in school and need not attend drills or classes except for two six-week training courses at Quantico, Va., for which he is paid.

A further advantage is draft deference and a commission when the student graduates.

United States To Give Exams Next February

The National Teacher Examinations, prepared and administered annually by Educational Testing Service, will be given at 250 testing centers throughout the United States Saturday, Feb. 7, 1959.

At the one-day testing session a candidate may take the common examinations, which include tests in professional information, general culture, English expression and non-verbal reasoning and one or two of eleven optional examinations designed to demonstrate mastery of subject matter to be taught. The college a candidate is attending or the school system in which he is seeking employment will advise him about taking the NTE and which of the optional examinations should be selected.

A bulletin of information containing an application may be obtained from college officials or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, 20 Nassau, St., Princeton, N.J.

Completed applications, accompanied by proper examination fees, will be accepted by the ETS during November, December and until Jan. 9, 1959.

Work Progressing On Fall Production

Work is progressing on the JWSF sponsored All-College Musical, The Boyfriend, which will be presented Nov. 14 and 15 at 8:15 p.m. in Oller Hall.

The Boyfriend, written by Englishman Sandy Wilson, is a new musical comedy of the 1920's. The play features both humorous acting and costuming, with the instrumental music being furnished by a bearcat band. Playing the romantic leads are Peggy Chidester and Terry Fouse.

Dianne Klebe and Sherill Edwards are the co-directors. Prof. Currier and David Weston are directing the bearcat band and the set, respectively.

According to Miss Klebe, the fact that the cast is enthusiastic and doing a good job reflects the attitude of the general student body.

Twirp Week To Turn Tables At Juniata

by Lee Furlong

GOTCHA! Well, not quite. But this scene will, we hope, be reenacted many times on JC's campus this week. It's TWIRP week, guys! This means the girls treat you to movies, cokes and dances. It also means it's your turn to wait by that phone!

Girls, here is the news you've been waiting for: Twirp Week, that week when you can let that man of your dreams know you exist, begins November 2.

So start the phones ringing in the men's dorms for the next week and ask the man or men of your choice to go to a movie, for a walk, out to dinner or treat him to a coke in Totem. Wednesday evening twirp him to the after dinner dance or go stag and ask him to dance.

For the big night of the week, Saturday, women's and men's house committees will sponsor a dance. More definite plans for this event will be announced later.

Remember during this week to hold the door open for your date, help him put his coat on and if you are going in a car, you drive (even if you have to borrow his car). Fellows take advantage of Twirp Week too, for it is one time when The Woman Is Requested to pay.

Doyle To Present Sherwood Works

Miss Esther Doyle wil entertain Thursday evening at 6:45 p. m. in the East Hall recreation room for the fourth Prose, Poetry and Punch program.

Miss Doyle will give a lecture on plays by Robert Sherwood including Abe Lincoln in Illinois, Petrified Forest, There Shall Be No Night and Idiots Delight. After the program light refreshments will be served.

Editorially Speaking . . .

A Three-Fold Deficiency

EVERY night around 7 p.m. the freshman reading room is a scene of mass confusion as students push in line to get the scarce integration course textbooks. The ones at the end of the line are usually disappointed, since there are seldom enough to go around. This situation should not have to exist, and we believe the causes can and should be corrected.

The librarian has pointed out that approximately six books have been illegally taken from the reading room this year. She feels that because of this the freshmen are creating their own problem of not having enough to supply everyone's demand. Yet we suggest that the books might have been taken because there were originally not enough to go around, this being the easiest and perhaps the only way to get the reading done. Five of the six missing books are Walbanks which are the ones most continuously in demand. We are not by any means justifying the theft, yet perhaps a larger supply of books would discourage and make unnecessary taking them illegally from the library. We might mention here that, thanks to the work of the student proctors, the number of such cases has decreased noticeably from last year's record.

In addition to buying more books, we believe increased cooperation on the part of the freshmen themselves would help to ease the problem. The librarian has pointed out that the reading room is almost unoccupied in the mornings and late afternoons. The freshmen might try to be more efficient in budgeting their time by reading between morning classes or late in the afternoons. This would help to relieve the evening congestion. Any freshman will admit that the library assignment system is prefarable to each student buying his own book for the three integration courses. Therefore, a little more cooperation on their part shouldn't be asking too much.

Naturally we request that the six missing volumes be returned immediately. This, along with more cooperation from the frosh and perhaps additional expenditures for a few new books, should help to solve the problem for the freshmen as well as for the library.

Procedure Perusal

MONDAY copies of the Judiciary's new hearing-trial procedure will be distributed throughout the dorms. We especially urge every student to read it over and familiarize himself with the new system.

The reorganized procedure, recommended by last year's Judiciary and now adopted as a by-law to the existing constitution, was formulated to eliminate wasted time and to establish a standardized system. Now after a referral is made to the Judiciary there will be a hearing to determine if there is enough evidence to warrant a trial. It will be well worth your while to become familiar with this and many other facts connected with the new system.

Naturally many students will never come directly in contact with a Judiciary case. But, nevertheless, as well-informed Juniatians you will want to become familiar with something as important as your Judiciary's trial procedure. If nothing else, it wil indicate the greatly increased responsibility that today's Juniatians have been given and perhaps make you aware of the duties that accompany these expanded privileges.

Pre-Dinner Deportment

ONE of the original plans for East Hall Rec Room was to provide a waiting room for students before going into meals. But lately the stairway and area around the door have become much more popular. Why this is so we don't know. At any rate, the stairs have become unduly congested while the rec room remains almost deserted. This is not only inconvenient for the students but also breaks a fire law.

Therefore we suggest that before meals students continue on through to the rec room which will provide a much more comfortable waiting area, especially with winter coming. Also there are coat hanging facilities by the far stairs that are going unnoticed.

The rec room is definitely a student convenience Why not take advantage of it, relieve congestion on the stairs and dispense with the problem?

ON Campus

by Don Miller

As I sit here writing like mad, trying to meet the JUNIATIAN deadline, I hear a knock at my door. Slipblade in hand, I open it expecting to find someone who took the heat in one of my columns. But it was only someone who had a joke for me. It seems a spaceship from Mars landed in France and the first thing the spaceman requested was, "Take me to Brigitte Bardot; I can see your leader later ! "

Ish !

Overheard in Tote

He: You know you look like Helen Green.
She: I don't look so hot in brown either.

* * * * * * * *

And then one coed expressed it this way, "He's so awkward he'd trip over the flowers in a rug! "

* * * * * * * *

From the hallowed halls of East Dorm comes this jubilant cry, "She got a date! I've got a date! "

"What's he look like? "

"Wait till I look in my yearbook! "

* * * * * * * *

The other night in the dining hall, a table of girls were expounding, as usual, on great things, and one girl in particular seemed to be monopolizing the whole conversation. She proceded at great lengths to criticize another female, ignoring her roommate who kept digging her in the ribs. Finally turning to see what she wanted our orator caught sight of the one she had been slashing, sitting at the next table listening to every word. With a groan she slid down in her seat as her roommate cracked, "Maybe some jelly would make your foot taste better! "

* * * * * * * *

How's this for a classification? One prof on campus has this to say about his freshman classes. "On Monday morning they are just like so many exhausted sponges! "

Frosh, to arms!

That's it for another week.

Eisenhower Enters Campaign Slugfest

IKE DROPS PARTISAN ALOOFNESS — Influenced by the reports of the Democrats heavily leading in the pre-election political polls and the Republican party treasury low in funds, President Eisenhower has embarked upon one of the most heated and intense political campaigns of his career. In conducting his attack upon the Democratic party. President Eisenhower has adopted the two-pronged attack that Vice-President Nixon has been employing in the early stages of the fall campaign. The two main themes of this attack are that the Republican Administration has a good record to put before the people, and that a vigorous and relentless attack should be made upon the Democratic party and its policies.

In political combat, President Eisenhower has proved himself an able and effective leader in lambasting the cocky and arrogant Democratic party. Last Monday at Los Angeles President Eisenhower attacked the Democrats by stating that "the Democratic party is two political parties with the same name. The stronger wing is dominated by political radicals. They are the ones who really challenge sane, sound, forward looking government in the United States. It is against the spread of this radical influence that we are waging this campaign."

From Los Angeles the President moved to San Francisco where he hit the influence of the labor unions on the Democratic party and also stated that "union corruption and these conditions must be fumigated." Eisenhower then wound up the first leg of his campaigning at Chicago, where he gave a nationally televised speech. In his speech the President rebuffed Democratic attacks centering around the recession issue. He flatly stated that "things are up and going up" and that the "radicals of the Democratic party were merchandising doubt and fear."

The President also in his campaigning has spoken of the "frightening alternative" as portrayed in the Democratic party, these being "ever higher taxes, ever cheapening dollars, sky-high prices, an economy harassed into producing fewer jobs, chronic unemployment, labor strife and fear of the future." Summing it all up, the President has instilled some life into the GOP and has raised its chances of success in many of the areas of political contention.

In making his decision to campaign in the Nixon-Truman fashion, President Eisenhower had to overcome two obstacles: his personal dislike of partisan combat and attempting to counteract the poor record of Presidential attempts to influence mid-term Congressional elections, past examples being the administrations of Wilson, Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower. The President also has taken a chance in possibly alienating Congress to his program for the next two years.

As to the results of this whole campaign it still appears that the Democrats have the apparent edge and will profit by the mid-term Congressional elections as American history has so ably proven. In the end, the most the GOP can expect to accomplish Tuesday (Election Day) is to check the Democratic voting from becoming a landslide and a rout.

— Herb Deuchar: News Of The Week In Retrospect

by Wally Berkey

The battle between the two giant small colleges in Pennsylvania proved that no two teams were better matched and the results seemed perfectly justified.

Although it snapped the Indians 16-game, all winning streak and both club's perfect 1958 records, it was a teriffic hard-hitting cleanly-fought game which will be remembered for a long time.

One game official remarked that it was the best-played small college football game he had ever seen while another said that neither team deserved to lose and was glad that it ended in a tie.

The Indians were handicapped by a few items that could have easily meant victory. In the first place it was the fifth straight tough encounter without a break and the Indians suffered a slight letdown after the bruising Lycoming game.

Another item of interest were the rules which the Bunnmen agreed to play. In the past, the Tribe had been playing NCAA rules which restrict substitution. Because of the great depth which previous opponents lacked, the Bunnmen, using two platoons, ground the other teams down in the first half and busted the game wide open in the second half over their tired opponents.

However this game was played under NAIA rules, which permits free substitution, because Westminster belongs to that association. The home team took full advantage of this by using liberal substitution whenever the ball changed hands, while Indian mentor, Ken Bunn, substituted as in previous games.

Although eager and desirous, halfback Jim Berrier was only permitted to see plays of action because of his healing wrist.

Westminster quarterback Jack Bestwick directed the Titans to three uphill touchdowns whenever the Tribe jumped ahead. Bestwick was the best passer the Indians faced this season, completing eight of 12 for 167 yards and two TD passes.

An unheralded freshman end Mike Kolitsky may have saved the game late in the fourth quarter when he blocked the field goal attempt on the Tribe's 14.

Ex-Indian Joe Trimber continues to be no less than seasational at California STC. Last week Trimber scored two touchdowns in leading the Teachers to their fifth straight victory.

California STC is one of the few undefeated, untied teams in the state. Only Bloomsburg and PMC, who is leading the MAC southern division, boast perfect records.

* * * * *

Undefeated, untied Amherst, who has allowed its opposition only six points in five games vaulted into the lead in the race for the Lambert Cup. Juniata dropped to tenth in the standings.

Westminster Deadlocks Tribe In Grid Battle Of Unbeatens

Westminster's mighty Titans, paced by quarterback sensation Jack Bestwick, staged a come-from-behind rally to deadlock the Tribe 21-21 in Saturday's grid battle of the unbeatens.

Three times the aerial arm of Bestwick played an important part in scores which gave the West Penn Conference champs a split decision. Twice the junior signal caller heaved paydirt passes to halfback speedster Jack Barnes and then engineered an 80-yard drive which resulted in the final touchdown.

It was Juniata however that opened up the scoring parade and dominated the field until the final quarter. Co-captain Ken Opipery sparked the Indian offense in the first period, snagging two passes for a 69 yard total, but it was not until the second quarter that the Tribe was able to muster a scoring drive. Fullback Bill Berrier led the way by taking a Bob Schwalenburg pitch-out and dashing 59 yards to the Westminster 30 yard stripe. Two plays later Berrier bulled to the 12 where Schwaly took over and scored on a roll-out around end. Berrier's placement was good to put the Tribe out in front 7-0.

It took the Titans only three plays to tie up the game as a Bestwick to Barnes pass netted 59 yards and six points. McConnell added the PAT.

Seacrist Scores

Dave Goodling's pass to end Jim Seacrist in the third period put the Tribe out in front again as Seacrist snatched the pigskin on the 40 and scampered to paydirt on a 75-yard TD play. Goodling added the extra point. Within four plays Coach Harold Burry's squad snapped back in familiar fashion as Bestwick tossed to Barnes for the score and McConnell booted the tying point.

Juniata's Bob Sill ended a sustained drive in the third period on a right end sweep over the goal line, and Schwalenburg kicked the all important PAT to again put the Tribe in command 21-14. Westminster, true to form, rallied with surprising strength, completely dominated the final quarter and scoring from the two-yard line to deadlock the game after a downfield drive of 80 yards.

In a final effort to clinch a victory the Titans pressed to the JC 14 where end Mike Kolitsky played the hero's role as he blocked an attempted field goal to make sure the state's longest undefeated record was not broken, only somewhat bent.

High Scoring Berrier Makes ECAC Squad

Fullback Bill Berrier, the Indians leading scorer with 52 points, was again named to the ECAC squad of the week by virtue of his performance in the Westminster contest.

Berrier, who could add only one point to his scoring total, rushed for 109 yards on 12 carries to pace the Indians offensive department and brought his five game rushing average to 5.3 yards per carry.

Dave Goodling took over several pitching honors with 13 completions on 34 attempts for 240 yards. Bob Schwalenberg has completed eight of 13 for 88 yards.

Bob Sill has the most receptions with five while Ken Opipery has gained 116 yards on four catches.

Tackle Al Dungan claims a 41.1 yard punting everage to lead the Tribe in this department.

Upset-Minded Wilkes Hosts Indians In Final Away Match

Tomorrow coach Ken Bunn's still undefeated Indians travel to Wilkes-Barre where they meet the upset-minded Colonels of Wilkes College.

New head coach, Fran Pinkowski, has had a difficult task finding a replacement for the departed Colonel star of last year, Ron Rescigno. In an effort to overcome this initial setback, Pinkowski has instituted the split T offense, a departure from the almost traditional single wing employed by Wilkes in recent years.

Thus far this season the Colonels have encountered nothing but a streak of bad luck. Shut out by four of their first six foes, they have managed to win but one game, an ECAC victory over Ursinus. In five ECAC contests they have tallied a scant 39 points while a weak defense has allowed its opponents 101 points.

Running the Colonel split T attack tomorrow is a southpaw passer, Jay Kubieki of Wilkes-Barre. The 6'1" field general is an elusive runner and is rated as a top offensive threat. At the fullback slot is 200 pound Bill Michaels, cousin of the former Kentucky All-American, Lou Michaels. And at the halfbacks, Coach Pinkowski will feature a pair of underclassmen, Marv Antinnes, 180 pound sophomore, and Tom Krisulevicz, 165 pound freshman.

The Wilkes line is fairly well set though it lacks adequate reserve strength. At the flanks are Ron Ercolani, a senior letterman, and Ray Marchakaitus, an untested freshman. Tackles pose no problem for the Colonels who have two fine players in Frank Sudis and co-captain Mike Dydo, both 60 minute "iron men" last season.

A pair of seniors, Steve Perkowski and Bob Yakovonus, will be called upon to fill the guard slots, and Al Dobrawalski, a promising freshman has nailed down the starting center slot.

Cross-Country Team To Face Gettysburg

Continuing its quest for an undefeated season, the Juniata cross-country team will engage in its last dual meet of the year against Gettysburg next Friday afternoon on the Bullets' home course.

Thus far this season the Blue and Gold's well balanced teamwork has spelled the difference in its meets. The Indians have continually given up the first, or other top spots to individual runners from the opposition, but have taken the other five places to sew up the meet easily.

Don Layman and Herb Deuchar have led the Tribe runners so far this season. A much-improved Galen Heckman has aided the first two. Rounding out the scoring has usually fallen to Bill Lafe, Charlie Mack and Ned Smith.

Sophomores Win IM Hockey Title

The undefeated sophomore women won the intramural hockey league by whitewashing the juniors, 4-0, in the final contest of the season.

Gwen Piggins led the winners with three goals while Nancy Werner contributed the other in the hard-fought battle.

The players for the Blue and Gold hockey teams have not been selected as of yet. The scrimmage between the two all-star squads will be the final hockey action planned for this fall.

Recently at the Hockey Playday at Penn State, the Indian coeds lost to the host, 9-0. The playday, planned by Juniata was forced to be cancelled, but plans are being made for one next year.

areas. The Senate will look into this matter concerning a location for a Senate office.

Inter-Collegiate Bowling

Chairman of athletics, Jim Heck, told of a letter that he received from Wilkes College concerning their interest in forming an inter-collegiate bowling league. The Senate will turn the matter over to the intramural bowling league, and if they have enough interest to go along with Wilkes on the matter they may do so. The only stipulations which must be followed are that such a bowling team must pay their own travel expenses and should realize that class cuts will not be excused.

Book To Present 'The College Years'

Hawthorne Books has published recently a 512-page book entitled The College Years written by A. C. Spectorsky.

Spectorsky has in his collection of prose, poetry, drawings and photographs chosen selections that capture college life in many different moods through six different centuries. Among other incidents, students riot at 14th century Oxford, the freshman advisor struggles with the eternal freshman, Shelley is expelled, the coed rolls her stockings to the knees and is pursued along the brick walls of the campus.

Some of the students, faculty members and old grads contributing to the table of contents are Geoffrey Chaucer, Scott Fitzgerald, Thomas Wolfe, William Thackeray, Ogden Nash, Jonathan Swift and James Thurber. The College Years sells for $7.95.

Department Sets Hygienists' Exams

The State Civil Service Commission has announced competitive examinations for three classes of industrial hygienists in the Department of Health.

Examinations are being held to establish eligibility lists for making appointments in regional offices throughout the state. Applications may be obtained from the State Civil Service Commission, Health and Welfare Building, Seventh and Forster Sts., Harrisburg, and should be submitted no later than November 21.

Go Now-Pay Later New Student Rule

"Go now—pay later," is the advice given more and more college students according to a study published by the College Life Insurance Company of America.

The study concluded that the establishment of funds to guarantee long-trm, low-cost, unsecured bank loans to college students is a revolutionary development. Loan repayments may be spread over a three to six year period.

Interest rates range from three and one half to five and one half per cent. Special legislation gives the minors full legal capacity to act in his own behalf and to be bound by his own debt.

State Civil Service To Administer Exams

Competitive examinations for public health physicians I and II, department of health, and for mineral economist, department of forests and waters, have been announced for early December according to Mrs. Ruth Dayhoff, deputy executive director, State Civil Service Commission.

Written tests for public health physicians will be held December 13, with applications due November 21. The tests for mineral economist will be conducted December 6, with aplications due November 14.

Examinations will be held in Allentown, Altoona, DuBois, Clearfield, Erie, Harrisburg, Johnstown, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Williamsport. Arrangements will be made for out-of-state candidates to take the exams at a city within their state.

Applications and further information may be obtained from the SCSC, Health and Welfare Building, Seventh and Forster Streets, Harrisburg, Pa., or at any of the following offices: Burea of Employment Security; State Employment Service; Liquor Control Board and State Stores.

12 Valedictorians In Freshman Class

The public relations office recently compiled statistical information concerning the present freshman class.

The survey showed that the states of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and New York and the counties of Huntingdon, Allegheny, Blair, Somerset and Cambria have the highest representation. The class includes three men and nine women valedictorians and 129 students ranking in the top fifth of their graduating classes.

The four main occupational fields, according to the survey, were liberal arts, chemistry, business and medicine. There are 39 varsity football and 44 varsity basketball letter-winners, 7 class presidents and 18 yearbook editors.

Boyfriend Nears Curtain Time

One week from tonight the house lights will focus on the All-College Musical, Sandy Wilson's The Boyfriend, a spoofing of the Roaring Twenties' musical.

"In spite of many dangling ends to be cared for and the numerous rough spots to be polished off", states Sherill Edwards, production manager, "the students, who are most responsible for this forthcoming presentation, are not only hopeful but downright determined to come up with an evening of sheer entertainment."

"Feverishly practicing their dances", Edwards continues. "the cast is being directed by Mrs. Alice Blaisdell, who has most generously given invaluable aid and much time so that there is purpose and direction in the dance routines. The cast, in addition to learning their dances, nas been industriously concentrating on their dialogue and vocal music." He further adds that the various technical crews and committees are "going ahead at full-speed in the meantime."

Prof. Robert Currier of the music department is striving to affect the particular vintage of Tin Pan Alley tunes that are so suggestive of the Twenties. With the initial strains of Do-Whacka-Do, The Bearcats set the stage musically for a delightful burlesquing of the period.

Assisting co-directors Edwards and Diane Klebe are Cary Shaner and Glenn Williamson, co-chairmen of set construction; Carlene Suloff, costuming; Marie Piirand, business manager, Pat Varec, programs; Cathy Smith, tickets; Betty Newbold and Charlotte Prugh, properties.

Schlegel Directs Community Study

A community study of Huntingdon is now under way by 15 members of the teaching of social studies class at Juniata

The study, planned by Miss Miriam Schlegel, associate professor of education is designed to "gain experience and learn techniques of studying a community." The students are determining how and who to interview and then will consider ways of presenting the material in five major areas; history, business and industry, education-recreation facilities, community services and government.

Admission Counsellors To Discuss Problems

Juniata College Admission Counsellors will hold their annual meeting tomorrow at 10 a.m. in Founders Conference Room to discuss this year's admission problems.

All admission counsellors are alumni of JC and now act as area assistants. Personal contacts and interviews are often made through this group by incoming freshmen.

The counsellors will be treated to a complimentary luncheon and will be given tickets to the Drexel-Juniata football game.

Senators Consider Judiciary Report On Auto Regulations

Chuck Brown, at the regular Senate meeting last Wednesday, read a letter from the Campus Judiciary which informed the Senate of the procedure adopted for handling traffic violations.

The Judiciary also recommended several changes in the wording of the regulations. These changes were agreed upon by the Senate, and the traffic regulations now in effect are:

1. No student shall be permitted to possess or operate an automobile in college except in accordance with these regulations:
   a. The automobile must be registered with the Dean of Men in accordance with the college policy.
   b. Failure to comply will result in a fine of $10.
   c. Failure to pay the fine within 14 days will result in Judiciary action.
2. No student with a resident sticker (blue) shall drive his automobile on campus between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.
   a. Failure to comply may result in Judiciary action.
3. No student shall park his automobile in any place other than his assigned parking area.
   a. Failure to comply may result in Judiciary action.

To implement these regulations the Judiciary has formulated a procedure which will be printed and distributed to all students registering their automobiles on campus. If a student fails to pay his fine for failing to register, the traffic coordinator will refer his name to the Judiciary which will in turn request that the Administration assess the $10 fine and withold the student's grades until he settles his assessment. A student who violates points two and three of the regulations will, upon his third violation, be notified that he has lost his privilege of maintaining a car at college for the remainder of the year.

Honor System and Proctors

Chuck Brown delivered a report to the Senate concerning his speech in freshman assembly about the honor system at Juniata. His main purpose was to acquaint the freshmen with the steps already made in that direction. He then suggested that as a next step in furthering the honor system, a chapel period be set aside and an outside speaker be brought in

Blaisdell Helps With National ACS Exams

Dr. Edwin Blaisdell, professor of chemistry at JC, participated in the preparation of the recently published American Chemical Society examination in general chemistry.

For his work with the testing program, Dr. Blaisdell was commended by the examination committee of ACA not only for his part "in a worthwhile professional activity." but also for the aid to "hundreds of professors who use these tests in over 1600 colleges and schools all over the world." A letter of appreciation for Dr. Blaisdell's efforts was sent to President Ellis by Theodore Ashford of St. Louis University, chairman of the committee for the division of chemical education, ACS.

Saturday's Dance To Honor Indians

The annual observance ofTwirp Week will end tomorrow night when men's and women's houses present the Twirp Dance in the Women's Gym from 8:15 to 11:30 p.m.

Centered around a football theme honoring the undefeated Indians, the dance will feature popular music from records and refreshments served in Totem Inn. General chairmen of the dance are Joyce Gillingham and Don Swope.

CJ To Institute Joint Meetings, Mock Trail Following 1959 Election

The Campus Judiciary held its second business meeting of the year Monday evening in the dean of men's office.

One motion passed concerned a leadership conference resolution providing for a joint meeting of outgoing and incoming Judiciary members in the Spring. A mock trial will also be held at the meeting for the benefit of the new members.

President Chuck Brown reported that Judiciary was due for a revue by the faculty. Points of concern include the following: the quorum should include one faculty member and student members not from the Senate, permanent records should be kept, open meetings should be held, any member who brings disgrace to the Judiciary should be removed. future meeting dates should be included in the by-laws, the rules and regulations to be carried out by the Judiciary should be clearly stated and the by-laws should be submitted to the faculty for review. A committee consisting of Janice Christie, Jay Maust, Ron Wertz, Chuck Brown, Bonnie Gunther and Dr. Rockwell was appointed to look into the matter.

The second motion passed concerned traffic regulations on campus. According to this new resolution, the traffic coordinator, upon registering the third violation of points two and three of the traffic regulations, shall inform the secretary of Judiciary. The secretary shall then notify the miscreant that due to repeated violation of the regulations he has lost the privilege of maintaining an automobile on campus for the remainder of the school year.

Upon the failure of a student to pay a $10 fine levied because an auto has not been registered, Judiciary will request the administration to assess the fee and withhold grades until he complies with this assessment. The Judiciary secretary will notify the student of this action.

Ellis Extends Invitation To JC's Parents

President Calvert Ellis has extended an invitation to the parents of some 770 students to visit the campus on Parents' Day, November 15, and "to see the interesting things that are taking place this year at Juniata."

A full day's program has been planned and a committee headed by Miss Barbara Bechtell has been appointed to carry out the details of the program. Assisting Dean Bechtell on the committee are Harold Brumbaugh, assistant to the president; Dean Paul Heberling; William Engel, director of public information; Paul Moore, director of the food service and the following students: Janice Christie, chairman of women's house; Ronald Wertz, chairman of men's house; Howard Boland, chairman of general activities and Carol E. Stiffler and Jane Herbster, head waitresses.

Special lectures will be held in Oller Hall at 9 and 10 a.m. when Dr. Crosby and Dr. Henry will conduct their regular Saturday morning classes. Following this part of the program, there will be a meeting of the Dajumos, the parents' organization at 11 a.m. in Oller Hall.

A buffet luncheon will be served for parents of resident students in Oneida dining hall from 11:30 to 1 p.m. Open house is planned twice during the day when parents and friends will have an opportunity to visit rooms in the various residence halls. Prizes will be awarded for

Editorially Speaking . . .

Success Through Subsidy

SUPPORT from the Administration seems to be the only way to insure a stable life or perhaps even the existence of a Juniata literary magazine, the Senate committee investigating the problem has discovered.

Members came to this conclusion after finding, first of all, that advertising would not be used. College literary magazines seldom solicit advertising not only because it detracts from the "literary air" of the magazine but also because merchants are generally uninterested in this type of advertising medium. Thus, one source of financial support was eliminated.

The second idea was discarded when the committee took a realistic look at probable student enthusiasm concerning the magazine. Not only on the Juniata campus is it felt that student interest in the form of yearly subscriptions is insufficient to financially support a literary magazine. Many new literary adventures have discovered this fact the hard way, ending up giving the magazine free of charge to the students. Thus the committee reluctantly abandoned the idea of support through student subscriptions.

The third idea, support through alumni subscriptions, also failed to provide a solution to the financial problem. Authorities felt that, although alumni usually are highly interested in current news on campus, their interest in student creative writing in the form of a literary magazine would be at a minimum.

It seems that many other colleges have come to these same conclusions, for their literary magazines are supported by the administration e.g. through student activities funds.

We would like to point out here, however, that most colleges do publish some type of literary magazine and that Juniata is definitely deficient in this area. Editors of Hanover College's Hill Thoughts and Shippensburg's Reflector have great difficulty in selecting which student contributions to publish from the hundreds they receive each year. These magazines are a credit to the student body and the college.

We ask both the Administration and the students to think carefully about this problem and then actively give their support toward starting a Juniata literary magazine. Prior to this, of course, we would like everyone to recognize the real value of having such a magazine on the JC campus.

Means, Not Ends

The fact that the student proctoring committee is functioning effectively this year and doing the campus a real service should not make us forget that it is primarily a means, not an end.

The system was instituted mainly as one step toward establishing an honor system at Juniata. Its chief purpose is not to catch cheaters but to show the Administration that students can assume responsibility in this area and to create a general atmosphere of student honor. Professors have been encouraged to permit the student proctors full administration of the tests.

Far in the future, plans are to eliminate the proctors for a full-fledged honor system. But many smaller steps must be taken before we can reach this goal. Therefore, we would like to see the student proctoring system grow toward achieving this goal and not become too complacent with the status quo. Active steps must be taken every year if we ever hope to see an honor system on the JC campus.

Right-Wing Reaction

A resolution on freedom of the college press was almost voted down at the National Student Association (NSA) convention held last summer.

Nearly half of the delegates felt that, although the commercial press deserves the constitutional guarantee of freedom, the same principle should not apply to the college press. Instead they favored such systems as complete control by the administration or a written list of regulations. They were reluctant to accept college press freedom with the major restriction being only the conscience of the editors.

The JUNIATIAN, which enjoys complete freedom, naturally is unsympathetic toward this view. True, there is the danger that a free paper may become merely the spokesman for the group in control, yet this chance must be taken. Otherwise the college press will lose its reason for existing — printing all the news, favorable and unfavorable, and accurately reflecting the opinion of the student body.

Movie Of The Week

Cat On A Hot Tin Roof

Elizabeth Taylor wins back the love of her husband, Paul Newman, in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof." MGM filmization of the Pulitzer Prize-winning play by Tennessee Williams. Also in the all-star cast are Burl Ives, Jack Carson and Judith Anderson. The film plays through Monday at the Harris Clifton Theatre.

"—AND, I NEVER LOWER MYSELF TO ARGUMENT WITH A STUDENT — I FLUNK HIM."

ON Campus

by Carol Baish, substituting this week for Don Miller

"No, no," I said. "No, a thousand times no! But to no avail. It was all too overpowering - - - that pleading voice, those soft brown eyes, that .45 in my back. So I gave in. I agreed to write On Campus this week while Don Miller spends long leisurely hours working on some skit he's in. It's called The Boyfriend or something. You know all that jazz about the Roaring Twenties, racoon coats, bathtub gin — (or was that the wrong thing to say?)

Mid-trms are beginning to take their toll on our otherwise serene campus. For instance there's the instance of a Tote bull session concerning the recent elections. A nearby coed looked up from some modern European notes and observed that now that things had changed she thought she'd just pay a visit to Washington D.C. one of these days. It seems she has about 95 little items to talk over with the President . . . . (or tack up on his door?)

And another girl was studying madly for what seemed like her fifth mid-term in two days. Her roommate crept quietly to the hi-fi,put on the record of Eddy Arnold singing Cattle Call and turned the volume up full blast. As the hauntingly beautiful refrain blared from the phono, the studious one slammed her book shut, jumped from her desk and tore out into the hall, screaming, "Listen, world, they're playing our song!"

* * * * * * *

It was a tense moment in the classroom. All was quiet except for the voice of the prof and an occasional exclamation as a pen ran out of ink. The prof, a rather verbose notegiver, anyway, was being particularly informative this morning, and his students were hard put to get everything down. Suddenly, in the midst of a complicated section on boundaries, diplomatic problems and what not, when the pens were going a mile a minute, the coed next to me grabbed my wrist and gushed, "Oh, isn't this exciting?"

* * * * * * *

And, in keeping with the general TWIRP atmosphere prevailing on campus, here's a little item from the wilds of East Hall:

How to Catch A Man (in three easy steps)
(1) Make him feel the need of a mate.
(2) Make him feel you best fit that need.
(3) Make him feel the time is ripe for marriags.
This is TWIRP WEEK — DO IT NOW!
Remember, there are differences between men and women!!

With that, it may be a good idea to close this literary gem. The word is: Sweat it not!

Geneva Conference Falters Over Test Ban

Last March the Soviet Union announced a unilateral test suspension on the firing of atomic tests. This, of course, was closely followed up by a heavy barrage of propaganda calling for the West to follow Russia's example. This propaganda was also intensified by the universal fears of radiation hazards . What evolved out of this was a meeting of Western and Soviet scientists to possibly find a method to check the firing of nuclear bombs. A consideration was resolved that a world-wide network of 180 detection posts should be set up, all this happening last July. That brings the negotiations up to the Geneva conference which began last Friday, with the object of providing an adequate control system.

The recent controversy is over the purpose of the Geneva conference and the terms for a test ban on nuclear explosions. The Soviet Union is seeking a test ban which would end atomic tests"forever". She has also turned down a Western proposal stating that "the United States and the United Kingdom are obviously seeking unilateral military advantages over the Soviet Union."

In contrast to the Russian demands, the West bases its position on effective controls to check a test ban. They will only agree to a one year ban in order to observe the "good faith" of Russia on a control system along with this one year ban, the West also wants an effective inspection and positive moves in the general direction of disarmament. Secretary of State Dulles accused Russia of stalling on the test ban because it found out last summer that it was"considerably behind" the United States in relation to atomic weapons advancement.

The latest clash occured Friday when the Soviet delegate Sernyan Tsarphin demanded immediate suspension of the U.S. tests forever. Then the Russians "will immediately discontinue its experimental explosions." James Wadsworth who heads the U.S. delegation restated the Western proposals of effective controls and general disarmament before any long range agreement would be made. The crux of the whole Russian proposal is to obtain a definite commitment by the Western powers, then only to stall over the problem of effective controls. If the West then repudiates the ban, Russia will make the most of it in the propaganda field. Thus the West will not commit itself until both sides have worked out all the details on a policy of suspension.

Russia has also tended to weaken herself propaganda-wise as she has failed to lead the way for a one year test suspension, after having boasted and bragged of ending nuclear tests last summer. As it looks at this point, it will possibly take quite a while before any general test ban agreement is reached. Even then there is no guarantee Russia will abide by it.

– Herb Deuchar: News Of The Week In Retrospect

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

Bill Berrier, already the highest scorer in the school's history with 230 points, is setting his sights on four more individual records.

In scoring 32 points - five touchdowns and two extra points —Berrier tied Meteor Mike Dzvonar's mark of 13 touchdowns in a single season and is just nine points below the college mark of 93 for a single season.

Boosting his seasonal total to 84, Berrier regained second place in the state scoring race, still behind West Chester's Bill Shockley who leads with 94.

Berrier's 175 yards on 12 carries was another personal high for the powerful fullback, who is now within flirting distance of two rushing marks. With two games remaining, Bill has rolled for 486 yards, which is 240 yards from Bob Sill's seasonal standard of 726 set in 1955.

It seems certain that next year Berrier will break the career rushing record currently held by Dzvonar. Thus far he has racked up 1268 yards, needing 295 for a new record.

For the second time Berrier was named to the ECAC All-East first team and tackle Bob Solomon received honorable mention for his fine all-around play against Wilkes.

With the addition of intercollegiate wrestling to the athletic program, a wrestling tournament will be held November 17-25 to stimulate interest and find prospective candidates.

Although this is actually an intramural event, the tournament will be supervised by Charles Godlasky, the newly-appointed wrestling coach, and Jim Heck, chairman of athletics. Interested persons, especially varsity wrestling candidates, should contact either person before November 14.

DOUBLE TROUBLE— For the first time this year the twin combination of Jim and Bill Berrier will probably get together tomorrow against the visiting Drexel Dragons.

High Scoring Berrier Paces Bunnmen In Wilkes Victory

Coach Ken Bunn's Indians had little trouble adding another victory to the state's longest unbeaten skein Saturday as they trounced the undermanned Wilkes College Colonels 47-0.

Fullback Bill Berrier led the scoring parade as he tallied 32 points on five touchdowns and two extra points to come within points of the state scoring lead held by West Chester's Bill Schockley.

Juniata capitalized on two Wilkes errors to gain an early first quarter lead as Colonel center Al Dobrowalski twice flipped the ball over the head of the punter Tony Korch. Tackle Bo Solomon snatched the first faulty center in the end zone for a Juniata touchdown while the Tribe picked up a safety on the second to take a 9-0 lead into the second period.

The Indians scored only once more before halftime as Berrier climaxed an 80 yard drive by breaking through a gaping hole for a 35-yard touchdown scamper.

In the third period the Tribe rallied to score 26 points against the outclassed Colonels. Juniata co-captain Ken Opipery recovered Paul Aquilino's fumble on the one yard line and Berrier blasted over to make the score 21-0. Within a matter of minutes Booming Bill picked his way through the center of the Wilkes line and dashed 71 yards to paydirt as Schwalenberg added the extra point.

Berrier scored once more from the two yard line and Harry Long added six points going over from one yard out. Again in the fourth period Berrier dashed 16 yards for the final score to sew up the game for the Bunnmen.

IM Bowling To Begin Friday, November 14

The Intramural bowling will begin Friday, November 14, and matches will continue every Thursday and Friday evening at 8 p.m. until the beginning of April.

So far the league is composed of 19 members and one more team is desired to make the divisions even if any team is still interested.

Teams included in division 1 are the 4 D's & C, Dutchmen, Harriers, Greeks, Falcains, Kingpins, Chemistry Clubbers, Saylor House, Admirals, and Spare-cats. The defending champion Pals, Holy Rollers, Four Chiefs and a Squaw, Highballers, Will's Gang, Senators, Handicap "5", Gutterballers and Champs are in division II.

Each team, composed of four boys and a girl, bowls two games each night and is credited with three decisions with the third determined by total pins. Girls are granted permission to bowl late provided they return as soon as the match is over.

Dragons Invade Indian Land In Final Home Stand Match

Tomorrow the Dragons of Drexel Tech come to College Hill to open the Tribe's final home stand of the season.

Coach Jack Hinkle brings his Drexel eleven here with a record of no wins and six losses. Their schedule this year however, has been a rugged one and they have made good showings against some of the best teams in the East. Among the small college powers they have faced Gettysburg, West Chester, P.M.C. and Scranton.

A lack of depth and an array of injuries have been the problems confronting the Dragons this season. Starters must be 60 minute men since there are few adequate replacements.

The Dragon backfield has a great deal of potential particularly at quarterback where a freshman, Jim Holden, has moved in and taken command. Holden, an excellent signal caller and passer has moved last year's quarterback, Tom O'Conner, out of his old position and into the fullback slot. O'Conner has responded to this change with flying colors. He is the Dragons leading ground gainer and can always be counted upon to deliver with needed yardage.

The halfbacks are Joe Zador, brother of former Drexel star Bill Zador, and Ken Suter, a speed merchant in his second year at the left halfback slot.

At the pivot for Drexel is their senior tri-captain El Schmitt, a real roadblock in the defensive line. Returning veteran Frank Garfolo and an untested Ron Miller are in the tackle slots. Senior Don Whitney and Bob DeColli hold the Dragon guard positions and Howard Bates and Bill Alter are the two fine pass-catching ends.

Layman Sets Record In 9th Straight Win; Meet Bullets Today

Led by Don Layman's record breaking performance, Juniata's cross-country team racked up its fifth win of the season by downing Elizabethtown, 22-33, in a meet held on the JC course last Thursday.

Layman's time was 23:12.5 over the hilly 4.3 mile Juniata home course. This bettered the previous record by 32 seconds. Dickinson's Howie Maat had set that mark in the first meet of this year.

The meet was in doubt after the first four had finished as Bruckhart, of E-town was second, JC's Herb Deuchar was third, and the Blue-Jay's Thome was fourth. The Indian's well balanced squad then proved to be the difference as they swept the next four places. Charlie Mack, Galen Heckman, Ned Smith and Bill Lafe were the Tribe finishers in those spots.

Today the JC harriers are in Gettysburg taking on the Bullets.

Ross Scores Goal To Pace Gold Stars

Bonnie Ross, freshman center forward, skillfully manuevered the ball through the Blue team's defense to lead the Gold squad to a 1-0 victory in the field hockey all-star game.

The all-stars were chosen by a committee composed of intramural referees and team captains.

The game marked the close of the intra-mural hockey season but following Thanksgiving IM basketball schedules will be posted.

JC Men Enjoy Twirp Week

It is Thursday night, the time — about 8 p.m. Our young hero is discovered in his room in Cloisters trying to study for that big test. But somehow, he can't seem to concentrate; his mind keeps wandering aimlessly. Several of his thoughts concern the after-dinner dance held the previous night in the Women's Gym. Would that cute brunette who asked him to dance call him for a Saturday date? Or would she ask his roommate because she had danced with him, too? These thoughts and others are worrying Mr. X since he wants to go out Sautrday night at someone else's expense.

The phone rings, but it's for someone else. The phone sounds again. Mr. X's heart jumps a beat as they announce that it is for him. Trying to appear casual and unconcerned, he bounds out of his room, knocking down his bewildered roommate and even shaking the hi-fi. He grabs the phone and trying to appear calm and collected, he bellows into the receiver a sweet "Hello," only to be somewhat deflated upon hearing a male voice. "Oh, Well! Better luck next time." he thinks to himself!

Again through the golden silence typical of all men's dorms, the phone rings. This time it's for the hero. His heart stops as he answers, and it is that certain brunette. His chance had come and he graciously accepted.

This sort of thing happened frequently in the past week only because it was Twirp week at JC. Once a year, the guys experience the same situation that the girls face 51 weeks per year and of course, the girls learn what it's like doing the treating.

Take advantage of this rare and golden opportunity and learn how the opposite sex reacts. It's never too late to learn! Good luck to all!

to discuss campus honor.

Also in this context, the senate secretary was instructed to send a letter to the faculty requesting their consideration and acceptance of the Proctoring Committee for final examinations.

Meeting Changes

Stan Davis reported of John Fike's concern for the changing of meeting places of campus organizations. The Senate asks if any organizations have a regularly scheduled time and place for their meetings and find it necessary to move, that they consult Fike before making such changes.

Stars and Stripes

Concern has been expressed to the Senate about the absence of the American flag at home football games. Upon investigating the matter, it was found that the Administration's heavy work schedule on football weekends prevented their putting up the flag. Dutch Boland was appointed to see if students would be willing to raise the flag on these occasions.

Mays To Conduct College Evaluation

Dean of the College Morley Mays is conducting a preliminary investigation of Roberts Wesleyan College, North Chili, N.Y., in preparation for a full-scale evaluation by the Middle States Association at a later date.

Dean Mays will serve as chairman of the eight member evaluating committee which will carry out the study.

Hettinger Attends Opening Of Library

Mrs. Sarah Hettinger, librarian, attended the dedication of the new library at Messiah College in Grantham last Saturday.

Representatives from over 20 Pennsylvania colleges were present to hear Dr. Edward Elson make an address about the necessity for committed Chritian effort to combat the crusading communists and the amiable nonentities of the educated world. He added that there is necessity for divine intolerance of the shoddy and unworthy as well as the more highly advertised tolerance.

The new library can seat over half of their student body and has ample room for approximately 50,000 volumes. There are also rooms for conferences, audio visual use and many other activities.

PPP Class To Prepare Future Presentation

Miss Esther Doyle's oral interpretation class has announced that it will not present a Prose, Poetry and Punch session this week.

However the class is preparing a command performance for next week's program. Selections and readers will be announced in next week's JUNIATIAN.

Parents Day To Feature Football Game, Musical

JC's FLAPPERS — at least, that's how they'll appear tonight and tomorrow night when these girls and the rest of the cast discard their Ivy League crewnecks, etc. for the styles of the Roaring Twenties. This photo, taken at a rehearsal in October. Photo by Fahrney shows Dolores Briggs, Peggy Chidester, Harriet Nichols and Carol Miller in a scene from the Boy Friend, JWSF's fall musical. Come see the finished production tonight!

Bechtell, Moore, Fike Report On Cafeteria-Style Suppers

At the regular Senate meeting held last Wednesday evening Dean Bechtell reported on a conference between the director of food service Paul Moore and John Fike concerning cafeteria style meals.

It is probable, according to Miss Bechtell, that cafeteria meals will be discontinued until the end of the Thanksgiving vacation and perhaps until the end of the Christmas vacation. The reason for this action is because so many students usually remain on campus over the weekends preceeding vacations that it is virtually impossible to accomodate them in a cafeteria style meal.

The Dean made it clear that the Administration is not entirely dropping this policy; rather it is just postponing it for a time until a suitable answer to the overcrowded conditions can be discovered.

Literary Magazine Committee

Carol Teeter and Dick Johnson, reporting on the progress of the literary magazine committee, informed the Senate that letters have been written to various schools asking them about their respectiv e literary magazines. The committee reported that it was the administrations of these various schools which financed their magazines.

Further action by the committee has been held in abeyance until more schools can answer inquiries made by the committee and until interested parties on campus have been approached for their ideas and opinions.

Keynote Speech

President Chuck Brown put before the Senate his idea concerning a keynote address at future Leadership Conferences. Such a speaker, preferably not from this campus, would serve the purpose of informing the delegates of their responsibilities as student leaders, and aiding them in providing for increased efficiency in Juniata student government.

Dining Halls To Serve 1000 College Guests

Students must eat in their assigned dining halls for tomorrow's Parents Day meals, Dean Bechtell, chairman of the day's activities, has announced.

Parents have been given reservations in either Oneida or East Dining Hall corresponding to where their son or daughter is presently assigned. Meal tickets will be given to the parents when they register in the Social Rooms Saturday morning.

Luncheon will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and supper from 5 to 6:30 p.m. Students must use their ID cards for admission to all weekend meals.

Since close to 1,000 reservations have been made for tomorrow's meals, Dean Bechtell has emphasized the importance of students cooperating by eating in their assigned dining halls. There will be no reserved tables.

Class To Present Large-Scale PPP

Prose, Poetry and Punch, after a week of rest, will present a command performance program in the East Hall recreation room Thursday at 6:45 p.m.

The group has scheduled its program for this week to consist of five selections chosen as favorites from all previous presentations this semester.

Our Hearts Were Young and Gay, performed by Bonnie Meadows, Gertrude the Governess, by Bill Lafe and Amy Lowell's Patterns, as done by Joan Fyock, are three of the repeat performances. Larry Landes will present a selection from Ogden Nash's Traveller's Rest and then will join with Bill Lafe and Stan Davis in the final number, Androcles and the Lion.

Light refreshments will be served after the program. All students are invited to attend.

Flaming Youth' Musical To Hit Boards In Oller

The All-College Musical, one of the highlights of the Parents Day weekend, will be presented in Oller Hall tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 p.m.

The plot of The Boyfriend evolves around Polly (Peggy Chidester), a 'poor little rich girl' who is enrolled in Madame Dubonnet's (Jane Brumbaugh) finishing school outside Nice. She is quite unhappy and convinced that all men are interested in her only for financial purposes until she meets Tony (Terry Fouse), a self-proclaimed messenger boy who has seen more affluent days and seems delighted to find that she is really a hireling of the school.

Old Flame

Polly's father, Percival Brown (Rush Hodgin), turns up at the school and discovers that Madame DuBonnet is one of his old flames. Tony's parents arrive too, the Lady (Judy Barrowclough) and Lord (Edward Jones) Brockhurst, and almost disclose his true identity.

A subsidiary romance involves Maisie (Vee Wilhelm) and Bobby (Don Miller). Hortense the maid (Bonnie Meadows), Dulcie (Harriet Nichols), Fay (Carol Miller), Nancy (Delores Briggs). Alphonse (Garry Pote), Marcel (Robert Martin), Pierre (Dave Gillespie), Lolita (Susan Tipton), Pepe (John Nicholas) and the Gendarme (Jay Gettig) round out the cast.

Showy Score

Asked to comment upon the production, Sherrill Edwards, production manager, has expressed it this way: "Blending the ingredients of a piffling plot, a showy score (The melodies are deliberate echoes of Tin Pan Alley at its silliest), consciously unnatural performances (actors, for example, staring at the audience while reciting lines to one an-

Juniata Plans Many Events For Saturday

A full schedule of activities has been planned for Juniata's traditional Parents Day tomorrow.

Registration in the Social Rooms in Brumbaugh Hall is first on the day's agenda. To give the parents a look at Juniata in action, Dr. Crosby and Dr. Henry will conduct special lectures in their regular Saturday morning classes at 9 and 10 a.m. in Oller Hall. Following these lectures, the parents' organization, Dajumos, will hold a meeting in Oller Hall at 11 a.m.

From 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. a buffet luncheon will be served in Oneida dining hall. The student dormitories will be opened for visiting in the morning and following the game.

Prizes, contributed by alumni of the college, will be offered to one double room in each dormitory and one single room in the women's residence dorm. These awards will be announced at the game and on the campus bulletin boards.

Afternoon Activities

Highlighting the day's events will be the final football game of the season with Albright College. Kickoff is scheduled for 1:30 p. m. at College Field.

Following the game, parents will be given the opportunity to meet members of the faculty on the mezzanine of Memorial Gymnasium. Cider and doughnuts will be served.

Dean Barbara Bechtell is in charge of the activities and has been assisted by Harold Brumbaugh, Dean Paul Heberling, William Engel, Paul Moore, Janice Christie, Ronald Wertz, Howard Boland, Carol Stiffler and Jane Herbster.

JC Student Shover To Address Sunday Worshippers In Oller Hall

Don Shover, a senior pre-ministerial student at Juniata, will speak at the all-college worship service Sunday at 10:30 a.m. in Oller Hall.

Shover, who is chairman of educational activities on this year's Senate, has also participated in football, baseball, intramurals and the ministerium. He has chosen as the topic of his sermon, The Hope of the World.

The all-college worship service, which will be the second of the series this year, was initiated last January 12. It is not meant to compete with the local churches nor to stand in objection to their services.

The offering collected is used for current expenses, anything above which is given to JWSF. The services are non-denominational and under the direction of Senate chairman of religious activities, Stan Davis.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Realistic Support For Radio

IT is a bit unrealistic to suppose that WJC can operate on $25 a semester — the present allotment given by the Administration to the college radio station.

When the station first came on the air, a small group of interested students was responsible for supplying most of the equipment — from their own personal possessions and from scraps they were able to collect. But now these students have graduated, the equipment is deteriorating and thus undependable, and the station finds it almost impossible to continue in its present state.

WJC's sources of income have become almost insignificant — after tomorrow no funds will come from football concessions, blotters cannot be sold this year as last, and finally, the station was not permitted to broadcast JC's football games this season. The latter was the main source of income last year. Consequently, the station was able to make many improvements, such as buying microphones, repairing the amplifier and the studio itself, buying records and subscribing to the Capital Corporation record service.

Broadcasting this season's games was given to WHUN because it was felt that WJC did not represent the college well last year in its initial try. WJC's announcers are not professionals, true, and they admit there was room for improvement, but they deserve more than one chance to prove themselves. WJC is the rightful and logical one to broadcast the college's football games.

Improvements made last year are no more than a sample of what it will take to put the station on its feet. An amplifier, a complete new console, two new turntables, a new cartridge, new broadcast microphones and 80 more feet of coaxial cable to reach East Hall are a few things WJC needs desperately.

A standard reply to WJC's repeated requests for more money are "you haven't proved yourself yet." The station will never be able to "prove itself" until it has a firm basis on which to grow. In a case like this, pulling yourself up by your own bootstraps just doesn't work.

WJC managers are confident that given a healthy start by way of a loan or a grant from the Administration, the station could eventually become self-supporting and a profit making organization. But someone must give them a decent start. The JUNIATIAN joins with WJC in requesting some reasonable aid from the Administration.

Welcome, Parents

THE JUNIATIAN welcomes all parents to the Juniata campus this weekend. We hope as a result you will become better acquainted with the college that is playing such an important part in the lives of your sons and daughters.

If you arrive early, we urge you to visit classes, talk to the profs and also to attend the Dajumo meeting at 11 a.m. Here are other ways to show your interest in Juniata in addition to sending that semi-annual check.

Saturday's activities have been planned especially with you in mind — we hope you enjoy them and have a pleasant day on the campus.

In Praise Of The Players

TONIGHT'S opening performance of the student musical, The Boyfriend, represents five hectic weeks of intensive work for cast, directors and crew. Only because of the unfaltering enthusiasm of the students was it decided to attempt a finished production in five weeks—a comparatively short time for the amount of work that was required.

We would like to express our appreciation to the many people who made possible this Parents Day production which at one time was little more than a dream —to Mrs. Blaisdell for her work with the choreography, Prof. Currier with the music, Mr. Weston, the acting, co-directors Diane Klebe and Sherill Edwards, the many technical crews and committees and of course the cast itself.

We are confident that the production will be enjoyed by students and parents alike and will prove a credit to the college. Good luck to all at tonight's opening!

Movie Of The Week

The Naked And The Dead

Aldo Ray and Barbara Nichols play a love scene on a hay pile in "The Naked and the Dead," which opens Thursday, November 20 at the Harris Clifton Theatre. Also co-starred in the film, based on the celebrated World War II novel are Cliff Robertson, Raymond Massey and Lili St. Cyr. The picture is in Technicolor.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS — by Dick Bibler

ON Campus

by Carol Baish, substituting this week for Don Miller

Hello out there. We're back again this week with more about the three r's—reading, 'riting and raunch from on, in and around campus.

Word has it that Juniata will institute a trash perception test for future maintenance crews. The case of the burned flats broke Monday when somebody took the scenery from acts two and three of The Boy Friend for rubbish! What about printing two sets of stickers ,one reading BURN THIS, the other, DO NOT BURN THIS. They could be licked and slapped quickly on pieces of equipment, etc. Oh, we'll beat these problems yet!

Twirp Week News

Two JC girls twirped their guys to dinner and the movies Saturday night. Over a lavish spread at a local hangout, plans were made to go to one of the fellows' homes for something to eat after the show. One coed, tackling a lobster dinner, groaned, "Oh good grief, I'm wearing the wrong girdle!"

* * * * * * * * * *

Themes have been written on everything from The Psychological Effects of the Hula Hoop on Seven-Year-Olds to Advanced and Applied Ancient Egyptian Basket-Weaving. To this list must be added the latest suggestion from somewhere in Students Hall: Economic Views of the Minor Prophets.

(Is it true that the business majors are auditing Biblical history next semester?)

* * * * * * * * * *

The Boyfriend

At practice one afternoon one member of a dance team was berating his partner for her lack of fire in a fast tango number. "Oh I'm sorry," she sighed, "but I'm sexy only at night."

And at rehearsal Tuesday night, there was Boswell adding a deep, mellow bass note to a duet between Peggy Chidester and Terry Fouse. Maybe he's reincarnated Brooks Atkinson.

* * * * * * * * * *

Then there's the coed who streaked frantically out of East Hall in all directions at once screaming over her shoulder, "I have a term paper to write and a mid-term to study for and three meetings to go to and I don't even have time to make out a schedule of things to do!"

And with this note I will close and race off in all directions along with everyone else about this time of the year. It's been real!

Aftermath Of The Democratic Landslide

THE LANDSLIDE AND IT'S SIGNIFICANCE — Not since the Great Depression have the Democrats had such a commanding lead in Congress. With last Tuesday's elections the Democratic party swept the board and in almost every state won out. When the count was in, the Democrats had 62 seats in the Senate to the Republican's 34 seats; in the House of Representatives the Democrats obtained 281 seats while the Republicans only claimed 153 seats. As for the Governorships the Democrats obtained 33 while the Republicans won only 14. Thus the Democratic victory was nation-wide and clearly decisive. They had acquired an easy 2/3 majority in both Houses, and had almost grabbed 3/4 of the gubernatorial offices.

The reasons for this Republican defeat seem to be centered around these general points: the policies of the Republicans in relation to the recession, the farm issues, labor and the role of the U. S. in foreign affairs. Also there was the fact that the Republican party did not campaign effectively and did not have the hard-hitting political leadership of President Eisenhower. Then, too, the middle of the road policies of the Administration have not satisfied the electorate; thus a majority of liberal Democrats have been placed in Congress which means a shift from the middle to the left.

With this liberal Democratic Congress there is the almost certain possibility that the President may come to blows with his new Congress. The new Congress may attack the Administration's domestic and foreign policies and attempt to curb and control them. There will also be more pressure brought to bear on the majority leaders in both Houses to initiate legislation which will have a clear Democratic stamp on it, rather than the present bipartisan policy. Thus in the two years that lie ahead there is the possibility of a stalemate struggle between the Republican executive and Democratic legislative branches of our government. If this happens a "lameduck Congress" will reside until 1960.

The 1958 elections also played an important part in the aspirations of many future Presidential candidates for 1960. On the Democratic side, the stock of John Kennedy and Stuart Symington has risen with their impressive Senatorial victories. Also Adlai Stevenson strengthened his hold on the Democratic party with his hard-hitting campaign for the Democratic drive. There are also the two "sleeper" possibilities of Lyndon Johnson and Robert Meyner. Averell Harriman lost his gubernatorial bid in New York, and this smashed his hopes for the Democratic nomination.

The man who ended his Presidential dream was Nelson Rockefeller who now becomes a new and fresh possible choice for the Republican party. Then there is Vice-President Nixon who apparently still holds the lead in the ranks of the Republican party. Although he still commands the top succession choices, Nixon has also definitely placed doubts in the minds of many of the top party men with his poor showing after the campaign and election. Thus the 1958 Congressional election has given the country a liberal Congress and the two parties new candidates for possible Presidential nominations, who in some cases have strengthened their position for the 1960 sweepstakes.

News Of The Week In Retrospect

— Herb Deuchar:

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

Both the football and cross-country teams can finish their second straight undefeated season tomorrow with only Albright College standing as an obstacle.

The harriers have a 6-04 record and a string of ten straight victories. The once-tied footballers will be playing their 20th consecutive game without a defeat and have 26 straight victories on College Field.

The visiting Albright Lions, who despite their 1-5-1 record against good competition, have managed to score at least one touchdown per game. They have scored 97 points to their opposition's 128.

Coach John Potsklan's eleven boasts a veteran backfield including a fine senior quarterback, Frank Suddock, who has thrown several TD passes this year.

The Indians' didn't have any trouble scalping the visiting Drexel Dragons. Almost four full platoons were used with each scoring at least once.

Halfback Bob Sill, the only JC Dad in tomorrow's Parents Day clash, paced the heavy offensive attack. The Indians scored eight times and rolled well over 500 yards with Sill scoring thrice and gaining 166 yards on six carries. Sill and tackle Bob Solomon received honorable mention on this week's ECAC team.

The win, along with Susquehanna's defeat by Wagner, put the Indians in undisputed first place in the MAC Northern Division standings. However despite the impressive win they dropped to ninth in the Lambert Cup race with powerful Buffalo still number one.

Bill Berrier has one more chance to break the seasonal scoring record of 93 points. Limited to seven points Saturday, Berrier fell far behind WC's Bill Shockley but scored his 14th touchdown of the season—a new record and raised his seasonal total to 91.

Look for forwards Jack Heading and Gordie Ewers, guards Curt Gardner and Don Burnich and 6-6 center Bob Ewald to open tomorrow morning against the powerful Dukes.

Intramural bowling opens its long schedule tonight with ten teams in action. The schedule includes 4 D's & C-Chem Clubbers. Champs — Highballers, Pals-Senators, Kinkpins-Spare Cats and Holy Rollers-Wills Gang playing at 9 p.m. in the new Mill Creek alleys.

Predictions: Lycoming to upend Geneva, Westminster to close unbeaten season with a big win over Carnegie Tech, Scranton to win fifth straight over Wilkes easily, Moravian over Wagner and Western Maryland to leave Drexel winless.

SILL SCAMPERS—Halfback Bob Sill is shown here at the beginning of one of his long touchdown runs. Sill scored three touchdowns in the Indians' 52-0 victory over Drexel Tech.

Sill Leads Tribe Over Drexel For 26th Straight Home Win

Senior halfback Bob Sill romped for 166 yards and three touchdowns Saturday to pace the Tribe in its 52-0 conquest of the Dragons of Drexel Tech for their 26th straight victory on College Field.

It was Bill Berrier who opened up the Juniata scoring parade as he bolted over from the one-yard line climaxing a 78 yard drive to put the Indians out in front 6-0 with less than six minutes expired in the first period. Then Sill broke loose, demonstrating the form which won him the college rushing record three years ago. From the Juniata 15 yard stripe he hit center on a crossbuck and raced to paydirt 85 yards away.

Harry Long turned end from the two for the third JC score following a 44 yard Dave Goodling to Jim Seacrist aerial. Sill scored once more before halftime as he snagged Bob Schwalenburg's pass good for 57 yards and six points to make the halftime count Juniata 26, Drexel 0.

With five minutes gone from the third period Sill again shot up the middle to score—this time from 67 yards out. Goodling then tallied on a 40 yard roll-out to bring the score to 39-0. Freshman speedster Phil Rohm carried 62 yards to the five in the fourth period and Pete Sellers, three plays later, smashed over from the one. Steve Barczy copped the final Juniata touchdown as he intercepted a Drexel pass on the last play of the game and went 36 yards to paydirt.

Schwalenburg, Goodling, Berrier and Bechtel added the PAT which figured in the final 52-0 score.

Co-captains Sill Play Final Game

Co-Captains Ken Opipery and Joe Soptata and halfback Bob Sill will be making their final appearance for the Blue and Gold in tomorrow's contest with Albright College.

In four years of competition none of the three-year lettermen boasts more than one team loss in his career.

Bob Sill, whose football career was interrupted by a mononucleosis illness, currently holds the one year rushing record which he established as a member of the Tangerine Bowl team in 1955.

To date Sill has gained 1392 net yards on 279 carries, scored 15 touchdowns and received 20 passes for 311 yards.

A consistent performer on both offense and defense at the terminal, Opipery is responsible for 13 receptions and two touchdowns in his career.

The shifty Sopata has accounted for 487 yards on 122 carries, scored 48 points and caught six passes in four years.

Indians Battle Albright Lions In Parents Day Pigskin Clash

Albright College's roaring Lions face Juniata's undefeated Indians tomorrow as the Tribe brings down the curtain on the 1958 grid season.

Seven returning lettermen form the nucleus of the Lions who have compiled the unenviable record of one win, five losses and a tie. Although lack of depth has proven a fatal factor to Coach John Potsklan's charges this season, the Lions field an impressive starting team.

Senior Frank Sudock again takes the reins at the quarterback slot. An excellent passer, Sudock is the Lion's leading offensive threat. Veteran Gerald Bricker is the Albright bread-and-butter runner at the fullback slot while Mike Varano and Mike Matto will probably gain the starting nod at halfback positions.

Five lettermen give good balance to the Lion's forward wall. Former center Jim Doremus has been shifted to guard where he shares the duties with sophomore Robert Meyer, while junior letterman Tony LoSapio holds down the pivot spot. Claude Lynch lends his experience at end again this season along with freshman standout Gary Sheeler. At the tackle posts Albright boasts a pair of durables, George Reagan and converted guard George Seighman. Seighman and Reagan will probably pull the starting assignments but will have adequate backing in Harold Miller and Bill Ballentine.

Albright holds the edge in the series between the two schools with a mark of six wins and one loss.

Cross-Country Team Defeats Gettysburg

Minus two of its regular runners, the Juniata cross-country team raced to its sixth victory of the season by defeating Gettysburg, 23-36, at Gettysburg last Friday.

Herb Deuchar was the winner and thus led the way to the Indians' tenth straight win over a two year span. He was timed at 17:10 for the little-over-three mile course. Deuchar was followed by the home team's Martin. Juniata's Charlie Mack grabbed the third spot and the Bullet's Hertzler was fourth. To sew up the meet, Juniata took the fifth, sixth and seventh places.

Tomorrow the undefeated JC harriers will take on Albright in a meet that will be run here just prior to the JC-Albright football game.

Hoopsters To Battle Duquesne Tomorrow

Coach Doc Greene's hoopsters will get their first taste of intercollegiate competition this year when they entertain visiting Duquesne University tomorrow.

The Dukes, always a top-notch national quintet, make a Penn State appearance tonight and will be here tomorrow morning at 11 a. m. for an open scrimmage with the Indians.

Senators Propose Campaigns Rally

ed a resolution to recommend the acceptance of such a procedure to future Senates.

A proposal was introduced that aspirants for Senate offices in future campus-wide elections be given an opportunity to present their platforms, ideas and qualifications to the student body in a general rally during their campaigns. Such a rally would conceivably result in more intelligent voting by the student body.

A committee of Dutch Boland, Sandy Johnston and Sam Shore will investigate the proposal further.

The Senate voted to appropriate the necessary funds to send Juniata's National Student Association coordinator, Ron Vinson, to the regional conference of the NSA. The conference is to be held at Temple University November 21, 22 and 23.

Committees To Plan JCA Christmas Party

JC couples will treat the underprivileged youngsters of this area to the annual Christmas party December 13 at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial Gym, according to Anne Scheib, chairman of correspondence for the event.

The JCA-sponsored party is held every year at Juniata to provide an evening of games, gifts and entertainment for these children, Chairmen of this year's party include Jane Herbster, general chairman; Cathy Smith, entertainment and Judy Wernsing, refreshments.

Couples who wish to take a child to the party may sign up on the bulletin board in Founders Hall from today until November 26. Names and addresses will be ready by the end of the first week of December.

Nagao Wins Prize As Prime Orator

Pauline Nagao, a freshman pre-med student from Seabrook, New Jersey, was recently acclaimed national champion orator of the Japanese American Citizens League at its convention in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Her memorized 12-minute discourse on What the Japanese American Citizens League Means To Youth Today was unanimously voted the best by the three judges of the contest.

Competing in the national contest were the winners in pre-convention contests from seven district councils of the Japanese American Citizens League. As the winner, Pauline received a prize of $200 and a trophy.

Students To Give Piano Workshop

The music department will present a piano workshop next Thursday at 7 p.m. in Swigart Hall.

Among those playing are Lois Dunlap and Kathleen Kimmel. The purpose of the workshop program is to give the students poise and practice in playing before an audience; it is not meant to foster accomplished performances. The workshops, infomal in atmosphere, also include discussions of the composers, the eras in which they worked and the compositions themselves.

other), there comes forth a concoction that is a musical play like none that has ever been or ever will be.

"The All-College Musical is not a devastating burlesque of either the musical shows of the Twenties or of the manners and morals of that era. So the enjoyment of satire is not experienced. There is no superior awareness intellectually that a dramatic form once cherished is obviously ridiculous now. Gangsters, gin parties, millionaire "sugar daddies," symbolic touches that have become almost ritual in such productions, are not present. But, suggestion of these tenets is ever present."

News Agency To Offer Foreign Summer Jobs

The American Student Information Service, located in Limburg, Germany, has announced that it will again have jobs to offer American college students who wish to work in Europe next summer.

The ASIS is a non-profit organization whose main purpose is to promote closer relations and understanding between the future leaders of Europe and America.

Farm, construction and forestry jobs are available to anyone who desires to broaden his European travel experiences. They provide free room and board plus a small amount of spending money. The technical jobs are available only to those students who are qualified through past experience of study. The jobs pay approximately $100 per month, but the students must provide their room and board.

Students interested in working in Europe must join the ASIS at a cost of $12. In addition the organization must have the students' college address, age, sex, course of study, previous work experience and the date the student wishes to begin working.

Information may be obtained from the ASIS, whose mailing address is Josef Ludwig St. 4a, Limburg Lahn, Germany, or from the college placement service. Students should apply early to assure themselves a job of their choice.

Scot To Establish Britain-USA Club

H. Henry, a Scot working as a civil servant in London, England, has by letter requested the JUNIATIAN to publicize an Anglo-American Pen Club that he is organizing.

Henry writes, "I have started the above club to enable young people in American and Britain to get to know each other better, exchange ideas, magazines, etc. I already have a long list of young Britons who are eager to make pen friends in America but my difficulty is putting them in touch with young Americans of similar interests."

During World War II Henry was a radio operator in the British Merchant Navy and visited the United States several times. He asks all interested persons to write to H. Henry, 38 Crawford Street, London, W. 1.

Alfarata Reports On '59 Yearbook Progress

Betty Jane Bowman, yearbook editor, has reported that materials are now being submitted for the first 60 pages of this year's Alfarata which will be sent to the publishers in December.

The big question for the staff is still whether the yearbook will be distributed in the spring or in the summer. Despite this uncertainty as to the time of distribution, the photographers are at work taking pictures of the various classes and activities.

The yearbook is given to the student body free of charge.

Trains To Make Stop In Town Wednesday

The Pennsylvania Limited, eastbound, will make a special stop at 12:45 p.m. Wednesday, November 26 for the accommodations of JC faculty and students.

The Duquesne, westbound, will make its regular stop at 1:05 p. m. There is another train, The Juniata, eastbound, which will make a regular stop at 3 p.m.

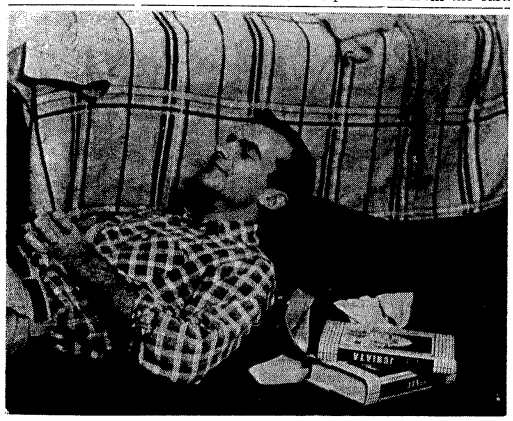
Since Wednesday's trains are expected to be crowded, it is suggested that as many students as possible buy tickets in advance.

College To Provide Buses To Trains

JC's treasurer John Fike has announced that the college will provide transportation to and from the trains for Thanksgiving vacationers.

The first bus will leave Founders steps at 12:20 p.m. to catch the 12:45 p.m. eastbound train. The bus will return at 12:45 p.m. and take JCers downtown in time for the 1:05 p.m. westbound.

Fike added that it is essential that students be prompt so that the buses can meet the trains on time. Buses will be at the station Sunday, November 30 to meet the 6 p.m. train from the west and the 7:18 p.m. train from the east.



PEACE, it's wonderful! This contented Juniatian, having passed his last mid-term, typed the last of several papers and taken the last of his tranquilizers, is ready for Thanksgiving vacation. He is typical of all JCers, who will return November 30 full of vim,vigor and vitality, looking ahead to Christmas activities and more determined than ever not to let the studies interfere with education.

Peace Speaker For Annual JC Church Service

Juniata will hold its annual all-college Thanksgiving worship service Tuesday at 9 p.m. in Oller Hall.

The Rev. John Peace will deliver the Thanksgiving message. The Rev. Mr. Peace is minister at the First Lutheran Church in Tyrone.

Other parts of the service will be led by Miss Esther Doyle, who will read the scripture and the Rev. Earl Kaylor, who will offer the prayer. A choir made up of members of the chapel and touring choirs will sing two anthems, A Song of Thanksgiving by Joseph Rapp and Paen on Now Thank We All Our God by Drummond Wolff.

Jack Rodland will play the organ for the service. The planning committee for this Thanksgiving worship includes Stan Davis, Terry Fouse and Dick Quinn.

Wednesday's Schedule

The schedule for Wednesday, November 26, will follow the usual Saturday pattern of classes with the second and third period classes of the morning meeting at 10 a. m. and 11 a. m.

Lunch will be served in the college dining halls at 12:05 p. m.

Senate To Distribute Copies Of JC Students' Constitution

At the regular Senate meeting held last Wednesday evening, the main order of business concerned the proposed by-law changes in the Student Body Association Constitution.

Most of the revisions, having been approved at previous meetings throughout the year, were merely discussed and consequently received unanimous reaffirmation. The constitutional by-laws will now be printed and copies of the revised document will be issued to all concerned parties on campus. With everyone having a duplicate copy of the constitution, confusion regarding minor changes will be avoided.

Library Problems

Chuck Brown, referring to a letter that he received from Mrs. Sarah Hettinger, head librarian, urged the Senate and the student proctors in general to be extra careful in library proctoring jobs, now that tests will be coming up in the near future. According to Mrs. Hettinger, several copies of freshman integration books are missing. She also brought to the Senate's attention that magazines in the library are being mutilated. The Senate urges the student body to be more careful when they use the library facilities.

Dutch Boland, chairman of the committee to investigate the feasability of an election rally night, proposed that such a night be instituted during campus elections. The proposal received unanimous approval and details will be worked out later.

Victory Rally

Because the cross country team will be at the Middle Atlantic Championships this weekend, the victory rally has been postponed

Scientist To Speak In Oller Hall Monday

Dr. Ralph Lapp, a nationally known scientist, will address the student body in chapel December 1.

Dr. Lapp is a consultant to industry on the uses of nuclear energy. His book, Radiation: What It Is and How It Affects You, came out at the height of the public controversy over the fallout hazards from nuclear bomb testing.

In 1955 Dr. Lapp traveled to Geneva, Switzerland, to attend the first International Conference on the peaceful uses of atomic energy under sponsorship of the United Nations, in which delegates of 72 countries participated.

Dr. Lapp is known for being able to explain complicated scientific matters in simple terms which the average person can readily understand. He opposes the idea that the basic principles of atomic fission are a secret to be shared only among the specialists.

Sophomores Plan Thanksgiving Hop

The sophomore class will sponsor a semi-formal Harvest Holiday dance tomorrow night from 8:15 to 11:30 p.m. on both mezzanines of Memorial Gym, according to Larry Johnson, general chairman for the event.

Johnson reports that JCers will dance to music from an RCA orthophonic hi-fi supplied by Miller Hardware Company in Huntingdon. The harvest-Thanksgiving theme will be carried out by three dimensional decorations located on the main floor and spotlighted by colored lights from the mezzanine level.

The committee includes Ed Costello, Jean Davies, Mike Farrow, Dick George, Jim Means, Nick Pascale and JoAnn Zwick. Refreshments will be served.

Dickey To Join BVS In Europe Commission

Bruce Dickey, class of 1958, sailed November 18 aboard the S. S. United States to begin his 22-month term in the Brethren Volunteer Service.

Dickey completed a nine-week training program for BVS in New Windsor, Md. He has been assigned to work for the Brethren Service Commission in Europe.

The Brethren Service Commission has been functioning in Europe for more than 10 years with headquarters at Kassel, Germany and Linz, Austria. The program covers the areas of material aid to the sick and needy, selection of refugees for emigration to the United States, and a high school and college student exchange.

In Germany the BSC also distributes heifers and other animals through Heifer Project, Inc. International work camps are administered through the BSC.

In Kassel, the Brethren House was completed in 1953 as headquarters for BSC work. Built by volunteer help from the rubble of a war-torn city, the house serves as offices, living quarters for volunteer workers, a hostel for visitors and a community center.

JC Instructor Cherry Reviews Musical

by Ron Cherry

Three times last weekend there came forth from the stage of Oller Hall the sights and sounds of those twittering twenties to the great delight of the throngs of parents, students and townsfolk who saw The Boyfriend.

The music of the bouncy Bearcats and the raucous screams and flippant antics of those "do-wacka-do" kids will long be remembered as one of the zaniest musicals ever produced at Juniata.

The show begins with the entrance of the Currier-conducted Bearcats, costumed in the garb of the twenties. Following a prologue by the comic Lord Brockhurst (Ed Jones), the scene opens on the lounge of the finishing school of Mme. Dubonnet (Jane Brumbaugh). Shapely Hortense (Bonnie Meadows) introduces the perfect young ladies of the school, and their one consuming interest — The Boy Friend.

Through the three acts that follow we watch these perfect young ladies pursue their boy friends. Some have harder times than others. Shy Polly (Peggy Chidester) has the problem of a rich father (Rush Hodgin), who has problems of his own in the form of a very much alive past and that crazy Maisie (Vee Wilhelm) can't seem to make up her mind as to which boy to choose. But in the end, after a series of shenanigans, love and marriage too, we are led to believe, triumphs. Polly gets her Tony (Terry Fouse), Maizie decides on Bobbie (Don Miller), Mme. Dubonnet revives the past and warms the heart of the rich Percival Browne, Polly's father, and the guys and gals of the chorus are happily matched.

Bearcat Jazz

The musical accompaniment of the show was excellently played. The Bearcats recreated in near perfect form the jazzy rhythm of the twenties in such pieces as Won't You Charleston With Me and The Riviera. Suffering only from occasional trumpet trouble, the Bearcats turned in a marvelous performance.

The choreography was certainly one of the high points of the entire show. Long a problem in JC musicals, the dancing in the Boy Friend was imaginative—especially in the pantomine by Polly and Tony which was superb—enthusiastic—any chorus number! — and hilarious — as the rollicking tango by Lolita (Susan Tipton) and Pepe (John Nicholas). The high point, however, was undoubtedly the magnificient Charleston by Maisie and Bobbie, who turned in excellent performances throughout the entire show. Mrs. Blaisdell and her light footed dancers are certainly deserving of much praise.

The vocal numbers of the show were for the most part undistinguished. The lack of character portrayal on the part of Polly and Tony was especially pointed up in the non-dancing musical numbers. The clarity and harmony of the duet by Mme. Dubonnet and Polly was perhaps the best vocal number, but it suffered from an absence of dramatic meaning.

Livewire Dulcie

The chorus performed with enthusiasm and sparkle throughout the whole show, and was primarily responsible for the gaity of the production. Maisie and Bobbie were wonderful, as mentioned above and Dulcie (Harriet Nichols) is deserving of special notice. Dulcie was a real live personality of the twenties. Her antics and facial expressions (when not overdone as they were frequently on Saturday night) were, shall we say, a screammmm! The other chorus members, Nancy (Dolores Briggs), Fay (Carole Miller), Alphonse (Garry Pote), Marcel (Robert Martin) and Pierre (David Gillespie) lacked the character of Dulcie, Maisie and Bobbie, but turned in lively, humorous performances.

Special mention must also be made of Lord Brockhurst (Ed Jones). His portrayal of the dissipated English gentleman plagued by an Oh! so British wife (Judy Barraclough) was great. It's Never Too Late To Fall In Love, his rakish scene with Dulcie was clearly the funniest of the entire show. And plaudits to Bonnie Meadows who convincingly and cleverly created the role of Hortense, the French maid.

Technically, the show was adequate, but certainly failed to use the potential which the stage of Oller Hall offers. The lighting, especially in the second act, illuminated the soloists less than the set, and the set was one which could scarcely stand such illumination. The extenuating circumstances which surrounded the set construction were, no doubt, responsible for much of this lack of color and imagination, but the total effect of the show was clearly hindered by the lighting and set.

Russia Begins Triple Thrust Offensive

— Herb Deuchar:

News Of The Week In Retrospect

THE NEW RUSSIAN DRIVE—Of all Russia's moves against the West, the current Soviet push is the most entensive to date. What makes it the most forceful of all Russia's past campaigns is that it is of a triple-pronged nature, these being economic, diplomatic and political. In the sconomic sphere, Russia is out decisively to challenge and surpass the West's economic structure, as Khrushchev calls it, the West's "moribund capitalism." Khrushchev has set the date of 1965 as the date in which Russia will close in upon tse West's production, and by 1975 according to the schedule will surpass the West in total production.

Russia's second thrust is in the diplomatic field where she will capitalize on the issues of the West not bending to her demands over the subject of nuclear testing, outer space and surprise attacks. This will chiefly be used along propaganda lines to downgrade the West before the neutral and under-privileged nations of the world. The third area of the Russian offensive is in the political sphere, specifically the West's position in Germany. It is here that the latest Soviet threat has been magnified.

Last week at Warsaw Khrushchev demanded the end of Western occupation of Berlin. Khrushchev stated that the rights by which the United States, Great Britain and France have access to Berlin through East Germany should be negotiated through the East German Government, and that Berlin was "the capital of the East German Government." He also stated in his speech, "The Soviet Union . . . will hand over those functions in Berlin which are still with Soviet organs to the sovereign German Democratic Republic . . . Let the United States, France and Great Britain form their own relations with the East German Government."

Our State Department denounced the Soviet move as of the usual cheap propagandistic effort by the Russians. But it is obvious that the Soviets are attempting to force the West to recognize the East German government or face increased opposition to the maintenance of allied control of West Berlin. The Russian move poses a very real threat to West Berlin as Russia could very easily cout off the specified routes to West Berlin like they did in 1948. Friday the Russians stopped three Army supply trucks for over eight hours before letting them proceed to Berlin. In the face of this threat the West has warned that it will resort to another gigantic airlift if Russia blockades Berlin. If the Russians do want to make the blockade work effectively, they will have to impose an air interdiction on West Berlin. Moscow would not go so far as to shoot down Allied supply planes and thus touch off World War Three.

Tuesday the State Department explicitly warned Russia of not attempting to create any air incidents that would provoke any international trouble. Thus Russia has opened an old area of agitation as part of its new offensive against the West. Whether the Russians are able to successfully gain in this area remains to be seen. As the situation looks now the West is steadfast on holding Berlin and will not be pressured by Russia in this field.

Editorially Speaking . . .

A Christian Campus

A LETTER to the editor was received by the JUNIATIAN last Monday, but since it was signed only "a sad Juniata student" our policy would not permit us to print it verbatim. However, we felt it contained a complaint which was not altogether fair or valid and thus reguired an answer. The JCer was complaining about the lack of Christian students on Juniata's campus shown by Oller Hall being filled three times for The Boy Friend performance yet not quite once for the all-college worship Sunday morning.

First of all, the attendance at Sunday's worship service was over 500—a very satisfactory turnout according to Stan Davis, chairman of religious activities. Secondly, a full house is not expected at the all-college services, since their aim is not to draw the students away from the downtown services. Sunday morning many Juniatians and their parents attended the Huntingdon churches, and the Stone Church was filled to capacity. College worship service chairmen were pleased to see the large number of churchgoers Sunday morning, for they have always encouraged regular attendance at the downtown churches.

If the letter writer would care to further comment on his views concerning the lack of Christians on the Juniata campus, the Juniatian, as in every case, would be happy to print his ideas, providing they are signed.

Silence Vs. Sapathy

(ACP)—"Today's students have been called the 'silent generation' for their lack of literary champions, the loud and clear voices of earlier campuses which were regarded as symbols of unity. If this generation appears to have nothing to say, no radical philosophies to offer, perhaps those students of the past were too quick to voice their new-found theories. Instead of apathy, theirs might have been the hasty sin of 'sapathy.' The quick answer is not the forte of the student of today. He must retrench, for new ideas cannot grow without strong roots in the knowledge of the past.

"Did vigorous outbursts of oratory and bravado from the ivory towers do much to change the world? Despite the righteous bonfires of the thirties, scrap metal went to the Orient and American businessmen sold celluloid toys MADE IN JAPAN. College students were expected to be noisy, zany and idealistic; out in the cold, cruel world they soon learned to be realists. The occasional spark of genius was an element treated as lightly as the hazing prank.

"When the great Albert Schweitzer, who seems to have achieved serenity in a world which had forgotten this gift, was once asked what he thought of the future of Europe, he hunched his shoulders and said, 'My business is ethics, not prophecy. What's the use of talking about it? Perhaps all the talkers will be toppled in the end.'"—Reserve Tribune, Western Reserve University.

Platform Publicity

THE Senate's idea of a general rally during the spring election campaigns is a sound one. The growing trend for all candidates to have platforms would be formally recognized through this rally which would also help to insure the validity of claims made. In addition, it should prove valuable in publicizing the candidates' qualifications.

There are several problems attached to the proposal, however. One is length of the rally—with two or three students running for each of the nine offices, time would become a definite problem. Student response also is unpredictable. Perhaps a chapel program would be the only way to insure the attendance that such a rally would deserve. This ideally should be unnecessary, however, for the rally if well organized has the potential of becoming a big drawing card on the social calendar.

EDIT. NOTE—The next Juniatian will be published December 5, the Friday following Thanksgiving vacation. Articles for that issue should be submitted, if possible, before November 26.

Movie Of The Week

Twilight For The Gods

Rock Hudson and Cyd Charisse are a tempestuous star ring team in "Twilight for the Gods," Universal-International's filming of the best seller by Ernest K. Gann, author of "The High and the Mighty." Arthur Kennedy, Leif Erickson, Charles McGraw and Ernest Truex are co-starred in the picture which was photographed in Color in the Hawaiian Islands. The film plays Sunday and Monday at the Harris Clifton Theatre.

ON Campus

by Don Miller

"Yes, yes, a thousand times yes! You've got to take your column back," she wailed, pulling the typewriter ribbon tighter around my neck.

"Awright", I replied, "but give me back my soft brown eyes." Cackling, she threw them at me and darted away into the night singing "The Mau Mau Marching Song". So Carol, wherever you are, thanks a million. You did a great job.

Amen!

Lightning flashed, great clouds of smoke formed and flames leaped from the mouth of this giant of learning as he lashed out at his class for falling behind in their assignments. Jumping up and down on his desk, he issued every possible threat and ultimatum in an effort to discourage future laxness. Then slumping quietly into his seat, he rolled his sad eyes and sighed, "After a session like that maybe we should close with a benediction!"

Then there was the professor who spent ten minutes briefing her class on a special movie she was going to show them. Quoth she, "Now class this is perhaps one of the finest movies you'll ever see on the human eye. I want you to take good notes and you might even make a couple drawings from it." With that she skipped over to the projector and switched it on, and across the wide, wide screen appeared, in large print, the title "Your Child's Ears."

How about the guy who came up to me and said, "You want some campus humor for your column this week?" Handing me a copy of a test he had just taken he growled, "Here, print this!"

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

The two fall JC units, paced by the consistent seasonal standouts of Bill Berrier and Don Layman, finished with undefeated slates for the second consecutive year with closing victories over Albright College.

The harriers do have one scheduled event remaining which will not affect their perfect 7-0 seasonal record. Today they are entered in the Middle Atlantic States Championships in Philadelphia.

Ranked as a darkhorse, the Indians will be facing some stiff competition with eighteen schools entered. St. Joseph's College, the leading MAC school in the I-C 4-A five-mile run, is favored to capture the championship.

* * * * *

Winter sports swing into action the first week after Thanksgiving with the basketballers hosting Bridgewater College that Monday and the matmen playing their first intercollegiate contest with the visiting Lebanon Valley team.

The Greenemen recently elected seniors Bob Ewald and Gordie Ewers as co-captains. Both are two year lettermen and averaged 12.2 and 12.5 points respectively last year.

Don Burnich, a 5-6 guard may be the key man in this year's attack. A junior transfer student from Pitt's Johnstown Center, he is rated by many as better than Chet White, the fabulous freshman sensation of two years ago.

The success of the team rests on the starting five, which will consist of four of the five returning lettermen plus Burnich.

Fullback Berrier, after setting a few more standards with his fine offensive showing of three touchdowns and 213 yards gained paced the Bunnmen to their fifth undefeated sason in six years.

The Northern Division champions of the Middle Atlantic Conference met stiff competition from the underrated Lions and jumped to seventh position in the Lambert Cup race with powerful Buffalo ranked number one.

Berrier and center Frank Rocco were voted the outstanding back and lineman in last Saturday's contest. Both received honorable mention on this week's ECAC team.

Include Opipery

Senior co-captain Ken Opipery will play in a senior post-season all-star contest Thanksgiving Day in Erie. The game will pit the graduating standouts from the eastern and western parts of the state face to face.

The footballers, who extended the undefeated streak to 20 games and 27 straight victories at home, came within 10 yards of setting a team rushing record in one season. Berrier and Sill accounted for over half of this yardage. Berrier averaged 7.2 yards on 102 carries whereas Sill gained 403 yards on 70 carries.

The same two also scored over half the team's point total which was one shy of last year's record holding mark of 253. Berrier's total of 110 points was good enough for second high in the state while Sill contributed 36 points.

Bunnmen Finish Undefeated With 33-12 Albright Victory

Coach Ken Bunn's Indians sewed up the Middle Atlantic Conference northern division crown last Saturday on rain-soaked College Field as they dropped the Lions of Albright College 33-12 in the season's finale.

Held down by a muddy field the Tribe carried a scant 19-12 lead into the fourth quarter before scoring twice more in the final minutes.

Fullback Bill Berrier walked off with individual honors as he set three new standards. Berrier, who scored three TD's and rolled 213 yards, now owns the one game rushing mark, seasonal rushing mark with 736 yards and points scored in one season with 110.

Lions Shock Indians

On the first scrimmage Albright shocked the Indians with a 71-yard scoring aerial from Frank Sudock to Tom Olivio but the Tribe deadlocked the score on Bill Berrier's 65-yard pitchout run three plays later.

Berrier scored twice more in the first half on a short drive and an 84-yard paydirt scamper to make the count 19-6, but Albright's Sudock went over from the four to bring the Lions within seven points at intermission.

After a scoreless third quarter, the Indians capitalized on two fumbles in the final four minutes as Harry Long scored from the four and Dave Goodling tallied on a sensational 17-yard rollout.

Intramural Keglers Begin League Action

The IM Bowling league began its season last week with eight teams in action.

Last years defending champs, the Pals, continued their winning ways by blanking the Senators 3-0. Ron Bergey rolled a 342 series to pace the victors.

High man for the evening was George Neimond who tallied a 347 series to aid the King Pins in their 3-0 shut out over the Highballers.

Despite Sally Grove's 178 first game score and a 273 series tally, the Chem Clubbers dropped their match to the 4 D's and C, 3-0.

Will's Gang won a forfeit from the Gutterballers.

Winter Sports To Open Here

Winter sports make their return to the campus scene immediately after the Thanksgiving vacation.

On Monday, December 1, Coach Greene's cagers open at home against Bridgewater College, and three days later, Juniata inaugurates its first season of intercollegiate wrestling when it entertains Lebanon Valley's matmen.

Coach Greene has his boys in fine shape for the Bridgewater encounter. In a pair of pre-season exhibition tilts the Tribe has broken even, beating Duquesne and losing to Penn State. Both of these contests pointed out the speed of this year's Indians and gave fair warning to all opponents to be wary of a fast breaking offense.

Co-captains for the Tribe this season are Bob Ewald and Gordie Ewers, both of whom are seniors and two letterwinners. Bob is the Tribe's tallest player at 6'6", a factor which makes him the Tribe's top rebounder. Gordie also is a good rebounder and he carries an average of 12.5 points per game from last season into this season's opener.

Jack Heading, who as a freshman led the Tribe in scoring and rebounding last year, will join Gordie in filling the forward slots. Heading held an average of 18.8 points per game in his 18 tilts last season.

At guards, Coach Greene expects to start Curt Gardner and on Burnich. Curt, a junior letterman, and Don, a junior transfer student from Pittsburgh's Johnstown Center, are the Tribe's playmakers. Curt showed his ability last year when he averaged 13.3 in 11 games. Don, a fine playmaker for Johnstown last season is counted upon to aid the Tribe very much this season.

Harriers End Season With MASCA Tilt

Bolstered by its second straight undefeated season, the Juniata cross-country team will compete in the Middle Atlantic Championships this afternoon in Philadelphia.

The charges of Mike Snider will be attempting to make the season even more successful by placing high in the championships, which will be run at Cobbs Creek Country Club. The Tribe will be seeking to better last year's seventh place showing. Defending champion St. Joseph's will be favored to regain its title. Juniata has been placed in the role of dark horse in the competition, which will feature strong teams from LaSalle, West Chester and Lafayette.

Layman, Deuchar Pace Harriers

Juniata's hopes will rest mainly with its one-two punch of Don Layman and Herb Deuchar. These two will be backed by five other JC harriers who have been consistent high finishers all year.

Providing the impetus for today's JC performance was last Saturday's Juniata victory at home over Albright, 15-40. This was the Indians' seventh win this season and 11th in a row over two seasons.

Layman led all finishers to the wire with a 23:47 clocking. The next five places also went to the Blue and Gold to ice the meet. Deuchar, Charlie Mack, Galen Heckman, Ned Smith and Bill Lafe all finished before Albright's first man, George Mack.

MASCAC ENTRIES—The harriers, who boast a perfect record in the last two seasons of dual competition, will enter the Middle Atlantics championship today in Philadelphia. Standing are Don Oberson, Allen King, Herb Deuchar, Jim Pettit, Mike Pentz, Bill Lafe and Coach Mike Snider. In the front row are Don Layman, Charles Mack, Chal Dilling, Ned Smith, Galen Heckman and Joe Senft. Only Deuchar, Lafe and Senft are seniors.

Barrowclough, Klebe To Manage 1959 All Class Night Production

Tentative plans for All Class Night to be held February 21 in Oller Hall have been announced by Judy Barrowclough, general chairman.

The scripts, which are this year to be musical in nature, are due before Christmas. These skits are not to be merely talent shows but are to follow a plot.

Assistant chairman for the event is Diane Klebe and business manager remains to be chosen. In addition, each class will have its own individual chairman.

All Class Night was originated in 1937 by Dr. Rockwell for all clubs on campus. Recently, the night has been converted to one dominated by the respective classes, and a trophy is awarded to the winner.

In order for the judges to have some basis for their evaluation, four traditional themes have been established—history, music, drama and comedy. Each year these are alternated, giving each class a chance at all the themes during its four year stay.

Rules are as follows:

1. The scripts must be original, although the music need not be.
2. There will be a minimum time limit of 15 minutes and a maximum of 22 minutes for each skit.
3. Each class is to remain within a $15 budget.
4. Religion is not to be incorporated into the scripts.

The skits will be evaluated by judges chosen from alumni, on the principles of originality, costumes, makeup, staging and scenery. Townspeople and parents are invited to this event and all proceeds will be given to the general activities committee to be used for May Day.

JCers To Present One-Act Pageant

Juniata's traditional Christmas pageant, this year entitled The Finding of the King, will take place December 14 at 3:30 p.m. in Oller Hall.

The one act play is under the direction of David Weston who will direct the actors and Prof. William Merrel who will conduct the musical portions. The music was written by R. R. Broome and the story by F. C. Happold.

The story centers around the courtyard of the inn where Joseph and Mary went looking for shelter before Jesus was born. Some of the characters involved are the inn keeper, shepherd, kings and angels.

The chapel choir will provide a large part of the music and will be accompanied by the organ.

Reviewer Praises Bright Costuming

Costumes were handled extremely well. Resourcefulness and imagination combined to create authentic reproductions of those roaring days, and the bright color of the garb counteracted the dullness of the set.

Beyond the stage, in the house and business areas of the performance, a certain lack of organization and preparation was very evident. The ineffectiveness of the ushers, the confusion over the ticket sales and the failure to provide for the full house on Saturday night were indications of this.

The single greatest weakness from which the show suffered was the lack of experienced direction. As a student produced and directed musical, this is bound to be the case. And yet it cannot be denied that its absence prevented the show from achieving the polish and sparkle of which it is capable. The awkwardness of the non-dancing musical numbers, the lack of character portrayal, the failure of the soloists to project their voices, the drabness of the sets, the confusion of the house and many other little things were evidences of this. Clearly more and better direction would have made the show a greater success.

As a whole, the production was an enjoyable one. When the players were relaxed and enjoying themselves it was a delight to watch and produced many memorable moments. To all those who participated in the production go your reviewer's well-deserved hurrahs!

Berklee Releases New Jazz Record

Jazz in the Classroom, a new 12 inch LP just released, will receive ready response from jazz enthusiasts, who will derive listening pleasure in addition to gaining further appreciation and understanding of jazz.

This recording is made up entirely of original compositions in the modern jazz idiom, and was conceived, created, arranged and performed by students at the Berklee School of Music in Boston, Massachusetts. The LP is available with full scores of all arrangements for study.

JCA Party To Include Angel, Songs, Santa

The program for the JCA Christmas party will include singing, a Christmas story told by the Christmas Angel, and the appearance of Santa Claus who will present the gifts.

Students who wish to have the same child they had last year should see Anne Scheib. All students wishing a child must sign the list on Founders bulletin board before November 26, when the list will be taken down. Price range for the gifts has been set at $2.

A new angle that the committee would like to stress is the continuation of the "student parents" interest in their child after the party. They suggest that the students, sometime after Christmas, take their child to a basketball game or another activity to help the underprivileged children the whole year around.

Huntingdon, Juniata To Form Choir Group

Juniata and the Huntingdon Music Club will sponsor a college-community concert in Oller Hall Sunday, December 7, at 8 p.m.

Several JC Students will participate in the choir, which will present the Christmas portion of Handel's Messiah including the Hallejujah Chorus. Student soloists include Lois Jean Dunlap and Joan Fyock. The contralto, May Spank of Philadelphia and the baritone, Greer Bailey of Sharon, are graduates of Juniata. The tenor is Glen Holsinger of Huntingdon.

The choir will be accompanied by an Altoona string orchestra with a piano continuo. Jack Rodland will be at the organ. There will be no admission fee, but a silver offering will be taken to help defray expenses.

until after Thanksgiving. A definite date will be set later.

It was proposed that letters of appreciation be sent to Mrs. B. E. Blaisdell, Prof. Robert Currier, Sherill Edwards, Diane Klebe and David Weston for their efforts concerning The Boy Friend. In addition, the Senate would like to extend hearty thanks to everyone who had anything to do with making the production the success it was.

Vinson Reports To Senators On NSA Regional Conference

National Student Association coordinator, Ron Vinson, reported to the regular Senate meeting last Wednesday evening on his participation in the NSA regional conference held at Temple University on November 21-23.

The theme of the conference concerned student participation in higher education and Vinson brought back some ideas that Juniata can possibly use. He informed the Senate, on the basis of his observations at the conference, that our college is well advanced in many aspects of student government and student participation in campus activities. A well deserved thanks must go to Vinson for his complete and informative report to the Senate.

Dutch Boland, chairman of general activities, volunteered to work out an evaluation sheet over the Christmas vacation in order to determine the status of the various clubs on campus. The primary purpose of this evaluation sheet is to strengthen the Inter Club Council.

A number of students on campus had questioned several Senators on the possibility of obtaining college excuses so that they could work at home over

Editorially Speaking . . .

Explorations In Finance

AN important issue at the beginning of the school year—partial Senate control of the student activities fund—has not been dropped by student government. On the contrary, definite progress has been made in this direction. Although not of vital interest to everyone, this program represents another step forward by JC's Senate and therefore warrants more than just a vague awareness on the part of the students.

At Leadership Conference the goal was definite Senate control of part of the student activities fund. Since then the plan has been modified somewhat but is still essentially the same. In talking with college administrators, it was found that this program, although in practice at state institutions, is not currently being done in private colleges. Since state institutions are legally forbidden to collect for student activities, the student government usually handles the funds. In this light, the Senate decided, and wisely so, to rearrange their plans.

Instead, they are working toward centralization in the Senate of the budgeting of all student activities. This would represent mainly a step toward Senate control of the money itself.

At the present time, organizations such as the Alfarata, the Masque, Totem Inn, etc., individually make up their own budgets and submit them at different times to the Administration for approval. Under the new plan, all student activities would submit their budgets to the Senate which would in turn hand in a composit budget to the Administration. The Senate would thus be responsible for the financial validity of student organizations. It is believed that the new plan, as well as helping the Administration, and making the Senate more completely representative of the students, would also greatly increase the efficiency of the whole budgeting process.

This plan looks good to the JUNIATIAN. Assuming allocation of the money itself does represent too big a jump to be taken at one time. The Senate must first prove itself capable. This centralization of budgeting seems to be the best and most logical place to start doing so. If this process proves successful, then perhaps the next step will be actual control of student funds—the end we are still working toward.

The Christmas Rush

IN typical Juniata fashion, studies will tend to interfere more and more with extracurricular activities in the coming weeks. Unfortunately at this time of year, college is over-active both socially and academically, and thus one or the other always suffers.

Oddly enough it is the Christmas activities that are often slighted. Especially in planning and constructing class decorations for the campus, cooperation and help is not as it should be, and the chairmen or students in charge are often left holding the bag.

Therefore, we urge everyone to do his part in making the coming holiday activities a success with both help and attendance. Since times are hard everywhere, a general spirit of cooperation will ease the tension greatly in the next few weeks.

The Student Viewpoint . . . .

The Fellows' Fault?

It has been said that this is a man's world. One wonders at the truth of this statement after a look at the general apathy shown on the Juniata campus concerning social activities.

It has been only a decade since dancing was even permitted on campus—previously students had to find other means of amusement. It seems ironic that now such things are merely taken for granted and practically ignored. The Treasure Hunt and Hallowe'en Masquerade Ball both were notable for their lack of student support. The crowning example, however, may be found in the recent sophomore class dance. The stereophonic music, excellent decorations and refreshments were met by a new low in student attendance.

Suggestions are now certainly in order for improvement of this unfortunate situation. If a different type of activity is desired, let's hear about it. The Social Committee has been doing its part to keep this campus alive—the rest is up to you fellows. Let's see some initiative.

We would prefer to remain anonymous as this letter represents the feelings of a large segment of the Juniata co-ed population.

Here I sit in the JUNIATIAN'S hangout for Hemingways, looking for inspiration, but all I hear is one of the female staff members griping about the fact that she has to go take a physical examination. "I don't know why they want to look at me. All that trouble to dress and undress when I'm healthy as a horse. Why I went all through grade school and the only thing that was wrong with me was wax in my ears . . ."

Speaking of wax, I'm reminded of the prof who interrupted his gripping lecture to say a few words on progressive education. "Nowadays we don't suppress the kiddies; we just follow along and pick up the pieces." The girls in charge of nursery school have news for him.

* * * * * * * *

How gung-ho is too gung-ho? Well, there is the coed who knitted a pair of sox for her boyfriend who happens to flip over boats and such nautical things. So to make him happy she spelled out his name down the side with international signal code flags !

It was especially hot in the classroom and she just couldn't fight sleep any longer. So she was preparing to grab forty or so when she noticed the girl next to her frantically pointing at her arm. "Idiot," she thought to herself and started to close her eyes again. Still the girl kept hysterically motioning toward our friend's arm. Looking down with a bored expression she saw a fly staggering up her sleeve. She glanced into the girl's frantic eyes and yawned, "Hit it will ya ?"

* * * * * * * *

How's that again

After the Saturday night performance of The Boy Friend, one junior co-ed tugged at the sleeve of the distinguished looking gentleman standing beside her and asked, "Is that really the way it was back in those days, Dad? Huh, was it, huh?"

"I wish I could remember, but of course I was much too young at the time."

And regarding the rumor that The Boy Friend might go on tour, one member of the cast (whose girl friend had been counting the days until he would be free to spend some time with her again) quipped, "Gosh, it's too bad the Brussels Fair is over!"

Well, that's it fernow.

Berlin Crisis Turns On Heat In Cold War

THE BERLIN CRISIS — The problem of Germany, which has plagued the free world for 13 years, was reopened again last week when Soviet Premier Khruschev demanded that the West pack up and leave Berlin. In its place Berlin could be created into a "free city" on an international basis. He also added that the West had six months to decide on this proposal, otherwise Russia would declare Berlin "'free" and fight to keep it so. In a speech Khruschev denounced the Western occupation of Berlin as "making it a sort of state within a state, and using it as a center from which to pursue subversive activity."

The issue over Berlin was fully exploited by the Soviet propaganda system and played up to the hilt. Both through the East German press and diplomatic channels, the Russians put the squeeze on the Western position. In his propaganda-loaded press conference, Khruschev made these points clear: "West Berlin under occupation is a hotbed of East-West tension. While it belongs rightfully to East Germany, Russia's realistic about West Berlin's stake in capitalism and distaste for socialism, so Moscow will let them keep capitalism, if the Western powers support peace by withdrawing their forces and letting West Berlin become a free city."

The over-all reaction to Khruschev's statement in Washington, rejected the Soviet proposals. In an official statement the State Department said: "The Soviets seem to be proposing that while they keep their grip on East Berlin the three Western powers abandon their rights in West Berlin and retire in favor of what is called a "free city." The State Department also made it known that it would not abandon the 2,200,000 people of West Berlin who rely on the West for their security and existence.

The other two members of the Big Three, France and Great Britain, also backed up the United States' stand in rebuking the Soviet proposal and re-pledging the West's support of West Berlin. In France, Minister of Information Jacques Soustelle stated that the Soviet proposal would only disconnect West Berlin from West Germany, thus falling directly into the hands of the Reds. In London, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd strongly stated that Great Britain intends to carry out our obligations to Berlin." Thus the West has taken a united stand on the Berlin crisis and has tied the Big Three closer together in relation to foreign policy.

The problem which stems directly out of the crisis is what does the West now do. If a solution is not found within six months, Russia will turn the city over to East Germany who will no doubt cut West Berlin off from the West, thus strangling free West Berlin. As it looks at this time, it seems quite possible that a top level meeting of the old Big Four type will deal with the Berlin question and the problem of Germany. After much bickering and maneuvering, I feel sure that a meeting of some high priority will be held in the near future.

Chalk It Up!

The basketball team, who opens Middle Atlantic action tomorrow night at Franklin & Marshall College, will participate in the Bridgewater Invitational Basketball Tournament January 2-3.

Besides the Tribe Hampden Sydney, Randolph-Macon and host Bridgewater — all Mason-Dixon Conference members—are entered in the round robin tournament which will have three twinbills scheduled within the two day span.

Besides the Tribe, Hampden Sydney, who finished with a 15-5 record last year, was runner-up to American University for the Conference title. Randolf-Macon and Bridgewater finished with (13-9) and (5-14) records respectively last season.

This years teams may have the best all-around potential in scoring, playmaking and rebounding in quite some time if the first game gives any indication.

Gordie Ewers stood out scoring 26 points and constantly stealing the visitors' passes. Don Burnich, whose 13 points was only a small portion of his sensational debut, had seven assists and set up many buckets. Curt Gardner tallied 13 while Jack Heading and Bob Ewald contributed the rebounding strength with 11 apiece.

Winners of the intramural wrestling tournament were 123 lb.—Ted Keiser, 130 lb. — Mike Martin, 137 lb. — Joe Senft, 147 lb — Chuck Brown, 157 lb. — Harry Long, 167 lb. — Pete Sellers, 177 lb. — Emmett Capanna and Steve Barnett in the unlimited class. The winners were to represent JC in last night's first intercollegiate wrestling match with Lebanon Valley.

Fullback Bill Berrier was a third team choice for this year's Little American squad. Ex-Indian Joe Trimber, playing with undefeated, untied California STC, received honorable mention.

Tackle Al Dungan was the only Indian to make the final All-ECAC south team for small colleges. Six of his teammates received honorable mention.

Buffalo captured the Lambert Cup after gaining an average of 9.5 votes out of a maximum 10 in the final balloting.

West Chester followed with 8.4, while Williams, Rochester, Connecticut, Delaware, Juniata, Gettysburg, Tufts and Lafayette finished in that order.

Buffalo (8-1) lost only to Baldwin Wallace, 26-0, whose president announced that it had forfeited the game because it had unknowingly used an ineligible transfer student, but the Bulls refused to accept the forfeit.

Because of segregation they also turned down a Tangerine Bowl offer. Undefeated, untied Missouri Valley, who played the Tribe in the 1955 classic, will oppose East Texas State in the game.

TAPOFF PLAY — Forward Jack Heading, the Indian's leading scorer and rebounder last year is shown here about to control the jump in last Monday's victory over Bridgewater.

Berrier, Solomon 1959 Co-Captains

A pair of junior lettermen and veterans of three seasons, Bill Berrier and Bob Solomon have been elected co-captains of next year's football team.

Berrier, a 5-9, 180-pound fullback from Harrisburg, was recently named to the third team Little All-American squad. Besides being the Indian's leading ground gainer with 736 yards, which was a new school mark, Berrier finished second in the state scoring race with 110 points.

Solomon, 6-0, 195-pound tackle from Wilkes-Barre, is considered the Tribe's finest all-around lineman. He received honorable mention on this year's ECAC South Team for small colleges.

Five Colleges On All Foe Eleven

Five colleges had representatives on Juniata's 1958 All-Opponent Team.

Westminster and Lycoming dominated the team with three players apiece while Scranton and Moravian contributed two each and Alfred one.

Three fourths of the backfield positions were filled by Westminster with Jack Bestwick at quarterback, Jack Barnes at halfback and freshman Gerry Furguson at fullback.

Lycoming's John Grier was placed at the other halfback slot. Other Warriors named were Jim Miller at end and Ed Recesky at guard.

Scranton's contributions were Leo Broadhurst at center and Frank Dwornikowski at tackle. Alfred's lone man, Joe Yanuzzi, made the other tackle position.

Moravian placed Ron Noonan at end and guard Gus Rampone on the eleven man all-opponent squad.

Harriers Finish 6th In Middle Atlantics

Juniata closed out its most successful cross-country season in history, by placing sixth in a field of 18 in the Middle Atlantic Championship at Philadelphia.

Led by Don Layman's fine 12th place finish and Herb Deuchar's 26th spot, the Indian harriers finished ahead of all the teams it beat in dual meets this year, plus several others, which included always tough Lehigh and Swarthmore.

Led by Earl Jefferson's victory, in a field of over 90 starters, LaSalle upset defending champion St. Joseph's to cop the team title. Also in front of Juniata were perennial top flight teams from Lafayette, West Chester and Rutgers.

Other JC finishers were Charlie Mack, 46th; Galen Heckman, 51st; Ned Smith, 52nd; Bill Lafe, 70th, and Chal Dilling, 81st.

This completed the season for the charges of Mike Snider, whose dual record was 7-0. This gives Juniata an 11 meet winning streak and a 14-1 record for its three years of existence.

The championship run marked the end of three Tribe performers' careers in cross-country. Deuchar, a standout for the past three years, and Lafe, a consistent scorer in the past two seasons finished their careers in Philadelphia. Joe Senft who did not run in the championships is the third graduating Juniata hilltopper.

Indians Visit F & M, E-town For Mid-Atlantic Contests

Coach "Doc" Greene's Indians hit the road for the first time this season tomorrow as they meet the highly-touted Diplomats of Franklin and Marshall.

Last year Coach Woody Sponaugle's Diplomats closed the season with a fine 13-8 record and pre-season indications are that they will improve upon that mark this season.

Five returning lettermen bolster the F & M hopes with only one starter missing from last year's squad. Pacing the Diplomat attack is Captain Bob Swetnam, a 6'3" senior who ripped the cords for an 18.4 average last season. Three other starters, each of whom averaged in the double figures last season further brighten the picture for the Diplomats. Jim Weinstein with a 13.9 average, John Betrone with 13.8 and Al Kugle with 11.2 will be aided by a pair of juniors, Dean Keller and Bill Schmidt, up from the JV squad.

On Wednesday the Tribe travels to Elizabethtown where it faces the Blue Jays in the renewal of a series which has taken the form of a traditional rivalry.

E-town coach, Don Smith, has encountered a great deal of difficulty in finding replacements for playmakers Jim Sarbaugh and Jim Chase from last year's squad. He is optimistic however, since he has good overall height with each of the five starters measuring 6'3".

High scoring Bill Pensyl, 20.7 last season, will lead the junior dominated squad which includes Sheldon Dent, Ed Geiger and Glenn Bruckhart.

Ewers, Burnich Lead Greenemen To First Victory

Juniata's cagers opened the 1958-59 basketball season on Monday at Memorial Gym as they easily topped the Eagles of Bridgewater, 81-54.

The Indians took the lead on the tap play and never surrendered their advantage to outclass the Virginia squad. Although the Tribe made only 36 shots in 91 attempts, they emphasized a hustling, ball stealing defensive game.

Leading by a scant nine point margin at intermission, the Tribe rallied in the second 20 minutes and at the end of the third period sported a comfortable 24 point spread at 68-44.

Ewers High Scorer

Gordy Ewers was the evening's high scorer as he hit for 26 points. Junior Curt Gardner and floor ace Don Burnich, in his first appearance for the Tribe, copped 13 each to trail Ewers, and nine of the Indinan's performers dented the scoring column. Center Jim Wilson led the losers with 13 markers.

Jack Heading, last year's high point man, and center Bob Ewald shared top honors in rebounding with 11 each and Burnich led in assists with seven.

Bridgewater made 19 of 58 attempts from the field for a 33.3 average while the Tribe marked up a 39.6 percentage.

Kaylor To Assist Basketball Team

Earl Kaylor, instructor in Biblical studies, has been appointed assistant basketball coach for the 1958-59 season.

Formerly of Greensburg, Kaylor played for Juniata from 1944 till his graduation in 1946. He received his BD degree from Bethany Biblical Seminary and M.A. from Notre Dame.

Kaylor previously served as pastor of the Westmont Church of the Brethren at Johnstown.

JC Senate Lists Rules On Concessions Here

the Christmas vacation. The problem has been discussed by almost every Senate for the past several years and it has been found that such excuses are impossible to obtain.

Concessions

The Senate would like to remind everyone on campus who is interested in obtaining a concession that it is necessary to apply to the Student Citizenship Committee before soliciting money from the student body. This reminder stems from complaints of some members of the college community who were at a loss as to whom they were supporting when they purchased articles.

Janice Christie, reporting on her meeting with Paul Moore, told the Senate that cafeteria style meals on weekends have been temporarily suspended until better arrangements can be made. The reason for this suspension is that too many students have complained about the inadequacy of the facilities. Also, it is believed that a temporary suspension should relieve some of the work burden now on the dining hall staff.

Girl Scouts Offer To Sponsor Show

The Boy Friend cast was recently presented with an offer by Mrs. John Kunz of Alexandria for the possibility of a benefit performance of the musical.

The proceeds from the play, sponsored by the Girl Scouts, would have been donated to Camp Barree and the rest would have been given to the Boy Friend cast to use as they decided. After conferring, the cast declined the offer because of the time and effort they had devoted first semester and the fact that finals and comps are approaching.

Green and gold is the color scheme of Christmas decorations in Founders social rooms this year. Last Saturday members of JC's senior class decked the halls with holly, pine, mistletoe and various other seasonal concoctions. The fireplace mantle is a masterpiece in white candles, golden apples and gold tipped pine boughs. A huge gold foil Santa is on the wall above the piano.

Christmas Spirit Invades Campus; Noel Brings Sleighful Of Action

Monday evening plan to take the psych break in time to hear Dr. Harold Binkley read The Christmas Carol by Charles Dickens in Founders Social Rooms.

Banquet and Formal

On Tuesday and Wednesday plan to study because Thursday is the big date for the Christmas banquet and formal. The Memorial Gym will be converted into an 18th century ballroom for one of the social highlights of the college calendar.

Christmas at JC is not complete without the traditional worship service planned for Oller Hall at 11 p.m. on Friday. To round out the season of fun and frolic, rise and shine in time to sing carols at 5:30 a.m. on Saturday to our profs and other select individuals.

Florists To Get Concessions Alternately, Senators Report

At the early Senate meeting held last Wednesday afternoon, the main topic of discussion was the setting-up of a new policy concerning flower concessions on campus

In order to appease both of the local florists, it was voted by the Senate, after a short debate, that the social committee take the corsage concession on an alternate basis for each of the three major dances of the year. The reason for this action, according to chairman of social activities, Sandy Johnston, was to avoid the red tape that occurs every time the social committee plans to obtain the corsage concession for the formal dances.

Chuck Brown suggested to the Senate that a special office of Travel Bureau Coordinator be set up to post travel data and to obtain further desired information. The National Student Association has been sending information for a t ime now, and Chuck believes that a Coordinator is necessary to give the information more publicity. The material that the NSA sends concerns opportunities to study and travel in foreign countries. Several names will be submited at next week's meeting in order that a coordinator may be chosen.

Curriculum Conference

Don Shover, chairman of educational activities, reported on the reiults of the faculty curriculum conference which met to propose curriculum changes for the students' four years at Juniata. Action by the Senate has been held in abeyance pending further information.

Honor Service Club

Carl Wass reported on a preliminary draft of the proposed Juniata Honor Service Club constitution. more reports will follow to the Senate as Wass keeps it posted on the progress of the constitution which is expected to go into effect next semester.

Trains To Stop Here For JC Vacationers

President Ellis has recently released the following information concerning train transportation for college students for Christmas vacation:

Train No. 32 (Second Section) Eastbound will make a special stop at Huntingdon December 20 due at 12:07 p.m. Other trains which make regular stops are the Duquesne Westbound at 1:05 p. m. and the Juniata Eastbound at 3 p.m.

Buses will leave the College for the station at 11:40 and 12:40. Buses will meet the trains January 4 at 6 and 7 p.m.

Lunch will be served December 20 at 12:05 in Oneida Dining Hall for everyone. Students should purchase their tickets in advance if possible.

Binkley To Relate Christmas Carol

Dr. Harold Binkley, chairman of JCs English department, will again this year present Charles Dickens Christmas Carol December 15 in Founders social rooms.

Dr. Binkley will read this traditional Christmas story in an informal atmosphere and setting. All students are invited to be present.

Previous to the presentation, Dr. and Mrs. Binkley will be dinner guests in Oneida Dining Hall.

Classes Deck Campus With Yule Decorations

The winning display of the campus Christmas decorations, last year won by the seniors, will be announced at the Christmas banquet.

Points to be considered when judging the displays are originality, effectiveness and durability. Students and visitors can view the Christmas greens and figures displayed in the Founders social rooms by the seniors, the general store set up in Tote by the juniors, the nativity scene erected by the sophomores on front Founders and the traditional Christmas greens and street lamps displayed at the bus stop by the freshman class.

At the party, entertainment will be provided by Sandy Johnston, who as the Christmas Angel will relate the Christmas story. Bonnie Lafferty and Geraldine and Jane Brumbaugh will lead carol singing. Pete Fahrney will serve as master of ceremonies.

Kaylor To Give Sermon At All College Service

The Christmas All College Worship Service will be held in Oller Hall December 19 at 11 p.m.

JC's JUNIORS transformed the snack bar into an old-fashioned general store as part of their Christmas outdoor scene in Totem Inn. Other features of Tote decorations are a romantic atmosphere of blue lights, gold and silver stars and snowflakes, a church, a sleighing scene and carolers around the juke box.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Gym Jams

SATURDAY night dances are still being held exclusively in the Womens Gym, an inferior place for dancing and decorating.

After allowing the mezzanine of Memorial Gym to be used for one activity, the Hallowe'en Dance, the Administration is again refusing students permission to hold dances there. There seems to be no valid reason for this policy since the main floor would not be used.

If improvements were made in the Womens Gym, the mezzanine would not be so obviously preferable. But the former is still badly in need of paint and better lighting facilities. Minor changes made last summer are hardly noticeable and didn't much improve the general atmosphere.

The mezzanine, with better lighting, ventilation and general facilities, usually attract many more students to social affairs, so why can't it be used at least until the atmosphere in the Womens Gym is improved? Making social affairs a success in that enviroment is becoming a real challenge!

A Temporary Measure

WE hope that the idea of weekend cafeteria meals won't die out permanently with the current return to family type serving.

The experiment with the cafeteria line Saturday and Sunday evenings was successful in that it showed both the students and staff the advantages and drawbacks to such a system. Most students seem to agree that, especially in cold weather, cafeteria serving did not prove efficient enough to adequately take care of the large turnouts.

However, since weekend cafeteria meals do have their advantages, we hope that some solution can be found to the problem and that they will be reinstated in the near future

Chapel Challenges

CHAPEL programs this semester seem to lack the variety and interest of other years.

The revised schedule of two a week was accepted favorably and generally agreed to be a big improvement. Everyone felt that it provided an opportunity to raise the quality and make the programs more worthwhile. Staggering the days for chapels was said to be an encouragement for hour programs, with time not being consistently deducted from the same classes.

On the contrary, however, chapels just haven't been up to par. Noticeable has been a lack of professional talent, including pianists, folksingers, dancers and speakers. Motion pictures have also become a thing of the past. Modern dancers and pantomimists were performers greatly enjoyed in previous years.

Guests such as Raymond Boese and Ralph Lapp are always appreciated by the students. However, their number has been too few this year. Let's hope the spring chapel programs will have more variety and interest to offer the students.

EDIT. NOTE: This will be the last issue of the JUNIATIAN before Christmas vacation. The next paper will appear January 9. The editorial, business and writing staffs of the JUNIATIAN extend to our readers best wishes for a happy holiday.

The Loveliest Night Of The Year

Next Thursday the Christmas activities at Juniata will be brought to a grand climax with the annual banquet and dance. By general consent these are two of the most enjoyable social events of the year. How many of you will miss one or both of these affairs for no valid reason?

I suppose the boys will feel put upon by this statement, but are you really going to enjoy yourself in the blue candle lit atmosphere of the banquet surrounded by "Your Gang" as much as you would in the company of a shiny-eyed coed?

I am not discouraging those persons, male or female, who actually do prefer attending the banquet in this fashion, for one reason or another. We wouldl like to see everyone there! But why not join all the fun and include the dance in your evening's plans. Both you and your date will remember a gayer Chrismas at Juniata than if you sat in the dormitory all evening. Ask her this week-end!!

Perhaps I can answer some questions you have had in mind. The banquet is closed to outside guests due to lack of facilities. The Dance, however, is open to all guests. Dress is semi-formal for both affairs and flowers can be ordered easily from the Social Committee representative in Totem Inn.

Let's clear the dorms and fill the gym Thursday evening. I know you won't regret it.

"YOUR TESTS HERE SEEM TO INDICATE YOU HAVE A KEEN INTEREST IN THE AREA OF FORM & STRUCTURE!"

ON Campus

by Don Miller

This week I would like to pay special tribute to a bit of rare and unsung talent possessed by one of our faculty members (blare of trumpets). This lad, caring little for the glory attributed to genius, wanted only to make amends for the big, glaring F he had given on an exam to a sweet, demure little coed (applause). So with pen in hand, he wrote this little verse just for her:

Bright and early on a morning
I was not awoke
Came the test so short and deadly
It was not a joke!!!
(I'm a frustrated poet!)

You're too modest, guy ----------

And another nude bites the dust!

Blushing, the prof gingerly picked up the novel that was part of the course requirement A sheepish grin crossed his face as he looked down at the very colorful and ultra-daring illustration on the cover. "Hmmmm," he mused, "perhaps you'd better turn this face down when you're not reading it. We don't want to subvert campus morals!"_____Why?

* * * * * * * *

How about the coed who waged, almost singlehandly, the "Clean up Tote" campaign so successfully? Well, it seems she was spotted hustling out of said hang-out, leaving behind the remains of a small feast on her table But wait, she's coming back! Yes, she's shoveling the garbage under her coat and there she goes fleeing into the night. Good girl! We knew you'd remember_____to put it on another table!

* * * * * * * *

"How do you spell it? How do you spell it?" the coed cried out in anguish, crashing her fist down on her half-finished theme. But nobody knew. Suddenly, cruising out of the local closet on her electric sweeper, came the cleaning lady to the rescue. She had the answer: "C-h-i-h-u-a-h-u-a, that's how you spell chihuahua." Break out the degrees.

Memo: to the prof who was bemoaning the fact that this column never printed anything about him. Why don't you say something I can print?

Well, that's it for this week. Write, won't you?

Alaska - The Frontier Future For The U.S.

THE FORTY-NINTH — The star which is so closely connected with the Christmas story will have a two-fold meaning this Christmas season. Whereas the Star of Bethlehem heralded to the world the coming of the Saviour, now this December another star will herald the coming of a new hope and future for the United States.

This new star is the symbol of the 49th state, Alaska. Sometime during the Christmas holidays President Eisenhower is officially expected to proclaim the formal admittance of Alaska into the Federal Union.

For the United States, Alaska poses as a new frontier, a vast horizon for those who wish a new land of opportunity. Thus Alaska stands as a living challenge to those of an adventurous and pioneering spirit, the same spirit that created this great country of ours.

The state of Alaska is tremendous in size, its total area is one-fifth the size of the United States, 586,400 square miles of land. Yet for all this space, Alaska has only 211,000 people living in the state; this includes the Aleuts, Indians and Eskimos. Thus the area for settlement and growth is overwhelming, the opportunities almost limitless. In relation to financial statistics, Alaska will have a budget this year of about $30 million dollars compared with enlightened New York City which boasts of a budget of some $2 billion.

Another factor which looms out in the Alaskan picture is the 102,250,000 acres of unclaimed Federal land which the Government is turning over to the Alaskan state government as lands for development and future settlement. This unclaimed land is almost the size of California. The natural resources of Alaska are numerous: its coal, iron, oil, minerals and timber have only been slightly tapped. This all points in one direction, Alaska is a challenge, a challenge to those with capital and manpower, a formidable block for those wishing to develop the potential, and strong-willed enough to succeed in such a venture.

In the realm of state government, a week ago Alaska for the first time elected its leaders, both to the United States Congress as well as the state governor and state legislature. William Egan, a Democrat, as were all the others elected, was chosen governor. Ernest Gruening and E. L. Bartlett were chosen to represent Alaska in the U.S. Senate. The problems which confront this infant state government are many-fold. The state must develop a system of local law enforcement agencies, a civil service, a penal system, to say nothing of internal improvements and communications.

The Alaska of the future stands as a bastion against Russia only 50 miles away. Its military position is of tremendous importance. But of greater significance Alaska stands as our security for peace and progress. Alaska stands waiting for those to fulfill the destiny of this young, untried, raw empire. Thus the star this Christmas represents a challenge for those seeking peace through the teachings of the Prince of Peace, and for those seeking a new stand in life and a new land of opportunity.

Todays' column is an opinion survey on wrestling. The following question was asked to a number of adminstrators and students on campus.

Since viewing the first wrestling match with Lebanon Valley College, do you think wrestling will become a popular intercollegiate sport at Juniata?

I think it will be popular with both participants and spectators. The participant has an outlet to gain the satisfaction of matching his strength and skill against competition of equal weight. For the spectator who enjoys watching contact activity, the sport holds a great deal of interest. It is new for Juniata and interesting because of the eagerness to learn more about the sport.

—P. M. Snider
Director of Athletics

Wrestling is growing in popularity as a college sport. Reports and comments following the Lebanon Valley match indicate that it will be popular at Juniata.

—Dr. Edgar Kiracofe

Definitely. Intercollegiate wrestling is here for a long-time. Not only is it a good sport for the individual, small or husky, but it is good for the college. Juniata has been competing academically with prominent institutions, but has not been offering as broad an intercollegiate sports program. Wrestling, as seen at the college level, requires brain as well as brawn.

—Bill Engel

I was pleased with the performance of our inexperienced squad. If the enthusiasm of both the team and the crowd are indicators, I predict that it will receive approval and become one of our best spectator sports.

—Charles Bargerstock

Wrestling fills a definite need in the sports schedule for Juniata. It provides an individual sport during the winter months. Success of the sport, however, depends on the interest of the students. If the LV match is an indication, wrestling will be a popular part of JC sports for many years to come.

—Jim Hunt
Sports Publicity Director

Personally, I think wrestling has "made it" at Juniata. Last Thursday night showed that both the team and student body were enthusiastic about the sport. I was glad to see this enthusiasm and feel confident it will repeat itself for future wrestling squads.

—Carl Wass

As you know intercollegiate wrestling at Juniata was brought about by student interest. I think the match with LV proved the students are behind wrestling being added to the sports calendar. However, as the students begin to understand the sport better, it will become more popular.

—Jim Heck

It looks to me like the interest is there, both in the competitor and the spectator. I think if it remains popular throughout the first year, it will stay that way in the future.

Mel Kreps

Yes, it gives the little guy a chance to earn a letter in a varsity sport. The sport was given much enthusiasm in its opener and it should grow more and more as the guys gain more experience.

JOHNSTOWN'S CONTRIBUTIONS — Guard Don Burnich and forward Jack Heading are two of the reasons why the Greenemen have a 3-0 slate going into tonight's fray.

WrestlersTieLebanonValley; Meet E-town Tomorrow Nite

Wrestling made its initial intercollegiate appearance at Juniata as the Indians tied Lebanon Valley, 18-18, before a nice-sized crowd in Memorial Gym.

The Tribe grapplers were able to gain a fall victory and one decision, as well as two forfeit wins, for their 18 points. The Flying Dutchmen countered with three falls and one decision for their total.

Blue and Gold victors were Ted Kaiser at 130 lbs. and Harry Long at 157 lbs. Kaiser gained a 5-3 advantage over his opponent, Vespe, in the third period before thrilling the crowd by pinning him. Long used riding time to good advantage to gain an impressive, 3-2, win over Reilly. Chuck Brown at 147 lbs and heavyweight Steve Barnett garnered forfeit wins.

Sam Grubb had too much experience to contend with in the person of Barry Keinard at 123 lbs. Grubb lost an early two point advantage in the first period and in the second period fell to Keinard's pining hold. Juniata's Joe Senft at 137 lbs. lost a 5-0 decision to strong Bob Sensenig.

Sellers Tires, Loses

At 167 lbs. JC's Pete Sellers took on LV's outstanding Dave Miller. Sellers was keeping Miller in trouble until he tired in the third period when Miller was able to gain a pin. The tribe's Emmett Capanna saw a first period 2-1 lead go by the boards in the final seconds of the second period when his opponent, Winter, was able to gain a fall.

Indians Trounce F&M E-town; 3-0 Slate

The cagemen's high-geared offense stood out this week as they picked up two impressive MAC victories over F&M and Elizabethtown.

Most recently the Tribe bounced their rivel E-town, 100-81, for their third straight win against no setbacks.

Center Bob Ewald played his finest game as he scored 23 points and dominated the boards to pace the Indians. Guards Don Burnich and Curt Gardner contributed 21 and 19 points respectively. Other scorers were Jack Heading 17, Gordie Ewers 12, Ed Costello 6 and Steve Gerlock 2. The Blue Jay's Bill Pennsyl led all scorers with 29.

Last Saturday the starting five tallied all the points in the 84-67 victory over F&M. Heading poured in 25 points while Gardner notched 22 in the win over the Diplomats.

The jayvees lost their opener to F&M, 57-55, despite Stan Hallman's fine performance of 22 points.

Tribe Hosts Ursinus Tonight; Travels To Geneva Next

Cocah "Doc" Greene's Tribe, riding the crest of a three game winning streak, hosts the Bears of Ursinus College this evening.

Fresh from an impressive win over arch-rival Elizabethtown, the Indians hope to add Coach Paul Zdanowicz's charges to their undefeated skein. Last year at Collegeville the Tribe had little difficulty in disposing of the bears in the early season encounter.

The Bears carry a 1-2 log into tonight's encounter. After losing to Rutgers of South Jersey in the season opener and downing Philadelphia Pharmacy College, Ursinus ran into high powered F&M who defeated them by a 106-75 count.

High-scoring Jim Wenhold paces the Ursinus attack which features three lettermen from last season's squad. The 6-2 junior forward was high scorer for the Bears last season. At the other forward is Mike Becker, also 6-2. At center for the Bears is Dennis Gould and at the guards will be Walt Christ and Bob Wagner, a pair of letterwinners from last season.

Next Wednesday the Tribe travels to Geneva where it meets its most formidable foe to date. The Covies hold impressive wins over Grove City and St. Vincent and are on top in the WPIAC conference.

Schena Paces Covies

Heading the Covies attack is Don Schena, a 5-10 guard who has netted 75 points in his first three games. Providing more than adequate support for their high scorer, the Covies also have fine performers in Sonny Gardner, Larry Zeh, Paul White and Carl Singer.

Undefeated Pals Set Three Bowling Marks

The Pals, Division II leaders, broke three records last Thursday as they beat Will's gang, 3-0.

The records set were high team, single game, 788, high team, match, 1497, and the high individual match by Harvey Wagner with 362.

Other three game sweeps included the Dutchmen over the Admirals, Highballers over the 4 Chiefs and a Squaw, the 4D's & C over Saylor House, the Chem Clubbers over the Harriers, the Handicap "5" over the Gutterballers and the Fulcains, Division I leaders, over the Spare Cats.

Closer 2-1 decisions were won by the King Pins over the Greeks and the Champs over the Senators.

Carol Phipps, the leading girl bowler, set the girls high match record with a 297 for the Fulcains.

Berrier Receives All-State Position

Bill Berrier, who was recently named to the Little All-American third team and elected co-captain of next year's squad, received a first team berth on the All-State team.

Second leading scorer in the state, Berrier joined West Chester's Bill Shockley, George Darrah of F&M and quarterback Ivan Toncic of Pitt in the first team backfield.

Al Dungan, one of the leading punters in the state, claimed a second team tackle position.

Three Indian teammates, seniors Ken Opipery and Bob Sill and newly-elected 1960 co-captain Bob Solomon received honorable mention.

JWSF Tells Progress Of Annual Campaign

According to Bonnie Gunther, Chairman of JWSF, $1,500 has been raised for the Juniata World Service Fund thus far, leaving approximately $450 remaining to be collected.

The Freshman Queen Contest, won by Becky Lambert, netted $10 for JWSF. The organization is planning several other similar projects throughout the year, including the sponsorship of a movie in the spring. Students are urged to complete their pledges before Christmas.

34 Students Sign For Vacation Bus

Thirty-four students of the reguired forty-nine have signed up for the Philadelphia-New Jersey bus, leaving Founders Hall at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, December 20.

This innovation is for the benefit of students who have no other means of travel, except by train. The bus will arrive at Valley Forge at 4 p.m., Philadelphia at 4:45 p.m, Camden at 5:15 p.m. and New Jersey at 7 p.m.

A round trip ticket is $10 to Philadelphia and $12 to New Jersey. This is approximately one-half of the train fare. To make the trip worthwhile, the bus must be filled. Warren Braunworth, Box 121, has information for interested students.

Business Majors Tour N. Y. City

Forty members of the managing and marketing classes taught by Profs. Nolan and Cherry spent the weekend of December 4-7 in New York City touring centers of United States business activity.

United States Shipping Lines was first on the agenda for Friday. There the JCers toured the U.S.S. United States.

At the New York Stock Exchange the classes watched transactions on the floor and saw a movie on the flow of investment in our economic system. The next point of interest was the Chase Manhattan Bank where the Juniatians observed the huge accounting systems and vaults.

At Idlewild Airport they heard a talk on management and personnel and were shown how various terminals of the international airport are coordinated. They also saw the Pan American Boeing 707, a commercial jet liner which holds 160 passengers and flies to London in six and one half hours.

The managing and marketing classes financed this trip primarily through campus concessions such as pizza sales and car washes. They were helped by Warren Braunworth of Summit, N.J., Joseph Kline of Mudge, Stern, Baldwin and Todd, New York and John Fike, Juniata's treasurer.

Students Tour Hawaii In Study Program

Look On Dark Side, Suggests Writer; Study Now For Finals

by Kay Gillies

If you're looking for a good way to waste time and a good excuse for murder—read this!

Finals will soon be upon you! Don't shoot us for reminding you! We must be our mature selves and face this horrible experience and tragic fate.

But it need not be so tragic—spend Christmas vacation studying and you've solved the problem of midnight oil and cramming!! Oh! You have more important things to do during the Christmas season — things like parties, dances, dates, sleeping, loafing and basketball games. Well! That's the way the mop flops!

Of course, there's always New Years Eve to squeeze in a few hours of studying while waiting for 1959 to come.

This year when that miserable week known as Finals rolls around, there will not be any moving furniture from rooms to suit several individuals' own desires for study conveniences. What will six sophomores on Third Brumbaugh do this time?

Girls—don't forget to take advantage of the 11 o'clock lates every night of Final Week. Have we sufficiently wasted your time? Good!! Mission accomplished.

A stamped, self-addressed postal card is to be used for each course on which the report of a final grade is desired, (Cards for the Totem Inn Post office need not be stamped.). On the message side of the card the student will write the name of the course. A report cannot be issued by means of an envelope.

The postal card is to be attached by paper clip to the first several pages of the examination book. After the instructor has graded the final examination and completed his calculations, the final grade for the course is placed on the card together with the instructor's initials.

Senate Reports Fike Favors New Activities Finance Plan

John Fike, JC treasurer, is in favor of the proposed activities finance plan, according to the minutes of the Senate meeting held before Christmas vacation.

The next step will be to submit a resolution of such a move to Fike and President Ellis for their official approval. This plan, which was introduced at Leadership Conference, would turn over to the Senate the responsibility of alloting the student activities fee to campus organizations.

Don Shover, chairman of educational activities, reported that at the present time Miss Schlegel is not willing to turn the new curriculum proposals over to the Senate. Shover added that a schedule is now underway for the proctoring of final exams.

Dining Decorum

Concern was expressed over the dining hall decorum at the evening meal. A committee consisting of Janice Christie, Sandy Johnston, Carol Teeter and Jim Heck in cooperation with Dean Bechtel was appointed to investigate this further.

The sinks in Totem Inn's snack bar are rusting and Mr. Fisher mentioned the possibility of Senate action to encourage the Administration to replace them. Sam Shore will check with Fisher on the prevailing conditions and report back to the Senate.

In the following order of business the Senate accepted Anne Scheib as travel director. Since this week's Senate meeting was not held until last night, it will be reported at a later date.

Applications For 1959 Show Rise Of 13.8%

Applications for admission to Juniata College for the 1959 terms have increased 13.8 percent over last year's record high, according to Kenneth Wenger, director of admissions.

The December 31 report shows that 384 men and women have applied for one of the three terms beginning this year. Most of these are for September, 1959. Last year's total applicants at this time was 331.

The increase is accounted for by the number of men who have applied, 209 this year compared to 156 in 1958. The report shows that exactly the same number of women, 175, applied at this time both years.

Inquiries for admission have jumped 26 percent, Wenger revealed. This year's total for September through December is 2,643 compared to 1,957 a year ago.

JC To Get $4000 In DuPont Grant

A grant of $4,000 has been awarded to Juniata College in the Du Pont Company's annual program of aid to education for "strengthening the teaching of science and related liberal arts" in 1959-60.

As in past years, colleges selected to receive the grants were chosen on their records of strength in chemical education. Grants of $4,000 each have been awarded to 76 institutions, mostly liberal arts colleges and 23 privately controlled universities, for the purpose of helping them maintain the excellence of their teaching, according to the company.

Each of the grants to colleges consists of $2,500 for chemistry teaching and $1,500 for other courses. The funds for chemistry teaching are to be used by the institutions in ways they feel will most effectively advance their instruction of the subject and stimulate interest in it.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Channel For Criticism

JUNIATA has participated in the national trend toward advancing student government into the field of education by creating the 13th chairmanship of educational activities. We feel the venture has been a worthwhile one. However, it has been brought to our attention that the students themselves are not reaping all the benefits that the new chair has to offer.

Perhaps the most important of senator Don Shover's duties is to "act as official student representative in all student concerns with the educational program."

Monthly meetings with Dean Mays have been set up to discuss student concerns in the field of education. Shover is the recognized channel through which students can voice constructive criticism about the education they are receiving.

Yet it seems student criticism has been voiced to everyone except Shover—from roomates to the Senate president. If you have complaints or comments to make, the educational activities chair is the logical and ideal channel through which to work. Here your ideas will go somewhere, and perhaps play a part in raising the academic standard of the college.

The information Shover carries to Dean Mays is respected, since previously the criticism has been validated and the petty or prejudiced complaints separated from honest grievances.

The creation of the 13th chairmanship represented a significant step forward in student government's role in education, yet its true worth will not be realized unless the office becomes an active voice of the students. Make your criticism constructive by offering it to the chairman of sducation activities—here it may come to benefit the whole college community.

The Last Word

WITH this issue of the JUNIATIAN, the present editor is promoted to retirement, while the new staff will assume positions of increased responsibility February 6. The past year has been a good one for the JUNIATIAN—one of hard work, of faithful service, much cooperation and, not to be forgotten, many laughs. For despite the work we have enjoyed putting the paper together, largely because of the real interest both students and faculty have shown in the finished product every Friday. For this I am grateful. Without continued interest and support from the students, a college newspaper can never approach success.

To keep this interest, however, a newspaper must achieve a degree of technical proficiency and print what the students want to read. Our staff has aimed for this in the past year and, although realizing failure at times, has succeeded, we would like to believe, in the long run. Yet we can never be sure unless we hear criticism, favorable or unfavorable, from our readers. Criticism is our main support and only guide to publishing the kind of paper you want to read.

Cooperation from both the Administration and the Senate has been another factor in making the '58 journalistic path smooth. Thanks go to both for their interest, but mainly for their non-interference in the paper's policies. The JUNIATIAN appreciates the free hand it has always been given in this respect.

Lastly, I would like to extend special thanks to my managing editor, Carol Baish, and news editor Pat Varec for the very important part they played in producing the '58 JUNIATIAN. It is easy to overlook the great amount of time and effort attached to both these positions. To Carol and Pat many thanks for your past devoted efforts and my sincere best wishes for a successful year with the '59 JUNIATIAN.

Emily Post Says . . .

COMMON sense and courtesy should tell East Hall ping pong artists not to play the game immediately before meals.

Neither faculty nor students appreciate running after balls or even a friendly jolt while waiting for dinner. The crowded state of the Rec Room at these times is obviously not conducive to ping pong. Why not avoid making a pest of yourself and reserve the game until you have sufficient playing room?

Movie Of The Week

Party Girl

Robert Taylor and Cyd Charisse co-star for the first time in MGM's "Party Girl." with Taylor playing an underworld lawyer of Chicago in the turbulent 30's, who falls in love with showgirl Cyd. Lee J. Cobb and John Ireland are also starred. The film plays Sunday only at the Harris Clifton Theatre.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS — by Dick Bibler

"AND THE SECOND THING YOU SHOULD LEARN TO DO IS TO TAKE CRITICISM"

ON Campus

by Don Miller

Well Christmas is over and everyone on Campus is making that last desperate plunge for the books in order to salvage their souls in the forthcoming finals. But there are some Juniatians who won't soon forget the holiday season. Several Juniatians are still trying to recover from the children's Christmas party, like the couple who found out at the end of the evening that their little boy had chicken pox; and another couple who will always remember the final words of their little charge. "Lemme outa here. I had a terrible time and I hope I don't get you next year!"

Then there was the coed who borrowed her boyfriend's car, only to be greeted with "Good morning, I'm trooper Larimer. You were going sixty-five miss!" She gave the ticket to her guy as a Christmas present.

And how about those trips back to school. Believe it or not four people (one sitting hindu style), eight pieces of luggage, one fur coat, three suits, other assorted loose clothing and three boxes all piled into a little Nash Rambler and actually made it to Juniata! And that character in "Beep! Beep!" thinks he has a hot car!

Quotable Quotes

On those rare occasions when profs forsake their notes you might hear some original ad libs like these:

"Now the hero of this story is a chivalric young knight in flower — actually he's a bit of an ass!"

After giving a list of "non-acceptable" novels the prof confessed, "Of course any book I don't like you know ought to be worth reading!"

"Oh yes." the prof agreed, "Onward Christian Soldiers is a nice song, but Brethren don't sing it!"

"Now the woman in this painting has what all college men would call S.A. Forgive the initials, but I just can't make myself say those two horrible words!"

With that I close another semester. An extra big thanks to the business and English departments, second and third floor East Hall and "Renie" for keeping me well-supplied.

Castro Ends Bastista Dictatorship

— Herb Deuchar:

News Of The Week In Retrospect

THE CUBAN REVOLUTION — For some six long years Fidel Castro has waged an incessant guerrilla war against the Cuban government led by Cuban dictator Fulgencio Bastista. On New Years Day Fidel Castro's dogged determination and zeal finally paid dividends as boss Bastista fled the country after an unsuccessful attempt at thwarting Castro's move to seize the island.

Fidel Castro is no new name in the news, as his exploits first crashed the headlines back on July 26, 1953. Castro, a law student at the University of Havana, led a group of intellectuals and disappointed citizens who had vehemently been protesting the stagnant regime of dictator Bastista. Bastista, an old force in Cuban politics, had been in control of the Cuban government ever since 1951 when he sized control. Not long in power, Bastista's government became deeply corroded with graft and corruption plus the usual high-handed power methods the stereotyped dictator employs.

The Cuban treasury became a source of income for a great many of Bastista's cronies and, coupled with the gambling rackets which ran unchecked on the island, Bastista's regime soon fell into dispute and eventually hatred by the middle class business interests and intellectuals living in Cuba. Thus it was that on July 26, 1953 Castro led a group of followers on a tragic raid of a government Army barracks at Santiago de Cuba. The raid failed, with 165 of Castro's men being slaughtered, many of them after they had surrendered.

Castro went into retirement to organize and supply the movement which he had begun in the late foll of 1956 Castro again tried a coup d'etat, this time landing at Oriente on the Cuban coast, and again he was expelled with a heavy loss of lives. This time Castro and what remained of his force retreated to the Siersa Madre Mountains from which Castro pursued a guerrilla type war against the Bastista regime. Many attempts were made by the government to end Castro's movement, but time and time again Castro eluded the government forces and successfully led attacks on oil depots, government installations and communication centers. With the ecnomic machinery of Cuba slowly coming to a halt, the tide began to turn against Bastista and his government.

A week ago Bastista, in an all-out effort to end Castro's movement, called for an offensive to stop Castro once and for all. Castro laid his cards on the table and decided on a do-or-die thrust against Bastista and his control. Last Monday in the key battle Santa Casa in the center of Cuba was successfully taken by Castro. From then on the Bastista cause faded rapidly. Bastista's demoralized troops soon began changing sides, and on New Years Day Fulgencio Bastista fled Cuba seeking asylum in Santo Domingo. Once the entire island had succumbed to Castro's forces, which now numbered close to 5000 strong, Castro named Manuel Urrutia president of the new provisional government of Cuba.

The United States during this long struggle has tacitly recognized Bastista's government, while adhering to a policy of "watchful waiting." Now that Castro is in power the question is, What will be the relations between the United States and Cuba? Castro only wants democracy to reign in Cuba, but there is the wide spread pessimism that the socialists and communists have heavily backed Castro's movement. It remains to be seen whether or not Castro and his forces will be able to set up a stable government in Cuba. Whatever happens down in "the pearl of the Antilles", it can be almost assumed that this government will not allow the political situation in Cuba to drift too far out of hand or too far to the left.

Chalk It Up!

The hot and now cold basketball team currently owns a 4-5 slate after a poor showing in the Bridgewater Tournament which was sandwiched by losses to Geneva and Shippensburg.

Prior to the holidays the Tribe averaged 88.4 points in the first five gale sto rank 7th in the nation in team scoring. Since then the Tribe has hit on only 33 per cent of their shots and their team average has dropped to 77.3.

Don Burnich is the one bright spot despite the letdown. The flashy guard was the unofficial scoring champ in the round robin with 52 points in the three contests. He also was named to the first ECAC small college team-of-the-week along with Fred Dietzel of Albright, Scranton's Ed Kazakavich, Jim Grant of Adelphi and Union College's Frank Crum.

To date the 5-6 sharpshooter has scored 173 points for a 19.2 average to pace the Indian affense.

* * * * *

The basketball team will meet three of the nation's small college point leaders in the near future. Willie Jones of American University, Joe Bretschneider of Rutgers (SJ) and E-town's Bill Pennlys are currently ranked 4th, 6th and 8th in scoring.

Bill Miller of the Admirals owns the best average in intramural bowling. Recently bowling 196 and 192 games, Miller posts a 169 average to head the list in winter's most-growing sport.

Three Pals - Ron Bergey with 168, Harvey Wagner with 159 and Les Greenawalt with 158 - follow in the race for the best average. Rounding out the top five is Jim Parks of the Highballers with 155 pins per game.

Prior to last night's games, Harold Krause of the Whips paced the individual scoring race with 114 points in four games. Bucky Brumbaugh, of the Shieks is runnerup with 104 points.

The Bulldogs' Jim Seacrist is close behind with 103 points and two of the surprising Heller's Angels, Jack Campbell and Ted Keiser, follow with 22.3 and 21.5 averages to round out the top five.

Teachers Dump Tribe; Loss Streak At Five

Coach Doc Greene's hoopsters lost to Shippensburg 79-76, for their fifth straight setback after winning four straight.

Don Burnich led the Indian's attack twice with 23 points as the Tribe lost to the well-balanced Teachers but dumped Ursinus 97-47 for its fourth straight victory of the season. Juniata led by a slim 17 point margin at halftime but rallied in the second 20 minutes to score against the outclassed Bears.

Geneva's sharpshooting Covies handed the Greenemen their first defeat of the season 92-80 on the Beaver Falls hardwoods. The Indians fell behind early in the contest and were never able to close the gap against their west state opponents. Burnich hit for 27 markers to head the losing cause while Gordy Ewers and Jack Heading followed with 19 and 14 points respectively.

Lose Tournament Games

In the Bridgewater Invitational Tournament Juniata failed to win a single game in the round robin play. In the action last Friday Randolph-Macon handed the Tribe a 73-64 drubbing. On Saturday the Indians played a twin bill losing to Hampden-Sydney 57-56 in an overtime thriller and dropped the nightcap to a much improved Bridgewater quintet 65-58.

The JV's dropped decisions to Shippensburg and Altoona Center but nipped E-town's junior varsity to bring their slate to 1-3.

Indians Host Titans, E-town; Face Indiana Teachers Away

Tonight's encounter with high-flying Westminster heads the list of top teams the Tribe is slated to play during the week.

Monday they host the Elizabethtown Blue Jays and Wednesday they travel to Indiana State Teachers College to play their last game before the semester break.

Davis Leads Titans

Pacing the Titan's 85 points per game output is Chuck Davis, flashy junior guard who has netted 127 points for a 21.2 per game average. Close behind Davis is the team's captain, Dave Rankin, who is ripping the cords with an average of 18.5. Nick Johnson, skyscraping center, leads the Titans in the rebound department, having snagged 72 caroms off the boards.

The remaining two starters are Don McCraig and Jack Steele, both of whom have performed well for Coach Ridl this season.

Monday evening E-town will be seeking revenge for an earlier loss at the hands of the Tribe. Its one-two punch of Bill Pennsyl and Bob Geiger has combined for an average of more than 46 points per game in its first six encounters. With the starting lineup bolstered by Glenn Bruckhart, Kent Replogle and Gene Kearns, the Blue Jays figure to be much improved over the team the Indians defeated last month.

Coach Regis Knight of Indana has but one starter returning from last year's outstanding squad, Jamie Kimbrough, a six-foot senior ballhawk. Boasting a 25-3 record last year, the Teachers appear unlikely to win half of their games this year with their great inexperience.

Aiding Kimbrough in the starting lineup will be Harry Carnahan, Jim Falis, Sam Sherwood and Bill Pendleton, none above the six-foot mark.

E-town Grapplers Tumble Matmen

Juniata's wrestling team lost its first meet of the season to Elizabethtown, 26-10, on the Blue-Jays' mats.

Experience was the key to the team's victory, which was not as one sided as the score indicates. A loss by a decision on the strength of riding time and a fall defeat in a match which had JC ahead cost the Indians eight points.

Sam Grubb surprised the home fans by winning the 123 lb. match by a fall in the second period. Ted Keiser lost a 5-3 decision in the 130-lb. class. The score at this point found Juniata ahead, 5-3, though.

Three losses in a row then put E-town almost out of reach. Larry Fay and Chuck Brown, at 137 lbs. and 147 lbs. respectively, were victims of last-second, first period pins. Harry Long, at 157 lbs., lost a heart-breaking 3-2 decision on riding time.

Pete Sellers put JC back into the thick of things with a second period fall victory. This brought the score to 16-10 in E-town's favor. Losses by falls at 177 lbs. and heavyweight ended the meet. Skip Walasik, while leading, was pinned in the closing seconds of his bout. Steve Barnett was caught in a pinning hold in the first period of his match.

Falcains Win, Lead IM Bowling Division

The Falcains dumped the Saylor House, 3-0, in a pre-vacation match and regained first place in their intramural bowling division.

Shutouts were also recorded by the Greeks over the Admirals and the Dutchmen over the Harriers.

Despite Bill Miller's 388, the Admirals lost to the Saylor House, 2-1, and the Holy Rollers defeated the 4 Chiefs & a Squaw by the same margin.

Paced by Jim Parks' 198, the highballers outbowled the Handicap "5" by a 2-1 score.

JWSF Tells Progress Of Annual Campaign

According to Bonnie Gunther, Chairman of JWSF, $1,500 has been raised for the Juniata World Service Fund thus far, leaving approximately $450 remaining to be collected.

The Freshman Queen Contest, won by Becky Lambert, netted $10 for JWSF. The organization is planning several other similar projects throughout the year, including the sponsorship of a movie in the spring. Students are urged to complete their pledges before Christmas.

34 Students Sign For Vacation Bus

Thirty-four students of the reguired forty-nine have signed up for the Philadelphia-New Jersey bus, leaving Founders Hall at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, December 20.

This innovation is for the benefit of students who have no other means of travel, except by train. The bus will arrive at Valley Forge at 4 p.m., Philadelphia at 4:45 p.m, Camden at 5:15 p.m. and New Jersey at 7 p.m.

A round trip ticket is $10 to Philadelphia and $12 to New Jersey. This is approximately one-half of the train fare. To make the trip worthwhile, the bus must be filled. Warren Braunworth, Box 121, has information for interested students.

Business Majors Tour N. Y. City

Forty members of the managing and marketing classes taught by Profs. Nolan and Cherry spent the weekend of December 4-7 in New York City touring centers of United States business activity.

United States Shipping Lines was first on the agenda for Friday. There the JCers toured the U.S.S. United States.

At the New York Stock Exchange the classes watched transactions on the floor and saw a movie on the flow of investment in our economic system. The next point of interest was the Chase Manhattan Bank where the Juniatians observed the huge accounting systems and vaults.

At Idlewild Airport they heard a talk on management and personnel and were shown how various terminals of the international airport are coordinated. They also saw the Pan American Boeing 707, a commercial jet liner which holds 160 passengers and flies to London in six and one half hours.

The managing and marketing classes financed this trip primarily through campus concessions such as pizza sales and car washes. They were helped by Warren Braunworth of Summit, N.J., Joseph Kline of Mudge, Stern, Baldwin and Todd, New York and John Fike, Juniata's treasurer.

Students Tour Hawaii In Study Program

Look On Dark Side, Suggests Writer; Study Now For Finals

by Kay Gillies

If you're looking for a good way to waste time and a good excuse for murder—read this!

Finals will soon be upon you! Don't shoot us for reminding you! We must be our mature selves and face this horrible experience and tragic fate.

But it need not be so tragic—spend Christmas vacation studying and you've solved the problem of midnight oil and cramming!! Oh! You have more important things to do during the Christmas season — things like parties, dances, dates, sleeping, loafing and basketball games. Well! That's the way the mop flops!

Of course, there's always New Years Eve to squeeze in a few hours of studying while waiting for 1959 to come.

This year when that miserable week known as Finals rolls around, there will not be any moving furniture from rooms to suit several individuals' own desires for study conveniences. What will six sophomores on Third Brumbaugh do this time?

Girls—don't forget to take advantage of the 11 o'clock lates every night of Final Week. Have we sufficiently wasted your time? Good!! Mission accomplished.

Judiciary Passes New Constitution

The Campus Judiciary held its regular meeting Monday n the Conference Room.

Women's House reported 26 campuses and Men's House reported the removal of the television set from North Dorm due to the breaking of the smoking rules set up by the Men's House Committee.

Business included the reading of a letter from the faculty approving the constitution of the Judiciary Council. A motion was passed to the effect that the Judiciary publish in THE JUNIATIAN its action in disciplinary cases and exclude the names of persons involved and that the alternative of withholding this information due to special cases or circumstances be left to the discret on of the Judiciary itself.

Other items discussed at the meeting included excusing a traffic ticket dismissal of two students for stealing notes, and a student fined for having a non-registered car on campus.

Alumni To Judge All Class Night

Plans for All Class Night scheduled for February 21 in Oller Hall are progressing "full speed ahead," according to Judy Barrowclough, general chairman.

All the scripts, which follow a musical theme, have been turned in and class members are urged to cooperate with their respective chairman in the production.

Paul DeSesso has been chosen as business manager and make-up chairman is Barbara Fritchie. Assisting Miss Barrowclough is Diane Klebe.

There will be five judges, all of which will be Juniata alumni, graduated in the past five to ten years. One of these is a former All Class Night general chairman.

Rehearsals for the event will be held the preceding week, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings in Oller Hall.

Dance To Feature Campus Combo Music

The Happy Halupkies, an on-campus combo, are providing the music for tomorow night's dance on the mezzanine of Memorial Gymnasium from 9:30 until 11:30 p.m.

Novelty dances including polkas, the bunny hop and Mexican hat dance will be featured. For the non-dancers there will be television and pretzels in the East Hall Rec Room and Totem Inn, along with ice skating if weather permits.

Saturday evening's activities this week are under the joint sponsorship of the German Club and social committee.

Senate Discusses Seminar Program, General Activities

At the meeting of the Juniata College Senate held last Tuesday evening, chairman of underclassmen, Don Miller, reported on the progress of his committee regarding the changing of some of the rules and regulations that appear in the freshman handbook, The Scout.

After short discussion on each of the various proposed changes and additions, the Senate unanimously approved the report and gave Miller consent to continue on his work with his committee.

Leadership Seminar

A committee composed of president Chuck Brown, vice president Carl Wass and chairman of communications, Dick Johnson reported on their meeting concerning the procedure to be followed at the coming Leadership Seminars.

The seminars are to be held on three consecutive Thursday evenings at 7 p.m. starting on February 12 and running through February 26. According to the com- include an explanation of student government at Juniata by Chuck Brown, a break down of campaign procedures by Carl Wass, a recapitulation of the political involvements of last years elections. by Carol Baish and a discussion of duties of the various Senate posts by on Miller and Stan Davis. A summary of the main political issues will also be given by someone to be announced at a later date.

Chuck Brown reported to the Senate on the Judiciary meeting that was held this week. He said that perhaps a system for publicity of Judiciary meetings would be inagurated. More reports will follow pending action by various parties.

Chairman of General Activities

Arrangements for the filling of one office of chairman of general activities, vacated by Dutch Boland, were held in abeyance pending further word from Dutch as to his definite plans for this semester.

Christiansen Here To Direct Concordia Choir In Oller Hall

The Concordia College Choir will present a concert in Oller Hall Tuesday, February 10, at 8:15 p.m. under the joint sponsorship of St. James Lutheran Church and Juniata College.

Director of the choir is Paul Christiansen, head of the department of music at Concordia College, Moorhead, Minnesota. Christiansen, who studied composition with Norman Lockwood at Oberlin University and was granted his master of music degree from the Eastman School of Music, is in continual demand throughout the nation as a judge and guest conductor at festivals, and as consultant at choral workshops. He is also a composer for choir and orchestra.

● Paul Christiansen ●
Concordia Choir Director

The group of 65 singers won international prestige this summer touring Europe giving special concerts at the Brussells World Fair and the Vienna Music Festival. This season the choir will make appearances in several midwestern and eastern cities. During their visit to New York, the choir has been invited to sing before the United Nations. This will mark only the second time that a choral group has been asked to sing before the General Assembly since the formation of the United Nations.

In recent years the choir has toured the nation where they have been labeled one of the foremost American choral groups. Enthusiasm has been substantiated by critics from New York to San Francisco. "Subtle perfection, sheer beauty" and "incredibly fine tone quality" are but a few of the many phrases of praise the choir has received.

Singing a capella the choir presents a program ranging from Bach classics to simple folk melodies of several nations.

Contemporary Writer To Speak In Chapel

James Farrell, famed contemporary writer, wil speak to the student body Monday morning in Chapel.

Born into a working class Irish-American family in the South Side of Chicago, Farrells early environment has provided much of the background for his novels. His writings of realism seek to recreate a precise, detailed and objective picture of certain features of the so-called American way of life. His aim is to answer the question "What happens to people?"

Farrell's education includes three years of study in the University of Chicago and extensive travel in Europe, the Middle East and all parts of the United States. In recent years he has been in great demand as a speaker at universities and forums throughout this country and abroad. Some of his works include My Baseball Diary, Young Lonigan and Judgment Day.

Postman Leister Guest At Banquet

Frank Leister, Huntingdon's veteran mail carrier who served College Hill for 38 years, was guest of honor at a dinner given by President Ellis in East Hall last Friday night.

Among the special guests, in addition to Leister and his wife, were his mother and his daughter, Janet and her husband, William Liebig, Jr., Harrington Park, N. J. Until the sub-station of the post office was opened at Totem Inn, Leister delivered mail personally to the college.

Leister retired December 31, 1958, after almost 44 years of service with the Huntingdon Post Office.

A movie entitled The Sign of Jonah will be shown Tuesday night, February 24.

Brumbaugh To Head American Alumni

Harold Brumbaugh, alumni secretary at Juniata, will direct the planning and execution of the entire 1960 Middle Atlantic Conference of the American Alumni Council.

Brumbaugh was appointed conference chairman at the annual conference at Rutgers University, N.J., last month. The Middle Atlantic District includes colleges and universities in Delaware, District of Columbia, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and the province of Ontario, Canada.

Editor's Desk . . . .

— Our Former Editor —

WITH the opening of the spring term here, the JUNIATIAN staff "promotes to retirement" its 1958 editor, Barb Walls. Although she may say little more than, "What am I going to do with all those free afternoons?" we are positive that JCs college weekly has been a source of enjoyment as well as hard work for Barb.

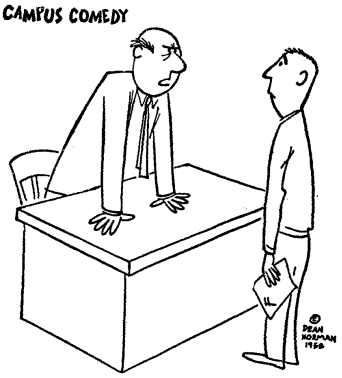
Her job has been a complex one, occupying many hours beyond the writing of editorials. The style guide mentions "maintaining policy" and "coordinating the various staffs." There were also the Thursday afternoons down at the printers pouring over the galleys, making corrections, helping put the pages together, then reading and rereading the page proofs. We have waited many a late Thursday afternoon at the printer's, (with very little hope of getting back to East Hall in time for dinner!), watching Barb go over the pages "one more time" to catch those elusive errors which are the first things people notice. And somehow, Friday morning, the Juniatians were scattered all over Tote and profs who taught 10:30 classes looked helplessly at a roomful of newspapers.

The paper Barb edited was worthy of the enthusiasm of students and faculty members. She worked constantly to maintain firm journalistic technique and to provide an an effective sounding board for campus opinion. Hers was a steady hand at the controls and she proved that a college paper does not have to be a radical element. driving a wedge between students and administration.

Recognition of her efforts came in ACP's first class rating for the spring semester, 1958. She has helped push the Senate post of educational activities and the student proctoring service. At present she is at work on a literary magazine for Juniata.

So Barb, you are welcome to spend "all those free afternoons" in the Juniatian office. (Of course, it is not the best atmosphere in which to study for those English comps!) The entire staff joins in wishing you luck during your last semester at JC and in "the world outside." Here's hoping we can keep up the good work.

CAMPUS COMEDY



"I DON'T CARE HOW MANY SCIENTISTS RUSSIA GRADUATES EACH YEAR! I DON'T FEEL A PATRIOTIC DUTY TO GIVE YOU A PASSING GRADE!"

On The Light Side

by Dan Davis

Well, I'm a new face but the column is just about the same with a new title. Obviously, the same type of snide insinuations will be voiced while an occasional direct slash may appear when the author's temper is slightly piqued.

I'm sure that many of us have read or seen the tearful saga entitled, Little Boy Lost. Fortunately for the literary world, a sequel has been written with the provoking title of Major Ed Psych Lost: As Victorian age literature students will recall, a sedate and erect gentleman came into a classroom filled with pensive scholars, all of whose attention was directed to the czar of English House. "Where do I belong and what is my class?" queried the visitor with a bewildered air. At this, the Divine Right Czar opened his luxurious briefcase and methodically leafed through the spring class schedule, eventually finding that the visitor had no class.

Snickers were heard from various corners while the now-jubilant prof squared his shoulders, hoisted his equally luxurious briefcase and marched out as sedately as he had entered. The MP's maintain that the mysterious professor was last seen checking his mail in the PX.

North Dorm Caper

The faculty or administration at JC seems to have rephrased the trite motto, "Fight fire with fire,' to, "Fight immaturity with ————." Much to the amazement of North Dorm inhabitants, the well-kept Juniata truck was seen parked in front of the dorm (which is, of course, a forbidden act since the construction of Elephant Wall's much needed cement-filled black poles). The truck was being loaded with a TV set and cigarette stained lounge chairs.

However, we were not without decoration; for where the TV once stood was taped an artistically composed note in explanation of this severe punishment. In short, it stated that this act had been performed for the sake of teaching us how to dispose of cigarette butts in an ashtrayless lounge. (Would some co-ed please invite the "coolest cat in Derry" to East Hall to watch Gustina on American Bandstand? Otherwise, there is no telling what he might do!)

Finally, the caper of finals week was pulled by the newly titled doctor of the biology department while giving out the various examinations. Raising his hand above the heads of many eager home ec majors, he naively asked, "Is there any more 'Food' around?"

Happy Birthday, B o o n n J !

More of the same next week.

Orchids To Proctors

EXCUSE us for bringing up the subject of finals; we do not mean to dampen the spirit of this brave semester. However, we think that a word of praise should be extended to the student proctors. Their work at final examinations in January marked a new high in the steady progress toward an honor system at Juniata.

Several faculty members and students have expressed their appreciation of this service. Many of the profs felt that they would have been willing to let the student proctors take over completely. Each member of the committee proctored at least two exams; there were no reports of a proctor's failure to show up. It is no easy job to stand for three hours with nothing to do but keep your eyes open. (One proctor said he would rather be taking the exam!)

So, to Terry Fouse, chairman, and the members of his committee, we extend congratulations for meeting this challenge. It is an illustration of an increasingly mature attitude toward academic honor on this campus.

Onions To 'The Beat'

"I don't believe in the government I don't believe in the police force I don't believe in the postal service I don't believe in the 'phone company I don't believe in the armed forces I don't believe in the sewage system I don't believe in nothin'."

Does that message inspire you to rise to your feet and add a resounding Amen? We have to doubt it. For San Francisco's North Beach, home of the beats, has not extended its doctrines as far as Juniata's campus. To which we add, "Who cares?"

However, according to Associated Collegiate Press releases, this movement (or lack of movement) is having its effects from Newfoundland to Mexico Formal and informal discussions on the beatniks are being held on many campuses. The opening quotation was taken from Memorial University of Newfoundland's newspaper.

Tom White, student at Mexico City College, who lived with the group for a time, reports, "Beat doesn't mean dragged-out or tired; that's a very crummy misconception people have. What it signifies is that they're on the beat, intune, aware and over-sensitive to what's going on. They're looking for Life, but right now it seems too far way for their binoculars to reach. And there isn't any focus adjustment on the lens."

Now all this may be very poetic but it probably boils down to the description by the National Student Association's newspaper, " . . . they represent humanity stripped of all that civilization has given them as a heritage."

Well, they may be a fascinating group, these beats. But we have not met any of their number crawling around JC's campus. For this we give most hearty thanks. They call themselves World War Two's lost generation and they prefer not to be found. So let's give them their wish. , , Why doesn't someone start something new?

Taxes In Pennsylvania Friction With Hungary

—Shane

Governor Lawrence, in an attempt to pull Pennsylvania out of a financial dilemma, is presently in session with the tax study commission. The committee is a 12 man advisory group headed by Cilfford Hood, president of United States Steel. The group has been presented with the state revenue requirements for the 1959-1960 fiscal period which begins June 1. It is estimated that our state needs upwards of 400 million dollars in new revenues to finance the first two years of Lawrence's administration. Sources in Harrisburg have rumored that the group has recommended broadening the three percent sales tax as a solution.

The Luzerne county bloc in the house of the General Assembly is pushing for a full scale inquiry into the Pittston mine disaster and its causes. Their Republican minority leader, Albert Johnson, is submitting a bill to restrict mining beneath and in the vicinity of riverbeds to state supervision, to prevent disasters in the future. A bill which will provide three million dollars aid to the areas recently hit by the floods is now on the senate floor.

Hungary Trouble

The United States has been warned by the puppet regime of Janos Kadar to establish "normal" diplomatic relations with Hungary or suffer the consequences. When the American government returned the "offensive" and "insulting" note, the Kadar regime limited the activities of the American legation in Budapest, threatening a complete break of diplomatic relations. Faces in the Kremlin are said to be watching Hungary with one eye, with tongue in cheek, while Berlin is watched with the other.

Trials In Cuba

Castro is presently under a storm of protest due to the trials of the members of the Batista regime. The Cubans favor the swift execution of those found guilty of "war crimes" by the revolutionary courts. The accused is tried before a three-man court and without a jury. He is entitled to a defense attorney who has the right to cross-examine the witnesses. If convicted, he can appeal to a five-man court, which hands down a final decision in 48 hours. If convicted, the execution is carried out immediately. Sora Blanca was tried by the three man tribunal at a public trial in Havana's Sports Palace. "I don't know whether I am on trial in the Roman Colosseum or whether I am standing before our Lord Jesus Christ," were the words he uttered as the TV cameras carried his statement over the shouts of the hucksters, seling pop and candy in the stands He was executed.

Purse strings, a factor sometimes more powerful than morals in international politics, are also being pulled. Castro has promised cuts in rates of electricity and telephone services. The Cuban Electric Company is US owned. The Cuban Telephone Company is an affiliate of International Telephone and Telegraph. The Cuban tourist income is down. Sugar, a 00 million dollar export to markets in the United States, is beginning to move over the shattered railways. Communication facilities in eastern and central Cuba are nil.

Castro's brother Raul, and Castro's friend Ernesto Guevara, from the Argentine, are known leftists and have voiced anti-American sentiments. Their policy is to treat American investors rough. "The highest proof of virtue is to possess boundless power without abusing it."

New York

Tired of being shifted from reservation to reservation, the Tuscarora Indians, in 1924, purchased a tract of rather worthless land in New York state. It now seems that the Niagara power project needs approximately one-sixth of this land to complete construction now underway. The Indians won't sell. The case was presented to the Federal Power Commission which voted two to three in favor of the Indians. White man's burden?

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

Wrestling action returns to Memorial Gymnasium tomorrow afternoon at 2 p.m. with the Indians out to scalp the Warriors of Lycoming College.

This new sport is an extraordinarily interesting spectator sport as the primary object is for one wrestler to pin his opponents shoulders to the mat for three seconds. In order to decide a match that has no pin, points are awarded to wrestlers for various manuevers, for instance, a take down or escape.

A bout begins with the participants standing. Two points are given to the one who can put his opponent to the mat and gain control of him. The defensive man can gain two points by reversing his position and gaining control or he can gain one point by escaping the hold and coming to a neutral position in which neither wrestler has control.

While on top, the wrestler can gain a point for riding time, which occurs when one wrestler has one more minute of time in control than the other. Three near-fall points are given to the wrestler who comes close to pinning his opponent, but has his pinning hold broken. One point predicament is given to a wrestler for getting his opponent in a position to a near-fall. Penalty points are also given for stalling and illegal holds.

A special bowling tournament for college students will be held next week at Star Bowling Center.

Bowling chairman, Les Greenawalt announced that this will be a handicap doubles tournament. Each entrant must bowl a minimum of three games and may roll as often as he choses as long as he competes against a different partner.

In figuring handicaps, the intramural average is subtracted from a base of 180 and three-fourths of the difference is the handicap. Forty pins is the maximum handicap.

Indians Upset Westminster; Defeat LH, Rutgers, E-town

The basketballers won four of their last six contests to bring their record to eight wins and seven losses.

In the best appearance of the year, the Indians upset powerful Westminster by two points in a thriller and also dropped Lock Haven, Rutgers and Elizabethtown but lost to Indiana STC and Drexel.

Most recently the floormen thumped Lock Haven Teachers, 88-62, as Don Burnich's 27 and 16 counters by Gordie Ewers and Bob Ewald paced the home team to victory in a slow moving contest.

Don Burnich led the Indians to their most impressive victory of the season with a 35 point output against the Titans of Westminster. Leading 44-33 at halftime, the Tribe endured a second half rally by the visitors to capture a 80-78 triumph, their second in the 24 game series between the two clubs.

The Tribe dumped Elizabethtown for the second time this year by a 80-66 score as Burnich again paced the Greenemen with 29 points. Curt Gardner tallied 17 and Blue Jay Bill Pennsyl, led the losers with 27.

The Teachers of Indiana handed the Indians a 95-82 setback on the foreign court. Sam Sherman contributed 27 for the victors and Gordie Ewers had 21 for the losers.

Last weekend the Indians, paced by Ewers' 39 points and Burnich's 30, split two decisions i the east. The Tribe had little trouble dumping Rutgers of South Jersey, 97-74, but lost to Drexel by a 91-77 margin. Guards Hilmer and Morgan paced the Dragons with 25 and 24 points respectively.

Whips, Bulldogs, Crusaders, Dukes Pace IM League

The Crusaders and Dukes picked up wins to keep their records unsullied in Northern competition while the Bulldogs and Whips remained undefeated in the Southern division.

In Monday's action the Golden Dragons nipped the Lakers 59-56, once beaten Hellers Angels downed the Black Angels 48-44, and the Sheiks dropped a 69-50 decision to the Honeybunns. In other games, the Bulldogs easily outclassed the Amish 99-62, the Hawks edged the NJ Owls 55-51, and the Whips smashed the Mountain Dewers 108-40.

On Tuesday the high riding Dukes dropped the Alpha Sigma Sigma 80-54, the Blockers picked up a 72-59 victory over the Golden Dragons and the Crusaders, leaders of the Northern division, beat the Honeybunns 50-32. In the evenings other clashes the Black Angels dropped the Dark Horses 59-41, the Bulldogs romped over the Hawks 110-57, and Hellers Angels took a 101-36 victory over the Polliwogs.

The standings are the same as the pre-vacation standings with the exception of the fourth place Sheiks and the seventh place Blockers advancing in the Northern division.

Tribe To Host Lyco, Dickinson

Coach Arnold Greene's "revamped" Indians meet the Dickinson Red Devils Monday in the second of a three-game home stand.

The Red Devils, led by the MAC's leading scorer, Ray Weaver, rang up a record of 10 wins and 11 losses last season. But with Weaver gone, coach Joe DuCharme has been forced to rely upon underclassmen in rebuilding his squad this year. Only one of the starters, captain Joe Valenti, is a senior. Valenti, shortest man on the team at 5-7, averaged 12.7 points per game last season as a starter. Aiding him in the other guard slot is Neil Parson, a 6-2 junior.

Joe Elinsky 6-3, is the Red Devil center, and in the forward positions are Ray Cromer, sophomore, and Gene Becker, freshman.

Wednesday evening the Tribe seeks revenge against Lycoming for the narrow 73-72 loss it suffered at Williamsport last season. Coach George Lawther, after a dismal 3-16 record last year, finds himself hampered once again by a height problem. Lou Miorelli, 612 center, is the tallest man on the squad and is the Warrior's sole rebounding threat.

Rounding out the Warrior's starting five are Frank Sullivan, 5-9, Jack Boyd, 6-1, Cliff Smith, 6-1 and Don Habel, 6-2.

Rebel Rousers Vie For Basketball Title

The Rebel Rousers, freshman team, leads the girls intramural basketball league.

Undefeated in five starts, the Rebel Rousers recently won decisive decisions over the Rah-Rahs, 50-17, and the Group, 51-12.

Defending champions, the Raunchies are in second place with a 3-2 record, beating the Seniors, 46-16, and the Group, 35-6, but losing to the Great Pretenders, 38-36, in overtime in games played lately.

In other action, the Group nipped the Rah-Rahs, 14-13, but lost to the Swingin' Squaws, 15-10. The Rah-Rahs retaliated with victories over the Great Pretenders, 32-28, and the Swingin' Squaws, 34-28.

Matmen End Season With Lyco Match

Juniata's newest sport takes the spotlight again tomorrow afternoon in Memorial Gym at two as the Indian wrestling team hosts the matmen from Lycoming College.

The Tribe grapplers, coached by Charley Godlasky, take a one tie, one loss record into the meet. The Warriors will counter with one of the Middle Atlantic Conference's toughest squads. The visitor's latest success was a 34-0 whitewash over Lincoln College.

Lycoming's coach, Budd Whitehill, will send several outstanding performers, including former District standout from Indian, Ed Risecki, onto the mats. The lower weights have proven particularly strong thus far this year for Coach Whitehill.

Juniata's line-up will be somewhat changed from the first two meets due to academic difficulties befalling a couple of Tribe wrestlers. Although still subject to change by eliminations, the tentative line-up has Sam Grubb at 123lbs., John Parks at 130 lbs., Chuck Brown at 157 lbs., Skip Walasik at 167 lbs., Pete Sellers at 177 lbs. and Steve Barnett in heavyweight category.

Planners To Add Two Physics Courses

A reorganization of the program in the department of physics at Juniata has been aprpoved by the academic policy committee, according to Dean Morley Mays.

Included among the changes were the approval of two new courses, practical electronics and modern physics. Household physics was dropped from the program and atomic physics was reduced from a two-term, six-credit course to a one-term, four credit course.

The new course in practical electronics will consider the basic principles of modern electronic devices in lecture and laboratory. Modern physics will be a more intensive mathematical analysis of the problems of atomic and molecular structure.

A course formerly listed as light and optical instruments was revised and will be called optics, a four-credit course. New course descriptions have been prepared for general physics, physical measurements, physical science, electricity and magnetism, heat and thermo-dynamics.

JCers Mourn Death Of Trustee Chairman

Funeral services for Henry Gibbel, chairman of the board of trustees of Juniata College, were held Thursday, January 29, in the Church of the Brethren, Lititz, Pa.

Gibbel, a 55-year-old insurance executive and bank president in Lititz, died suddenly after a heart attac kwhile driving his car January 26 frpm a bank meeting in Lititz. A member of Juniata's board since 1940, Gibbel was elected chairman June 7, 1948. Under his direction, a committee of trustees known as the Planning Commission plotted the future course of Juniata and initiated a Build Juniata program.

A life-long resident of Lititz, Gibbel had served as vice president and secretary of the Lititz Mutual Insurance Co. and president of the Farmers National Bank, Lititz. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren and served as vice president of the National Council of Men's Work.

In addition to his widow, Lois, also a graduate of Juniata, Gibbel is survived by three sons and two daughters. The oldest daughter and son were graduated from Juniata College and and two sons James and John, are now students at the college.

Committee Adds Training Courses

Dean Morley Mays has announced that a program for specialized study in correctional training has been approved for this college by the academic policy committee.

The curriculum for this program will include a broad background in liberal arts, psychology and sociology, coupled with specific institutional correctional courses not offered elsewhere in Pennsylvania. All students who completed this curriculum would receive their degree through the normal process, but only those who meet special personal qualifications will be recommended to employment agencies due to the nature of the work. This major field of concentration will prepare students for work as probation officers, institutional and field parole officers, institutional vocational directors, record officers, ranking custodial officers and court counsellors.

Dr. Bromer, along with Dr. Henry, head of the department of sociology, were members of the committee chairmaned by Dean Paul Heberling which formulated the new program in correctional training.

Vol. XXXV No. 14 | Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa. | Friday, February 13, 1959

ABOVE is a typical scene of the past week. Here freshmen class members pore over scripts at All Class Night tryouts in Founders Chapel. All scripts have been turned in and approved so that all that remains to be done now is selection of casts and polishing performances. The final results will be viewed February 21 on Oller Hall Stage.

Classes Submit Perfected Scripts

The various committees are working behind closed doors on the four scripts to be presented on stage in Oller Hall for the annual All-Class Night, February 21.

The members of the script reading committee unanimously agreed that these were the best set of scripts submitted in recent years. It was also the first time that all four scripts were turned in at the same time.

In the coming week the practice schedules which are posted on the main bulletin boards will be held in Oller Hall. The judging sheet, showing in what particular categories the various performances will be judged, have also been posted.

Planning Begun For Literary Magazine

Early this spring a literary magazine will be published by a group of students for the student body.

The first issue will be done on an experimental basis. It will include short stories, poetry, essays, and one-act plays written by students.

The committee planning the publication of the literary magazine includes: Barb Walls, chairman, Dick Johnson, Carol Teeter, Ben Rose, Jack Merrill and Carol Baish. More information concerning the first edition will be announced later.

Fouse To Speak At College Service

The Universal Day of Prayer for Students will be observed on Juniata's campus Sunday morning at 10:30 a.m. in Oller Hall.

Terry Fouse will speak at the service, which is the fourth one of the year. Fouse is a senior preministerium major from Baltimore, Md.

Observance of the Universal Day of Prayer was set up by the World Student Christian Federation, and services similar to Juniata's will be held all over the world.

JCA Days To Feature Elston As Speaker

The Church in a World of Chaos is the theme for JCA days Feruary 23 and 24.

The conference leader, Gerhard Elston, will give the convocation address February 23 on the role of the church in a time of chaos. Throughout the two days he will be available for panel discussions, conferences and bull sessions and will speak in some classes.

The drama The Sign of Jonah, will be presented Tuesday night, February 24. The play is a surrealistic play on 20th century man and his situation.

Elston is a regional executive of the World University Service, one of the organizations to which JCA contributes annually.

Next Week In Chapel

February 16—Wilford Norris

February 19—Prof. Earl Kaylor, Jr.

Senate To Hold Election Rallies

At a recent meeting the Senate added an election rally to the campaign for Senate officerships and chairmanships.

A rally will be held before each election day. This year the first one will be held Friday night, February 27. At this time all the candidates for officer posts on the Senate will be given a chance to speak.

The spotlight will, of course, be on the presidential candidates. The rally for the chairmanships will be held March 7. Time will be given equally to all Senate aspirants then.

This addition to the color of Juniata's campus elections, it is hoped by the Senate, will aid both voters and candidates. The voters will be able to see and hear all the candidates at least once and those campaigning will be able to reach many students who would not hear or see them otherwise.

Edmondson Dedicates Song To Touring Choir

The College Choir returned on February 8 from its annual 11 day trip through western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio this year.

Among the highlights of the trip was a visit with Garth Edmondson of New Castle, who has dedicated one of his latest compositions, Praise Ye The Lord, to the choir. The choir also participated in three television programs in Youngstown, Pittsburgh and Johnstown and presented concerts in many churches and high schools.

In addition to the 11 day tour, the College Choir will give several weekend concerts during the spring and will sing with the Elizabethtown College Choir in a joint concert in Oller Hall. Prof. Donald Johnson is director of the choir.

JWSF To Sponsor Late Minute Sale

The Juniata World Service Fund is sponsoring a late-minutes sale!

Tonight all the Juniata males may buy extra minutes for their girlfriends up to a maximum of 30 minutes. Each minute beyond the regular closing time will cost a penny.

The late minutes may be purchased upon the couples' return to the dorm. Freshmen may stay out until 10:30 for 30 cents; upperclass women may remain out until 11 p.m. The extra minutes may not be purchased in addition to an 11:30 late, nor may they be spent within the social rooms or lobby.

A JWSF representative will collect the money at the entrance of East Hall and Founders dormitories.

Senate Proposes Honor Club, Names Burket Scout Editor

At the regular meeting of the Juniata Senate held last Wednesday evening, the main topic of discussion concerned the newly proposed Honor Service Club and vice president Carl Wass, acting as chairman of a committee to draft a constitution for the club, reported on his committee's progress.

The club will be made up of a select group of students at Juniata who are able to make and maintain a scholastic average of 2.5 or better and who have earned a total of 15 points in extra-curricular activities. These points will be earned under a system that will be worked out in detail at a later date.

The purpose will be to give recognition to those students who can contribute to campus activities and at the same time maintain a better-than average academic level. The duties of the club members will vary from leading guided tours around campus to acting as traffic coordinators for big weekends on campus.

New Scout Editor

The Senate unanimously approved the appointment of Kim Burket as the new editor of the Scout. Burket is a day student and for two and a half years has been active in publications on campus.

His active duties will begin this spring when he and his staff begin putting out the 1963 freshman handbook.

Sam Shore, Senate treasurer, reported that work will probably be done to improve the sinks in the kitchen of Totem Inn. According to Shore, there will either be a new dishwasher or improvements will be made on the present sinks, but the work will not be done until summer.

Student Union

Stan Davis was appointed to investigate the talk of a student union on campus. He will confer with the Administration and give a complete report to the Senate next week.

Another thing to be investigated is the Who's Who in College idea according to Senate president Chuck Brown, Juniata used to belong to a national association known as Who's Who in Colleges.

Don Miller will look into the matter and see why Juniata is no longer a member.

JCers Prepare For First Winter Weekend

Juniata's first winter weekend, sponsored by the Inter Club Council, is being planned for February 27 and 28.

Friday night the emphasis is on the informal. There will be records, games and refreshments in East Hall and Totem Inn. From 8:30 until 11:30 a combo in the Women's Gymnasium will provide music for dancing.

Climaxing the evening will be the crowning of the Ugliest Man on Campus. Dean Bechtell has given 10:30 permissions to everyone.

If the weather permits, the Saturday afternoon activities will be outdoors. Saturday evening, the Memorial Gymnasium will be turned into a Frost Fantasy for the formal corsage dance. Music is being provided by Dave Heck's band.

The weekend festivities are open to JC students and their guests.

Hrach, Combo To Entertain Dancers

The junior class is sponsoring the Valentine Day dance this Saturday night on the mezzanine from 8:30 until 11:30 p.m.

Dancing will be to hifi music and the entertainment will feature a combo with Frank Hrach. Refreshments will be provided and dressy dresses are to be worn.

Speaking Of Honor

"An honor system? Here? Well, it sounds good, but I couldn't squeal on anybody if I saw him cheating."

With this conscientious criticism JC's Joe College dismisses the somewhat uncomfortable idea of an honor system and turns the bull session to problems of a more immediate and universal character, like sex.

What is this thing called honor? Obviously, each person will have his own definition. Unfortunately, it does not seem to be a topic of polite conversation around here. Yesterday's Senate-planned chapel program concerning an honor system for Juniata may have helped stir up some expressions of opinion on the subject. We sincerely hope so. For this honor system, when and if it is instituted here, can not be a set of rules imposed on a student body by a righteous group of higher-ups. It must be created by student opinion and sustained by a mature attitude prevailing on the campus.

Thus far, this mature attitude seems to be growing. Witness the success and respect gained by such institutions as Campus Judiciary and the women's disciplinary council and the recent demonstation of responsibility by the student proctors. If all goes well, a few student generations from now, Juniata will operate on the honor system. This will be a huge step and will involve more on the part of each student than a mere check-mark on a ballot. It will become a matter of individual responsibility.

Is the personal responsibility of Juniata's students reliable? Well then, do you think it will be reliable someday? We might at least air some opinions and talk about it. (We might even think about it.)

"SINCE THIS IS YOUR FIRST CURFEW OFFENSE, WE'LL ACCEPT YOUR EXCUSE. HOWEVER, IN THE FUTURE DO NOT ACCEPT RIDES FROM STRANGE LITTLE MEN IN FLYING SAUCERS."

On The Light Side

by Dan Davis

There is a villian lurking about the rickety floors of English House, (among many other places). No, it is not one of the fair lady instructresses, nor is it either of the good and erudite doctors; it is not even our high-pitched and low-headed baseball fan. That doesn't leave much. In other words, I am speaking of that swarthy young "professor" who has dedicated his life to improving and eventually perfecting his searching and much-loved course, play production. To exemplify the intricacies and technical data being poured forth in this classroom ask any student if "he" (not "she") can describe the theatrical terms "teaser", "tormentor' or 'even "snatch' line." It is truly amazing what one can learn in class!

Yes, the student body owes much to this radical:1) a decreasing number of pink slips at early semester; 2) a permanent smiling picture in Tote and 3) an amiable companion for the late, late show in the now-defunct North Dorm television lounge — and he hustles, too. (Look around, wherever you are reading this column, for you may find the above Shakespeare in the act of blushing while reading the JUNIATIAN with "one" of his feminine admirers.

A soothing note to "Smitty's" jocular medieval Europe class: The monks will finish by finals!

It appears as if the mechanical apparatus of JC can always be relied on for supplying a rather strange background for cultural undertakings afoot on campus. One icy Tuesday morning, the royal fur-lipped personage of last week's column was seen (and heard) reciting (and, of course, criticizing) the Tennyson tale of the broken mirror, The Lady of Shalott. (refer to the introduction to literature book) Just as the joyful listeners became intent on the masterful reading, a roar and a scraping noise were heard from outside. It appears that the good "monarch" does not appreciate the efforts of the janitorial staff to keep the hallowed sidewalks free from hazardous ice and snow. Instead of pausing and complimenting this efficiency, he merely continued his flowiig interpretation in his inimitable sarcastic style — roar versus roar.

A similar happening was the talk of the Concordia Choir concert. It was a rather strange event when a few gust of wind penetrated our "well-insulated" Oller Hall and almost blew away our guest performers - and audience. This, however, was but a slight occurence in comparison to the sudden clanging and banging of radiator pipes in the midst of the solemn folk song Mary Sat Spinning. In the future, it might be wise to resrve JC's "chapel house" for "plumbing exhibitions" rather than cultural displays — it's a natural!

Tip to the college: Ask Ed Berrier Sobrierary whom he met at Penn State last Saturday night — it's his idol.

Finally it is rumored that our prominent "chapel stretcher" of last week has written a sequel to a presently popular song. It reportedly goes as follows: "Gather 'round skilled idiots, I'm gonna tell ye a story 'bout science hall." (It will be recorded on the CUT label by the voice of Prof. Merrel.)

The Literary Air

More and more colleges are instituting the literary magazine for the embryonic Faulkners, Ustinovs and Shapiros who can be found slaving over obscure typewriters on almost any campus. A rather optimistic group here is attempting to start a literary magazine for Juniata.

If this optimism is well founded, a fifty page collection of stories, poems, one act plays and the like will be sold for ten cents this spring. If students are favorable to the idea and willing to contribute their literary gems, JC will have a good foundation for a literary magazine.

Without any sense of disloyalty to the staff of the JUNIATIAN, we can say that most of the writings included in the magazine will not be written by reporters. Not all who are good writers will find satisfaction in writing news stories. Thus, this magazine will provide a chance for recognition of the talents of the writers and poets who are too-often ignored. This is an appeal to those who scribble verses when they should be taking notes and who sit up late working out the plot of a story when they should be writing themes: Don't throw it all in the waste basket. We know some of it is pretty bad but some of it must be good. Let's publish it. We may be small but we are a beginning!

Cheer Our Cagers

What has happened to the enthusiasm displayed at football games last fall and our first few basketball games? Final exams couldn't have been all that bad. So why aren't we cheering?

Granted, there is plenty of spirited yelling when something exciting is underway on the court. But what about those times in between when the cheerleaders attempt to lead a few cheers for the whole team? Usually a few isolated diehards start to cheer and are squelched by the more "sophisticated" fans sitting around them. Then there are those virtuosos who have their own ways of expressing enthusiasm and are determined to drown out the cheerleaders.

None of this is evidence of any real support for our basketball team. Lets cooperate with the cheerleaders and cheer. Why, we don't even hear a sound from the regular guys any more . . .

USA Scholarship Loans; Thaw In Cold War?

—Shane

The US Office of Education has announced that six million dollars in funds is available as loans to students enrolled on a full time basis in colleges and universities. Each institution sets its own standards but financial need and good scholarship are the main criteria. Special attention is to be given to those enrolled in teaching, science, math, engineering and modern languages. A limit of $1,000 is set for the school year and a total limit of $5,000 for the college career. High school seniors may apply only after having been accepted for enrollment.

Repayment begins one year after graduation and can continue for a period of no longer than ten years. A special provision cancels ten per cent of the loan for each year the borrower teaches after graduation up to a total of 50 per cent. Interest on the loans is three percent starting when the student begins repayment of the loan.

End of Cold War ?

February 3: Malinovsky, Soviet defense minister, addressed the Communist party congress in Moscow stating that Soviet missiles with hydrogen warheads could strike "precisely any point" in the world.

February 3: Kruschev addressed the Communist party congress in Moscow. He called Berlin "a burning fuse in a gunpowder cellar or a delayed-action bomb whose mechanism may result in an explosion at any moment."

February 4: A US Army convey was released in Berlin. The Russians had barred the truck convoy from re-entering West Germany on a trip out of West Berlin.

February 5: In Berlin, five American prisoners were releaser, some of whom had been held captive for two months. Khruschev pleaded with Eisenhower to end the cold war and invited him to Moscow.

Even the release, by the US State Department, of transcripts of conversations between Soviet fighter pilots as they shot down an unarmed US transport on the Turkish border, killing 17 Americans, has not hindered the general good feeling between the West and the Soviet. English prime minister Harold MacMillan and Selwyn Lloyd, his foreign secretary, plan to visit Moscow February 21. Most statesmen feel a high-level conference is likely in the spring. The western capitols agree that there had been a thaw in the cold war. "One robin does not make a spring, nor does Soviet talk of peace mean real peace."

Pennsylvania Schools

One hundred and fifty Pennsylvania schools have been ordered by the Labor and Industry Department to make safety repairs or close. The Public Instruction Department approved the doubling-up of school classes as a temporary means of meeting the emergency by the closure of unsafe buildings. The state will reimburse the schools for extra pupil transportation for double sessions. The bureau will give attention to appeals for the use of "substandard" classroom space in buildings such as churches or halls on an emergency basis. Perhaps they should check high school students more closely for cigarettes or provide ash trays in darkened corridors so carelessly tossed butts will not take lives.

Movie Of The Week

Houseboat

DOMESTIC SCENE shown here from Paramount's comedy, "Houseboat," is just a means to a romantic end for Cary Grant and Sophia Loren, co-starred in the Technicolor production. Children of the widowed Grant are Charles Herbert, Mimi Gibson and Paul Petersen. Film shows Friday and Saturday at the Harris Clifton Theatre.

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

Two victories over Dickinson and Lycoming enabled the hoopsters to move into second place in the Northern Division of the Middle Atlantic Conference with standings right behind undefeated Hofstra.

The Indians have shown considerable improvement in the last three games after losing two first semester starters and could possibly battle Hofstra for the division title.

The floormen have four conference games remaining with Wagner. Wilkes, Gettysburg and Susquehanna. The Gettysburg recision won't be included in the standings because they are in the university division.

The basketballers now play four games in the next six days, two of which are with tough MAC opponents, Wagner and Wilkes.

Wagner has not quite lived up to its potential after losing only one man from last year's Middle Atlantics championship team. Although playing some higher caliber teams, the Sea Hawks find the MAC foes most difficult. Last week Wagner lost to NIT-bound Villanova by nine points.

Wilkes, with a more impressive conference record, boasts a consistent scorer and rebounder in Fran Mikolanis. Last week the Colonel junior was named to the ECAC first team of the week for the third time. He boasts a 20.3 game average.

American University of Washington, D. C. easily won the Mason-Dixon Conference last year and went two rounds in the NCAA small college playoffs before losing. Willie Jones, their Little All-American candidate, boasts well over a 20 point game average.

Finally the Tribe meets an improved Gettysburg ball club who have won six of their last eight. The two losses were to Scranton by two points and to Bucknell by three points.

The Wilkes and Wagner matches are must games if the Indians are to go anywhere in the Middle Atlantic Conference.

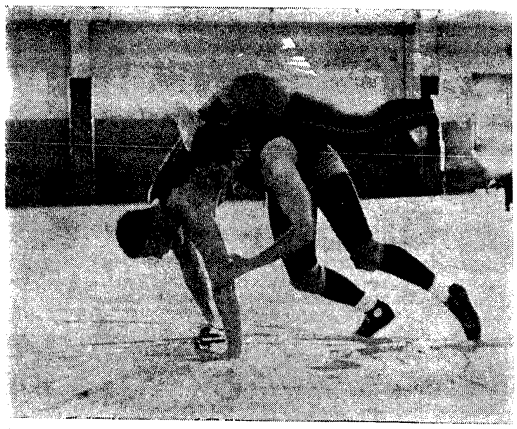
The afternoon bowling tournament which was held this week for college students has been extended another week in order to give more persons a chance to participate.



UP AND OVER — Juniata's Steve Barnett, representative in the heavyweight category attempts a take down on his opponent during Saturday's match in Memorial Gymnasium.

Lycoming Experience Outclasses Grapplers

Visibly suffering from the growing pains of inexperience and lack of conditioning, the Juniata wrestling team fell heavily before the onslaught of a fine Lycoming squad, 40-0, last Saturday afternoon in the Memorial Gym.

The visitors' superiority was very evident as all eight of the Warriors won by falls. Sam Grubb was the first Juniatian to fall victim of a pinning combination as he was pinned in the first period by Hazzard. John Parks at 130 lbs., was able to last until the third period before he was pinned. At 137 lbs. Mike Martin fell victim of Lycomng's Romgs pinning combination.

Lycos Sweep Heavyweights

Juniata's Larry Fay was pinned in the first period by Lycoming's experienced Pace, at 147 lbs. Chuck Brown, the Indian's 157 lb. matman, was able to hold the Warrior's Steele off until the third period before being pinned. Skip Walasik, at 167 lbs., had too much to handle in Receski and was pinned in the second period. Pete Sellers, at 177 lbs., and Steve Barnett, at heavyweight, could not stop the Warrior's string of falls. Frye and Wilbur were the winners of the last two bouts.

Crusaders, Whips, Control IM Lead

Intramural basketball's high riding Crusaders topped the undefeated Bulldogs 48-45 to lead the Northern Division while the Whips remain the only unbowed team in the Southern unit.

In other contests Bob Schwalenburg led the Sheiks to a 61-57 win over the Blockers with 18 points, the NJ Owls dropped the Alpha Sigma Sigma 39-34, and the Amish to a 67-38 win over the Jabberwockies with "Biggy" Parks hitting 31 for the winners,

In makeup games played this week the Sheiks, led by Larry Duffy's 19 points, trounced the NJ Owls 66-42, and the Crusaders dropped the Mountain Dewers 67-44 . Sam Shore and Frank Hrach led the winners with 17 and 16 points respectively, while Fran Cristina tallied 18 for the losing cause.

Indians Face Tight Schedule; Meet Wilkes Wednesday

Tomorrow evening the Tribe travels to Staten Island where they meet Wagner College to open a crowded schedule of four games in six days.

Wagner's Seahawks, winner of the MAC's Northern Division last season, are heavily laden with talent. Four juniors, all of whom were starters on last years 18-win, nine-loss squad, form a solid nucleus for coach Herb Sutter's championship aspirations. These four players who will be starting for their third year are Harold Junta, 6'6", Fred Blackwell, 6'4", Milfred Fierce and Harry Orlando, both of whom are 5'10". Bob Farmer, a sophomore transfer student from Rollins College, has a deadly assortment of jump shots and fits in very well with the other four starters.

Monday evening the Tribe hosts Wilkes in the last game on the home floor this season. Three experienced juniors and a pair of towering sophomores give coach Eddie Davis the material he needs to wrest the Northern Division crown away from Wagner. Ron Roseki at 6'4", and Bernie Kosch at 6'6", provide the Colonels with more than adequate rebounding ability. George Gacha, speedy, 5'10" guard from Wilkes-Barre, gives coach Davis a classy outside man.

Play American, Gettysburg Away

A two day road trip closes out the Tribe's active week. On Wednesday American University in Washington promises to be rugged opposition. NCAA Eastern Regional Champions last year, the Eagles have five men returning from last sason's 22-6 squad. Pacing their attack is 5'9" Willie Jones, averaging better than 20 points per game, and Dick Wells, ace rebounder and an All-American honorable mention last year.

Five lettermen head the powrerful Gettysburg Bullets which the Tribe encounters on Thursday evening. Top guns for the Bullets are Walt Melnik, a 5'10" floorman, Del Warfel, a versatile 6'6" center and Frank Grzelicki, who stands 6'5".

Floormen Defeat Red Devils, Lyco

The Indians extended their win streak to three by dumping Dickinson, 78-59, and Lycoming, 94-63 this week to raise their season record to 10 wins and seven losses.

Wednesday the Indians had little trouble disposing of the Lycoming Warriors. After overcoming an early deficit, the Indians rallied to a 49131 halftime lead with Don Burnich scoring 24 of his game total of 32. Center Bob Ewald contributed 20 and Gordie Ewers totaled 16.

After a sleepy first half in which the Indians had only a 27-24 halftime lead, the Tribe paced by Steve Gerlock's 24, easily dropped Dickinson.

The junior Indians won their fourth game in nine starts over the Dickinson jayvees by a 62-61 score. Bruce Smith and Phil Rohm paced the winners with 17 and 15 points, respectively.

Three Teams Tie For Bowling Divison Lead

The combnation of the Fulcains decisioning the pace-setting Dutchmen, 2-1, and forfeit wins by the 4 D's & a C resulted into a three-way tie in Division I of the intramural bowling league.

In other action, scores of 3-0 were recorded by the Spare Cats over the Chem Clubbers, the Handicap 5 over the 4 Chiefs and a Squaw, the Champs over the Holy Rollers and the Saylor House over the Greeks via forfeit.

Closer 2-1 games were won by the Senators over Will's Gang, the Highballers over the Gutterballers and the Admirals over the Ten Pins.

Anne Scheib Named Travel Co-ordinator

Recently the Senate instituted the position of Student Travel Co-ordinator as an aid to the student body, especially to those who are thinking of traveling or studying abroad.

The main function of this co-ordinator, Anne Scheib, is to have available information concerning opportunities to travel and study abroad and their costs. Miss Scheib has information available to outline an itinerary for travel and give the various costs for such a trip.

In this way it is hoped that students will be made aware of the numerous opportunities to go abroad and will be helped in their planning. Bulletin boards are presently being used to get announcements of travel opportuntities to Juniata students.

Labs In Special Methods Added

Juniata College's department of education will provide three laboratory sections in special methods of teaching as a part of the work in the class Principes and Techniques of Teaching.

Dr. Edgar Kiracofe, chairman of the department of education, announced that the laboratory sections will begin March 9 and will take one hour per week for six weeks. Instructors announced for the laboratory sections are Henry Stoudt, a social studies teacher in Huntingdon Area High School, Miss Ellie Mae Sowder, associate professor of mathematics on the Juniata faculty and Paul Whitsel, teacher of English in Mount Union junior high school.

JC Alumnus Produces Biology Lab Manual

Thomas Knepp, a graduate of Juniata College in 1931 and head of the science department in Stroud Union High School, Stroudsburg, Pa., has written a laboratory manual for high school biology.

The manual, published this month along with a teacher's guide, is designed to enable young people to become acquainted with plants and animals, especially those important in a course of general biology. Autographed copies of these manuals have been given to Dr. Homer Will, chairman of the division of natural sciences at Juniata.

Knepp's daughter, Mary Elizabeth, is a sophomore at Juniata.

Lutheran Contest Open To JCers

Lutheran art students at Juniata have been invited to submit work in the first annual Lutheran brotherhood Fine Arts Festival competition sponsored by the Fine Arts Committee of the fraternal life insurance society's National Branch.

Entry cards and information concerning the exhibition are available from the art department. Entry cards from Juniata must be returned by March 2 and the entries shipped by March 9 to Gettysburg, a.

Preliminary judging will be March 16 and final judging will be March 30. Prizes range from $100 to $250.

Freshman Extends Warning On Day Of Superstitious Fears

Not often during the year does the 13th of the month fall on Friday. In fact, it only occurs four times on the Gregorian calendar for 1959. Maybe Friday the 13th doesn't bother you, or at least, you don't want to admit it! But, this staff believes that it bothers everyone just a little bit and Wendy Oliver, a new frosh coed from Htddonfield, N.J., has experessed it this wey!

Not meaning to be malicious, I'll bet you're superstitious

Even though you claim you're not

If you follow stars in courses and keep the shoes of horses

You're a little superstitious, not a lot.

Pseudo-scientific, but I guess that's too prolific

For astrology, I mean.

Do you toss salt o'er your back and shy away from cats of black?

Not really superstitious, in between!

Those thoughts poetic might be easily termed pathetic;

Just a little more advice if I may--

Cross your fingers, toes and eyes, stop hiccups by surprise

For this is not a lucky day.

Sears Gives $700 In Scholarship Program

An unrestricted cost-of-education grant of $700 has been given to Juniata College by the Sears Foundation of Sears-Roebuck Company as part of ts merit scholarship program.

The grant was made because one of the National Merit Scholarship winners, Rick Gardner of Johnstown, is attending Juniata College. He is one of 100 Merit Scholars enrolled in various colleges and universities throughout the country.

The Sears Foundat on provides financial assistance to the colleges attended by the scholars in addition to aid the students. This scholarship program is conducted in cooperation with the National Merit Scholarship Corporat on, an independent, non-profit organization created to devise and adminster a system of scholarship provided by other donors.

Students Offered Jobs In Europe

American - European Student Foundation, a non-profit organization, is offering jobs to college students in several European countries.

These jobs consist of forestry work, child care work, farm work, hotel work, construction work and some other more qualified jobs requiring more specialized training. For further information on the placement services and travel arrangements, write AESF, Box 34712, Vaduz, Liechtenstein, Switzerland.

THE JUNIATIAN, published weekly throughout the college year except during vacation and examination periods by students at Juniata College. Second class mail privileges authorized at Huntingdon, Pa.

Communications Plan Ugliest Man Choices

All of the Ugly Men on Campus who are seniors should make themselves known to the various campus publications immediately.

Soon each of the campus publications will select a man as its candidate for the Ugly Man Contest. The candidates will then wage campaigns making their qualifications known.

The election will be held on Tuesday, February 24 and the winner will be crowned by Miss Homecoming, Bonnie Meadows, at the dance in the Women's Gym on February 27.

The selection of the Ugliest participation of every member of Man on Campus requires concentration and participation of every member of the student body. Each voter must know all the candidates and theis platforms in order to be efficient in his voting.

One would hate to think of the consequences if some one other than the ugliest person in all classifications of Juniata civic life were elected!

Classes Vie For Coveted Cup

Pictured above are some of the directors and chairmen of the forthcoming All Class Night Production. Here they are shown watching rehearsals progressing in Oller Hall. Performances are scheduled for tomorrow evening when class will vie against class in competition for the All Class Night Cup, presented to the director of the winning skit.

Class competition will be at its peak when each class presents its original muscial skit for All Class Night in Oller Hall tomorrow at 8:15 p.m.

The first skit presented by the freshmen, entitled A Visit to Utopia, tells what happens when two New York newspaperwomen visit an isolated but peaceful island off the United States coast. Anne Sommer is class chairman and Dave Amey is director.

Bill Lafe, chairman and director, will lead the seniors as they present Mrs. McPherson, a story of a cleaning lady whose son is a part of the 'beat generation.'

The sophomores' skit, There's No Place Like Nome, tells what happens when JC students get lost on the one way streets of Huntingdon and end up in Alaska. Co-directors for the sophomores are Dick George, Jack Rodland and Elizabeth Lichliter.

Concluding the skits, the juniors present a sketch written and directed by Sherril Edwards. Titled Dear Linda, it is the story of a Miss Lonely Hearts who takes her own advice.

Judging of the plot will be based on the originality and continuity of the story, and its audience appeal. Music will be judged on the appropriateness, originality, how well it is executed, and how well it is integrated with the rest of the skit.

Other factors are the directing, over-all performances including actions, tempo and timing and special effects such as lighting, make-up and set. The 15-22 minute time limit and the $15 budget will also be considered.

Judges this year are five recent Juniata alumni from the Huntingdon area.

Judy Barrowclough, general chairman will present the trophy cup to the chairman and the director of the winning class. The trophy, which will be engraved with the year and the class, will be displayed for the year.

Other people working on All Class Night are: Diane Klebe, assistant director; Barb Fritchey, make-up direction; Bud Brown, technical director; Paul DeSesso, business manager; and Sue McElwee, organist.

Because of the time factor the audience is asked not to applaud during the skits. All Class Night, the only method of making money for May Day, is open to the public.

Senate Plans For Emphasis Days, Proposes Agenda

The main topic at last Wednesday's Senate meeting concerned the planned educational-emphasis days and the proposed schedule to be followed during the time that Dr. Becker, the speaker, will be here.

The committee, consisting of Chuck Brown chairman, Dr. Crosby, Stan Davis and Don Shover reported on the following possible schedule:

Monday, March 9
Chapel address ..... 10 a.m.
Oller Hall
Panel discussion ..... 4 p.m.
Totem Inn
Question-answer ..... 7 p.m.
East Hall
Tuesday, March 10
Voluntary chapel ..... 10 a.m.
Oller Hall
Summary ..... 4 p.m.
East Hall

In addition to these activities there will be dorm discussions and class room discussions with Dr. Becker.

No Union Yet

Davis, reporting for the building committee, informed the Senate that the administration has no immediate plans concerning a student union. The administration realizes that Totem Inn is too small to accomodate the growing student body but nothing can be done in the near future because there are too many other important things under way.

Perhaps at some date in the future, according to Davis, there will be a union on campus that will have dining hall space and a snack bar as well as offices for the various campus communications and the Senate.

Chairman of communications Dick Johnson gave a report on his ideas concerning the rules for the ugly man contest. Due to the lack of a definite pattern of rules, the elections of this year are somewhat mixed up, Johnson reported.

He gave a skeleton set of procedures to be followed hereafter and after a brief discusion he was authorized by the Senators to mske out a detailed set of rules. His report will be given at the next Senate meeting.

Due to a conflict, the rally day dates have been changed. Instead of having the chairmanship candidates speak Saturday, March 7, the date has been moved to Friday March 6. These events will be held in Oller Hall.

Masque To Present Antigone Next Month

Antigone, a tragedy by Jean Anovilh, will be presented by the Masque under the direction of David Weston March 20 and 21 in Oller Hall.

The play is not a Greek play as most people think, but a tragedy, done in modern dress, written in modern prose, for the purpose of giving hope to the French when they were oppressed by the Germans. Four women and twelve men comprise the cast.

Presented on the stage with background scenery, the action of the characters is stressed. In no way is the play a parallel to Oedipus Rex, except that the characters have Greek names derived from a Greek legend.

Many special effects and tricks of staging are planned including music to set the mood. Tryouts will begin early next week, the exact time to be announced later.

Colorado To Offer Summer Training

An Economics Institute for foreign graduate students in the fields of economics and agricultural economics is planned this summer at the University of Colorado, Boulder, Colo., June 28 to August 29.

The purpose of the Economic Institute is to provide newly arrived students with concentrated training in basic economic analysis and supplemental training in oral and written English. In addition to the academic objectives, the program includes an introduction to the United States society and culture.

Eligible candidates must have been admitted to an educational institution in the United States for a full academic year of graduate study in 1959-60 in the fields of economics or agricultural economics. Students who began their studies (graduate or undergraduate) in the United States before January, 1959, are ineligible.

For further information, write to the Oriental Division of the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York 21, N.Y.

Campus Awaits Frost Fantasy Activities

Frost Fantasy is the theme of the mid-winter weekend on campus February 27 and 28.

With emphasis on the informal, the Friday activities, under the direction of the Debate, Pyrenees, Sigma Psi clubs, and Women's House, will include games, dancing, and refreshments at Totem Inn and East Hall from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Freddie Guion and his Combo will provide the music for the dance, sponsored by the J Club and SEAP, in the Women's Gymnasium from 8:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.

On Saturday afternoon the Scapel and Probe plus the Chemistry Club will have charge of the outdoor activities. If there is snow each club will engage in a snow sculpturing contest.

At the formal dance from 8:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m., Saturday night the Lambda Gamma will have charge of decorations, WAA will look after the refreshments, and entertainment is planned for the intermission. Music for the dance is being provided by Dave Heck and his band.

JCA To Focus On Church In Chaos

Christianity in Chaos is the topic of discussion of the JCA Days March 23 and 24.

Gerald Elston, a regional executive of the World University Service, is the featured speaker. He graduated Phi Betta Kappa in English literature and history from New York University and has done graduate work at the University of Chicago.

Elston's post graduate experiences have included: teaching in Carthage College, Illinois; an assignment in Geneva, Switzerland on the staff of the World Lutheran Federation.; administrator in Camp Kilmer, New Jersey with the emergency Hungarian program of Church World Service. Most recently, Elston has been on the executive staff of the Association for World Travel Exchange in New York.

The program for the two-day seminar includes the orientation at Monday's chapel, a discussion in Tote at 4 p.m. March 23, voluntary chapel March 24, and will conclude with an oral interpretation of The Sign of Jonah, Tuesday night at 7 p.m. The purpose of this conference is to acquaint students with what the Christian Church of today is and is not doing.

Nine candidates are competing for this dubious honor. The campus Nine candidates are competing for this dubious honorfl The campus choice will be decided on Tuesday in the Totem Inn election and results will be disclosed Friday night at the dance. Mr. Ugly will be crowned by the Homecoming Queen, Bonnie Meadows.

Communications Wage Search To Uncover 'Ugliest Of Ugly'

Mirror, mirror on the wall, Who's the ugliest of them all? Competition runs high as the ugly men on campus vie for the title of Juniata's Ugliest Man.

Candidates were selected by the various communications on campus for their ugliness of feature as well as their distinctly distasteful personalities.

Each of these candidates Rush Hodgins (WJC), Bill Lafe(Juniatian), Barry Sipes (Alfarata), Carl Wass (Scout), Bill Ebner (Indian), Ben Schmick (Tomahawk), Sam Shore (Pow Wow), and Pete Douglas (Smoke Signal) as you can see by the picture or by meeting them on campus is qualified to be an ugly man. But who is the ugliest?

The decision is up to you when you vote next Tuesday. Remember to consider both the men and the campaigns they wage in this contest and choose wisely. The winner will be announced at the dance February 27 in the Women's Gym.

JCers To Dance To Hi Fi Music

A dance is planned for tomorrow night in the Women's Gym following the All Class Night performance.

The dance, lasting about an hour, will have music provided by hi-fi.

We Get Letters . . . .

Welshers Plague JWSF

When the JWSF Drive started, the students were enthusiastic about doing their share to help. Now, however, there is a sizeable number who have lost their enthusiasm and are failing to contribute the money which they pledged this fall. They have been contacted several times and each time have delayed contributing with various excuses. It seems that these people have used the "pledge" aspect of our drive as an easy way to save face and their money by only appearing to contribute.

We would like to explain that we use the pledge card specifically for those people who desire to contribute but are at the moment financially unprepared; it is an aid both for the students and the campaign workers. It was never intended for an "easy-out" that will cost you nothing.

There is a good chance that if these "easy-outers" would fulfill their pledges the goal for this year would be fulfilled. I have yet, during the four years I have been a Juniata student, to see the goal unreached.

Let's cooperate and fulfill our pledges; the drive certainly needs your support.

Joel Riegel

Ed. Note: This hits home! Although we hate to admit it, we too have neglected to pay a JWSF pledge. However, this is (believe it or not) through sheer forgetfulness and not from any desire to welsh on a debt. We think this may be the case with many Juniatians, so let's leave it at that. But let's also get behind JWSF and pay those debts!

Alumnus Views Column

As the faculty members to whom the novice writer of On The Light Side so injudiciously devoted his column last week would scarce condescend to reply to the malicious comments so generously strewn throughout the article, I would like to voice a few of my personal observations, with which not a few other persons have agreed.

When a student is given a position such as Mr. Davis', in which what he writes is read by 750 students, 100 members of the faculty and administrative staff, and countless alumni and prospective students, he should exercise a degree of discretion in what he pens. Every writer on the JUNIATIAN staff has a responsibility to demonstrate to the readers of the paper that Juniata has students and representative writers who voice their opinions in a mature manner. In his column of last week Mr. Davis seems to have lost his perspective and damaged the JUNIATIAN'S reputation for a high quality of printed matter. He has also greated impaired his own reputation as a college student and a staff writer by resorting to innuendoes ("high-pitched and low-headed baseball fan") concerning men of far greater learning and experience than he has yet attained.

In other words, I feel that Mr. Davis has overstepped the bounds of student journalism in his comments concerning faculty members. In the two short weeks of his tenure Mr. Davis has ceased to make the column "light" but has rather made it malicious and completely devoid of humor.

I hope that this has not been construed to be a defense of individuals, although I have the utmost respect for the members of Juniata's faculty. More importantly I wish to point out the fact that Mr. Davis has taken undue liberties with the privileges given him as a writer for the JUNIATIAN.

In addition to the above I feel that the columnist should try to give On The Light Side the universal appeal which its former writers gave to it. I am referring to the second paragraph from the end of the column. How many students are aware of the exact nature of the joke, if it be a joke? This degeneration into the type of column written by one of Hollywood's lady columnists is not of the cailber of writing for which the JUNIATIAN is generally known.

If the writer could marshal his command of the English language into appropriate subject matter rather than caustic remarks, the column would certainly be of genuine interest to many.

Helen Schmidlen Adams
Class of 1957

A Trite Light Side

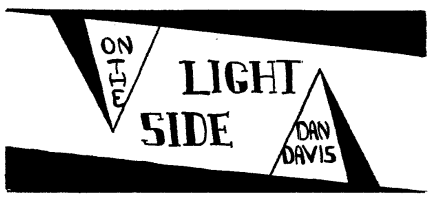
Being neither a BMOC or a complete recluse, I have never felt particularly motivated to dabble in campus politics, or to actively participate in any of the numerous crusades or reforms that now and then gain sporadic momentum at JC. I cast my vote annually at the Senate elections and trust the manipulation of the above matters to the elected representatives. Therefore, you may assume that it would require a singularly great event to agitate me to the point of written complaint.

Like many Juniatians, I indulge weekly in the prelecture activity of reading your publication. This is not only due to the fact that I paid my student activity fee, but because I fully enjoy it. As do many other nondescript souls, the first thing that I read is the humor column, which has been so ably handled in the past by Mr. Miller and Miss Baish. I realize that it is difficult to turn out good material week after week, but in the past year or two, I have received an unusually high percentage of laughs from it.

Therefore, may I inquire as to why, in the period of two weeks, this institution has been allowed to degenerate into an accumulation of trite accounts centered, for the most part, around the English deparment and the particularly small world of a rather immature being, who I assume has some attachment to said department? I realize that a boy fresh out of high school has little time to socially mature and acquire values of any great magnitude, but surely those senior members of the staff, who have acquired some of life's graces, could be counted upon to execute some degree of care in the selection of staff and the editing of material. If the columnist to whom I have reference feels a true need to be heard may I suggest employment with the New York News or perhaps Confidential.

Wayne Patterson

ED. NOTE: We of the JUNIATIAN staff are grateful to the writers of these letters, even though they are unfavorable comments. We believe that this paper makes a sincere effort to reflect campus events, opinions (and humor). The only way we can remain on this path is by the criticism of our readers. When a majority of JCers express their disapproval of some phase of this publication's work, we will change it.



As you will notice in the editorial section of today's Juniatian, there has been a good bit of "criticizm" directed towards my rather slashing columns of the past two weeks. Because of this response, this week's column will be of a more trivial and simple nature in order to sooth the flustered temperaments of my much respected opposition.

What has happened to the masculinity of the football team (one member in particular)? JC's "star" right guard—whose initials are Roy Martin—was reported to have been seen in the Totem Inn book store buying a doll, of all things! Not just any doll, however, for he carefully described just exactly the kind he liked best to the attractive young coed behind the desk.

Well, most of us thought that it was probably a gift for his Philadelphia stationed girl friend who has him tied around her little finger. However, our hopes were wrong. For nearly two weeks now, the "cute little fellow" has been sitting on R.M.'s desk and is now beginning to show signs of having been "handled." When someone asks the supposedly rugged athlete just what he's doing with a doll, he merely blushes and refuses to answer on the grounds of the Fifth Amendment.

If this lack of manlihood persists much longer, it is evident that one hair cutting Emery D. will have to get the nod from Coach Bunn come next football season. Here's wishing the barber all the luck in the world.

Campus Cupid

There is a new cupid on campus and he is the notorious circulation manager of this publication. Joe Valentine (as his friends and roommate call him) gave a very interesting lecture the other night on the proper and most effective method of sending Valentine Cards. It seems that Joe (whose room was a mass of cards and envelopes) doesn't believe in sending only one per person. Rather, he preaches that the "true lover" should first send a "joke card" and then deliver the "romantic" one in person. It might be interesting to find out if J.V. practices what he preaches by asking his new-found campus queen the manner in which she received her "cards of devotion".

Lastly, table 35 in the Oneida dining hall sholud be aware of the fact that today is the birthday of one James Sutton . . . better known as "Crago". It might be nice if the table, as well as any other "good wishers" joined in the singing of the "birthday song," followed by "stand up, stand up" and finally, "around the table you must go". Happy Birthday, Crago!

That's all for now, see you next week!

Judo In Classrooms? Dulles And Dillon

—Shane

A bill has been presented in the state legislature by Representatives Joseph Isaacs, Delaware County police chief, and Clyde Dengler, a Delaware County teacher. This bill would exclude teachers in public schools from assault and battery charges made by the parents of pupils. The teachers would be exempt from these charges while "attempting to control the conduct and behavior of the pupils attending school, during the time they are in attendance or while on school property."

Do the "big stick" benefits of this bill outweigh the misuse that could result in the hands of an unjust teacher? Will Judo replace educational psychology as a requisite for education majors?

Cuba's Gambling Reopens

The first cabinet meeting of Fidel Castro's tenure as Premier of Cuba was a rather stormy one. The gambling casinos were authorized to reopen. Castro had stated his opposition to the gambling continually during his freeing of the island. These casinos had to be opened in the interest of Tourism. Castro's move was opposed by former premier Dr. Jose Miro Cardona. The cabinet voiced much opposition to this move. Castro's justified his move by the reasoning that this act would provide employment for 10,000 hotel and restaurant workers, musicians, and artists. It's a shame that Castro is not as favorably inclined toward American policy as he is toward the American dollar.

Pinballs In The Senate

Jukeboxes, pinball and vending machines have been appearing on the floor of the Senate. The probe on the jukebox rackets is under way. Milton Hammergren, former vice-president of a coin-machine company, said the sales of his firm jumped into the millions after hoodlums were hired to handle districts in Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, San Francisco, Detroit, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Milwaukee. Testimony was given by Lieutenant James Mooney of the New York City Police, on an underworld convention at Apalachin, N.Y., where charges were heard against one Carmine Lombardozzi, awaiting the decision in a garage. The group decided against killing him and charged him with a 10,000 dollar fine instead. A New York jukebox operator told of having his skull split by steel bars wielded by members of a teamsters local when he refused to sign a contract with the organization which he regarded as gangster operated. (Don't worry, Fish. If they try to pull this stuff in Tote call in the regular guys.)

Can Chester Control Dodge?

The health of John Foster Dulles seems to be the main concern of Washington. Dulles has been dealing with the Kremlin since the Truman administration. He has established a reputation for standing up to the Soviet with courage and confidence, opposing appeasement. The question is as to how quickly he can recover. Will he have to curtail his activities or even resign?

He needs rest. The doctors consider Dulles to be a poor patient. He has a restless mind and craves work. Dulles said he will be available for consultation, but for the first time he has turned the direction of the State Department over to others. Christian Herter, the Under Secretary will direct in his absence.

A meeting of the East-West foreign ministers is expected in May, and Moscow has warned that unless the Allies are out of Berlin by May 27, trouble may ensue. Dulles embraces the policy that Berlin will not be abandoned to the Reds. Washington has the feeling that an America without a Dulles will be like Dodge City with Matt Dillon out of town and Chester in command.

Movie Of The Week

Vivien Leigh is taunted by Marlon Brando in this tense scene from Elia Kazan's production of Tennessee Williams' "A Street Car Named Desire." The Twentieth Century-Fox re-release plays Thursday, Feb. 26 only at the Harris-Clifton theatre.

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

The basketball team may have the distinction of pouring more points through the hoop in a single season than any other quintet in the school's history.

The standing record is held by the 1955-5 team of the Jake Handzelefl era which scored 1711 points for an 81.5 game average. Handzelek personally accounted for 553 points, the highest total tallied by any Indian in a single season.

In the first 19 games the Tribe scored 1513 points for a 79.6 game average. The floormen need a total of at least 199 points for the record in the final three games with American University, Gettysburg and Susquehanna.

Hopes for entering post season playoffs were eliminated Tuesday night when Hofstra undefeated (in league play) defeated Moravian, 74-59. Had the New Yorkers lost the contest, the Indians would have been the Northern Division representatives for the Middle Atlantic College Conference championship.

Despite the fact that the Flying Dutchmen have two MAC tilts remaining, the decisions will not effect the standings since a division champion must be declared by the cut-off line, February 25.

To date the Indians have an 8-1 slate, the only setback at the hands of an out-of-division foe, Drexel, on the Dragons' floor. Susquehanna is the final MAC game for the Tribe.

Bill Miller, a prospective diamond hurler, shows that he can also throw strikes on the alleys. Playing with the Admirals, Miller possesses the highest average of all keglers with a 169 average.

Ron Bergey of the Pals, who have three representatives in the top five, ranks runner up with a 164 total while Jim Parks of the Highballers is third with 160.

In fourth place is Tom Hoy, a member of the King Pins, with 159 and a three-way tie exists for fifth position. The Pals, Harvey Wagner and Les Greenawalt, and the Greeks' Fran Cristina all own a 157 average.

Carol Phipps of the Falcains is the leading girl with 126 pins per game while Sally Grove, a Chem Clubber, is runnerup with a 124 average.

Bob Ewald (No. 31) sinks a two pointer as Gordie Ewers (No. 14) looks on in Monday night's 80-64 win over Wilkes.

Tribe Downs Wilkes, Wagner; Takes Second Place In MAC

Wednesday night, Juniata's basketball team lost to American University, in Washington, D.C., 61-56.

Strong defensive play and timely rebounding have paved the way for the Tribe's recent victories over MAC foes, Wagner and Wilkes.

The pair of wins, 61-50 over Wagner and 80-64 over Wilkes, gives the Tribe a record of 8-1 in the Northern Division of the MAC, just a game behind undefeated Hofstra. However, for the Tribe to gain a playoff berth, Hofstra must lose a game, thus necessitating a playoff game for the divisional championship.

Fine Defensive Play At Wagner

Saturday evening, Staten Island residents were treated to a fine display of defensive basketball by Wagner's Seahawks and "Doc" Greene's Indians. A nip-and-tuck first half ended with the Seahawks in possession of a slim 28-26 lead. In the second half it was all Juniata, as the Tribe stormed back, hitting 44 per cent from the floor to clinch the victory. In the last four minutes of play, Juniata outscored Wagner 14 to 2. Don Burnich led the Tribe scoring with 21 counters. Co-captains Gordie Ewers and Bob Ewald had 14 each.

Juniata's home season ended on a bright note with the convincing triumph over Wilkes' Colonels. After a slow first half the Tribe began a scoring spurt early in the second half giving them a comfortable margin, which was retained to the final whistle. High scorer for the Tribe was again Don Burnich with 28 counters. Steve Gerlock contributed 12 points in addition to snagging 18 rebounds.

Whips Overcome Crusaders, 52-40

Intramural basketball's undefeated Whips, downed the highly touted Crusaders 52-40 Wednesday in a game that could prophecy the league outcome. Roy Martin was high for the winners with 19 points.

On Tuesday the Sheiks topped the Bulldogs 51-49, the Golden Dragons dropped a 76-53 game to the Amish, and the Dukes romped the NJ Owls 71-35. The Lakers edged the Honeybunns 57-42, Alpha Sigma Sigma nipped Hall 100 54-42 and the Hawks took an 85-48 victory over the Polliwogs.

In Saturday's contests the Honeybunns whipped the Blockers 84-69, the Crusaders defeated NJ Owls 79-58, and the Whips won over the Dukes, 64-48. In other games the Dunkards romped the Jabberwockies 110-28, the Lakers beat the Polliwogs 64-44, and the Honeybunns were edged by the Amish 40-38.

The Sheiks took a 53-47 win over the Dark Horses last Thursday as the Black Angels dropped the Golden Dragons 70-55; and the Blockers beat the Mountain Dewers, 65-56. The Alpha Sigma Sigma downed the Hawks 53-50, and the Bulldogs topped Heller's Angels 71-54.

Stevens Decisions Wrestlers 34-0 In Final Competition

After an all too-brief and too spotty a schedule, the Juniata wrestling team closed out its first year of unofficial intercollegiate competition by losing a 34-0 decision to Stevens Trade School, in a practice meet, last Friday afternoon in the Memorial Gym.

The visitors from Lancaster, Pennsylvania, with a team dotted with former high school standouts, proved to have too much experience for the yearlings of coach Charley Godlasky. It wasn't until the final exhibition bout that the Indians were able to pick up a victory.

This meet closed the season for Juniata and left its record at 0-3-1. This record, however, does not indicate the high place wrestling has taken already on College Hill. The consensus of opinion among students, faculty and administration personnel is that wrestling is a valuable addition to the sports program at JC. This seems especially true as it provides a much needed second winter sport for Juniata fans. The prospects for future success are very good as there was only one senior and just two juniors on this year's squad.

Next year, in all probability, wrestling will become an official intercollegiate sport at Juniata and, with a better schedule already in the makings, there seems to be no doubt that its return to Memorial Gym will be looked forward to by all Juniata fans.

Falcains, Pals Win In IM Bowling Leagues

The Falcains gained undisputed possession of first place in Division I and the Pals remained unbeaten in 12 decisions in Division II after last week's intramural bowling action.

The Pals whitewashed the 4 Chiefs and a Squaw, 3-0, as Pat Bauer of the Pals was high girl bowler of the evening with a 264.

The Falcains, paced by Joe Sopata's 344 and Fats Falcione's 325, had too much for the Admirals despite Bill Miller's 337 double and 182 single game pin total.

In other action, the Harriers dumped the King Pins, 3-0, the Dutchmen nipped the Saylor House, 2-1, the Spare-Cats disposed of the 4 D's & C, 2-1 and the Holy Rollers won the Senators, 2-1. Forfeits were won by the Chem Clubbers over the Greeks and the Champs over the Gutterballers.

Susquehanna Foe In Last BB Test

Wednesday night, the Tribe travels to Selinsgrove to meet the Crusaders of Susquehanna University in the last game of the season for the Indians.

Led by co-captains Gene Witicik, a fine all-around performer and Robert Probert a 6-1 junior, the Orange and Maroon will be out to cap off their unimpressive season with a win. Starting for the Crusaders, in addition to Witicik and Probert, will be Keith Tyler, a 5-11 guard, who has shown much promise this year. Harry Powers and Ron Aller will be starting at center and the other guard position, respectively.

Last year the Tribe took a 91-79 win from these same Crusaders in a game played in Memorial Gym.

Jayvee Slate At 5-5 Beat Altoona Center,

Second half scoring sprees by Bucky Brumbaugh, Ray Erney, Mike Gilmore and Bruce Smith led the junior Indians to their fifth victory of the season over Altoona's Penn State Center by a score of 83-76.

Fighting a 40-39 halftime deficit, the jayvees outscored their opponents 44-36 in the second half to even their seasonal slate at five and five.

Gilmore paced the Indian scoring attack with 21 points while Smith and Brumbaugh tallied 16 apiece.

The jayvees conclude their schedule tonight at Johnstown with the Pitt Center, who they previously beat 83-71 on the home floor.

Frosh Portays Hectic Life Of Women's Dorm Residents

by Wendy Oliver

Do you enjoy peace, quiet, culture and spaciousness?

If so never set your foot anywhere near a girl's dormitory. Some damsels spend a complete year employing various methods of sanity retention and attempting to gain two or three solid hours of sleep each night.

These poor females frustrated by the futility of their efforts have been classified after extensive research according to certain character traits. There is always the cotton in the ear approach which, contrary to popular belief, does nothing more than eliminate an accumulation of dust on the semicircular canals.

It is little aid against the din of buzzers, cha-cha lessons, Little Richard and the telephones that sing at least 15 times before they are answered. Others use the padlock technique to keep the milling throng out of their rooms. They are fighting a losing battle, for a sufficient amount of locks does keep the crowd out but the lock has yet to be invented to keep the crowd quiet.

A few try to lose themselves in culture only to find their Picassos flaunting a mustache and relish spilled on Rembrandt. We all know that Brahms, Beethoven and Bach have not a chance against "Fats" Domino.

It has been stated often by a brave unknowing member of the male gender that the female belongs to the weaker sex. As you can see, after a four year survival course in a women's dormitory the female is conditioned to meet any obstacle life might hold.

Reviewer Praises, Criticizes All Class Night Skits, Casts, Music

by William Merrell

For the participants, it was a lot of hard work; for the audience either entertainment or a sudden flowering of class loyalty; but for everyone concerned, it was fun all the way. The little gaucheries and fumbles that are always part of the event were soon forgotten and we remember the fun.

Let me hasten to add that the judges' decision seemed to meet with near unanimous approval and that includes this reviewer. For sheer originality and freshness, The senior show was a stand-out, but if music was the main criterion, as we are informed, then there just wasn't any room for doubt that the juniors had it.

By far the most colorful presentation was the freshman Utopia. The decor was bright and effective, and the costuming was both amusing and riotously appropriate. Movement and planning of the scenes was good, indicating intelligent direction.

Frosh Kings Trio

It was unfortunate that the frosh just didn't seem to be able to find the voices, and even the more promising voices offered little in the way of style. The king's trio routine was a happy touch, however, and Kathleen Kimmel's characterization of the babe from Brooklyn was delightful. Pacing was slow and rather unconvincing, but that made the high spots all the more notable. Not to be forgotten, at least in this writer's view, was the ridiculous picture of one of the black-skinned gals showing a pink midriff.

Seeing that Scots charwoman cha-cha the dust was real crazy, but to hear that happy hag hamming Kern was really the end, man, I mean the end! And when it comes to that old heel and toe routine—I dig that Miller all the way! Man, he was real nervous. I don't know who dreamed up that line of jive the characters were dishing out, but it was the most!

Terry Fouse's take-off of a refugee from Muscle Beach was a gasser, and I dig that McAvoy chick, too. She was real cool. Rush Hodgin's square flat-foot was his best acting job yet. As I say, the theme was conceived in originality, and carried through with remarkable consistency and considerable finesse. The weakest spot was the music. If comedy had been the assigned theme, the seniors would have won hands-down.

Dances In Nome

The trek to Nome was excellent fun, and pleasantly staged, but the best thing about it was the dance routines. Certainly the plot line was ancient, and there

A Marine Corps Officer Selection Team will be on campus to speak with interested persons of the officer training program March 5.

Pianist To Appear In Concert Here

An internationally known pianist from Argentina, Raul Spivak, is the guest artist with the College Community Symphony concert in Oller Hall at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, March 3.

Spivak is returning for his annual tour in the United States under sponsorship of the Arts Program of the Association of American Colleges. Noted for his ability to charm audiences with the warmth and color of his Spanish and Latin American repertory, he held the chair of advanced piano in the National Conservatory of Music and Scenic Arts in Buenos Aires, as well as in the school of Fine Arts of the University of La Plata.

Spivak has also served as assistant maestro of the Teatro Colon (Opera House), and as a member of the faculty of the Composers' Conference and Chamber Music Center at Middlebury College. He made his North American debut at New York's Town Hall, and has appeared in recitals at Carnegie Hall and as guest soloist with the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Villa-Lobos.

Now in its second season, the symphony orchestra is composed of musicians from the colleges and the Huntingdon and Altoona areas. The director is Prof. Robert Currier. Forty-five men and women will play in the spring concert which is open to the public.

Play Lead, Characters Chosen; Davis To Act As Student Director

Casting for the Masque's spring production of Jean Anoulih's Antigone has been completed and practice is now under way.

The performers are as follows: David Weston as Creon, Nan Swartz as Antigone, Paula Kolsky as the chorus, Joyce Gillingham as the nurse, Dave Amey as the messenger, Mike Martin as the page, Bonnie Meadows as Isemene, Don Miller as Haemon, and Bill Lafe, James Tufano and Tony Mont as first, second and third guards.

According to Dan Davis, student director for the play, Weston, instructor in speech and play production, has assumed the leading role for the purpose of lessening the burden on studtnt performers. The part of Creon is exceptionally long and extremely demanding in theatrical knowhow.

Because there are only three weeks remaining for the memorization of lines, the entire cast decided that it would be best for the experienced Weston to perform. The delay in organization and rehearsal was caused by the lack of money for scripts due to the illness of treasurer John Fike and by the recent emphasis on All Class Night skits.

The stage committee, sponsored by the Tycoon Club, is headed by Bob Ewald. Programs and publicity are being handled by communications and the invitation committee, headed by Sunny Rittenhouse, is sponsored by the social committee.

Corsages will be in order for this formal and all students, faculty and administration are welcome to attend.

Election Rally To Begin ICC Weekend Campus Activities

The activities for this ICC weekend, which has been in the planning for months, begin tonight following the election rally in Oller Hall.

The informal parties consisting of dancing and games held in Totem Inn and East Hall Recreation Room, sponsored by Sigma Psi, Debate, Pyrenees and Womens House begin at 8 p.m. A dance in the Women's Gym, sponsored by SEAP and J Club, will follow.

Highlighting the evening will be the crowning of the campus Ugly Man by Bonnie Meadows, 1958-59 Homecoming Queen. Music is being provided by Fred Guion and will include a vocalist.

Activities scheduled from 2 p. m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday are dependent upon the weather. If the weather is suitable several clubs are planning activities out of doors.

Games sponsored by the Chemistry Club and Scalpel and Probe will be held in Totem Inn. One definite event scheduled is the pinochle tournament sponsored by the social committee.

Bringing the weekend to a close will be the Frost Fantasy in Memorial Gym where dancing is amid the wintry hues of blue, silver and white to the music of Dave Heck from 8:30 p.m. until 11:30 p.m. Punch and cookies will be served and entertainment will be provided by the Masque.

Dining Disorder

Juniatians have had very little to complain about in the dining hall this year. (Count your blessings: no more mystery cakes, no more parsnips, no more Brussels sprouts the fourth time around, et cetera, et cetera.) Lately, however, there have been increasing complaints with regard to the dining hall procedures concerning reserved tables. Interviews with the head waitresses and Mr. Moore indicate that few of these complaints are justified.

Each weekend the head waitresses receive table slips which have duplicated names and some which have names of people not even at Juniata. Standard policy is to disregard these tables; this seems to us to be the only reasonable answer. Obviously it is ridiculous to have several vacancies and even tables going down at the weekend meals. It means a waste of money, time and effort.

Moreover, students are not being accurate in the Friday noon count for the weekend meals. This means that the kitchen staff has only a vague idea of how much food to prepare. In this situation, cafeteria-style meals for Saturday and Sunday nights are impossible. It is not necessary for each person at the table to fill in his name and the meals he will attend just so the table head takes an accurate count for each meal.

Another source of confusion is the fact that students do not report to their assigned dining halls. Assigned dining halls are in effect from Monday noon to Friday night. Although reserved tables are in effect only at the noon meals, JCers are asked to report to the dining halls in which their reserved tables are located all weekend. Carelessness about this results in tables going up in Oneida and down in East Hall (or vice versa) every Saturday and Sunday evening.

There does not seem to be any way to combat this lack of responsibility. Collegians must be fed, even if they can not fill out a reserved table slip correctly. It is evident that just a little more care on the part of those students who reserve weekend tables would mean much less trouble and confusion for all concerned.

We Get Letters . . . .

No Offense

Recently I was one of the subjects of satire in a column of the college newspaper. Contrary to what may be popular belief I was not sorely offended by what I read. Being possessed with a sense of humor, I accepted the reference in the spirit in which I'm sure it was intended. I bear no grudge against Mr. Davis and I promise not to run him down as he crosses the street.

Dan Davis writes a personal opinion column. He has the privilege of expressing his opinion as does every man. What he writes does not, I'm sure, reflect the opinion of some 700 other students. I dare say most students do not remember what they read in the JUNIATIAN by the evening of the day they read it.

I will venture to say that this new column has created and aroused a lot of interest and curiosity in the student body to read the school paper perhaps more than it was ever read before. It has even prompted letters to the editor which in turn have added another attraction to the paper.

There is a place for everybody in the JUNIATIAN. Davis writes his opinion in one column every week. The students are free to express their opinions as often as they like in another column by letter. It's as simple as that.

David Weston, Jr.

The Heavy Side

We were gratified to see in the recent issue of your paper that our opinions of the present author of On the Light Side were shared by others, and this has prompted us to add our voices to the protest.

Mr. Davis seems to combine an admirable vocabulary with an utter dearth of ideas.

We particularly protest the turning of what was formerly a campus humor column into a gossip column for a North Dorm clique, and equally feel that while "cutting up" the faculty is a popular bull session topic, it is out of place in a responsible paper such as yours. If Mr. Davis is to continue as the author, we suggest that the column be retitled On the Heavy Side.

Committee Scans Taxes Legalize Racing In Pa.?

—Shane

If the state legislature adopts the governor's committee recommendation that the sales tax be increased from three to three and one half percent, the state's retail trade is in for a headache. Don Parke, field secretary for the Pennsylvania Retailers' Association, stated, "I say that either the state must come up with some answer or we or some other group will have to work something out so these clerks are not saddled with the responsibility of computing this tax on the spot."

Governor Lawrence's tax advisory committee last week recommended that paramutual betting be legalized as a new source of revenue. Several bills have already been proposed in the legislature on this question. Lawrence seems to favor this solution for he said that he would sign legislation enabling the voters to decide the issue if it reaches his desk.

The Pennsylvania Council of Churches held that legalizing para-mutual horse race betting would force a greater financial burden on the state than now exists. The council contended that revenue from horse tracks would only be "a fraction of the cost of crime, jail expenses, and payment to families in distress because of gambling losses." The council renewed a firm stand against horse race legislation. "A respectable government cannot afford to use morally questionable methods to finance its programs and thus threaten the basis of democracy."

Our Neighbors

It seems that all the states which surround Pennsylvania have legalized horse racing. If one studies the placing of the out-of-state tracks, they are located rather close to the Pennsylvania border. These tracks were not placed in these positions to make transportation easier for those of the home states. These surrounding states have come to depend on revenues which are obtained from Pennsylvania visitors to these out-of-state tracks. Pennsylvania plates are common in the parking lots of these tracks and attract hardly any notice. Some of the strongest lobbies in Harrisburg, which work against legalized racing, are those of our neighboring states. It is to their benefit to keep racing out of Pennsylvania.

The argument which stresses the sin factor seems to be rather shallow. Are the inhabitants of New Jersey more sinful than those of Pennsylvania? Is the government of New York less respectable than that of Pennsylvania? Were the chariots of Ben Hur a deciding factor in the fall of the Roman Empire? Do the subjects of Elizabeth and Philip boo her when she appears at Aintree to view the Grand National? I doubt that gambling has been the reason for the fall of governments. Let's face it, gambling carries many governments. Look at Castro reopening gambling in Cuba. And where are those dollars in Cuba coming from? Not from the sugar cane fields. Try the USA for an answer.

Racing Revenues

I would like to state some figures as to the revenues which our neighboring states receive from racing in 1957. New York—78 million, New Jersey—25 million, Ohio—8 million, West Virginia—3 million, Delaware—2 million. If you were to take a slight slice out of each of these aforementioned figures, and add the sum to the tax income of Pennsylvania, it would add up to a considerable sum.

There are very few pieces of legislation which do not have unfavorable effects on some group. Would the good that legalized racing could do overshadow the evil? I believe that the next time the racing bill appears on the ballot that it will pass.

You can keep a population blind to certain facts for so long, but eventually they will choose the most practical path.

ON THE LIGHT SIDE

DAN DAVIS

Tuesday evening between 9:30 and 11 p.m. certainly offered a strange sight for all those who are familiar with Juniata's normal night life. For once, no one was roaming around the campus and the "line up" was noticeably negelected. Where was everybody? Why watching Shakespeare's Hamlet, of course. Suddenly, everyone was going "egg head" and intellectual.

While Tote was filled with the theatrical-minded segment of the student body (who saw to it that the melodious sounds of the juke box were put out of commission), the reorganized North Dorm TV lounge was overflowing with desk chairs and "regular guys" (who put their cigarette butts in the newly-furnished ash trays—take note, faculty). And, believe it or not, everyone was dead silent during the performance.

Yes, it was a sight which will probably never be repeated in future Juniata history.—And to think that we missed three westerns which were on the other channel.

(Even the faculty—or at least the English department—were engaged in viewing the play; for it is rumored that our "czar" threw a cozy little party which offered Shakespeare instead of booze for entertainment—they'll learn!)

* * * * * * * *

It looks as if the Philadelphia contingent of the campus will soon be able to boast of the "triple crown" in sports. It's been a long time since all their teams finished the season in a uniform place. However, they finally did it: last in baseball (Phillies), last in football (Eagles) and last in basketball (Warriors). We will rise, however, for the Phillies now have Sparky Anderson at shortstop.—And we won't even talk about Ed Bouchee.

* * * * * * * *

Franklin D. Roosevelt proved a man could be president as long as he wanted to; Truman proved it could be anybody; Eisenhower proved we didn't need one anyway.

* * * * * * * *

Pittsburgh is really having its troubles of late. A few weeks ago half the city was submerged under water and bridges were being struck by ill-fastened barges. After finally recovering from the mishap, the "smoky city" was again subject to ridicule at the hands of none other than our much esteemed American history prof. It seems that he is of the valid opinion that if a dust storm were to rise in the fair city, none of the inhabitants would even realize it.—So who cares if the TV station-getting mayor was elected governor!

* * * * * * * *

Another college took first place on campus this past Wednesday. At 8:05 a.m. a swarm of students politely came into Tote and neatly arranged themselves. They were followed by the flower of the sociology department who marched in and began his eloquent lecture as if nothing was out of the ordinary—only at Juniata—

ANTHONY PERKINS and SHIRLEY MacCLAINE are romantically teamed in Paramount's hilarious VistVision comedy, "The Matchmaker," due Thursday only at the Harris Clifton Theatre with Shirley Booth and Paul Ford co-starred.

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

With signs of spring nearing and spring training in the south in full swing, Coach Ken Bunn has called for indoor drills for pitchers and catchers this week.

Bunn, who has compiled a 20 win, five loss record as baseball mentor, faces his toughest chores since coming to this institution. Whereas hitting and fielding have been his strongest assets, his pitching staff has consisted of no more than two hurlers per season in his two years at the helm.

This year he has only one strong-armed veteran, Ron Reynolds, returning with ace right-hander Pete McCauley leaving to play professionally with the Baltimore Orioles. Both twirled a total of 91 innings with only six innings going to freshmen who are not eligible this term.

Reynolds gained the top pitching honors as he won seven, lost one and had a 2.75 earned run average McCauley, flirting with bad luck all season, ended with a 2-1 slate after winning six of eight decisions in his freshman year.

Also missing from last year's 9-2 squad is catcher Jack Meenan who batted .310. This problem can be filled possibly by converting shortstop Jim Berrier or by three-season veteran Rex Donnelly.

At the first call, Reynolds, six inexperienced moundsmen and two catchers reported as candidates. The big if is whether Bunn can come up with an adequate battery, mainly in the pitching departmtnt, for the entire season and not having to rely on overworking Reynolds.

Elsewhere Bunn should have relatively little trouble as he has the horses to hit, run, field and steal at the other positions.

Indians Close Season; Down Susquehanna In Overtime

Juniata ended its 1958-59 basketball season on a happy note with an overtime 88-76 win over Susquehanna.

The win gave the Tribe a final log of 13 wins and 9 losses, its best mark in four years.

Ron Wertz sank a jump shot with 13 seconds remaining in regulation time to knot the score at 69-69. In the five minute overtime period, the Tribe outscored Susquehanna 19-7 to win going away.

Steve Gerlock and Gordie Ewers led the attack with 21 and 20 points respectively. Bob Ewald grabbed a total of 17 rebounds to pace the Indians' domination of the boards, a significant factor in the victory.

Previous to the Susquehanna encounter, the Tribe dropped a pair of close decisions to a pair of non-conference foes, American University and Gettysburg. Shooting percentages marked the Tribe's downfall in each of the losses. In the 61-56 loss to American U., the Indians hit 35% while the home team connected on 25 of 55 shots for a fine 45% from the floor.The scoring was evenly distributed among the starters, with Ed Costello's 14 margers high for the evening. Steve Gerlock continued his fine rebounding by pulling down 16 caroms for the Tribe.

Don Burnich, experiencing one of his better nights, scored 30 joints to lead both teams in that department. Gordie Ewers was second high for JC with 18 counters. The Tribe, against the taller Bullet squad, was able to snag only 39 rebounds, a season low for them.

Frosh Team Controls Girls IM Basketball

The Rebel Rousers strengthened their tight hold on first place in the girls IM basketball league.

Several teams won by forfeit. The Group forfeited to the Raunchies and the Great Pretenders; the Seniors forfeited to the Rah-Rahs twice.

Presidential Candidates' Platforms

Dutch Boland . . .

This is my platform in very brief terms. The details will be revealed at the election rally.

1. Further the honor system at Juniata.
2. Try for two more washing machines in the men's dorms.
3. Continue the current plans for financial reform.
4. Look into the possibility of inter-collegiate field hockey for women.
5. Have a gym initiation for freshmen every year.
6. Give WJC an expanded budget.
7. Promote Juniata's own dance band.
8. Initiate an honor service club at JC.
9. Support the literary magazine.

Dick Quinn . . .

1. To work in close cooperation with the chairman of educational activities toward the establishment of an honor system at Juniata College: steps to be taken might include investigation of an honor code, the expansion of the student proctoring service and / or the test-trial of an honor system, perhaps during finals.
2. To work through and with the chairman of educational activities in continuing course evaluation; to work toward an understanding with the faculty concerning a universal grading system.
3. To work toward a more constructive relationship between WJC and the college administration.
4. To consider with the chairman of men's house and the chairman of social activities the possibility of recreational facilities in the two men's dormitories.
5. To reconsider the proposed Alfarata change and then work toward the desired goal.
6. To endorse the chairman of athletics in exploring the possibility of inaugurating inter-collegiate field hockey for women.
7. To work with the chairman of social activities in searching for a solution to the 'big name entertainment' dilemma.
8. To look into the possibility of obtaining an additional college car for the students, teachers and deputation teams.
9. To work with the chairman of educational activities in presenting to students more adequately the opportunities for advanced study after college through fellowships, assistantships, travel and study abroad etc.

wasn't much sparkle in the script, nor were there any outstanding characterizations. For my money, however, it was worth seeing just for the clever decor and the freshness of the dances. I take off my hat to the designer for the scene and costuming, and I recognize the fine Armenian hand of Mrs. Blaisdell in the dance routines.

When it comes to musicals, there's nothing like being able to call on an old experienced crew. It was the good fortune of the juniors to have in their ranks such experienced stagers as Peg Chidester, Dee Briggs, Jane Brumbaugh, Ed Jones, and most of all, Sherrill Edwards. The book was smoothly written and convincing, the lyrics timely and appropriate, and all played with an almost professional air. As in the other class productions, Edwards used old musicomedy numbers, but the songs he chose from Goldilocks and New Girl in Town were effective, partly because they were not hackneyed, and partly because they fitted so smoothly into the story line. Then, too, they were sung by people who knew how.

Among the more notable touches was the clever use of expressionistic decor:—those view panels in the first two scenes, for example, and the fraternity pennants in the last. It's always good show business to use twins, and the appearance of the Berrier boys was a nice routine. Finally, the pace was good, the whole show made sense, and by the way, it was accompanied by quite the best combo of the evening.

Choir To Sing In Stone Church Sunday

The Juniata College Touring Choir will present a program of sacred music in the Stone Church Sunday night at 7:30 p.m.

This concert, open to the public, affords the students and the towns people an opportunity to hear the choir sing their religious selections in the church atmosphere. One of the main features of the program will be the singing of the Four Psalms which is divided into four parts written by Edward Grieg.

Decrease In Term Enrollment Noted

A total of 748 students are enrolled at Juniata Colege for the spring term according to a registration summary released by the office of the registrar.

This total is 28 less than the fall term's record high enrollment of 774. The drop of 28 includes senilors who have completed their work but will not receive their degrees until June and others who left for personal academic reasons.

The registration summary shows there are 621 resident and 93 non-resident (day) students enrolled for the cirrent term. There are 34 special students, also.

Of the 714 ful-time students, 409 are men and 305 are women. A further breakdown reveals there are 67 non-resident men and 26 non-resident women carrying a full schedule during the spring term.

Senate To Check JC's Past Membership In National Publication

Who's Who on Campus was one of the main topics of discussion at this week's Senate meeting.

Who's Who is a national publication which lists and discusses outstanding students on various campuses around the nation. Last week President Chuck Brown appointed Don Miller to check to see why Juniata is no longer included in this publication.

During Miller's report Dr. Crosby informed the Senate that he had been present at the Senate meeting a number of years ago when it was decided to drop the subcription to the periodical. Crosby pointed out that the reasons for discontinuing the subscriptions were valid.

Since opposition to Crosby's report was brought forth, the Senate decided to look into the matter further. Miller was appointed to carry out the investigation and report to the Senate at a later date.

Philosophical Society

Stan Davis and Dutch Boland reported that a new club, to be known as the Juniata Philosophical Society, is being formed on campus. The club was started primarily through the ideas of Hank Hain, junior science major.

Boland pointed out that before the club receives official recognition it must pass through the Interclub Council and the Senate. Hain is presently working on a constitution for the club and Boland is to work with him to see that everything is done correctly.

Smoke Signal

Brown reported that Bonnie Gunther, Bill Lafe and Carol Baish have accepted the job of writing short articles for the Senate publication, the Smoke Signal. These articles are to be political in nature and do not neccessarily reflect the views of the Senate.

Senate Talks Of Frosh, Club Special Days

Among the various items on last Wednesday's Senate agenda were frosh library books, the honor service club and educational emphasis days.

Concerning frosh library books Chuck Brown reported that according to Mrs. Hettinger, JC's librarian, the total number of books missing from the reading rooms is about one third of the amount missing last year. However, the bill presented to the freshman class is almost the same amount as last year's bill.

This was caused by the fact that the stolen books this year are much more expensive than last year. According to Mrs. Hettinger, it seems that most of the books that were taken during the year were not taken while the rooms were attended by student proctors.

It is believed that the books were stolen in the morning when they were being returned to the library. To correct this fault, a Senate committee has been appointed to devise a more foolproof method of returning the books.

Honor Service Club

Carl Wass turned in the final draft of the constitution for the new honor service club. It was unanimously aproved by the Senate.

The constitution next goes to the student activities committee for further study.

Final arrangements concerning educational emphasis days were discussed and a definite schedule of events was set up. Brown streeed the importance of interest and attendance at the various opportuities to hear Dr. Bekker next week.

Committee Requests Poems, Stories, Plays

All students are welcome to contribute writings for publication in the upcoming literary magazine.

This magazine will print original studnet written prose and poetry. Contributions may be submitted to Dick Johnson, Dan Davis, Ben Rose, Jack Merril, Barbara Walls or Pat Varec.

This student publication is still in its preliminary stage. It will be published monthly, although no date has yet been set for the first publication.

Judiciary Plans For Open Meeting, Trial

Discussion of a meeting to include both incoming and outgoing judiciaries constituted the main topic at last Monday's Judiciary meeting held in the conference room.

Jane Herbster and Jay Maust were appointed by President Brown to set up the meeting and a mock trial. A motion was made, discussed and passed to the effect that the trial and meeting which will be conducted under the revised constitution will be open to the entire studnet body.

The Judiciary also discussed the liklihood of it being within their jurisdiction to remove all forms of financial aid as punishment in particularly serous cases. The conclusion, as stated by Dean Heberling, was that since the Judiciary is recognized by the administration and has been given blanket permission, it may recommend anything. The final decision in this case would be up to the financial aid committee. Heberling also recommended work chores as a form of punishment.

Travel Directory To Sponsor Dance

The social event for this Saturday night will be an evening of fun in Interlandia, sponsored by the Travel Directory organization from 8:15 p.m. until 11:30 p.m. in the Women's Gym.

This organization headed by Ann Scheib. is set up by the Senate to make students aware of the opportunities to study, to participate in work camps or just to tour in foreign countries.

Visitations to the various corners of the earth: Norway, France, Germany and the Far East, including the ski lodge, the French cafe, the German resturant and the Chinese garden, will provide the atmosphere for the evening's events. Travel booths displaying pamphlets, poster and guide books will be included.

Following these visitations, dancing to records will begin. Entertainment of the evening will feature Jane Brumbaugh singing German songs, Cecile Coop rendering Spanish dances and Stan Davis giving a monologue. Refreshments of Chinese fortune cookies, German cookies and punch will be served.

Campus Elects New Officers To Lead Senate For 1959-60

Dick Quinn's victory in the recent Senate elections, marked the climax of the campaign for Senate offices with Dick Gaskell winning the vice-presidency, Jane Brumbaugh being elected secretary and Bob Schwalenberg's victory as treasurer.

The election this year paralleled the Senatorial election last year with a decisive presidential election and a close vice-presidential election requiring a runoff election. Quinn defeated Boland with 431 to 166 votes with 26 abstentions. In the first election Dick Gaskell and Bob Blair were tied with 311 votes and 3 abstentions. But the tie was broken 282 to 338 in the second election with Gaskell emerging the victor.

Miss Brumbaugh achieved the secretarial post by defeating Miss Muir 358 to 265 votes and 2 abstentions. Bob Schwalenberg's 357 votes to Maie Piirand's 274 votes won him the office of treasurer.

Students To Take GI Test Monday

Considerable general knowledge obtained from reading Time, Life, U.S. News and the World Report and the New York Times will be the prime requisite for the general information contest in the Library to be given March 9 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The comic sections of the paper will not help much, and class discussion of past events may be useful but are not the basis for judging your ability in this test.

No committee member may take the test.

Editor's Desk ....

Our Ivory Tower?

How close is Juniata to the "small liberal arts college" of Ivory Tower fame? Do our sections of the Appalachians and the blue Juniata protect us too well from the slings and arrows of the World Outside?

Often it seems that this campus is oddly isolated from the political trends and national issues of this century. During the past few years JCers' interest in international affairs has dwindled to a low ebb. And this in a time when the distances between the countries of the world are becoming almost nil; when the relations between countries are of utmost importance.

Partly in recognition of this need for a wider viewpoint on this campus, the Senate is sponsoring two educational emphasis days with a focus on international affairs. The general title, America in World Crisis, is a well-chosen one; for is obvious even to the ivory tower boys that the world is at a crucial stage. Is it the begining of a fatal decline or is it merely a bumpy transition to the new atomic age? The education of future generations will play an immense role in the final answer to these questions.

Meanwhile, beck at Juniata: the mid-winter week-end was nice, we are electing Senators for next year and mid-terms are coming up. We do not mean to deprecate these issues; they are part of the operation of a campus. But we sometimes need to be reminded of this "broad liberal arts education" we are supposed to be getting. Hence we would urge attendance at the discussions and lectures with Dr. Bekker next week. They will not provide any pat answers to present situations but they will be of great value if they only raise a few questions.

Plaudits To ICC

Sandy Johnston, Senate chairman of social activities, has asked that we express her appreciation and thanks to all those who contributed to the success of ICC's mid-winter weekend,

We would like to add our own hearty applause! Since the entire weekend was so well-planned and widely-publicized, it was met with a great deal of enthusiasm by JCers. It provided a bright spot in that long, dreary stretch from January finals to spring vacation.

The election rally last Friday night got things off on a spirited note and a lively evening was climaxed by the informal parties, dancing and Ugly Man Lafe's coronation exercises. Women's Gym swung (for once) to the music of Fred Guion's combo: Guion, Al Dungan, Chuck Parvin, Moose Neuman and vocalist Jeanne Mock.

Saturday's events included games in Totem Inn all afternoon, a pinochle tournament and finally, the Frost Fantasy, one of the best formal dances JC has seen in recent years. It was generally conceded that the campus would like to hear more of the Dave Heck band for its dances and we would like to go out on a limb and say the Memorial Gym has never been so beautifully decorated.

We hope that ICC's Mid-winter weekend becomes another of Juniata's "traditions" (excuse the word). The only thing lacking was snow; however now that the initial step has been taken, maybe next year's committee can do something about that.

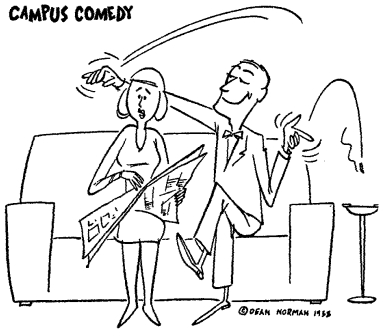
Party Platforms

Last Friday's election rally illustrated what we consider a failing in JC's campus politics. Candidates for offices other than the presidency must run on qualifications with little or no attention to platforms. The same holds true for chairmanship candidates: although they do list certain goals for their particular areas, there are rarely any stands taken on campus-wide issues.

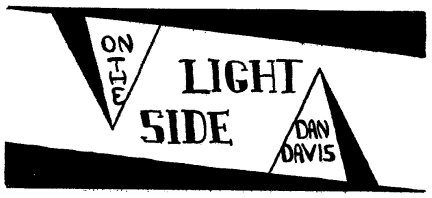
This would seem to argue for the institution of a party system at Juniata. Under this organization, the candidates could line up on certain issues and present a unified platform to the voters. Probably there would not be many sharply defined differences on this campus but at least such an organization would point out qualifications and areas of emphasis for the students.

As in a national election, there would always be split-ticket voting and some independent candidates. But the overall organization would lead to a Senate more unified on the main issues. This may be something to think about for next year ....

CAMPUS COMEDY



"WELL, IT'S TOO LATE TO GO TO A SHOW.....YOU SUGGEST SOMETHING."



Once again, cultural activities were the highlights of the Juniata campus and as usual, several humorous happenings were on hand. It was certainly interesting to note the enthusiasm displayed by the Monday chapel audience during Raul Spivak's piano concert. This favorable reaction was, of course, greeted with encore after encore which no doubt was the aim of the listeners. "Coincidentally" and only coincidentally, this enthusiasm had its "bad" effects—much to the regret of the student body, classes were shortened. Long will JC remember Senor Spivak.

* * * * *

Tuesday evening once again offered the talents of the pianist—this time with the aid of tuxed and tailed Prof. Currier and his harmonious strings. One Greek member of the "Cloister Attic Society" was apparently so touched by the romantic Chopin work that he felt the urgent need to clear his nostrils in his personally designed handkerchief—in a rather loud and racous fashion. (Fortunately no one heard its mellow tone for it was given simultaneously with a similar blare from the trombones.)

Then came the prize happening. "Mr. Large" of the football team (the biggest tackle) was apparently sent on stage with another fellow to change the position of the grand piano. For a minute, it looked as if "Big _____" would merely pick the thing up and put it in its proper place. However, for the sake of propriety, he pulled it iwth his little finger (and the "assistance" of the other fellow) and rapidly flung the stage into proper order.

The joyous evening was completed with the playing of the French national anthem—the can-can.

* * * * * *

Apparently JC students aren't patronizing the local Huntingdon merchants enough. The other evening, in order to get some money for this expanding community, one student in a green Chevy was given a $15 ticket for being caught in the ""elaborate" and "precise" Huntingdon speed trap—a speed measured at the "hazardous" rate of 27 miles per hour. With this newly acquired money, perhaps the town will be able to open the movie for the whole week—or maybe they'll save it in order to buy a better speed trap.

Possible Berlin Confab; State Bills Underway

—Shane

A recent exchange of diplomatic notes with the Soviet has led many to believe that a conference of some type will occur before the twenty-seventh of May. The White House and the State Department both refused to comment on the Soviet note, which was a reply to the note sent by the U.S. on February 16 proposing a Big Four foreign ministers conference on "all aspects" of the German problem.

American officials see the Soviet offering us a choice: 1. A heads-of-government conference in Geneva or Vienna, which would begin in April, to discuss West Berlin, a German peace treaty and various proposals for disarmament, banning nuclear tests, military disengagement and limitation of weapons in German hands.

2, A foreign ministers conference — some place, some time, — to last no more than "two or three months" ! Aid would be strictly limited to the Soviet proposal to turn West Berlin into a so-called "free City" Soviet proposals for a German peace treaty would be voiced.

The American position, stated last week by Eisenhower, held that a summit meeting is possible only if there are prior talks indicating good prospects for agreements.

Costlier Phonograph Records

Representative Torbert MacDonald (Dem.-Mass.), charged that a new post office policy is subsidizing "the purveyors of the musical nonsense". He attacked the ruling, made last August first, that made all phonograph records eligible for lower postal rates as fourth class mail. This law was intended to cover educational material and not all types of music. MacDonald has been told that performers such as Elvis Presley and Jerry Lee Lewis have "an adverse effect" on the education of teenagers. "Putting such immortal rock and roll classics as Itchy Twitchy Feeling, Honey Comb, Stagger Lee, and Splish Splash in the same category as the recordings of Bach, Brahms, and Beethoven, et al, is a horrible perversion of the intent of Congress."

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

Three candidates — Frank Hrach, Dick Ott and Skip Walasik will battle for chairman of athletics next week.

Basically this is a position to provide recreational and intramural activity for the majority, to improve these activities constantly, and to represent the student body in intercollegiate athletics.

Besides these objectives each candidate has a few distinguishing items on his platform.

Frank Hrach, a varsity track and cross country man, wants to aid the athletic staff in the hospitality of visiting teams, try to establish women's play-day and elso support girl's intercollegiate hockey.

Dick Ott, two year football veteran, adds that he wishes to promote volleyball and intramural handball and also give trophies to IM basketball winners.

Footballer and wrestler, Skip Walasik wants to push boys soccer, add recreational facilities in the dorms, support girls intercollegiate hockey and conduct ping pong tourneys.

Playoffs for IM basketball will probably start a week later than originally planned because of the large number of make up games. Whips, the Bulldogs, Dunkards and Honey Bunns in the Southern Division and the Dukes, Crusaders, Sheiks and Heller's Angels in the Northern Division battled in post season play with the Whips emerging as victors.

The following are the ten top scorers in the IM league.

Krause, Whips	27.9
Seacrist, Bulldogs	23.3
Warren, Amish	21.0
Martin, Whips	20.1
Cristina, Mt. Dewers	19.2
Falcione, Dukes	18.2
French, Whips	17.3
Parks, Amish	17.1
Shore, Crusaders	16.8
Reiss, Hall "100"	16.7

Its understandable now why Lycoming swamped the Indians so badly in the recent wrestling match. The Warriors finished runnerup to Wilkes in the Middle Atlantics Championships last week in a field of 18 colleges.

Lyco won 8 of 12 dual matches including whitewashes over Albright, Lincoln, Dickinson, Western Maryland and JC.

Whips Finish At 16-0, End Of IM Close

The Whips of intramural basketball's Southern Division remain the only undefeated team in competition as the IM league enters the final week of play.

Last Thursday the Dukes, paced by Don Swope's 16 markers, turned back the Sheiks 59-44 in a hot battle for Northern Division supremacy. In other games, the Dunkards romped the Polliwags 90-54, Heller's Angels nipped the Blockers 58-54, and the Golden Dragons took an easy 60-31 victory over the Darkhorses.

In Tuesday's contests the Bulldogs, paced by Pete Sellers and Dick Ott, with 21 and 13 points respectively, copped an important 67-62 win from the Honey Bunns. Larry Duffy led the Sheiks to a 67-55 win over Heller's Angels as he hit for 22 markers, and the Hawks topped the Mountain Dewers by a 104-73 count. Fran Cristina was high for the winners with 34.

Jayvee's End Basketball Season; Lose To Pitt Center, Johnstown

The little Indians of College Hill closed the books on the 1958-59 season with a 5-6 record, losing the last game to Pitt Center, Johnstown, 105-86.

Bucky Brumbaugh took the scoring honors for the Tribe, dumping in 33 points, followed by Mike Gilmore, who hit for 21. The Pitt Center team, after taking a 49-36 half time lead, couldn't be headed, despite a fine third quarter surge by the Indians.

In the scoring department, Bruce Smith led the team with 162 points, for a 14.7 game average. He was followed by Mike Gilmore with 133 points, giving him a 12.1 average, and Stan Hallman, who sunk 127 points for a 11.6 average. Bucky Brumbaugh, who played only four games for the junior varsity accounted for 84 points, giving him a 21 point per game average.

The rest of the individual scoring for the charges of Gordie Ewers is as follows: Bob Blair, 47 points for a 15.7 average; Phil Rohm 59 points for a 5.7 average, Ray Erney, 37 points for a 3.7 average; and Bill Maneer, 45 points for a 4.5 average. Tom Kaupas hit for 34 points, Charles Mack collected 14, Ken Bechtel sunk 9, and Ned Smith and Rich Miller, hit for 4 and 2 points respectively.

Poet Hails Passing Of Winter, Wishes It Would Pass Faster

by Wendy Olver

With the advent of spring JC's campus and coeds take on a new look and attitude. Although my calendar says we have a few weeks to wait, there have been some days that seem to spell that reminds us that winter is followed by the type of weather spring with capital S only to be here to stay for awhile.

Yesterday the sun was shining;
The mercury soared so high
That I unzipped alpaca lining.
Summertime was surely nigh.
I packed away long underwear,
Racoon coat and slacks;
And ironed all my summer-fare,
Those frilly dresses—minus backs.
Of course today dawned bright and still—
With four feet of snow on my window sill.

Weston Describes Work On Antigone

Progress on the forthcoming spring dramatic production, Antigone, is coming along smoothly according to Dave Weston, director.

Weston is also contemplating a matinee performance on Saturday afternoon, March 21, if enough interest can be stimulated. Prices have been established as $1.50 adult admission and $.75 other than JC student admission.

The play is not a Greek play as most people think, but a tragedy, done in modern dress, written in modern prose, for the purpose of giving hope to the French when they were oppressed by the Germans. It was presented to the Germans in 1943.

The French saw in Antigone the implied future destruction of the oppressors by way of her death which also killed Creon's son and his family, causing a mental breakdown and eventually leading to Creon's own destruction. The Germans, however, saw only what they thought was the triumph of Creon ov r Antigone.

Meteorologist To Forecast In Chapel

Dr. Charles Hosler, meterologist from the Pennsylvania State University will be on campus Monday, to speak in chapel on The Weather Forecast.

He will address the physics students on The Atmosphere at 10:30 a.m. and The Thunderstorm at 11:30 a.m. both in room 104, Science Hall. In the evening he will address the physics seminar group on another subject in his field of meterorology. Interested students are invited to all of the above lectures.

His research has led him into the physics of clouds and climatology and has resulted in numerous scientific paper publihed both in thi country and abroad.

He now conducts a daily TV program on current weather on channel 10, Altoona.

His appearance on campus will be sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the American Meteorological Society.

The Stackpole History Prize is currently being offered to the writer of an original research paper concerning the historical background of some person, place, business or institution located in part of the Juniata River valley.

This watershed extends through Bedford, Blair, Huntingdon, Fulton, Mifflin, Juniata and Perry Counties. Papers may be of any length as long as they show competent research, original development, adequate treatment of the subject and ore presented to the committee in triplicate by May 1, 1959.

Since only one prize will be awarded and since there may not be many enteries, the committee reserves the right to be extra critical of enteries, and to withhold the award if no meritorious paper is presented. Interested students should consult Dr. Kenneth Crosby.

Senate Names Scheib As Directory Head

A Travel Directory has been organized by the outgoing Senate with Anne Scheib as director.

The purpose of the Directory is to make students aware of the opportunities to travel in other countries. There are basically three ways to go in these foreign countries: by studying at a foreign university, by going to international workcamps or by taking a tour for the sake of sightseeing.

Students interested in the aims of this organization or those desiring information may check the bulletin boards as one enters the library or may contact Miss Scheib. There will also be a chap-

Director Comments On Antigone Progress

Rehearsals, characterizations, and plans in general are progressing excellently, according to Dave Weston, director, for next weekend's Masque production of Antigone.

The central theme of the play revolves around idealism against logic and practicality. Antigone, representing freedom, stands alone against Creon, who represents the world.

Antigone, realizing her fate, is very tender in the beginning, but becomes fierce and stubborn towards the end in order to counteract the pride and conceit of Creon, who believes he is the only one capable of ruling.

Although Weston has said that it is a difficult challenge to be both director and member of the cast for this production, Dave Amey, a member of the cast, has said that Weston and Nan Swartz promise to give a very entertaining and well-acted performance.

JCA Plans Palm Sunday Services

Three discussions with Dean Mays and an All-College Worship Service on Palm Sunday will comprise the program for the JCA Lenten services.

The discussion periods will concentrate on six words—God, sin, salvation, heaven, hell and eternity. These meetings are being held each Tuesday at 7:15 p.m.

Voluntary chapel for meditation from 10 a.m. on Good Friday will be held at the Stone Church. On Palm Sunday there will be an All-College Worship Service in Oller Hall.

Freshmen To Sponsor Irish-Themed Dance

The traditional Blarney Stone is serving as the theme for tomorrow night's dance in the Women's Gym from 8:15 p.m. to 11:30 p.m., according to chairman Joyce Gillingham.

Sponsored by the freshman class, the dance will feature music by Jack Clark's combo, Four Hits and a Miss, with refreshments consisting of punch and cookies. Highlighting the evening will be the crowning of Mr. and Miss Leprechaun.

Committee chairmen include Judi Passmore, publicity, Doris Whitecar, refreshments and Ned Smith, band committee.

Station Manager Reports On WJC Progress, Revision

A WJC progress report presented by Ken Harlacher was a main point of interest at last Wednesday's Senate meeting, attended by old and new senators.

In his report, Harlacher included the duties of each WJC staff head, a financial support review of the past year and a technical revision plan. Letters written to radio stations all over the state requesting second-hand but useable radio parts are being sent in the Administration's name.

Carl Wass reported that Jack Rodland picked a tune to be used for the senior hymn. The Senate approved the tune and Chuck Brown appointed Dick Quinn to write the words.

Don Miller read his findings for Who's Who membership procedure and it was decided that further discussion should be postponed until Miller could provide more recent correspondence.

Honor Service Club

The Senate gave tentative approval to the constitution of the Honor Service Club. Carol Teeter, Dick Johnson, Wass and Brown comprise the committee which will straighten out the remaining details and present the constitution in its final form.

Under the topic of correspondence, Brown read a letter from the manager of the Clifton Theatre condemning the action of some 50 JC students recently. He threatened police action in the event of a recurrence.

Pete Fahrney, representing the Ogre committee, made suggestions concerning 11 items, namely, the need for student directories and recreational facilities in the men's dorms, faulty fire fighting equipment in Founders Dorm, conditions of the Pow Wow and Smoke Signal, quality of this year's chapel programs, removal of nails from trees and wooden surfaces on campus, a request that the east doors of Oneida Dining Hall be opened and facilities for the hanging of men's coats be provided, general infirmary treatment and medicine dispensing, misuse of the East Hall social rooms and a recommendation concerning the separation of the positions of chairman of religious activities and president of JCA. All the suggestions were discussed and appointments of senators to take care of each item were made by Brown and Dick Quinn.

Editor's Desk ....

Trouble In Tote

Are you nervous and upset? Does the thought of approaching mid-term exams and the long dreary spring vacation have you chewing your nails and tossing in your sleep? Cheer up! There is still hope! For Juniata has its own special outlet for its tense, temperamental scholars—a snack bar, Totem Inn by name.

Totem Inn has an infinite store of goodies for your use; there are potato chips, pretzels, candy bars, life savers, chewing gum, and ice cream cones. Learning to use them takes very little time and almost any JCer can instruct you. First you buy one or several of these items, eat it and then take out all your nervous frustration by tearing up the bag, box or paper dish and scattering it merrily all over the floors, tables and chairs of the snack bar or TV lounge. Everyone does it; don't you want to be Part of the Group?

The cups of tea and coffee are also excellent: you never drink quite all your coffee so that you can crumple your napkin and jam it into the cup making a beautiful mess for who ever has to clean up. And you never, under any circumstances, take your cup back up to the counter. There is another method for particularly disturbed people—slashing the leather chairs with whatever sharp instrument you happen to have on hand. Of course, where some of you come from, they won't let you have any sharp instruments.

But enough of this. Contrary to what some people seem to expect, Tote is not Juniata's equivalent of Dirty Ernie's! It is a students' snack bar and TV lounge of the students, by the students and for the students. We paid for it; it seems only common sense that we should want to keep it looking wel. In short, whatever has happened to the Clean Up Tote campaign? Obviously, the job is not finished. Or maybe it is just that there is a brand new crop of carelessness, irresponsible JCers using Totem Inn's advantages. We wish they would crawl back to Dirty Ernie's

Thanks To Shover

Thanks go to Don Shover, Senate chairman of educational activities, for organizing the recent focus on international affairs. The program was well-planned and carefully carried out; it marked a high point in the year's work of the new Senate post.

Too many of us are unaware of the fact that "widening one's horizons" involves a good bit more than reading Newsweek once in a while or watching Twentieth Century on an occasional Sunday evening. Life is not just a series of accidents but a series of decisions to be faced intelligently. Maybe it is about time we thought about acquiring the necessary techniques for intelligent decisions.

Juniata does not often have the chance to benefit from a speaker such as the one who spoke to us last Monday and Tuesday. Dr. Bekker's lectures and discussions were comparatively well-attended and we are certain that least a few students were shaken, if only momentarily, from their little shells of isolation and complacency.

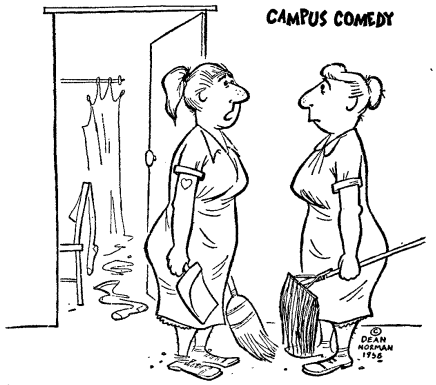
Write-In Campaign

"And after all the talking I've done about how seriously this campus takes its Senate elections!"

The above lament was heard early this week when the news broke about the mushrooming write-in campaign for one of the Senate chairmanships. Now we have nothing against write-in- votes. They are quite often a way of indicating a potential leader on campus. Intelligent use of this right may lead to new positions of responsibility for that person.

The recent movement was not intelligent. It was started by a group of students who obviously never stopped to thing about what they were doing. The "candidate" they backed has no experience in the field and had no idea of how much experience and hard work this Senate position requires. Fortunately a few cooler heads managed to stop this snowballing campaign.

In any case, the candidate would not have won the election. But those write-ins, if carried further, could possibly have pushed the election into a run-off, making a good deal of extra work for the senators who had to count returns. Moreover, a campaign of this sort indicates a lack of respect and responsibility. Juniatians are proud of the progressiveness and mature outlook of their student government. Does this childish activity do it any good?



"...FINGERNAIL POLISH ON THE DESKS, CRUMBS IN THE BEDS, CLOTHES EVERYWHERE EXCEPT IN THE CLOSET, LUCKY FOR THEM ALL THAT MEN THINK ABOUT IS SEX!"

ON THE LIGHT SIDE

DAN DAVIS

May I recomemnd that everyone tune into the Top 30 show Sunday evening between 10 and 12 p.m. The new comedy team of Jones and McClain certainly manages to fill up two hours with a mass of comedy and songs. Among other "hilarious" things, you will hear well-rehearsed musical station breaks, the "loser of the week" (which is invariably quite good), and requests that the girls in the old dorm yell "something" in order to let it be known that people are listening(?).

This last occurence seems to have caused quite a stir in that a crew of devoted listeners awakened an entire hall of drowsy females and even awakened and brought forth the "guiding light" from her cozy apartment.

While listening to one of the "popular" shows on the one station we are privileged to get in the afternoon s—— a "country style" song was heard: The Honeymoon is Over When You Don't Come Home for Lunch.

Will someone please find Dick Biandi (the Buffalo disc-jockey) who has disappeared from this world after playing a banned Elvis Presley record. It appears that this song about "beestinging" was so raunchy that the "Legion of Decency" has taken arms "against a sea of troubles". If you find this poor fellow you will be given the amazing sum of $50—give up your studies and by all means look!

A new Hollywood spectacular is about to be released. It's called Adam and Eve and has a cast of thousands.

A Juniata League of Decency ?

Recently a group of Righteous Juniata Coeds, anxious to "cure" another of using a certain four-letter word, wrote it on the backs of her hands with Magic Marker. (However, they spelled it with two t's so no one would notice ! ! ? ?) It took a mixture of Tide, Ajax, Clorox and Snowy Bleach to remove the mark of iniquity.

Tax-Expansion Delay; Federal Loans To JC

—Shane

House democrats cannot agree on the Lawrence administration's expanding the three percent sales tax. Opposition centers in levying the tax on over-the-bar sales of liquor and beer and to taxing the full value of car and appliance sales involving trade-ins. Lawrence says that this delay costs $367,000 per day. Pretty nice sum for a day's work.

Kutztown—The tenth annual Pennsylvania Folk Festival is slated to get under way June 27 and run thru July 4. This festival exemplifies the culture of the homelands of the Pennsylvania Dutch and portrays the practices they have developed here in our state.

Federal Loans to Juniata

Juniata College is said to receive $2,677, out of $354,102 which was granted to the state of Pennsylvania, out of a fund of $6 million, which is controlled by the Federal Student Loan program. Juniata is one of 75 Pennsylvania colleges and universities to participate in this program. If you can understand this paragraph, you win the $2,677.

Beirut Crisis

Baghdad radio has claimed victory over the right-wing army revolt against the Oraqi government. Rebel "Mosul" radio, from its location on the Syrian border area, has also claimed victory in military brushes. Censorship out of Baghdad has been rather strict, the Iraqi government holding the scissors. Radio Baghdad did not mention the foreign state it said was cooperating with the "Imperialists", but it warned it to "abandon this intrigue". Some say it is amied at the United Arab Republic, and others say at one of the pro-Western Baghdad Pact nations.

Iraqi Premier Abdle Kasin Kassen announced crushing the North Iraq uprising in the second day. He said Colonel Abdel Wahab Shawaf, leader of the rebels, "met his death at the hands of the people and solidiers and officers of the army." The rebellion was "smashed and buried at birth." The same source announced that he had been captured by "the heroic people of Mosul in cooperation with members of the national army and police." The same source later announced that Shawaf was "dragged through the streets of Mosul and then torn to pieces by the army and people."

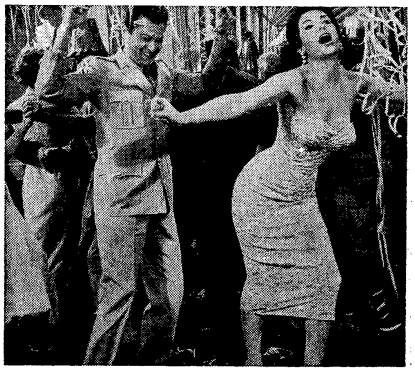
Some Definite Facts

Both sides agree that two out of twenty brigades of the Iraqi army rebelled, the second and fifth brigades. The rebels are siding with the Arab nationals' aim of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic. The aim of the rebellion is to undo Kassem's work in isolating Iraq from the other Arab countries.

Baghdad is reported as being quiet. None of the army there is on any form of special alert. A victory of Kassem would insure Communism as being the most powerful force in Iraq. A Moscow dispatch stated that Iraq and the Soviet have concluded negotiations for "non-political" technical aid. This means the influx of engineers and technicians from Russia. A Rome dispatch stated that the U.S. Embassy is prepared to handle American evacuees if they find it necessary to leave Iraq. There are 1,000 Americans in Iraq. Is Russia's interest here technical? It seems that sand may soon be sifting under the Iron Curtain.

Movie Of The Week

The Perfect Furlough



Tony Curtis and Linda Cristal cut loose at a night club in Paris in "The Perfect Furlough," in which Janet Leigh is starred with Tony. Keenan Wynn and Elaine Stritch are co-starred in this spicy new Army comedy from Universal-International. The picture is in Cinemascope and Color and plays Friday and Saturday at the Harris Clifton Theatre.

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

Collegiate and scholastic basketball bows out of the picture next week with the conclusion of tournaments and the picking of all-star teams.

Locally Don Burnich was already named to the final ECAC small college basketball team. The junior guard led the team in scoring with 442 points for a 20.0 average.

Members of the varsity basketball team picked an All-Opponent squad consisting of players most detrimental to their success.

Named on all the first team ballots was junior guard Church Davis of Westminster and Elizabethtown's Bill Pennsyl, who was also a member of the ECAC team.

Ranked third was Geneva's Don Schena, who led the Covies with 27 points to a 92-80 conquest over the Tribe. George Morgan of Drexel and Jamie Kimbrough of Indiana, rounded out the first five.

Pacing the second team is 5-5 Leon Hawker who led Hampden-Sydney to a 57-56 overtime victory in the Bridgewater Tournament. Other second team members were Del Warfel of Gettysburg, Indiana's Bill Pendleton and Sam Sherwood and American's Willie Jones and Dick Wells. Incidentally American University recently won the Eastern District title by dumping Hofstra in the NCAA small college tourney.

According to the NCAA Baseball Gide, the Indians' Don Ross was runnerup in the 1958 small college individual batting championship. The third sacker belted at a .543 clip to easily pace the Indians who were 37th across the nation in team batting with a .370 average.

INTRAMURAL CHAMPS? — The league leading Whips pose for the camera. They are (L. to R.) Moose Krause, Joe Sopata, Duke Snider, Roy Martin, and Al Zalnasky.

Playoffs Slated Next Week; IM BB Closes

Intramural basketball finished its regular season this week with only the championship games remaining to be played.

In the southern division playoffs, the undefeated Whips go against the Honey Bunns and the Bulldogs face the Dunkards. Northern division leading Dukes will challenge either Heller's Angels or the Amish, while the Sheiks play the Crusaders in the single elimination tourney.

In last week's contests, Heller's Angels downed the Darkhorses 56-44, the Dukes took a 48-37 win from the Bulldogs, and the Crusaders defeated the Hawks by a 69-50 count. The Sheiks nipped the Dunkards 71-63, the Black Angels edged the Lakers 46-44, and the N.J. Owls lost a 64-56 decision to the Golden Dragons.

In other contests, the Crusaders topped the Sheiks 52-45, the Black Angels squeaked by the Hawks by a 73-70 score and the Whips took a forfeit win over Hall 100. The Amish, Whips, and Bulldogs took wins over Heller's Angels, Darkhorses, and Mt. Dewers, respectively to round out the IM activity.

Pals Set Records, Lead IM Bowling

The undefeated Pals extended their long win streak by dumping two opponents, the Dutchman and Highballers, in convincing style to continue their intramural bowling dominance.

The Pals set three records, one team and two individual. The league leaders rolled the high total for two games at 1564 and Bill Biehl bowled a high single game of 226 and a series total of 419 against the Dutchmen.

Ron Bergey of the Pals contributed scores of 304 and 369 to help the victors. Dutchman John Gibbel paced the losers with a 311 and Jim Sutton of the Highballers rolled a 314.

The Highballers rebounded with a 2-1 victory over the Spare Cats as Jim Parks had a 339 doubles score for the winners.

Spare Cats Win

The Spare Cats dumped the Admirals in a makeup match as John Brown bowled 179 and 189 games for the winners.

Paced by Dan Wolf's 334 and Wayne Housum's 321 series, the second place Champs shutout the King Pins, 3-0. The match set a new standard in Division II as the Champs bowled a 793 game.

In an oddity the Saylor House defeated Wills Gang 2½-½ as one game ended in a tie pin count.

Led by Bill Miller's 341 and Joe Slick's 340, the Admirals won over the Handicap "5", 2-1 and in the remaining game the Holy Rollers whitewashed the 4 D's & C, 3-0.

Spring Athletics Show Heavy Schedules, List 48 Contests

Fourty-eight intercollegiate events are scheduled for Juniata's four spring teams this year. The schedule features many home games and matches, as well as an array of road trips.

The baseball nine, coached by Ken Bunn, will have the busiest schedule of the representative teams. They will open at home April 10 against Millersville State Teachers College as the start of their 15 game schedule. Local fans will get a chance to view the team eight times on the College field.

The first sport to get underway will be the golf team, managed by William Germann. The golfers will engage in 13 matches, starting with Albright April 7, at home. Highlight of the season will be the Middle Atlantic Championships, which will be held at Wilmington, Del., on May 11.

Nine Track Meets

Coach Mike Snider's track team will participate in six dual meets plus a triangular meet with Albright and Lebanon Valley, to be held at Reading. They will also compete in the Penn Relays at Philadelphia, April 24-25 and the Middle Atlantic Championships at Swarthmore College,, May 15-16.

The Indian tennis team is scheduled for 11 matches this spring opening with a match against Pennsylvania State University, April 14. However this match is still pending upon word from Penn State. The netmen will be coached by James Thomas.

The 1959 schedule will come to a close for golf, tennis, and baseball, May 23, in a triple-header against the University of Pittsburgh, at home.

Various Classes Turn To Campus Leaders To Serve As Officers

Class officer elections held last Tuesday resulted in the choice of John Rummel, John Gibbel and Bill Berrier to lead the classes of '62, '61 and '60 respectively.

In each class one office was determined by a run-off. For the juniors, on the first ballot Berrier defeated Pete Douglas for president, Carol Schenck won over Gail Dickerson for the secretarial office and Dick Moll was uncontested as he ran for treasurer. Of the five candidates for vice-president, Joe Collins, Tom Pizio, Bob Catando, Jim Woomer and Emmert Capanna, Collins, Woomer and Catando were in the first run-off. At the time of publication another run-off, between Woomer and Collins had not been held.

John Gibbel of the sophomore class was the only contestant for president. Jack Brinker, Ed Costello, George Mosel, Nancy Werner and Ron Wood ran for vice-president, with Miss Werner winning. Dick George was elected treasurer over Mary Taylor. Joanne Stauffer, Carol Snyder and Harold Grimm were candidates for secretary. Miss Syder won the run-off with Miss Stauffer.

The freshman class elected Rummel president over Dave Amey, Don Ebie and Ned Smith. Cindy Bowdoin was chosen secretary over Connie Dennis. Bunny Ross was the only candidate for treasurer. Candidates for vice-president were "Serb" Evasovitch, Bert Leete, Bill Maneer and Jim Tufano. The run-off between Leete and Evasovitch was won by Leete.

All class officers will assume their duties on move up day.

Editor's Desk ....

Cheers For Chuck

During next week's Move-Up Day Chuck Brown, Juniata's Senate president for the year 1958-59, will step down from office. We would guess that he will feel a twinge of regret upon leaving the position to which he has devoted so much time and effort and a trace of relief that now he can study "uninterruptedly" for those history comps.

Brown should also feel justly proud of his work in the past year of student government here. While by no means a radical leader, he has never been content to let things slide along on the work of past Senate presidents. Instead, he has shown a mature attitude in managing the usual Senate activities and has added his own down-to-earth ideas to further the progress of campus government.

We have attended a few Senate meetings in the past year; they were conducted with a directed attention to detail and the kind of controlled informality which gets things done. Brown always remained confident without being "cocky", tactful without being "smooth." This gained him the cooperation of Senate chairmen and Senate-affiliated committees

One of the most notable instances of Brown's tireless work is in the progress of the honor system. With characteristic realism, he saw that the success of this plan is going to require the work of future Senates, yet he also recognized the need for positive strides this year. Thus, his term in office has seen an effective student proctoring system in use during exams and finals. Also characteristic of his sincere efforts is the conscientious work he has been doing all year (and particularly during the very last days of his term) on the institution of an Honor Service Club to represent Juniata with its "best foot forward."

We of the JUNIATIAN staff would like to extend our thanks to the retiring president for his strength and responsibility in student affairs. (We would also like to add a note of amazement at his constant sense of humor retained in spite of an often-tedious job!)

Best Foot Forward

And just what's wrong with a "select group?" Too often, that phrase is used as a bit of sarcastic criticism against certain people who seem to be getting a large share of prestige and appreciation. Nine times out of ten, these are also the people who deserve all the appreciation they get—and more!

Quite frankly, it is the "select group" which in any field you can name, Gets Things Done. In college, these are the people who plan, organize and help carry out campus activities—educational, social and spiritual. They also maintain better-than-average grades, a feat which requires much of that good, old midnight oil. Sometimes they may have to disregard minor details of life like eating and sleeping yet there always seems to be room for one more enterprise in their schedules.

Senate work is now underway on plans for an Honor Service Club on this campus. The recent Smoke Signal article by President Chuck Brown outlines the objectives of this club; the main ones are to identify JC's outstanding collegians and to give them the opportunity to represent us with our "best foot forward." We would like to add our approval and urge that the student body support and encourage this group. These campus citizens are, without a doubt, worthy of the honor of such recognition.

Breakfast Blues

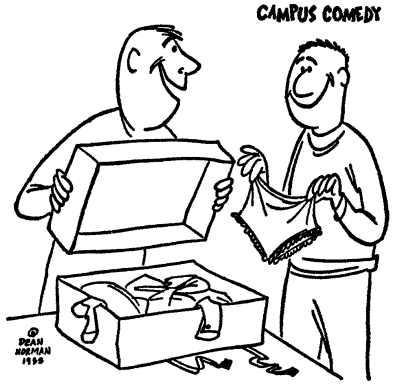
It may come as a shock to some of our readers that the dining hall waitresses do not come out of the woodwork each meal expressly to serve JCers. They are students who have other things to do; like classes to attend!

Recently we heard an announcement to the effect that the doors would close for breakfast at 8:15 a.m. and that everyone should be out of the dining hall at 8:30. The reasons for this rule should be pretty obvious if we just stop and think of certain facts basic to the principles and techniques of "working breakfast." Before the waitress (and there is only one) who works from 7:45 a.m. to 8:45 a.m. leaves the dining hall she is expected to clear the tables of milk pitchers, jelly dishes, butter plates, syrup containers and their respective spoons. All this does not leave too much time to change clothes and get to a nine o'clock class!

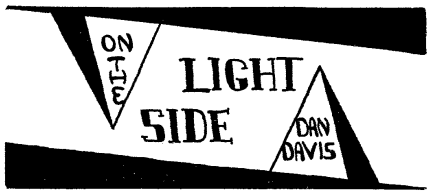
Her job is not made any easier by those students who sit around leisurely drinking that second or third cup of coffee while she attempts to clear the tables. Additional work is created by those immature students who can not make a little extra effort to carry their trays and the remains of their breakfast back to the dish-washer. There is no reason why the waitress should have to clear away the egg shells, piecs of toast, bowls of cereal, soggy napkins, gooey spoons, etc. in addition to her regular duties. Let's be thankful for that pleasant dining hall and show a little consideration for those who are trying to keep it that way!

The next JUNIATIAN will be published April 10.

CAMPUS COMEDY



"STUFF 'EM WAY DOWN IN THE BOTTOM JUST IN CASE HE LOOKS IN HERE BEFORE HE MAILS HIS LAUNDRY HOME."



It was certainly a pleasure to hear a living Chapel speaker for a change in the person of Dr. Charles Hosler. For once, someone threw off the air of pseudo-seriousness and spoke in a natural fashion. Obviously, this resulted in one of the most enjoyable and informative sessions that this generation of Juniatians has been "privileged" to hear. It is rumored however, that the "Association for the preservation of Christian Colleges in the Juniata Valley" (A.P.U.-C.C.J.V.) is making a careful investigation of such speakers who appear on this "mount."

They ask: whoever hear of describing an elephant by the finger test? and, Isn't it migration, not "movement" that phylum aves indulges in? "Next thing you know," they say, "that College up there, over the hill, will become progressive."

P. S. — I hope that Huntingdon community was not offended when the good doctor compared it to "one thin dime." — and even Mr. Nature of Science himself was forced to flash one of his grins. Yes, it was certainly a day to long cherish, for when can such a thing happen again now that the complete history of prospective speakers is being investigated before they are permitted to click on the microphone?

* * * * * *

Well, the impossible has finally happened. There are six new ash trays in the North Dorm TV lounge — furnished at the college's expense. They must have gone all out, because these are not just regular or plain ash trays. Rather they are of the modern style which have the benefit of three moveable metal strips on each side for the purpose of personal decoration — the smokers have just been going wild trying to figure out new designs. Yes, we are gratified — for once student pressure (by word and "action") has resulted in an improvement at the cost of the Administration. Who can tell what will happen next???

* * * * * *

Tests and examinations seem to have gone out of style at Juniata. No longer are we told that a test is coming up on a certain day in order to determine how much we have learned. Rather, there is a new system which gives the student "the opportunity to express himself in written fashion." My, aren't we progressive. Thanks, instructors, we appreciate the opportunity!

Ike Speaks To Nation
Yale Goes On Pro

—Shane

In a Monday evening address to the nation, President Eisenhower charged the Soviet with "deliberately creating" a war threat to enforce its demands. Ike feels that appeasement would be worse than useless. "War would become more likely if we gave way and encouraged a rule of terrorism rather than a rule of law and order." On the other hand, "the risk of war is minimized if we stand firm." Whatever comes, he said, the American people "now have and will continue to have a modern, effective and adequate military establishment."

Khruschev has urged a summit conference since last November. Ike stated, "Assuming developments that justify a summer meeting at the summit, the United States would be ready to participate in this further effort."

Eisenhower turned down the idea of a separate peace treaty with the East German regime. "We have no intention of forgetting our rights or of deserting a free people. Soviet rulers should remember that free men have, before this, died for so-called 'scraps of paper' which represented duty and honor and freedom."

The entire undergraduate body of Yale University was put on general probation. The probation was described as general and indefinite. The probation also carried a threat of immediate expulsion for any of the 4000 undergraduates who publicly misbehave in the future. It also meant cancellation of all social functions and a ban on cutting classes. This probation was due to two incidents; snowballing police and motorists and a brawl with police on St. Patrick's Day, following a parade.

Free-Thinking Students Arrested

East German Communists disclosed that they had smashed an "armed counter-revolutionary" band of students at Dresden College. Fritz Reuter, head of the Saxony Communist Party said, "They wanted to establish a Germany on a Yugoslav model" of independent Communism. "The band was exposed, smashed, and now faces its just punishment." Three college lecturers, followers of Yugoslav revisionism," led the students.

Scalps In The White House

Tribal leaders from the Six Nations of the Iroquois Confederacy are in "Washington to present a petition to the president. The petition is a protest against what they consider infringements on their rights as "soverign nations within the United States." They claim the government is not honoring its treaty obligations and invited other tribes to join them.

Spokesman for the group, Brigadier General Herbert Holdridge, U.S.A. (retired), stated that they have not scheduled an appointment with the president but have been referred to the Bureau of Indian Affairs. If there is no action here, they will go through the Senate.

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

It looks as though the defending champion, class of 1960, will repeat its crown in the ninth annual inter-class meet.

Boasting a well-rounded attack, the juniors, then freshmen, won two years ago by a healthy margin over the sophomores, juniors and seniors by a 56 1/2, 42, 21 1/2 and 12 score respectively. No event was held last year due to inclement weather after many postponements.

The sophomore class could dethrone the champs and the freshmen are not likely to be too far behind.

Track coach Mike Snider especially looks forward to this event since he can get a better look at his candidates for the coming year.

Gordie Ewers, the Indians' senior co-captain who averaged 15 points a game, highlights his career tonight when he and other Pennsylvania college seniors, including Bernie Matthews and Red Ryan of Duquesne, Hancock and Edwards of Penn St. and Don Hennon of Pitt, oppose St. Francis at Altoona. Indian mentor Doc Greene will serve as an assistant coach in the benefit game for NBA star, Maurice Stokes.

Four changes have been made on the spring sports schedule. The Shippensburg track meet scheduled for May 5 will be here instead of away. In golf, the West Virginia encounter has been moved up to April 11 and the Indiana St. and Bucknell matches have been changed to May 14 and 16.

Former Juniatians—Bob Hicks, Chuck Knox and Pat Tarquinio—all have accepted new positions in coaching.

Hicks, who coached the Tangerine Bowl team but didn't have a large amount of success at De-Paaw, takes over as backfield coach at Detroit.

Chuck Knox resigned as head coach at Ellwood City to be an assistant at Wake Forest. Ex-Indian quarterback Tarquinio succeeds Knox at this position.

In semifinal competition "Moose" Krause's 25 points paced the Whips to a 90-39 rout over the Dunkards, while the Dukes copped a 41-35 decision from the Crusaders .Horace Carl and Don Swope were high for the winners with 12 and 10 markers respectively and Jim Heck contributed 10 to the losing cause.

Quarter final play saw the Honey Bunns drop a 62-32 game to the Whips, as the Crusaders took a forfeit win over the Shieks. Sharpshooters Al Custer and Terry Fouse led the Dunkards to a 63-59 decision over the Bulldogs and the Dukes rolled over Heller's Angels 70-51 as Ken Opipery led the way with 25.

Returning Lettermen Boost Baseball Squad

Practice for the Juniata baseball team has been held since March 1, with Coach Bunn whipping his team into shape.

The pitching staff should afford plenty of rotation with Ron Reynolds returning form last years team plus freshman, Moon Mullen and Dick Geissman, and senior Jim Ake. Returning lettermen include Don Ross, who switched from third to short, Jim Berrier who switched from short to catcher, Bob Melago at second, and outfielders Bill Berrier, Phil Over, and Roy Martin.

,Freshman Sandy Warren and Stan Hallman have been looking good at third base and first base respectively, to round out the probable starting nine.

JC Classes Will Compete In Track Events Thursday

The annual kick-off of the spring intramural season, the Inter-Class Track Meet, will be held Thursday on the college field. The classes will vie for the championship in an array of track and field events.

Last year the meet was not held, due to successive rain-outs, but this year, weather permitting, the track will be in good condition. The afternoon's activities will get under way with the field events starting at 3 p.m. and the running events at 3:30 p.m.

The events will include a mile run, 880 yd. run, 440 yd. run, 100 yd. dash, 220 yd. dash, 70 yd. high hrudles, and the 120 yd. low hurdles. The field events include the shot put, pole vault, high jump, broad jump, discus throw, and the javelin throw.

Director of athletics Mike Snider, announced that a new event will be run this year. The new feature will be a 880 yard relay between the four classes, each class fielding a team of four runners, each of whom will run a 220 yard leg.

All those who are interested in participation for their class are reminded to get in touch with their respective class presidents.

Senate Proposes Solution For Annual Library Thefts

A new method for curbing freshman library book thefts was presented to the Senate this week.

Miss Hettinger, working with Senate representatives, had stated that since the addition of students proctors in the freshman reading room the majority of thefts now occured upon the return of the books in the morning. To remedy the situation, someone will be on hand to personally receive the books as they come in.

Each Senator received a copy of the revised Senate constitution. The revised editions will be inserted in the black books in place of the older constitution forms.

Trustees Meeting Report

Stan Davis reported on the results of a trustee meeting held last week. The trustees discussed the changing of the heating plant and the addition of an $85,00 boiler.

The administrative planning committee has been studying the needs of the college, specifically, a new library and more classroom space. Tentative plans for a new science building to be located between NJ House and the tennis courts were approved by the committee.

After discussion concerning the separation of the positions of chairman of religious activities and JCA president, it was decided that they are more beneficial as they stand now.

The Senate created one club by approving the charter of the Juniata Philosophical Society and dispersed with one, the Campus Relations Club, whose services were felt to be no longer needed.

New Senators in charge.

Dick Quinn assumed the duties of president for the last items on the agenda. His Senate discussed, first of all, library difficulties arising from students who have been cutting coupons, articles and pictures from magazines. This matter will be investigated further.

The new Senate also defeated a motion that the Honor Service Club should assume responsibility for removing the nails from trees on campus.

A communications-social committee report sugested that the Pow-Wow remain under the jurisdiction of communications rather than the social committee, as had been previously considered. The suggestion further stated that a representative from the social committee and from each of the clubs on campus be appointed to be responsible for Pow Wow contributions. This suggestion was approved by the Senate.

Mays Lists New Summer Courses

A new course in edcation and a laboratory in English composition have been approved for offering in Juniatas summer term program announced today.

Dean Morley Mays reported that the academic policy committee has added the teaching of exceptional children to the curriculum in the department of education. This course is intended to help prospective teachers in the elementary school to understand the characteristics and needs of the slow learning child, the gifted child, and the physically handicapped child.

English composition laboratory will be offered in the second half of the summer term as a service available to those who are seeking competence in English after two terms in English conference.

Other courses scheduled for the first half of Juniata's summer term are: introduction to literature, American literature, elementary and second year Spanish, principles of economics, introduction to education, visual education, American history to 1865, American government, the mind, mathematical analysis I, physics.

The second half of the term will offer contemporary leterature, economic statistics, educational psychology, American history since 1865, ethics, introduction to sociology, the family and general biology (zoology) in addition to the second half courses in Spanish, economics, mathematics and physics.

JC To Host Central State Forensic Finals

Approximately 175 students from central Pennsylvania high schools are competing in the Central District finals of the Pennsylvania Forensic and Music League contest Tuesday on the JC campus.

The one-day program is under the supervision of Clay Burkholder, superintendent of Mifflin County Public Schools. Winners will be certified to the state finals in Pittsburgh April 23 to 25.

Judging of the contest will be done by Dr. Harold Binkley, chairman of the English department and Prof. Donald Johnson, chairman of the department of music. The contests are open to the public in Oller Hall, Founders Chapel, Room C of Students Hall, and Swigart Hall beginning at 10 a.m. and continuing through the afternoon.

General Information Test Answers Show Intelligence, Humor

by Wendy Olver

A contest was held at Juniata March 9 in an attempt to ascertain the general knowledge of the average college student. According to some of the answers received, the information of certain participants was exceedingly widespread—if not accurate.

The Russians would be surprised if they knew Van Cliburn's prize-winning composition was actually Chopsticks. Not to bypass the reaction Senor Spivak might have on finding himself president of Argentina and composer of a liberetto based on paintings by Harry Truman.

There is little wonder why Gene Autry was recently fired from the Metropolitan Opera since James Arness is the manager. Those adult cowboys never could get along! Speaking of competitors—we must all see Antigone this weekend with David Weston as her opponent.

Beware of those with incephalitis! They may have anything from baldness to worms. I have often wondered what those on academic probation did in their spare time. My curiosity is now satisfied.....they wrote Theory of the Leisure Class.

For the students who are not up on the study of Saint-ology, here are a few ways in which you will be able to identify certain Saints by their pictures. The saint usually seen sitting in a study with a lion is Clyde Beatty. Geronimo is pictured tied to a post and shot quite full of arrows. Lastly and not least important, Tom Dooley is always the saint shown crucified with his head downwards.

If you are planning to join the NBS, make sure those initials are clarified. It would be a calamity to join the National Bar Society if you wanted to take part in the National Brethren Service.

Who is the member of the personnel staff at Juniata who hired Fifi Lacue as President Ellis' secretary. It seems to me I've heard this quote before, I'd rather be right than president, but one examinee attributes it to Dutch Boland. Then there is the poor soul who was a bit mixed up when he called the presidential plane the Concubine.

Don't chuckle, what would you have answered?

Faculty Gives Okay To Language Changes For Next Semester

A change in policy of modern language placement has been approved by the faculty and will go into effect next summer.

The revision, recommended by the department of modern languages and approved by the academic policy committee, states that students who choose to continue the modern language which was taken for two years of credit in the secondary school, but do not qualify for the second college year in that language on the basis of the language placement examination have the option of auditing the first semester of the first year without credit and or continuing in the second semester on credit basis.

During recent years, the language department has strongly urged all students with previous experience in a modern language to continue in the second year of that language at Juniata. Some have failed to show sufficient background on placement tests and have been permitted to enroll in the first term of elementary language for credit.

However the new ruling will discontinue this practice for any student with two years of a language in high school. If such a student does poorly on his placement test, he may take the choice of auditing the first semester of the elementary language (which will be recommended in most cases) or wait to continue the language in the second semester for credit.

The Juniatian

Vol. XXXV No. 20 | Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa. | Friday, April 10, 1959

Shown here are a few of the Commencement Choristers receiving music from Director Johnson. They will perform Handel's Oratorio, Solomon, Sunday June 7. The choir is composed of students, faculty, administration and alumni soloists. Anyone who likes to sing may participate in Monday evening rehearsals in Oller Hall.

Visitors Expected On Brethren Campus Day

Ministers, youth counselors and college-minded high school students will participate in the Brethren Campus Day April 18.

The morning program includes registration in the Memorial Gymnasium, an assembly meeting in Oller Hall with greetings by President Calvert Ellis and a forum for the adults in the Stone Church where the subject will be Juniata College—An Arm of the Church. A campus tour, a meeting of the district groups and the Juniata College Invitation Scholastic Relays are on the agenda for the afternoon session.

The Brethren Campus Day will close with the Middle Pennsylvania District Youth Banquet in the evening.

Dr. Montgomery To Speak Friday

Dr. John Montgomery, Philadelphia medical doctor and professor, is speaking in chapel Friday in observance of the 83rd anniversary of the founding of Juniata College.

Faculty and administrative personnel who have served Juniata 10 or more years will be recognized by the college at an afternoon tea in the Faculty Club.

Next Week In Chapel

April 13—Dean James McLeod
April 17—Dr. John Montgomery
Note that chapel is on Friday instead of Thursday due to Founders Day.

Piano Students To Play Thursday

The piano students of Mrs. Robert Humphries and Miss Suzanne Axworthy plan to present a workshop in Swigart Hall Thursday at 8 p.m.

Among the performers are Claire Johnson, Marcia Quarry, Harriet Nichols, Suzanne Gibson, Alice Adams, Jolene Williams, Nick Pascale, Anne Scheib, Phoebe Cuppett, Lynn Bauer, Jack Berkey, Jack Clark and Angelia Hoover.

JCA To Vote On Proposed Change In Election Ways

JCA will hold an election next week to vote for a proposed change in the JCA constitution to enable the president to appoint the entire cabinet.

In the past, the procedure has been for the president of JCA to pick half of the cabinet and the other half to be chosen by a nominating committee and then submitted to student vote. The reason for the proposed change is that students are not familiar with the work of the various offices and the best candidates are not always obtained.

Choir To Tour South Of State, Maryland

The Juniata College Choir is touring in southern Pennsylvania and parts of Maryland this weekend.

Concerts are being presented in Snake Spring Valley, Cumberland, Md., Hagerstown, Md. and Waynesboro. The regular program of sacred music will be used.

Johnson To Direct Choir Performance

Students are invited to join the Commencement Chorus which rehearses each Monday at 7:15 p.m. (in Oller Hall)

Each year, following a custom of many years' standing, campus singers from the student body, faculty and office staff join with the JC Choir and Chapel Choir for the presentation of an oratorio commencement weekend.

This year, Prof. Johnson, conductor of the chorus, has chosen George Frederic Handel's oratorio Solomon in observance of the Handel Bicentenary Commemoration, 1759-1959. This dramatic musical work has a text based on chapters in I Kings and II Chronicles.

Accompanists will be Jack Rodland, organist and Alice Adams, pianist. Alumni soloists will be Helen Rosengren and Barbara Orner, sopranos; Clair Schaffner, tenor and William Blough, bass.

Honor Club To Hold Meeting Next Week

The Honor Service Club, an idea originated and presented to Senate last spring by Dean Paul Heberling, materializes this spring with its initial meeting being held Wednesday.

The purpose of HSC is to demonstrate to non-campus people the maturity of the JC student body. The members will attempt to carry out this purpose by performing several jobs aiding visiting groups to our campus and also helping the campus in general.

As stated in the Smoke Signal of March 18, 1959, it is the belief that the best students to represent Juniata are those who have already shown that they are outstanding campus citizens — maintaining a 2.5 academic average and participating successfully in several extra-curricular activities. The underlying principals of the club is not to further spotlight the Dean's List student, but to honor the student who is making a contribution to campus life through extra-curricular activities.

New Senate Takes Government Duties To First Single Meeting

The new Senate under President Dick Quinn formally assumed its duties at Wednesday's meeting.

The meeting, which was the first one attended by the new senators unaccompanied by the retiring senators, was opened by Quinn who made a few remarks about conduct dress, formality and further suggestions for future meetings.

The largest item on the agenda concerned the nomination of new judiciary members. After discussion and voting, the Senators named sophomores Jean Davies, Marty Good, Larry Johnson, Andy Horvath, Rod Mellinger and John Groff, and juniors, Norma Jedinak, Carol Miller, Carol Bajish, Bob Blair, Larry Derstine and Jack Compton as their Judiciary nominees.

Final Membership Approval

The Honor Service Club committee has given final approval to the proposed list of members. The organizational meeting will be held next week

Ron Vinson reported that Dianne Hatch from NSA will be on campus May 3 and 4. Quinn appointed Vinson, Barb Fritchey and Anne Scheib to set up programs while Miss Hatch is here.

Treasurer Bob Schwalenberg explained budget procedures and asked that all requests for Senate aid be given to him before next Wednesday.

Roberta Savage was appointed to meet with Diane Klebe for a re-evaluation of All Class Night. She will report the results of the re-evaluation at a future meeting.

The Senate voted to keep the meetings at Wednesday evenings at 8 p.m. open to students except the discussion of confidential matters and to retain Dr. Crosby as faculty advisor.

Miss Savage spoke briefly of the Spring Carnival and said that the Senate is to sponsor a booth. Pat Varec, Miss Fritchey and Vinson will serve on the booth committee.

Cancer Education

Quinn stated that he had been approached concerning the possibility of an cancer education program on campus. The possibility was discussed and will be investigated further.

A list of recommendations for appointments to positions for the coming year were discussed and acted upon.

Hank Hain submitted a list of Student procter recommendations which the Senate approved. The list will be added to and again voted upon next week.

JC Representatives To Visit 23 Churches

Juniata College will observe National Christian College Day Sunday through the sending of deputation teams, speakers and the Touring Choir into 23 church congregations.

Eight members of the faculty and President Ellis will speak at different churches in the Johnstown area. Students from the college under the direction of Rev. Clarence Rosenberger will be members of deputation teams that will go to Walnut Grove, Westmont, Spring Run, Pine Glen, Geiger, Point and Huntingdon.

WAA, J Club To Hold Sport Social

The WAA and J Club are jointly sponsoring the social featuring basketball, volley ball, ping pong and ring throwing in the Memorial Gymnasium tomorrow from 8:30 until 11:30 p.m.

Other indoor sports are also planned. Music will be provided for dancing during the last hour of the social.

Resident Women To Present Skits

Dormitory women will participate in the traditional Skit Night on Monday at 10 p.m. in the East Hall lounge.

According to standards, each hall presents approximately 5 or 10 minutes of entertainment in a competitive spirit. Refreshments are served and prizes awarded for the best skit.

Chairmen of publicity is Lynn Bauer and helping her is Cecile Coop. Marty Mann is chairman of refreshments and her co-workers are Edith Campbell and Susan Nophsker.

Music Prof. Merrel To Give Vocal Recital In Oller Hall

Prof. William Merrel is presenting a vocal recital in Oller Hall, Wednesday at 8:15 p.m.

Miss Suzanne Axworthy will accompany Prof. Merrel at the piano. The program will consist of four main categories: classic arias by George Handel, Songs from Die schoene Mueller-in Cycle by Franz Schubert, popular Spanish songs by Manuel de Falla and a miscellaneous group.

Prof. Merrel, a baritone, is a former radio singer and chorister in Toronto and has served as choirmaster in various churches in Kentucky and Michigan. He is a member of the National Association of Teachers of Singing and is now serving as lieutenant-governor of the Western Pennsylvania district.

Before joining the faculty of JC in 1957, Prof. Merrel taught for 13 years. He was a member of the staff at the Toronto Conservatory of Music, Centre College, Union College, Adrian College, Xavier University and the public schools in New Orleans.

Fund Established For Vietnamese Students

A new scholarship fund has been established by the American Friends of Vietnam to help Vietnamese students further their education in the United States.

The Elinor Dubin Memorial Scholarship Fund, named in honor of a former executive secretary of the organization, will be adminstered by the Institute of International Education. The Fund will make grants to Vietnamese students whose studies in this country promise to contribute to the welfare and development of Vietnam.

Prof. William Merrel is pictured as he relaxes during a rehearsal session for his coming recital. Merrel, a baritone, will sing a varied selection of classic songs Wednesday in Oller Hall, accompanied by Miss Suzanne Axworthy. The public is invited. JC students will be admitted free.

Editor's Desk ....

Mangled Mags

Although JC's library will probably never be recognized as a great center of culture and fount of all knowledge, it does manage to provide sources for most term papers and themes, newspapers for that awful nature of society paper and the ever-popular "outside readings." In addition, there are stacks of literature for just plain entertainment.

It seems ridiculous that collegians cannot use the services of a library properly yet such is the case at Juniata. Recently a complaint was voiced to the Senate concerning the mutilation of books, magazines and newspapers: readers have torn articles, cartoons, photographs, advertisements and coupons from almost all types of literature provided by our library. Those particularly mentioned were the rather expensive Wisdom magazine, the Huntingdon Daily news (part of a more than 100-year-old collection), the Alfarata and many magazines such as Better Homes and Gardens.

To put it in black and white, this is stealing. Over the years such action can result in a great deal of destruction and expense. Unfortunately, there is no way of finding and punishing the culprits; we can only appeal to the sense of maturity that is supposed to be growing on this campus. Every year the freshman class is criticized and fined for the loss of several integration-course books. Mutilating the literature may be a shade less expensive but it is every bit as childish.

We Like Moore

Lately, one rarely hears any comments about the food at Juniata. This is not because JCers have found other subjects for their favorite indoor sport of "cutting up." It is rather a sure sign that things are going well!

At this point we would like to voice what we feel to be the opinion of an overwhelming majority of Juniatians: heartiest thanks to Robert Moore for his direction of food service thus far! This year there has been a decided improvement in the variety and quality of the meals. No longer do we hear loud groans and see hordes of people turning around and making for Skip's Inn.

Along with better breakfasts, lunches and dinners, Mr. Moore has given understanding and cooperation in many other areas of food service. He has catered to the clubs who needed help in refreshments for dances and meetings. He also has provided invaluable aid for those who run campus food concessions, giving them pointers on selling and serving which, in at least one case, (the cheerleaders) has helped to rescue the organization from financial difficulties.

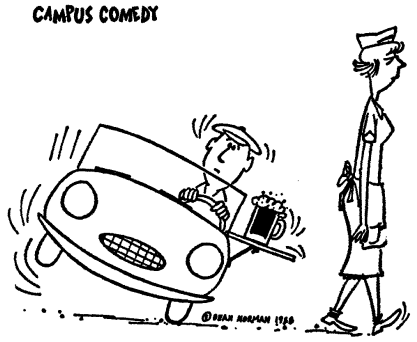
Mr. Moore is also a participant in campus life in general. (He particularly enjoys JC's sports program and is a spectator at nearly all home events and several of those "away games.") We think everyone will agree that this genial director deserves much more recognition than he has received for his cooperative attitude and efficiently-managed job.

'Good Show'

Since no JUNIATIAN was published during the week following the Masque's spring production, there has been little chance to commend the players for their work in Antigone. With less than a month of preparation, they turned out a dramatically interesting and often moving play.

For the most part, (taking into consideration the remarkably short rehearsal-time), the actors deserve our applause for their portrayals. (This includes the ugly man who gets hit in "the column" this week.) We should also mention the stage and lighting crew and those who worked with makeup, costuming, publicity and ticket sales. Altogether, a "good show."

CAMPUS COMEDY



ON THE LIGHT SIDE

DAN DAVIS

Well, now that we have all seen our mid-term grades both at home (on brilliant yellow slips) and here at Juniata (stapled to the inside of the envelope) everyone "must" be all inspired to raise his scholastic quality. Think how fortunate we are this semester; instead of getting off in the middle of May (as last year), we are privileged to stay on campus till the beginning of June. Just think of the added hours the college has provided for us to absorb more knowledge and thereby "smash" the finals.

* * * * * *

No one has had a chance to say anything about the Masque's spring production of Antigone. Because of the vacation, the Brooks Atkinson of Huntingdon did not get an opportunity to review the play, despite his ivy clad appearance on both nights (cap and all). Therefore I shall take this opportunity to congratulate the entire cast for their fine and "formal" portrayals of the modernized Greek characters.

Correction . . . Congratulations to all but Bill (first guard) Lafe who should certainly be utterly ashamed of his shabby handling of the scene in which he takes the "real life" handcuffs off Nan (Antigone) Swartz. I certainly hope that Bill, in his anger with the cuffs, did not get so carried away as to muble "naughy" things under his breath which might corrupt the mind of Nan. It's certainly a good thing that they eventually came off before Bill got "savage" and came out with an adlib which might have closed the gates of this righteous institution forever. Yes, no one is more deserving of the title this young man received earlier this semester . . . . because he really is ugly through and through.

* * * * * *

One more note on Antigone: I realize that it is considered in bad taste to applaud religious speakers at the completion of their sermons or speeches. However, I don't know why the first act of a "secular drama" such as Antigone should not receive an ovation at its completion . . . . is this a college policy, by any chance?

* * * * * *

And finally, I would like to correct a statement I made a few weeks ago in reference to a "speeding ticket" given to one of our students. The police chief has kindly informed me that the speed was 30 miles per hour instead of 27 . . . . my apologies.

Welcome back . . . . more next week!

Leads On Jobs; A Look At Tibet

Shane

There is good news for those students who expect to graduate in June. There are more jobs than at any time since 1957, and the starting pay is said to be the highest ever. The bidding is said to be highest for electronic and aircraft engineers, physicists, mathematicians, and accountants. Top-notch grads can demand $50 to $100 a month above the average for beginners. Many companies are hiring larger numbers of liberal-arts than was formerly the case. Marketing specialists are sought and law school grads, if exceptional, may get $7500.

Every new teacher should be able to find a classroom if he is willing to go where openings occur. New teachers should get $10 to $15 more than formerly. There are 13,000 teaching graduates. Many of these grads are reluctant to accept positions in rural or urban areas many miles from home. The pay scale varies widely according to geographical areas.

Liberal arts men may often get to be high paid sales managers while technical grads stay in a narrow and specialized field. Banks show interest in sales-minded grads. They are searching for new employees who, though basically interested in banking, can bring in new accounts by selling the bank's services. Numerous jobs are offered in advertising of the grads are willing to spend time in training assignments.

Dalai Lama's Brother Speaks

Why the revolt? We of Tibet are simple, we want to be left alone. Communist occupation deprived us of everything. We appealed to the outside world for help. There was no help for the free world. The Chinese, under the pretense of liberation, conquered us. They suppressed our customs and our religion. We don't feel we are Chinese. In 1959 we appealed to the United Nations General Assembly and to the Security Council. Nothing happened. Since the Communists entered Tibet in 1950 we have had no peace. In the monasteries they won't allow our monks to practice their religion and try to indoctrinate them and prove our religion is bad. They say there is no God. They say pray for Mao-tse Tung and Stalin. Religion is a sort of poison, an opium.

We have six to seven million people. Ninety percent are anti-communist and anti-Chinese. We do not have many weapons. Every Tibetan Nomad has a weapon for protection for he travels through dangerous country. There are no weapons coming in. In the mountains the Chinese will not be able to take the Tibetans. The Panchen Lama was chosen by the Chinese. The Dalai Lama is true. Do you plan to return? Yes — when Tibet is a free country.

Cairo — Reports have been received that Soviet-armed Kurdish tribesmen are being shipped to Iraq via the Suez Canal, to help Iraqui Premier Abdel Kasim Kassem to form a pro-Communist foreign legion.

Pennsylvania — House Democratic Leader Stephen McCann has gone before the governor with a "delete" and "add" compromise plan to end the stalemate on the administration's three and one-half percent sales tax broadening.

Washington — Attorney General William Rogers and FBI Director, J. Edgar Hoover met with 94 United States Attorneys gathered for the annual conference with the Justice Department. Last April an anti-crime drive was launched. Hoover stated that this year, crime took 22 billion from decent citizens. One of the main achievements has been the conviction of Vito Genovese, of New York, who has been involved in dope traffic and with the Mafia. He is supposed to have taken 30 million from the people. He was convicted with his 14 henchmen. The meeting is still in session.

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

If pre-season drills give any indications to future games, the baseball team will exhibit a repeat performance of last year's opener which they escaped with a 12-11 come-from-behind triumph over Shippensburg on the strength of Don Shover's winning single in the ninth.

The Indians are strong offensively but lack a sound pitching staff. With hopes of Ron Reynolds having another good year and the success of "Moon" Mullen, Dick Gesseman and Ned Smith still hanging, the Bunnmen should win their share of the games even if they have to run up astronimical scores.

Although playing a rugged schedule, the linksmen should have a winning slate if the opener is a good omen. Breaking an 11-game losing streak over a two-year span, the golfers looked impressive in dumping Albright, 13½-4½.

Even though they haven't had much success in the past few campaigns, their 12-year golf record shows 66 wins, 32 losses and one tie including two undefeated seasons and three MAC championships.

In intramural action the volleyball double-elimination tournament is now in process with the finals tentatively scheduled for Tuesday. The Comp Busters appear to be the tourney favorites.

IM Softball rosters are due now and should be turned into Chairman of Athletics, Frank Hrach.

Moose Krause of the champion Whips captured the scoring crown with 421 points for a 28 point average.

Tribe's Baseball 9 To Open Against Millersville STC

The Indian baseballers launch a 15-game schedule today as they host Millersville STC in a non-MAC fray.

This, the first of a three game series with teachers colleges, is the first meeting between the two schools. The Indians travel to Shippensburg Tuesday and return home Wednesday to face Lock Haven.

The Tribe nipped both opponents last year by 12-11 and 2-1 scores, respectively.

The Indians will be out to better last year's 9-2 mark with six lettermen in today's probable starting lineup.

Heading the returnees is third baseman Don Ross, a junior from Harrisburg who hit .543 last year. The twin team of Jim and Bill Berrier, who hit .311 and .340, will open at shortstop and centerfield.

Reynolds To Start

Ron Reynolds will most likely get the starting nod. The sophomore won seven of eight decisions last year. Backing him in this department are John Mullen, Dick Gessaman, Ned Smith and Jim Ake, who is out indefinitely with a dislocated knee.

Other lettermen starting are Bob Melago, second base, and Roy Martin, left field.

Rounding out the infield is Stan Hallman, freshman from Pottstown. Rex Donnelly, a four year veteran, opens behind the plate.

Three candidates — Tom Saporito, Wally Berkey and Phil Over—are battling for the right field position.

Juniors Take Victory In Intra-Class Meet

The class of 1960 took the honors in the annual interclass track meet, to remain unbeaten in the two years of competition since 1957. Outscoring the second place class of "62" 69½ points to 37½ points, the victors were never seriously threatened. The sophomores took third place with 34 points and the seniors rounded out the competition with 4 points.

The juniors took 11 of the 14 first places with Frank Hrach winning the mile and half-mile, Al Dungan sweeping the hurdle events, Dick Johnson taking the javelin and discus, and Bill Berrier winning the 100 and 200 yard sprints. Henry Crocker and Kirk Wicker won the high jump and the shot-put respectively to round out the juniors' first places.

Leading the freshmen was George Patrick, winning the broad jump with a 19' 8½" jump, and taking second in the high jump and 100 yd. dash. Jim Chesney also won the pole vault, in which the frosh sweep all three places.

The added feature relay, captured by the junior team of Steve Arcade, Bill Berrier, Jom Berrier, and Dungan in 1:40 seconds, rounded out the afternoon's events.

Pals, Falcains Vie For Championship

The regular season for the intramural bowling league closed this week with the Falcains leading Division I and the Pals leading Division II, just squeeking by the Champs.

The Champs beat the Pals in a division contest, 3-0 to tie for the division lead, but in the last game of the season the 4D's and a C took a 2-1 win over the Champs, knocking them out of the lead. In the Champs-Pals game, Dick Ott had a 193 game and a 369 series to lead the Champs. Ron Bergey took honors for the Pals with a 335 series.

Beamer Leads 40's & a C

Leading the 4D's and a C, in their win was Jack Beamer with a 336 series. Ott was high for the Champs with a 318.

In the rest of the final action, the Admirals took a 3-0 forfeit from the Highballers, the Spare Cats handled the 4 Chiefs and a Squaw, 3-0 and the Pals beat the Falcains 3-0. The Pals lead by Bergeys 342 series and Les Greenawalts' 335 series, will meet the same Falcains next week for the league Championship. It will be decided by total pin foll for three games.

Golf Team Gains First Victory By Dumping Albright

In the initial contest of Juniata's spring sports schedule, the golf team defeated Albright 13-1/2—41/2, on the local country club links.

Leading the way for the Indians was Jim Williams, who finished with a 71 on the par course, for a 3-0 victory over his man. Jack Vernocy also gained a 2 1/2 1/2 victory against his opponent, taking total strokes and the front nine holes, but tieing for the back nine.

Steve Gerlock, who completed the front nine holes with an under par score of 34, went on to take a split decision from Albright's Bob Carlson, 2-1. Jay Gettig's fine 76 was not quite enough to subdue his man who shot a 73 for the 18 holes. Gettig's 3-0 loss was the only individual setback suffered by the Indians in the match. Ray Erney and Dave Amey took 3-0 decisions, with a 97, and a 99, respectively.

The linksmen will go after their second victory tomorrow when they tee off against the Mountaineers of West Virginia at the Huntingdon Country Club. Starting time of the match will be 1:30 p. m.

Track Team Set For Action, Open Tuesday

As it faces its first test of the season, a meet with Gettysburg here Tuesday starting at 3:00, the Juniata track team is somewhat of an unknown quantity.

With just a few upperclassmen participating this spring, coach Mike Snider has the major task of building a winning combination around these few returning letterwinners. Leading the returnees are javelin record-holder Dick Johnson, shot-putter Kirk Wicker and distance man Frank Hrach. Other steady performers returning from last year's squad are Jim Seacrist, Ray Trimmer, Jack Compton, Galen Heckman, Bob Pearson, Pete Emrick, Chuck Brown and Don Swope. Steve Arcade and Henry Crocker are letterwinners from two years again participating.

A group of relatively untried freshmen is Snider's hope to build this season's squad into a winning aggregation, as several top-flight performers are not participating this year due to academic difficulties and the pressure of spring studies.

Two major programs are available to qualified male graduates, the Officers Candidate School (OCS), and a flight training program, the Aviation Officers Candidate (AOC). To allow men to report for active duty as soon as possible after graduation, seniors may apply for these programs at any time during their senior year.

A Women's Officer Training Program is currently available for a limited number of juniors and seniors who may be interested in obtaining a commission upon graduation. Any student wishing to discuss the various programs which the Navy has to offer is invited to meet with the Information Team.

Campus To Soon Own Directories

The new Alumni Record of Juniata College, a complete directory of graduates and non-graduates, will be off the presses and ready for distribution this week.

Work on this edition—the first in 10 years—began one year ago in March with the mailing of 5,000 questionaires to alumni and former students with known mailing addresses. Over 400 pages are included in the new Alumni Record.

The book contains an alphabetical listing and three other sections with listing by class, geographical location and occupation. Every effort was made to bring the record up to date with names, addresses, educational data and facts pertaining to life work.

A fifth major listing in the book is trustees, administration and faculty.

Maintenance Building To Add Boiler Room

Construction is now under way on an addition to the maintenance and a building to house a new boiler at an estimated cost of $85,000.

An area between the old power plant and the new maintenance building is being enclosed to provide the additional space. Work is being done by Paul Hickes, Alexandria contractor, who submitted a low bid of $19,400 for the stone block construction work.

The contract for a new boiler, which will cost about one-half of the total amount allocated for the completed job, was given to Keeler Company, Williamsport.

The pamphlet contains data on the wear and laboratory phases of the study of factors in consumer satisfaction with women's blouses gained from a 5 state area.

'Wake Up And Live' Advise National Library Workers

Wake up and live is the slogan of National Library Week being observed in America April 12 through 18.

Miss Sarah Hettinger, college librarian, has commented that many people believe that the reading of books is not a foolish pastime but a real indication of the maturity and culture of a man or a woman and therefore, a week has been set aside to draw attention to the opportunities provided in book collections of public, academic and private libraries over the country.

She continued to say that none of our past great citizens have become great without burning the midnight oil in the persuit of information from the printed page. In conclusion she believes that not often one can refer to a past radio or TV program, but a book is less elusive, less expensive and may be consulted time after time, and shared with others.

Replogle To Serve As Housekeeping Head

Mrs. Beulah Replogle of Roaring Spring, serves the staff at Juniata College as director of housekeeping.

Mrs. Replogle operated a small restaurant for 19 years and Replogle's Party House in Roaring Spring for five years. She and her late husband managed the Eldon Inn in Roaring Spring for several years prior to 1945.

One son, Donald, attended Juniata College and another, Kent, is a senior at Elizabethtown College. Mrs. Replogle has replaced Mrs. Gertrude Shuck, who resigned because of ill health.

Vinson, Passmore To Present Chapel Play

The Juniata Christian Association will present in chapel a play entitled And Try His Works to Do written by Sherwood Keith Thursday.

This modern play with a religious aspect is in four scenes without scenery or costumes: a spotlight and the work of the actors convey the idea of the performance. The two characters are Ron Vinson as Douglas Jordan and Judi Passmore as Nurse Jean.

The performance, a somewhat different idea in deputation teams, was given in two churches near McVeytown April 12.

Next Week In Chapel

April 20—Dan West and Rev. Nace.

April 23—And Try His Works To Do—Judi Passmore and Ron Vinson.

JCA Days To Focus On Pacifist Theory

A bull session will be held in North Dorm making further discussion and questioning possible. Tuesday both sides will summarize their thoughts and ideas at 7:15 p.m. in Founders Chapel.

West, educated at Manchester College and at Columbia, Chicago, Ohio State, and Cornell universities, is a member of the Church of the Brethren at Goshen, Indiana. He has worked in overseas relief, in Spain and also has been a leader in camps as well as acting as Director of youth Work, then as Field Representative and later as Director of Leadership Training under the Brethren Service Commission.

Editor's Desk ....

Founders Day, 1925

Recently we browsed through the library's collection of JUNIATIANS for the year 1924-1925, the first year the paper was published. About this time 34 years ago the English Club was presenting a series of Shakespearian scenes (from The Taming of the Shrew, Henry IV and The Winter's Tale), the Girls' Glee Club was practicing spring concerts, the baseball team had tied the Nittany Lions four-four (in an 11-inning game finally called because it got too dark to play) and the track team had placed second in the Penn Relays.

But the big story for this week concerned the Founders Day program—the 49th anniversary of the founding of Juniata College. In those days the program was an all-day affair beginning with chapel addresses by Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh, Dr. Gaius M. Brumbaugh, Dr. C .C. Ellis and the Rev. Henry Gibble. In the afternoon there was a processional led by Prof. J. A. Myers, Marshall, with trustees, alumni, faculty and students and an exhibition by the track team. Capping the day was an evening social in the gym which included music by the orchestra and the glee clubs.

Here are excerpts from the headline story in the JUNIATIAN, April 16, 1925: "April 17 will always be a memorable day to all Juniatians for it was that day in 1876 that three pupils met with the Rev. Jacob Zuck to start the Brethren Normal School. Almost half a century has passed since then, but those three original Juniatians are still living and they are going to be present at the celebration of its 49th anniversary."

. . . "Prexy" promises that the reminiscences will be presented to the Juniata tribe as they sit around a campfire in the Gym, with Dr. Gaius M/ Brumbaugh as the Great Sachem. Pictures of the old buildings, the venerable and beloved men who taught in and prayed for the early Juniata will e projected on a screen. There will be a short address on the Juniata of yester-year and on the Juniata of tomorrow. And, as an added attraction, "Uncle Jacob" will tell of the winter of troubles spent at the Forge.

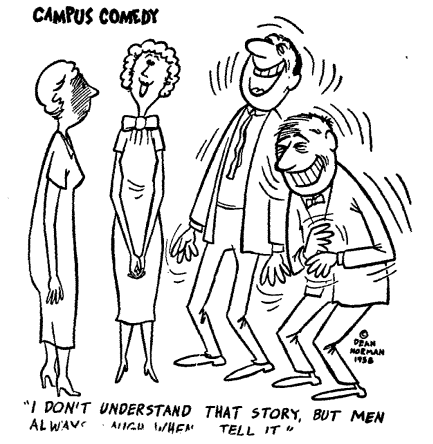
Tomorrow will be a great day in the history of Juniata. Students, do your best to make welcome and happy all the old Juniatians".

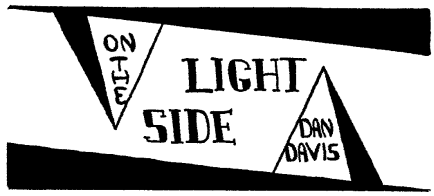
Cafeteria Meals?

Cafeteria style meals on weekends will probably be discontinued because it now seems that JCers do not want them. We wonder if this is true with the majority of Juniatians. Lately very few are making their opinions known.

We have heard a few comments that the cafeteria style meals are primarily for the benefit of the waitresses; others say they dislike standing in those long lines and still others say that they would rather stand in line than "run for a table." Thus far, there are neither enough complaints to overshadow praises nor vice versa.

When cafeteria meals were first pushed at Leadership Conference, 1957, almost everyone was enthusiastic about them. They were not considered a special boon to waitresses but a means of making these suppers easier and more efficient for everyone. Finally they were instituted and now they are to be dropped. (?) (?) This is another of those situations in which student opinion should play a large part. But there does not seem to be much interest one way or the other; if there are any real objections, now is the time to voice them . . . Let's hear some opinion.





Quite a strange sight was seen by all Juniatians last week when the newly-arrived spring was quickly ushered out by a heavy snow fall. It is not often that we see fully green grass and honeysuckle and tree buds covered with heavy white snow. And the poor robins, which every year seem to settle in the Huntingdon wilderness, have threatened to move their franchise elsewhere (perhaps Tyrone) if the local chamber of commerce does not see to it that they are treated better by the borough's meteorological wizards.

Even the young baseball season was threatened and stormed by the freakish weather . . . . of course, the Pirates have been so anxious to play and show their "first place potentiality" that they have carefully avoided the "snowed out" sign. Instead, they've just been snowed.

* * * * * - * *

This is a recommendation mainly to the English majors on campus. Instead of obtaining an honors seminar on Milton which seems to be quite unpopular with the Doctor, I suggest we junk that idea in favor of an honors seminar on Norman Douglas . . . . this would be sure to go through for reasons obvious to every "Englis novel" student.

The mustard situation in the East Hall dining room has reached an all time low. No longer can a table be sure of keeping its usually empty "squeezer" for the entire meal; rather, three or four forlorn-looking waitresses come up to the privileged tables and ask to borrow the proud possession. This practice should be remedied immediately in order to save Mr. Edward Jones from an acute case of ulcers and the waitresses from the same at the hands and remarks of Mr. Jones. (This section courtesy of Peter and Nancy Emerick.)

Have the singing dish washers in East Hall ever considered trying out for the Ed Sullivan Show? Why waste such talent on the few tables in the back of the hall? . . . and keep the dishes quiet during grace.

Well, I've run out of things to say, (as usual), so I'll just close on this joyful note: The Pirates might win a game or two by the "All Star Break" . . . which I hear is being played in the city of the "Golden Triangle."

South African Policy? Communist Treachery

——Shane

Tom Mboya, member of the Kenya Legislative Council and Secretary of the Kenya Foundation Federation of Labor told a press conference that Africans are "depressed and disappointed" by United States' foreign policy positions. This was aimed at the failure to criticize recent British action in Nyasaland. This 28 year old resident of Kenya is in the US under the auspices of the American Committee on African, Inc. "These things give the impression that the US Government is giving priority to the interests of its allies rather than to the human struggle taking place in Africa." He stated that their goal was independence without violence. "Continued injustice and unnecessary provocation could lead to violent resistance by some of our unrestrained people."

The only way to avoid violence in South Africa is for free countries to persuade the South African government it cannot any longer abuse human rights. "Our urgent hope in this struggle is that the US will not only understand but help and contribute toward the attainment of our objectives. We are determined to free ourselves from colonial rule and European domination. We believe in establishing a democracy and we will not compromise. For the time being, most of us believe Kenya should be an independent country in the British Commonwealth."

In reviewing these statements of Mr. Mboya, I found it quite significant that he sued the term "human rights" when civil rights would have sufficed. I believe that this could be taken as a shrewd statement as to the policy of our country toward those of his race who live within our borders. One of the factors which the opponents of our nation are constantly using is the stand that our nation takes toward the negro. Is this not a test whether or not our nation is truly the stronghold of freedom and equality, as we continually advertise, or are these boasts of no more significance than the propaganda of our Russian neighbors?

Hungary—Charges of Communist betrayal were laid before the UN by the International League for the Rights of Man. Over 6000 refugees have been jailed or shot when they returned to Hungary on the basis of letters from the Red Government which promised them amnesty. The charges included testimony and affidavits from some of those who escaped a second time.

Green Roads—Dr. Alden Hafmer, on addressing a meeting of optometrists, stated that our currenct black roads with the white stripe should be replaced. He advocates green-tinted roads with yellow stripe. The black and white roads tire the eyes and induce sleep.

Washington—Rep. Frank Kowalski (Dem.-Conn.) charged the armed services with a waste of manpower. This charge was answered by a report of the Defense Department. The report stated that more than 20,000 enlisted men are serving as waiters, chauffeuers, yardmen, houseboys and "servants" to the officers. The biggest tally is the 11,645 men attached as stewarts in officers messes, clubs and bachelors' quarters.

Hong Kong—Fishermen off the China coast have reported a small revolt in the Chinese communes. Farmers of the Wong Kong commune killed nine Red guards when one of their friends died from being forced to work while sick. The Reds retaliated by limbering up their machine guns and cutting down 24 of the group to end the revolt in true Communistic fashion. One of these days its going to take more than machine guns to fight a nation of united people.

Oklahoma—Prohibition lost its next-to-last stronghold in the United States. By a margin of 80,000 Oklahomans voted to repeal their 51-year-old ban on the sale of liquor, and to permit bottle sales. This leaves Mississippi as the only state that is still "dry". Hang on Mississippi. We have faith in you.

Chalk It Up!

by Wally Berkey

It was Morder that killed us.

Maybe that doesn't sound right but the Indians dropped the baseball opener and Howd Morder, a Huntingdon freshman at Shippensburg., had a lot to do with it.

The Tribe jumped to a commanding 2-0 lead but the teachers retaliated with five in the first frame. The score changed to 6-4 at the end of three when Morder took the mound and ruined the Indians chances of taking the defending State Teachers Conference champions by pitching runless, hitless ball for the final four innings in capturing the mound decision.

The Tribe had only five hits, made errors in the field and looked very unimpressive in the pitching department. It was one of those games which the Indians want to forget.

Good conditioning paid off for Frank Hrach, the hardest-working member of the track team. Hrach captured three firsts in the long distances that enabled the tracksters to tie Gettysburg at 63 all.

DID IT CLEAR THE NET? — Jack Merril, in Juniata's tennis team's lead off match, looks hopefully towards the net on the college courts.

Frosh Edge Upperclassmen In Soccer Initiation Match

With a hard played soccer match, in which the freshmen, captained by Bill Smith, narrowly edged out the upperclassmen 5-2, spring soccer was initiated at Juniata College.

The freshmen took the match with the help of Ron Gerhardt's "hat trick", which is when one player scores three goals in one game, Gerhardt's first goal came soon after play was begun, but the upperclassman retaliated with a goal by "Duke" Kim, and an assist by Andy Katai.

Tie at Half

At the end of the first thirty minutes of play the match was tied up, but soon after the second half whistle blew for play to begin, Gerhardt booted in his second goal of the day, to send the frosh into the lead, 2-1. The upper classman, putting on a desperate spurge, kept goalie Mike Gilmore more than busy. It was only his fine play that saved the game from being tied at that time.

Midway through the second half, once again Gerhardt's timing and accuracy brought him his third goal of the day, and iced the cake for the Frosh.

Upper Classmen Score

In a die-hard try, five minutes before the game was over, Bob Pierson took a pass from Mel Kreps, and sailed one by the alert freshman goalie, to make the final score 3-2 in favor of the freshmen.

Another match will be held in the near future and anyone who is interested can go down to the athletic fields and give it a try.

Pals Win IM Bowling Title, Defeat Falcains

The official champions of the college intra-mural bowling league, the Pals, came through in flying colors to whip the Falcains in the season finale. It was the second consecutive win for the talented group.

Leading the Pals was Ron Bergey, Les Greenawalt, and Harvey Wagner. The Falcains leaders were Joe Sopata, Orlando Falcione, and Emery DiDonato.

Hrach Leads Indians To Tie Gettysburg In Track Opener

Juniata's thinclads came from behind to tie Gettysburg 63-63 on the local cinders Wednesday afternoon.

Frank Hrach, who won the half-mile, one-mile, and two-mile runs, led the Indians in their upset of strongly rated Gettysburg. Also leading the attack were Bob Pierson with a ten foot pole vault and Dick Johnson with a 170 ft. 6 in. heave in the javelin and second place throw in the discus.

Second place in the broadjump and 100-yd. dash went to George Patrick while Henry Crocker and Al Dungan tied for second in the high jump. Ray Trimer and Steve Arcade combined for a second and third in in the 440-yd. dash with first place going to Reeder of Gettysburg.

In the shot-put Kirk Wicker got off a throw of 40 ft. 5 in. that brought him third place. Dungan's effort in the 120 yd. high hurdles was good for second place, Chuck Brown rounded out the scoring wnth an important second place in the 220 yd. low hurdles.

Next Wednesday the Indians meet Lock Haven on the local track.

Golfers Lose Two, Win One In South

After being handed a 4-2 setback by West Virginia and a 12-6 reversal by John Hopkins, the linksters got back to their winning ways by recording a 15½-2½ victory over Washington University.

The only two victories carded by the Indians in Saturday's loss to West Virginia were turned in by Jack Vernocy and Jim Williams. Vernocy shot a par 70, while Williams turned in a 72. Jay Gettig's 74 was not good enough, as his man scored a 71. Steve Gerlock lost by one stroke, shooting a 75. Ray Erney and Dave Amey accounted for the other loosing scores.

Vernocy recorded the only shutout of the day for the Tribe in Tuesday's loss at the hands of John Hopkins, 6 and 5. Gettig downed his man one up to pick up 2 points.

Gerlock and Amey each picked up ½ point in their matches, while Williams lost to his man 3 and 2 and Erney was downed 9 and 7.

The linksmen got back to their winning ways by sweeping all six matevhes from Washington on Wednesday. Gerlock, carding a 75 was low for the Tribe, as he dumped his man 10 and 8. Williams, shooting an 80 won his match as did Vernocy with an identical 80. Gettig, shooting an 81. won his match 3 and 1. crney handed his man a 4 and 2 setback, while Amey took his by a 4 and 2 margin.

Penn State Lions Down JC Netmen

The Indians met stiff opposition in the form of the Nnttany Lions of Penn State, Tuesday afternoon. The opening match turned out to be a 9-0 setback at the hands of the Lions from across the mountain.

Jack Merrill, Juniata's number one man was defeated by Bibleheimer 6-0, 6-2. Pfrogner of J. C. lost to Ludwig by the same score to determine the number two match. Ott and Burnich, likewise were outpointed by their men, Carp and More, respectively. Harneh of State defeated freshman Pete Christie, 6-3, 6-2 and Jim Lear was blanked completely by his opponent, 6-0, 6-0.

In the doubles matches, State's team of Ludwig and Moore was victorious over Merril and Ott, 6-2, 7-9, 6-0. Pfrogner and Christie dropped their doubles match 6-4, 6-0 to Blanck and McCartney. Burnich and Lear also lost to their doubles opponents.

Deputation Teams In Organization Stage; Offer Membership

For those students interested in joining the Deputation Teams, there will be an important organizational meeting Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. in Founders Chapel.

The deputation teams, part of the World Relations Committee of JCA, and working in cooperation iwth the Church Relations Office, have a tradition as old as Juniata. Its aim is to bring college students into a direct working relationship with the local churches.

Student teams are usually composed of six — a singing quartet, a speaker and an accompanist. From one to three teams are sent out every Sunday, except those before examinations and special events, to take over the regular worship service in any church that requests a team. Approximately 56 services have been conducted by representatives of Juniata this year over Pennsylvania, New York City, Washington, D.C., and parts of Maryland and Delaware.

Taking time out from their duties to pose for the photographer are deputation team coordinators and directors, Stan Davis, Judi Passmore, Anne Scheib and Rev. Clarence Rosenberger. These teams composed of quartet, organist and speaker, visit various Brethren Churches in the area, taking complete charge of Sunday services. Often they have as many as three services in one day.

Graduate Of '36 Writes War Book

The Warrior, Reflections on Men in Battle by Prof. Glenn Gray, a 1936 graduate of Juniata, is soon to be released by Harcourt, Brace and Co.

In his new book, Gray asks us to remember that men will never have peace until they understand why they have sought war.

Gray entered the Army in 1941 as a private and was discharged in 1945 as a second lieutenant after receiving a battlefield commission in 1944. Most of his four years of service was in Counter Intelligence. After the close of the war, he spent a year with the Military Government as education officer for Bavaria.

Recently he returned to Germany on fellowships granted by the Fullbright Commission and the Ford Foundation, and wrote most of this book during his year's stay there. He is now chairman of the department of philosophy at Colorado College.

Dick Gaskell informed the Senate as to the results of the recent Judiciary elections and runoffs. He named Jean Davies, Carol Baish, Rod Mellinger and Bob Blair as the new Judiciary members.

Pat Varec reported that the committee appointed to work out a Senate booth for the Spring Carnival had decided to sponsor a Senate Search. It will be conducted similar to a scavenger hunt.

Gaskell read a list of members in the Honor Service Club. The club recently elected Jill Muir, Al Dungan, Leora Furlong and Carol Baish as its officers.

She will speak on the Honor System Sunday evening to disciplinary council, in East Hall rec room that afternoon and in a debate with Chuck Brown, Sherril Edwards and Ed Jones at 7 p.m.

A booklet containing dates of important campus events, names of various campus leaders and their positions and paper for daily memos, sent by University of Pittsburgh was passed around. Dick Quinn appointed Pat Varec, Bob Schwalenburg and himself to work on producing a similar booklet.

Quinn, to remind the Senators about their extra duties, read a list of senate-faculty committees on which various members serve, ex post facto.

The Senate passed a motion to the effect that letters of announcement and acknowledgment be sent to new Senate appointees.

Table heads will meet their faculty guests in the Brumbaugh social rooms at 7:15 a.m. and then go to the dining hall. Classes will begin at 8:30 a.m. and the usual half-hour break will be eliminated. Cafeteria style breakfast will be served in East Hall as usual for the boys.

Entertainment and centerpieces, programs and placards are all a part of the annual event to which day students are invited .Dean Mays will give the invocation.

Ellis Administers Oath To Judiciary At Joint Meeting

With the administration of the oath of office by President Ellis, JC's Campus Judiciary for the year 1959-60 was installed Monday, April 20 at a joint meeting held in Founders Chapel.

Chuck Brown, outgoing chairman, conducted the meeting, explaining each step of the procedure to the new members. After the outgoing Judiciary members dealt with old and new business, discussed cases and made several recommendations to be considered by the new CJ, the incoming members elected Jean Davies as 1959-60 Judiciary secretary.

A change in the by-laws was made to the effect that the Judiciary's term shall extend to the second Monday after the first Senate meeting in April. Originally, the by-laws merely stated that the term ends the "second Monday in April" but, because of spring vacation, this did not leave time for Senate nominations and the election.

CJ Communications

Dean Heberling recommended that the secretary organize a "well-defined" system of communications between herself and those reporting to her and between herself and the deans concerning the handling of cases and the punishments of offenders. There was a discussion on the problem of long overdue excuses for chapel cuts; generally, these are not to be accepted.

The first of Brown's recommendations suggested that copies of the constitution and by-laws be printed and distributed. Another called for punishments to fit the infractions of rules (not just imposing fines or sending the offender home).

He included a plan to have the Meet the Senate program during

Edit Roundup

From The Antioch Record:

Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

While this isn't a particularly original statement on our part, it is the motto of the American Civil Liberties Union. And while the ACLU wasn't particularly vigilant when it came to spotting the loyalty oath kicker in the National Defense Education Act, the motto still makes a good deal of sense.

President Gould has made the point that there is a good possibility of getting the oath-disclaimer clause yanked out of the NDEA. Naturally, a strong stand on the part of the college and the community is essential from both a moral and a practical end.

At the same time, individual action is necessary and we advise it. This is the sort of situation where letters to congressman can provoke action. A vigorous letter-writing campaign can make a difference and there are few enough times when this is the case.

In the past Antiochians have been quick to sign petitions and write letters telling Russia to get the hell out of Hungary and advising the Union of South Africa on the best way to handle its internal affairs. While the moral value of these efforts is obvious, the practical value is quite close to zero.

This time it may well pay to be vigilant.

And eternal vigilance, to coin a phrase, is the price of liberty.

The Conspirators:

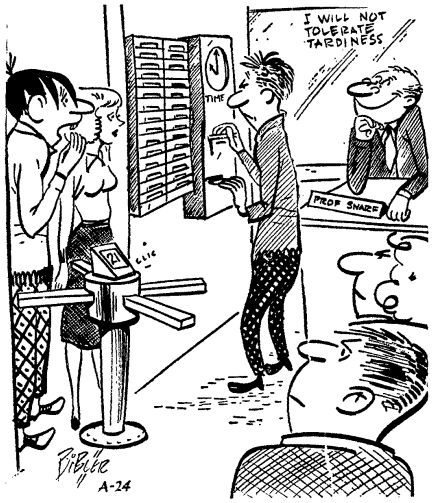
by Robert Kiley, President, USNSA

.... The public ought to be concerned with the conspiring that goes on within the hallowed towers of higher education. The public should be suspect of controversial ideas and the people who promote them .... And most of all, the public must guard against too much independence for the student population, for the youthful mind has not been closed either to the uew ideas or to the possibilities for "change".

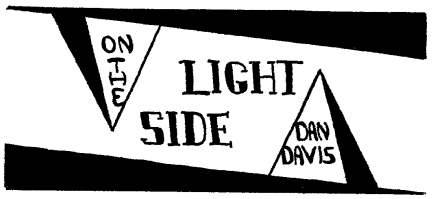
THE CONSPIRATORS, who may take the form of educators, administrators, professional do-gooders or even other students, are filling the air constantly with such doubtful and conspiratorial concepts as "academic freedom," "racial integration," the United Nations, free exchange with the peoples of other nations, "responsibility," "rights" of any kind, etc. And the student who is learning and who is capable of making mistakes (apparently unlike the older generations) might possibly swallow all of these things.

So — — — because THE CONSPIRATORS are lurking everywhere in order to consume the unformed mind of the unsuspecting student — — — all students ought to take certain precautions. Avoid relatively new or "controversal ideas. Don't take positions on issues as the obvious position may be the wrong one. Stay away fram "foreigners" for they think differently and THE CONSPIRATORS have probably captured their minds anyway. Don't read too much. Don't be fooled about the recent talk of the need for "intellectualism."

.... Don't ever forget that THE CONSPIRATORS are everywhere and they want your allegiance. And if you are convinced that you must hat THE CONSPIRATORS, then carry with you and spread to others the motto: VEGETABLES of the world — — Unite ! !



Gosh! Prof Snarf gets tougher all the time!



Juniata's 24-hour radio station, WJC, is becoming a bit interesting. Thanks to the professional-soundnig BS of one serious minded Emmet Capano and his sidekick John Pessey, Sunday evenings between 9 and 10 p.m. are actually being devoted to 620 on your radio dial. Last week's radiothon, which was sponsored by the "National Safe tCyouncil" was dedicated to the civic task of accumulating some 640 highway fatalities within the broadcast's allotted time.

Well, they got it in 35 minutes instead of an hour .... this speed was perhaps due to the local "censor board" which required that this sort of broadcast be abolished from our thriving campus. However, Mr. Capano had enough time to come out with several choice cracks: "You kids under the driving age can also help this worthy cause. Get the kids out on the block and go out on one of the nation's speedways and play .... "Route 22 is OK since it is dark thus making you harder to see and easier to hit. Won't you do that for your Uncle Emmet ?"

To add to the fun this comedy team also boasts of special guests such as the president of the "Ambiguous Sign Corporation." who happens to be none other than John K. Nicholas. Yes, if the Huntingdon Censor Board on the FCC (which I suppose has some means of detecting our enormous reception range) doesn't get overly disturbed by the program's format of "talk, talk and more talk .... with just a hint o' music, this show may be quite an addition to the campus' already "swinging" extra-curricular life. Perhaps Emmet and John will eventually demand a coast-to-coast hookup for their hour spot .... just think how Juniata's rating would go up!

French-German Allies $800,000 Mistake

—Shane

A big switch has been recently evident in Europe. The old traditional enemies France and Germany. Konrad Adenaur, West German Chancellor, and General Charles de Gaulle, President of France, have been cultivating a friendship which many European forces find disturbing. West Germany and France are now joined in an experiment to make Western Europe a "omnmocm Western Europe a "common market." These countries have also cooperated in such endeavors as: The Coal and Steel Community, European Atomic Energy Project and the European Army Plan.

----This cooperation being shown between France and Germany in the "common market" plan has an influence on British policy. Great Britain enjoys her vague reputation as being the commercial head of Europe. A commercial unification would do much to destroy this reputation. Britain is unenthusiastic to a unified Europe. The United States is highly in favor of the plan. Since West Germany is not part of the Big Four, she will not be present at the future summit conference. De Gaulle is supposed to oppose any concessions to the Russians at this conference. Geneva will tell the tale.

In reviewing this Franco-German situation, we must realize that it is to the advantage of the Soviet to keep France and Germany divided. These two nations represent 1z0 million people. Just add Belgium, Holland and Italy to France and Germany to see what a unification of these two would mean to the Soviet. A unification would end the hostile attitude that has plagued these two nations and plunged Europe into three bloody wars in the last 90 years. Let's remember to watch Geneva.

Nairobi, Kenya — Jano Kenyatta, convicted leader of the Mau Mau rebellion in Kenya in 1952, has been released from prison. He completed five of the seven year term. Now he is living in a remote village in northern Kenya. Kenya's white authorities keep him under constant surveillance. Robert Ruark feels "Something of Value" will come from the whole affair.

Washington — Officials of the Department of Agriculture have recently revealed a great boo-boo. It seems that one dollar more than was granted was paid in settling soil-bank payments in Texas. The estimated loss has been $800,000 for the year 1957. Tom Nolan's stat class has announced some progress towards finding the uosrce of the error.

Virginia — A security guard surrounds the executive mansion in Richmond to protect Governor J. Lindsay Almond, Jr., against extremists in the school-segregation fight. Almond has led Virginia's battle against racial integration of public schools. Recently he abandoned the policy of "massive resistance." He opposes integration but will not close the schools to prevent it. He has been accused of selling out and his life has repeatedly been threatened. April 10 a shot was fired at Almond from behind a hedge on the captol grounds. The would-be assassin escaped.

Bell, Book and Candle

Ernie Kovacs discourses on a very enchanting subject—sex!—before James Stewart, Kim Novak and Jack Lemmon in Columbia Pictures' very bewitching comedy in Technicolor, "Bell, Book and Candle."

Lock Haven Dumps JC On Local Cinders In Close Meet

Frank Hrach was a triple winner again, but the Juniata thinclads went down to a 67-64 defeat at the hands of Lock Haven State Teachers College on the local cinders Wednesday.

The meet was close all the way with Lock Haven commanding a 3 or 4 point lead most of the time. The Indians captured the mile relay, the final event, and pulled within three points; but it was not enough.

Juniata's only sweep came in the 100 yard dash when George Patrick finished first; Terry Digruttolo, second and Jim Seacrist, third. Digruttolo late finished second behind Lock Haven's speedy Puhl in the 220 yard dash. Seacrist was third in the same event.

Coming in behind Hrach in the distance races was Galen Heckman with a tie for second place in the one mile run and a th rd in the two mile event.

In the hurdles only Al Dungan made a showing for the Indians, capturing second in the highs and a tie for the same position in the low hurdles. Ray Trimmer led the pack home in the 440 or quarter mile run, with Steve Arcade a close third behind Trimmer.

The Indians lost a good deal of ground in the points column with the field events taking 7 out of 18 possible places in the field. In this group Dick Johnson was the only winner, coming through with a clutch throw on his last try.

Comp-BustersCapture Volleyball Tourney

The men's intramural volleyball championship was decided last Saturday afternoon when the Comp Busters defeated the Hill District, 2-1.

The Comp-Busters led the tournament with a 6-1 slate. The Hill District ended with a 4-2 record. Three teams finished with identical 2-2 records; The Rebels, the Swashsticks, and the Five Sixes and a Five. The Pick-Ups, the Sheiks, and the Amish all closed their campaigns with 1-2 slates, while the Emperors and the Pizitines Group brought up the rear with 0-2 records.

The champions, Mike Miller, Don Swope, Ken Opipery, Joe Sliik, Pete Donglas, Don Burnich, Gordie Ewers, Bob Ewald, Al Dungan, and Ron Wertz downed the Hillers 15-7, 10-15, 15-9, in the championship game to grab the crown.

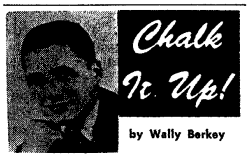
Baseball Nine To Visit Albright, Elizabethtown In Coming Play

The Juniata baseball nine will put their two win, one lost record on the line tomorrow, when they face Elizabethtown College in an away game. They are also scheduled for an away tilt at Albright next Wednesday.



by Wally Berkey

The Indian base ballers had to pull out in a similar fashion of the Pirates 9-8 victory over Cincinnati Wednesday.

Behind 3-1 going into the seventh without a hit, the Tribe went on the warpath and exploded for three runs on four hits and a walk to win 4-3 at Dickinson for their third consecutive win of the season.

* * * * *

No arrangements have been made as yet for the varsity to play an Alumni game this spring. Since the event must be held so late in the year, many of the underclassmen on the squad have already left for summertime employment and a representative squad cannot be fielded.

Huntingdon has been chosen as the site for the NCAA Regional Golf Tournament, but this event won't be until June 9-10.

The Jays boast a solid core of veterans in this yar's lineup, including Lloyd Boertzfield and Carroll Hershey who hit .338 and .394 respectively last year. The rest of the infield positions will be manned by freshman Ellwood Kerkeslager, Gene Kerns, and Bob Teufel.

Strong Mound Staff

This year's mound staff is also apparently strong. Heading the list of hurlers are Sheldon Dent, Bob Geiger, and Glenn Crum, all experienced performers. Handling the pitchers will be Bill Pennsyl, a four year veteran.

Gene Wise is expected to supply most of the punch in the Jay's attack, as he did last year. The speedy outfielder hit .462 driving in 21 runs, last season.

The Tribe will also face a tough encounter when they journey to Albright who won their opener, after two rainouts, over Ursinus, 9-3. Heading the attack for the Lions is pitcher Fred Dietzel, who went the distance, fanning 15 batters, in his initial start this year.

Tribe To Enter Into Penn Relays

Juniata's track team has been entered in the Middle Atlantic Conference one-mile relay, a part of the Penn Relay Carnival, which will be held tomorrow.

Thirteen teams have filed entries for this important race. St. Joseph's College is top-heavy favorite to unseat Lasalle College in the 37th running of the Middle Atlantic Conference races. In addition to St. Joseph's, Lafayette and West Chester State could also cause trouble.

However, for the last eight years, Lasalle and St. Joseph's have dominated the race with Lasalle winning three in a row before St. Joseph's spun a skein of four only to have Ira Davis snatch victory from the Hawks for Lasalle last year.

The four possible men who will represent Juniata in this race art Steve Arcade, Ken Bechtel, Ray Trimmer, and Frank Hrach, each of whom will run a quarter mile leg in the mile event.

Dick Johnson is also entered in the javelin throw.

Indians Win 2, Freshmen Hurlers Star

The Indian baseball nine put together the winning combination of good pitching and timely hitting to gain victories one and two over Lock Haven STC and Washington College.

Freshman John "Moon" Mullen provided the pitching in the contest with Lock Haven, throwing a neat 7 hitter in his first start of the season. Bill Berrier, Stan Walasik, Stan Hallman, and Wally Berkey each collected two hits, p oviding the bulk of the 10-hit attack.

Don Ross smashed his first homer of the season, when he sent one of Barry Irey's serves over the roght-center scoreboard in the 9-3 viceory for the Indians.

Gessaman Gets Win

Dick Gessaman picked up his first win and the teams second victory, while holding Washington to 3 hits, in a fine pitching performance. Freshman Gessaman was in complete control of the situation from the strt, working on a no-hitter for 6 and 2/3 innings, striking out four and allowing just one walk.

Bill Berrier again collected a pair of hits along with Ross, who hit his second home run of the season, a deep drive into left center field over 400 yards from home plate. Roy Martin added a long triple to the cause, but was cut down at the plate when he stumbled rounding third. The Bunnmen collected a total of 9 hits for the 9-2 victory over Washington College.

Bonnie Gunther Reports Results Of JWSF Campaign To Senate

Bonnie Gunther, at Wednesday evening's Senate meeting, gave a report on JWSF results, naming the sum of $2,017.13 as total intake.

Madras University, Foreign Student's Fund, World University Service and Brethren Missions in that order, are the places to which students preferred their money to be sent. The money was distributed in regard to these preferences.

Ron Vinson, concerning the coming NSA program focusing on the honor system, reported that he had contacted Miss Diane Hatch. Miss Hatch, who will represent NSA on campus May 3 and 4, agreed to the Senate-approved program Vinson had planned for the two days.

Food Service Question

The question about the retention of Paul Moore is as yet unsettled. Dick Quinn stated that he and the head waitresses had visited President Ellis, informing him of the stand several organizations on campus have taken in this matter.

A project of the Senate, namely, the opening of the east doors of Oneida dining hall, has been completed. The doors opened at the Wednesday noon meal.

Quinn told the Senators that cans and literature for the cancer drive will be placed in Tote, the book store and the library today.

The president appointed a committee for the purpose of nominating people to attend leadership conference. Dick Gaskell Ron Vinson, Barb Fritchey and Pat Varec comprise this committee.

Gym Initiation

Vinson reported that the class of '62 had unanimously voted to continue gym initiation for the incoming freshmen. Vinson asked for Senate's support of his efforts in the matter of gym initiation.

In the following discussion, Dr. Crosby mentioned past effects of gym initiation and current national trends. The Senate voted to give Vinson the requested support.

The Senate considered the advisability of setting up a general alarm system on campus, but decided it wasn't necessary.

Quinn asked the senators to think in the next week about the formation of an honor code and about the building of a college chapel on campus.

CJ To Review Fines, Drinking

freshman days next fall include the Campus Judiciary. His next recommendation was that the CJ request ,20 from the Senate.

Review of Policies

It was also recommended that the CJ review, with the Administration, the fine policy and the college drinking policy. The final suggestion concerned an addition to the by-laws: that when a case is being considered, no Judiciary member be absent except for illness or other emergency.

After a rundown of trial procedure, Brown closed the meeting with a few remarks on the Judiciary itself. He emphasized the fact that although a plan of procedure has been set up, the CJ is not strictly a court of law and should not be hampered by rigid technical arrangements.

He said that CJ members should make an effort not to set precedents; instead, they should keep the Judiciary an effective campus element by respect for the shades of differences from one case to another. Upon the adjournment of the meeting, Heberling rose and commended Brown for his leadership during his year as chairman of the Judiciary.

Press Association Gives Membership

The National Press Photographers Student Affiliate, recently founded, is offering membership to interested students.

The application and a fee of $4 entitles the student to his shingle, a subscription to the National Press Photographer and the NPA official publication.

Senators Give Ok To Changes

A report of the Leadership Conference nominating committee containing recommendations for changes in the number of delegates sent by various organizations on campus was approved at Wednesday's Senate Meeting

The approved slate stands thus: 13 senators, 3 class presidents, 2 JCA delegates, 1 JUNIATIAN and 1 Alfarata editor, 10 Inter-Club Council members (to be chosen by Bobbe Savage from among the more active club members), 4 Judiciary members and 30 delegates at large with 6 alternates, making a total of 64 delegates A minimum slate of delegates at large, suggested by the nominating committee, was also read and will be added to next week

At a former meeting, the senators had expressed opinions favorable to the printing of a calendar-type booklet similar to one sent to us and published by the University of Pittsburgh. The committee appointed to work on this project made recommendations as to appropriate size, shape and covering. The idea is to have the booklets printed this summer and sold as Senate concessions in the fall.

Hank Hain submitted an Administration-approved list of student proctors. After discussion, necessary changes and a motion (passed) that sophomores be assigned to proctor only freshmen and sophomore tests, the list was approved.

Ron Vinson presented his idea concerning educational information teams, which would be composed of students who would visit high schools and answer questions regarding college life. The Senate gave Vinson its approval for further investigation.

Quinn stated that the dean of men at Lycoming College is in favor of fund raising competition between his school and JC. The Senators voted that the campaign should be given consideration.

Choir To Present Chapel Program

JC's Chapel Choir will present the chapel program Thursday.

The program consists of three selections from the Peaceable Kingdom by Randall Thompson, a contemporary American composer and a motet-Judas Mercator Pessimus by di Vittora, a 16th century composer. The last selection will be a contemporary setting of God So Loved The World by Jan Bender, a Lutheran composer.

Moore To Remain As Food Director

Paul Moore, Jr., has been retained as director of food service following the college's approval of an extension of the leave of absence of Miss Frances Mathias.

College Treasurer John Fike announced that the contract with Crotty Brothers, Inc., food service consultants in Boston, will be continued. Moore was sent to the college by that company last September.

Miss Mathias served as institutional manager and assistant professor of home ecomics for 23 years. She was granted a leave of absence at her request last year.

Moore, a graduate of the University of New Hampshire, came to Juniata after directing the food service at Foxborough Manufacturing Co. in Massachusetts.

Editor's Desk ....

Same Old Stuff

We can almost hear some of the comments as students read the article concerning the Senate program on the honor system next week: "Same old stuff . . . We've been hearing about this for years . . . Nothing will come of it . . . Must we rehash this again?" If these are reactions of a majority of Juniatians, things are in a sad state of affairs and we are badly mistaken about the maturity of JC students.

Granted, it probably seems, sometimes, that "all this jazz" about an honor system is the product of the rather idealistic thoughts of a few campus eggheads. But few people will deny that the concept of the honor system now touches everyone to some extent and that there are some very concrete evidences of its growth. Witness the large amount of responsibility carried by the Campus Judiciary and the constantly increasing confidence in the student proctoring system.

It is obvious that if plans move ahead the way they are being directed, the chances are good that some of you will see the honor system established here. In that case it will not be possible to toss it off with a few flippant remarks; it will be a matter of personal decision. Maybe we should start thinking about that decision now.

So we urge that students attend the meetings and discussions with Diane Hatch. The informal debate in particular, appears to be potentially valuable for airing all sides of this issue. Whether or not you favor an honor system for Juniata, shake off that spring-is-here-and-comps-are-over complacency and argue a little! Individual opinions are absolutely necessary in a matter which will involve so much individual responsibility.

May Day Reservations

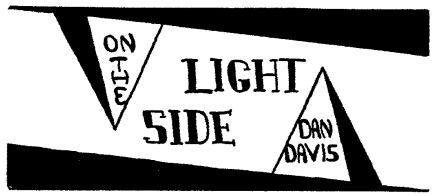
Reservations for the May Day Luncheon cost $.75 each and should be made now at the Dean of Women's office. Founders Hall. The Dean's office is open daily 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1:30 to 5 p.m.

During the last few weeks when all the seniors were studying so intensely for comprehensive exams, we happened to think of the following poem by Edna St. Vincent Millay. It may not have anything to do with college students and then again, it may ....

The Cairn

When I think of the little children learning
In all the schools of the world,
Learning in Danish, learning in Japanese
That two and two are four, and where the rivers of the world
Rise, and the names of the mountains and the principal cities,
My heart breaks.
Come up, children! Toss your little stones gaily
On the great cairn of Knowledge!
(Where lies what Euclid knew, a little grey stone.
What Plato, what Pascal, what Galileo:
Little grey stones, little grey stones on a cairn.)
Tell me, what is the name of the highest mountain?
Name me a crater of fire! A peak of snow!
Name me the mountains on the moon!
But the name of the mountain that you climb all day,
Ask not your teacher that.

—As a matter of fact, my students had a lot of classroom theory before ever starting the project."



Well, several things took place on this fair campus this week which require space in this "searching" column. First of all, I think every student will benefit from looking at the back of the chairs on which we sit in Students Hall. Yes, there are now handsome yellow stickers on each back which possess the proud words, "This is the property of Juniata College." I certainly hope this costly addition to campus decorations will put an end to the many thefts of these comfortable and well-balanced arm chairs which have been reported to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Would all students who have taken it upon themselves to furnish their sound-proof rooms with these relics please return them to the Dean of House Furnishings so that they may be stamped . . . and then you may take them back to your dens for further intellectual inspiration.

* * * * * * *

I have been asked by the freshmen and sophomore girls of this institution to thank the administration for providing them with a speaker the other evening. Apparently there are a few adminisrative members of JC who don't trust the moral integrity of our feminine lovelies . . . and I don't know why.

At any rate, I'm sure that many young ladies were reminded of their "high school preachings" which made for an interesting contrast with "college practices." Please, Administration, next time such an event is scheduled, the girls should be given a complimentary "late" in order to put into immediate practice that which they have "learned." Okay?

* * * * * * *

As I'm sure everyone knows by this time, there was a "bit" of humor present at last Saturday night's joint Juniata and Elizabethtown choir concert. Apparently Prof. Nevin Fisher's rendition of The Creation was so inspirational that not only did it inspire us a God's chosen animals, but also had equal effects on Don Gross' chosen canine, Meg. Unlike us humans, who inhibit our desires to come forth and show off our fortunate creation, however, Meg proudly and politely ascended the stage steps (as if in a fashion show).

It looked as if the "beast of the village and Boonj's bed" had planned her theatrical debut for some time since there were no signs of nervousness or stage fright. Meg's well-rehearsed appearance will long live in the memories of all who watched.

Of course it is superflous to add that only at Juniata could such a thing happen. Yes, our founders and admissions office do not only offer their liberal arts education to a non-sectarian group of young humans, but also are dedicated to raising the standards of those outside our two-legged group. I ask you, how liberal and broad minded can one college get? . . . . for further information read Horizons, which is available through John Herr.

Chinese Reds In Nepal; Culture Hits Snag

—Shane

Nepal—Chinese troops are being accused of invading Nepal, the tiny country still smaller than Tibet and lying to the south of the strife-torn nation. The Chinese troops invaded the borders while pursuing refugees from Tibet, raiding its villages and torturing its people. Charges were presented April 21 in the form of a memo to King Mahendra of Nepal. The charges were signed by 551 Sherpas, a hill tribe of the Southern Himalayas. The Chinese looted the village of Gyabra, which lies 20 miles inside the border and at the foot of Everest. Nepalese were shot, traders were arrested and the property of wealthy Sherpas confiscated. If Nepal's government fails to act, the Sherpas will take "suitable" action of their own. Let us hope that no refugees flee in our direction.

Washington—The cultural exchange between the United States and Russia has hit a snag. The State Department has vetoed Soviet plans to send the Red Army chorus on a US tour. The Reds then rejected a US proposal on a jazz orchestra, an American ballet group and the Salt Lake City Tabernacle choir. We are all quite proud of the two outstanding world powers for being above petty differences in settling their quarrels.

Business—All records for business activity are being broken. More people are at work than ever before. Incomes are at an all time high. Retail trade is booming. Profits of business are headed for all time highs. With profits rising, income of the government is to go up, improving the outlook for a budget balance. Do not worry, dear reader, this is not for the layman, but for the information of the business majors. I don't know what it means either.

Pennsylvania Schools Rated—The National Educational Association has rated Pennsylvania schools as being slightly above average. The average teacher's pay is $5,000 per year, the 15th highest in the nation, the national average being $4,775. The cost per pupil is $370, as compared with the national average of $340. Our state has a term of 182 days; the national average being 178 days. We have 2.4 million school-age children, ranking third nationally. Of these children 7 .4 percent are enrolled in public school. The average Pennsylvanian has completed nine school years, the national average being 9.3 years. Thirty-one percent of our state have four years of high school, and 5.4 percent four years of college.

High Intensity Sound—A Los Angeles firm has produced a sound. Not an ordinary sound, but a sound capable of destroying human tissue. A human being subjected to such a sound would be homogenized, or perhaps scrambled, in seconds. The sound was produced to test missles and is used in a concrete blockhouse weighing hundreds of tons. The sound can rattle buildings with greater intensity than an earthquake. How loud is the noise? No one has ever heard it. I hope we never have the opportunity to listen.

E-Town—President A. C. Baugher has announced the construction of a new dormitory for men. If at all possible, I would urge all Juniatians to look at the proposed structure. I will guarantee you a laugh.

Item—The Blue Mountain Lions Club has cancelled its auction and rummage sale that was to be held May 2 at Stahler Field, 6th and Lucknow Rds., due to unforeseen circumstances, club officials announced today. All Juniatians who were planning to attend, take note.

Chalk It Up!

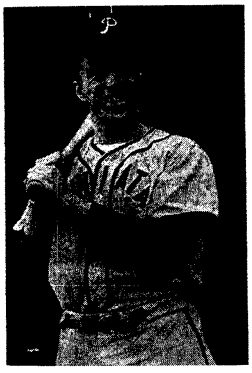
by Wally Berkey

Prior to this season the baseball and golf teams were running neck and neck for supremacy of series records over their respective opponents in this year's schedule.

The diamondmen play 13 different foes and show a slate of 180 wins and 117 losses for a 607 percentage. The golfers hold a 37-26-1 slate over 12 opponents for a .586 percentage.

The baseballers hold the biggest margin of wins at 38-14 over Elizabethtown, a team they couldn't convince of this fact last Saturday. The Indians were only on the short end of one series, but evened it with a 7-2 victory over Washington three weeks ago.

The linksmen have never lost to Albright in a total of nine matches. The Tribe won in that many years in a series that dates to 1948. Rain stopped the match last year but the Indians continued their dominance with a 13½-4½ victory this year.



Roy Martin, the hard hitting left fielder for the tribe uses the timber to warm up in pre-game practice.

Tribe Meets Bucknell Today, Geesaman Probable Starter

An experienced Bucknell baseball team will invade College Field today to meet the Indians of Juniata College, after their most recent setback at the hand of Albright last Saturday.

The 10-letterman-dominated squad of Coach Rod Oberlin is well supplied with 300-plus hitters but still lacks the mound strength that kept the Bisons well below the .500 mark last year. The Indians will probably get a look at either Tommy Thompson, who was 3-2 last year, Jim Morrison, a converted outfielder or Mike Kasnick, a sophomore right hander with a good curve ball and fine control.

Already chalking up wins over Dickinson, Susquehanna, Lycoming but losing to Penn State in extra innings, and to Navy, 4-1, the Bisons will be looking for their fourth win before traveling on to Pitt for a game there tomorrow.

Lettermen Stew Wrigley Dick Burnett and Pete Fritts bolster Bucknell's infield, while Tony Consentino and Dick Pitko, both five hitters, lead the outfield. Larry Mather will probably handle the catching duties.

Last year the Indians handed Bucknell a strong 13-3 setback in a game played at Lewisburg. Dick Geeseman will be looking for his second win in as many starts, when he goes for the Tribe tomorrow.

Golfers Capture Wins, Post Record At 4-2

The linksmen, after a profitable week, brought their standing on the season to 4-2, chalking up wins over Wilkes and St. Francis.

In the Wilkes match Jay Gettig, shooting an 80 won over his man 3-0. as did Jim Williams, Jack Vernocy, and Dave Amey. Steve Gerlock lost to his individual opponent 1-2 and Ray Erney took a 3-0 setback, giving the Indians a 13-5 victory.

Jack Vernocy won his sixth straight match of the season to lead the golfers to a 12½-5½ victory over the Frankies of St. Francis College, in a match played on their links. Vernocy won hit match with a score of 73, which was the lowest recorded for the day.

Gettig shot a 75, as he won 2-1, and Williams, coming from behind, shooting a remarkable one under par for the back nine, tied his man, giving him a 1½-1½ split. Gerlock and Amey both won 3-0, while Erney dropped a 3-0 decision. The final score for the day showed the Tribe with a comfortable victory of 12½-5½ over the Frankies.

Conquerors Lead In Early Softball Action

Softball came bounding back into the JC intramural leagues last week with five opening games -on the Sherwood diamond.s

The 11-team league opened a multigame schedule which will close the end of May. All but one of the teams, the Crusaders, have seen action thus far with some of the squads sporting 2-0 slates.

In last week's aciton the Rebels downed Themselves 12-5 in a 14-hit attack. Ted Kaiser led the onslaught with three hits, two of them homeruns. Les Greenawalt, Jim McClafferty, and Gerry Zack followed up with two hits apiece. Bruce Smith and John Biddle went two-for-two in a losing cause.

The Hitless Wonders lived up to their forename as they were slaughtered by the defending champion Ball Busters 22-7. Bob Schwalenberg was the winning pitcher and had a perfect four-for-four afternoon at the plate. The Wonders were buried under tht 19 hit barrage led also by Ken Opipery and Larry Dufey, but Al Pitt came up with two of the loser's four hits. The Hitless Ones also took another drubbing at the hands of the Scrub-Jays 23-7.

Meanwhile, the Conquerers haded these same Scrub-Jays a 20-8 loss earlier in the week. Mel Kreps and Ed Sobieray both had four hits for the victors, and Bob "Ted" Kusizinski went three-for-four at first base for the losers. The Conquerors also defeated the Darkhorses 7-6. The Ponies could manage only seven hits to offset the Conquerors 15, and Ron Gerhart collected three of these. Ron Tyson led the victors with three hits.

Sobieray's Finance Company dropped a close one to the Amish 15-13. Bob Rose's 6 inning 3 run homer was the difference as the Amish came from behind to edge the Lenders. Duke Snyder and Jim Criss were the big guns for the Finance Company with three-for-four afternoons. Dale Reiss, John Gibbs, and Ron Clippinger led the Amish to the victory.

Themselves handled the All White 9/2 14-8 with Bruce Smith's big bat booming out two round trippers to conclude the week's action.

DOUBLE TROUBLE!—The Berrier twins from Harrisburg, Jim and Bill, who play shortstop and center field for the tribe, will be looking, along with the rest of the team, for a win today over Bucknell.

E-town Halts Three Game Win Streak Of Tribe By 5-1 Score

The Indians' three-game winning streak was brought to a halt last Saturday when Elizabethtown College took a 5-1 decision.

The tribe collected only seven hits from Elizabethtown hurler Dent, getting no more than two in any one frame. The highlight of the game came in the first inning when the Indians came up with a triple play.

After Mullen hit Cheeks with a pitched ball and gave up a single to Hershey, Burtzfield hit a grounder to third-baseman Harvey Ross. The play went from Ross to Melago to Hallman to Walasik, who nailed Cheeks at the plate while he was trying to score.

The gap was broken wide open in the fifth frame when, with one out and the bases loaded, relief hurler Dick Gessaman was called to the mound. He was greeted with two singles by Tuefel and Kerns which accounted for four runs.

For a while in the sixth inning it looked as though the Bunnmen might have pulled it out. With one down and the bases loaded, Jack Kosslow drew a walk to force in the tribe's lone run. The side was then retired leaving three men and victory stranded.

Netmen Battered By E-town 6-3

The netmen of Juniata went down to their second defeat at the hands of Elizabethtown on the winners courts, last Saturday.

Jack Merrill was edged in three sets, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3, while Ray Pfrogner rode to an easy victory in the number two position, winning 6-0, 6-4. Dick Ott was nosed out, 6-4, 6-4, as was Pete Cristie who went down 6-0, 6-4.

In the last two singles of the day, Don Burnich out played his opponent 6-3, 6-3 and Jim Lear, despite an ailing back, put forth a fine effort while losing in three sets, 6-4, 6-8, 6-4.

The highlighted doubles match of the afternoon was won by the Indian's Pfrogner and Christie in straight sets, 8-6, 6-2.

It was decided that sport shirts in place of ties and jackets are now in order for the men at meals. The exception to this is Sunday noon.

CJ Discusses Excess Chapel Cuts Situation

Neglected chapel cuts well over the allotted number of four were the primary concern of the Campus Judiciary's session last Monday night.

It was found that in at least three cases, chapel cuts had been allowed to slide by, thus creating a much more difficult situation. The CJ resolved to take immediate action on all such cases in the future and planned a hearing for these cases.

CJ members then discussed certain general procedures and appointed people to instruct those who are to appear. In line with a recommendation made by former chairman Chuck Brown, the Judiciary considered the possibilities of penalties other than fines and suspension.

Juniatian Receives Rating From ACP

The Associated Colegiate Press recently awarded to the JUNIATIAN the First-Class Honor Rating for the fall semester 1958.

AGP is composed of the newspapers of American colleges and universities. Periodically ACP judges and rates these papers in comparison with other newspapers of the same classification.

There are certain basic standards for coverage, writing and physical properties which must be met to earn honors. However, once these conditions are met, standardization is not encouraged.

Effort is made to judge publications on the effectiveness with which they serve their individual colleges. Papers are judged in comparison with other college papersnot in comparison with some mythical perfect paper, nor with metropolitan publications.

Editors to whom this honor rating is attributed are: Barb Walls, editor - in - chief, Carol Baish, managing editor, Pat Varec, news editor and Wally Berkey, sports editor.

Editor's Desk ....

Day Of Questioning

Monday was ineed a red-letter day on this campus. (Oh come now, surely you remember Monday??) For once in what seems to have been a long time, JCers were shaken out of their complacency and forced to ask a few rather uncomfortable questions.

It all started as a perfectly innocent effort on the part of the Senate to arouse interest in "The" honor sysem. NSA vice president Fred Werner, speaking in chapel, made a few blatant assertions about college students in general and most Juniatians were squirming in their seats even before he got around to JC in particular. The shoe fit a little too well at many points.

The afternoon session in East Hall's rec room (packed to overflowing with aroused JCers) began with an antagonistic attitude toward the speaker and ended with a somewhat better understanding of his point of view and the beginning of a critical look at the basic issues underlying the whole problem of an honor system. We have been hearing about things like "academic honor," "academic freedom," "academic standards," etc. for a long time now and, being optimistic (but not "complacent"!, we are inclined to believe that most Juniatians do know what some or all of these terms involve. But we would also assert that this week was the first time many of us ever thought about these terms in direct reference to Juniata College!

Is this fact evidence of Juniata's own peculiar provincialism or narrow-mindedness? Is it true that this is a sterile campus which fosters neither original thought nor creative energy? These are some of the questions asked at Monday afternoon's meeting; they are valid questions, questions which could lead to a penetrating analysis of our academic standards. That is, IF this questioning spirit lasts. If it does not matter that much, then let's just give this place back to the Indians.

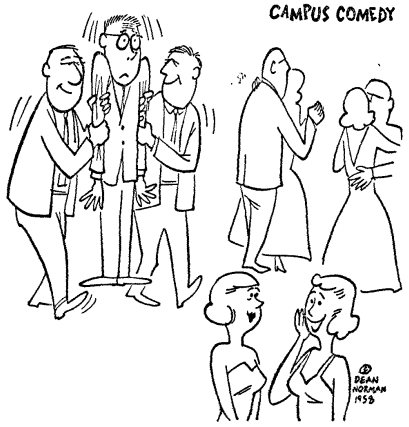
However . . .

. . . we would dispute any implied claims that Juniata's student government is a decadent institution having no real use to the campus. Student government here has wide responsibility and influence and funcions in a general atmosphere of student-faculty-administration cooperation.

This atmosphere does not denote any milquetoast complacency on the part of students and their campus leaders. It is simply a mature way of getting things done. We feel that it is about time someone took issue with the attitude (incidentally, an attitude frequently expressed by NSA spokesmen) that student government is only meaningful as a game of power politics with students drawn up on one side and the faculty-administration group on the other.

We are not praising our campus government to the skies. We ask that students look objectively at it; some of the issues are going to be trivial, some of them are not going to be important next year. If the Senate were to be dissolved tomorrow, Juniata College would probably not crumble to dust.

But we still contend that, on the whole, it is an effective expression of student responsibility and we refuse to accept the label of "complacency" just because we are not screaming from soapboxes or burning crosses on Round Top.



"I THINK ROGER IS GETTING UP HIS NERVE TO ASK YOU FOR A DANCE."

Campus Humor, Etc .....

Ah, Spring!—You realize, of course, that such a lyrical introduction could lead us anywhere at all in this column and probably will. For spring at Juniata brings a variety of activities: cultivating sun tans, cultivating the proper mind—set for final exams, cultivating dates for the May Day dance and Charity Ball, etc. Speaking of the Charity Ball, let us all remember to observe a few minutes of silent prayer and thanksgiving to whatever gods there be for the fact that Ray Anthony will be here to provide the music. No schmaltz, no bubbles in the wine or anywhere else, just plain, old down-to-earth dance music. It's almost too much to believe.

However, there are those who will defend to the death the musician we just missed hearing. Recently we heard some one say, "All right, say what you will about Lawrence Welk, but he keeps on selling records!" To which another in the group replied, " . . . Thereby proving that the world is really square!"

* * * * * * *

Last Wednesday we conducted about 12 Future Teachers of Somerset on a guided tour around the campus. Not having a supply of gas masks on hand, we planned to whiz through that place across the street rather quickly. But somehow we ended up in a comparative anatomy lab where yours truly remained in the hall while the Future Teachers ohed and ahed over partially-dissected cats.

One girl was particularly fascinated by these feline visual aids and asked, "Why are they so dried-out?" A JC science major breezily replied, "Well, we've had them since January."

* * * * * * * * *

The latest quote concerning the writing of Jack 'Beat' Kerouac: "I've been ploughing through The Subterraneans. . .between bouts of nausea!" And, from the same department, come these comments:

The romantics were always falling on the thorns of life and bleeding.

Samuel Johnson is not of the brother-are-you-saved? school.

Note of interest:

There are coeds on this campus who are suntanned ALL OVER! Needless to say, they didn't get these tans on Oneida roof! (JC isn't quite that liberal). The explanation is all very prosaic . . . . sun lamps.

One coed to another observing a handsome participant in a recent track meet: "There goes the back I'd most like to scratch."

And we must mention that lovely musical memoriam to The Three Stars, which can be heard almost any hour of the day in Tote or Skips. According to its "lyrics" they are singing for God now. Commenting on this sentiment, one Juniatian remarked, "That's what we need for our teenagers . . . . a rock-and-roll deity!"

At this point it may be apropos to sign off with "those immortal words"—"Oh baby, you know what I like."

Conquest Of Panama; European Arsenals

—Shane

It seems that our hot-blooded friends in Latin America are at it again Not to be outdone by Fidel Castro, a group of adventurers, with liberation and other lofty ideals in mind, set out from Cuba to take Panama On April 30 a beachhead was established at the North coast town of Nombre de Dios The Organization of American States undertook the defense of Panama and its legally constituted government. The beachhead area was soon cut off on the land by Panamanian National Guard units while offshore, U.S. Air Force planes and Navy kept the whole affair under surveillance. Two ships loaded with arms and reinforcements were said to be underway from Cuba, but as yet they haven't arrived.

The OAS, from headquarters in Washington, set up a five nation fact finding commission to deal with the situation. Cesar Vegas, commander of the invaders has met with the OAS representatives to attempt to set up the details of surrender. He claims to have complete control over his men who will abide by his decision. When final terms of surrender have been completed, a white sheet is to be laid out signifying that the negotiations have been approved as satisfactory.

Washington — Secretary of State, Christian Herter has been in periodic conferences at Walter Reed Hospital with John Foster Dulles. The purpose of these meetings is said to be brief Dulles of the proposals which the West will put to the Soviet at next Week's foreign ministers meeting at Geneva.

London—The rising volume of weapons in the arsenals of Western Europe has become a source of grave concern to British Defense and Procurement officials. They declare that the great number of US arms is undermining the military independence of NATO, and also capturing large segements of the European arms market which should be open to British arms manufacturers. There are two main arguments used by the British. It is strategically hazardous to make Western Europe so dependent on US arms. Only with the encouragement of experimentation and development among the Allies can the West match the scientic advances of the Soviet.

A Hungarian rider, Imre Karcsu, on Aaranyos, has broken the German-Italian monopoly in Rome by winning the Aventino Prize. Twelve nations with 60 entries competed at the International Horse Show in Rome. This is the first time in 19 years that a Hungarian entry has been registered. The American entries ran rather true to form. Hugh Wiley placed fifth on Nautical, Bill Stienkraus placed fifth on Riveria Wonder, George Morris placed tenth.

When I say the United States ran true to form, I do not mean this statement to be derogatory. These men have been struggling to bring the United States back to the top position it once held in the equestrian portion of the Olympics. Various colleges and universities contribute to the Olympic fund mainly to push the athletes that represent these institutions. The Equestrian team must rely on contributions from private individuals. Ahletes may train by using the facilities of the colleges they attend, where horses must be trained on the premises of some professional owner or trainer who is willing to contribute the same.

With the main emphasis of the Olympic Games today being on defeating the Soviet, a few added points in this area would help. Most people are not aware of this situation. This phase is only one portion of the Olympic games which are supported by the contributions of the American people. I hav estressed this area for I am most familiar with this area of the American sports scene. Consider this, if you so desire, to be a plea to contribute to the Olympic fund. Consider this contribution to be your personal confirmation of the value of sports in our nation. And lastly, consider this contribution to be your effort towards getting contesting nations to obtain greater understanding through the mingling of their athletes in the Olympic games.

Lebanon Valley Featured In May Day Contests

Baseball And Tennis Scheduled In Afternoon Sports Activities

Lebanon Valley will invade College Hill tomorrow with their baseball and tennis teams.

LUC Baseball coach, Frank Etchberger will be working with a lot of new material this year, with only five lettermen returning from last years squad. Graduation and ineligibility have almost completely wrecked the Flying Dutchmen, and the LVC mentor will be working wiwtwh rookies in one outfield position and every infield position except second bas and catcher.

The lettermen include Art Ford and Doug Ross, a pair of pitchers; Karl Weslowski and William Glazer, outfielders; and Darryl Myers, second base. The rest of the infield includes George Weaver, Bill DeLiberty and Russ Urey, who will handle things around first base. Vince Crudele, Gene Stamback, and Shea Hefflefinger will round out the outfield of LVC's probable starting lineup.

Experienced Tennis Team

With five holdovers back from last year's tennis team that won four matches and lost three, the Dutchmen have shown good signs of a strong team avain this year. Leading the parade of lettermen are Phil Niosi, the only senior on the team, Howard Good, a Lititz product, Robert dusser from Harrisburg and Ronald Hovis from Lancaster, who are all juniors.

In return for the LVC representatives on the Indian's campus, Juniata will send its track team to Annville to participate in a triangular meet with Lebanon Valley and Albright on the same day. The Dutchmen's cinder coach, Ned Linta, will have considerable trouble finding a replacement for Audrey Kershner, who was almost a one-man track team for LVC last year.

Tribe Suffers Tennis Defeat To Lycoming

The Juniata netwmen lost their fourth match 6-3, to Lycoming on the winners courts Monday.

In singles play Ray Pfrogner was defeated in straight sets by Tony Pollitt, 6-4, 6-1. Jack Merrill came from behind to win a three set victory over his opponent 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

Dick Ott playing number three lost a heartbreaker 6-3, 6-8, 5-7 after having two match points. Pete Christie brought home the second singles victory in number four slot with a 1-6, 7-5, 6-4 win. Don Burnich and Jim Lear, in number five and six slots lost their respective matches.

Jack Merrill and Dick Ott dropped their first dubles match by the scores of 6-2, 6-3; however, Pete Christie teamed with Ray Pfogner to take the second doubles 6-3, 6-3. In the third doubles Burnich and Lear lost in three sets.

Conquerors Retain Lead In IM League

The conquerors continued to lead in the IM Softball league as they picked up victories 3, 4 and 5.

Dilling's pitching and tne hitting of Soberiery, Helsel, and Hammann enabled them to defeat the Amish '3-9, the All White Nine plus 2 28-11, and Themselves 7-3. Also the champion Ball Busters continued undefeated the past week, knocking off the Rebels 20-4, and the All White Nine plus 2, 16-14.

Paul DeSesso pitched a three hitter against the Rebels, striking out nine. Swallenberg and Tony Mont swung the big bats, collecting three hits apiece for the winners.

Soberiey Finance Corp. ran their winning streak to four in a row as they downed the Crusaders behind the strong pitching of Bo Soloman and the hitting of Ron Tarquinio, Duke Snider, and Bob Creasman. All told they picked up 18 hits in the 9-3 victory.

The Hitless Wonders absorbed their fourth defeat in a row, despite the great team play of Al Pitt. The Rebels took them in hand to the score of 15-3 as Dick Ott held the losers to four hits while his teammates tagged Mike Martin for 15.

In the other games, the Darkhorses defeated Themselves 5-2, and Amish handed the Rebels a 5-2 setback. The Hitless Wonders were upset by Themselves 12-2.

Golfers Win Two Vernocy Shoots 68

The Juniata Linksmen continued their winning ways, by taking two wins over Shippensburg and Lycoming.

In a match played on the Shippensburg links, the Tribe squeaked by with a close win, 10-9. After the teams came in the score was 9-9, and it was in the sudden death match that Jack Vernocy took his man on the second hole, by shooting par golf. In the regular match play, Vernocy shooting number one man, for Jay Gettig, who was sick, won 3-0.

Tom Williams dropped his 1-2, Steve Gerlock won 2-1, Dave Amey and Ben Rose won by 1-2, 2-1 scores respectively, and Ray Erney lost 0-3.

In a home contest with Lycoming it was a different story, as Vernocy came through with a two under par, 68, to lead the golfers to a 14½-3½ victory. Gettig, Gerlock, and Williams, all won their matches. Amey tied his, and Erney lost.

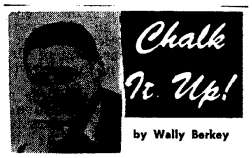
Strong Shippensburg Track Squad Trounces JC Harriers

George Patrick, Terry Digruttolo, and Bob Pierson captured Juniata's only resemblance of first place as Shippensburg State Teachers College mauled the Indians 103-28 on the local track Tuesday afternoon.



Team captain Don Ross exploded with three hits at Indiana to bring his average to the .400 mark.

The nation's second leading hitter last season now has 12 hits in 30 official appearances including a double, three triples and two round trippers.

All eyes are focused toward the rematch with E-town. Senior Sheldon Dent (4-0) dumped the Indians, 5-1, two weeks ago. The Blue Jays, led by Warren Cheeks .621 (18 for 29), have five hitters well over the .300 level.

* * * * *

Duke Snider of Sobieray's Finance Company was leading the IM sluggers with a .648 average after two weeks of action. Bob Hammann of the pace-setting Conquerors is runner up with a .650 mark.

Rounding out the top five are Larry Fay with .611, Dave Helsel at .590 and Ron Tarquinto's .588.

Ted Keiser and Bruce Smith are tied with the most home runs at three apiece.

Patrick and Digrottolo finished in a dead heat in the 100 yard dash, and Bob Pierson tied with Luther Burns of Shippensburg in the pole vault. Frank Hrach, the Indian's undefeated distance man, met with strong competition around the laps and could only manage a third place in the mile run.

Juniata's only second place points came from Ray Trimmer and Henry Crocker. Trimmer finished second in the 440 and Crocker was runner up in the High Jump.

The Indians came through with seven third places; but without the firsts to accompany them, they were in a losing cause. George Patrick came in third in the broad jump, Jim Chesney was third in the pole vault, and Dick Johnson threw for a third in the Javelin event to round out the field.

On the track the Indians faired better, as usual. Al Dungan was the third man to cross the finish line in the 120 yard High Hurdles, Steve Arcade placed third in the 880 yard or half mile run, and Charlie Brown came up with a third place effort in the 220 yard low hurdles.

As in previous meets Juniata showed a lack of strength in the field events. The Indians now sport an 0-2-1 slate for the spring season with the next meet in Reading Saturday against Albright and Lebanon Valley.

Tribe Looses To Bucknell, Beats Indiana

After being handed an 18-11 setback at the hands of Bucknell, the Indians got back in the win column Monday by downing Indiana STC 14-8.

In Saturday's comedy of errors the fans had to look hard to find the ball game hidden behind the nineteen errors and the untold number of misjudged flys and bad plays

It looked like the Bunnmen had the game sewed up going into the ninth inning with a four run advantage but the errors came and the lead went. The Tribe picked up one run in the bottom of the frame to even the score at eleven all and force the game into extra innings. In the tenth, Bucknell picked up seven mor runs and it was all over.

Down Indiana S.T.C.

With the big bats of Bill Berrier and Don Ross working overtime the Indians redeemed themselves at the expense of Indiana STC.

In a big eight inning, in which ten men faced Iidiana pitcher Gene Davis, the Iidians picked up six runs. Berrier connected for a round tripper with the bases full and Ross chipped in with his second three bagger of the day.

Dick Gesseman got credit for the win, as he was the third pitcher to see action in the contest, and pitched the most innings.

An old face in a new place was also in evidence as hurler Ron Reynolds collected two hits while playing second base. Roy Martin chipped in with three hits and Jim Berrier, Ross and B. Berrier had two apiece to round out the big bats of the day.

AT LAST! Mary Shirk, Carole Miller and editor Betty Jane Bowman gave sighs of relief on the happy day of Alfarata distribution when they witnessed the proofs of their labor. They arrived right on time, May 13, and JC'ers waited patiently — well, waited anyway — in lines on First Brumbaugh to receive their copies.

Editor's Desk ....

News Or Propaganda

"News of the next ten to 20 years will be the story of the struggle for men's minds."

We are quoting New York Times managing editor Turner Catledge speaking at a special journalism school seminar at th University of Minnesota. At Wayne University Marxist-economist Paul Sweezy predicted the coming of socialism as "inevitable" and emphasized that its ascendancy would probably not be catastrophic in the US because the people will be convinced of the superiority of the socialist state. In other words, socialism is to win the "struggle for men's minds"???

This is only one man's opinion, of course. We do not profess to believe it; we would rather not. But we think that the two quotes together illustrate the modern tactics in the struggle between the "free world" and all the gradations to the "totalitarian state." The conflict could be won by a series of insidious, seemingly harmless "adjustments" of the type we have been making ever since Mother first said "No" to us. The word "adjust" has become a household word; this is how one deals with LIFE.

Certainly we are not advocating nihilism, frantic non-conformity or the negativism of the beatniks. We would call for individual, selective decisions rather than blind adjustment and faith in that thing called the People. The judgement necessary to minds that will not be swayed can develop only in an atmosphere of clear information and of free airing of opinions. This is particularly obvious when one considers today's complex news coverage. We will never be free of propaganda; in fact, we will have to contend with more and more of it. But we must learn to weigh it for what it is worth.

Mr. Catledge's address at the University of Minnesota emphasized the importance of a public that not only is informed, but a public that wants to be informed. "Half-informeed persons," he said. "are more rabble than citizens, more apt to be organzed by demagogues into a totalitarian state."

Look To Vienna

We would urge our fellow students to keep an eye out for news of the Seventh World Youth Festival which will be held this summer in Vienna.

The festival, held by the communist-dominated International Union of Students, was planned in Stockholm last year by students of 51 nations. Its theme, Peace and Friendship, belies the storm of controversy it has aroused among students all over the world. It is condemned as a "communist showpiece" and is being held over the protests of the "host" country.

Certain factors in America, notably the International Affairs office of the USNSA and an independent Harvard students' "information service" are emphasizing the propagandistic nature of the festival and are urging organizations not to send representatives and that individuals boycott the Vienna activities. On the other hand, the United States Festival Committee, organized to make American preparations for the festival, is urging students to take this opportunity to "make a positive contribution to world peace."

Is it true that tht International Student Conference and the International Union of Students are direct opposites in a cold-war struggle? If so, is it realistic to assert, as does the IUS, that national unions of students wishing to remain free of the cold war should participate in both groups? These are questions to be discussed at NSA's congress this summer. In making decisions, many eyes will be turned toward the Vienna Festival; the resolution of its controversy will have an effect on students everywhere.

May Day Memo

Congratulations and thanks go to the students and members of the faculty and administration who helped produce last Saturday's highly enjoyable May Day festivities!

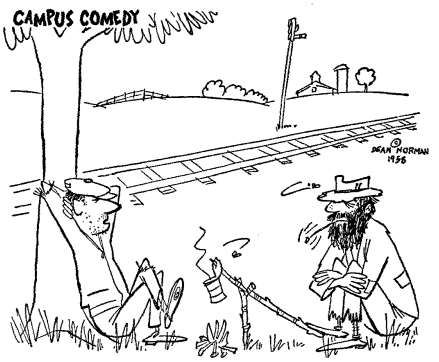
The theme of medieval days was interestingly carried out and the coronation program was one of the best we have seen. We particularly appreciated the dance group whose history of the dance contributed most to the afternoon's entertainment. Other fortunate choices were the varsity quartet, the baton twirlers and certainly the "Fifth and a Chaser" singing group whose clever ballad arrangments provided entertainment at Saturday night's formel.

Altogether, it was a weekend of which JCers can be proud. We even had the weather on our side!

Thank-You Note . . .

I would like to extend my thanks and appreciation to all those persons who gave their time and energy so that Juniata College could have a successful May Day this year. As with any project of this size it took a great amount of time, ideas and patience. But with the final result justifying this, may I again say thank you.

Dutch Boland



Campus Humor, Etc .....

And so as the sounds of Don Krebs and Ray Anthony fade in that old collegiate afterglow and the joyous cries of seniors free at last from the horrors of comps rend the silence of our mountain retreat, Juniata's fourth estate closes the doors of its crummy little office and begins a new extracurricular activity . . . studying for finals.

However, before we go, we must express our appreciation for this year's "danceable" and comparatively sober Charity Ball. Many Juniatians attended, by one means or another. Of particular interest was the member of the musicians union who just had to check and see that Mr. Anthony's men were getting union wages. This is known, in some circles, as Looking out for Your Fellow Man . . . and in other circles as Getting in for Free.

The Associated Collegiate Press Feature Service has lovingly sent us (among other things) a reprint of a "gloriously beat" poem by Allen (Howl) Ginsberg. Here is a sample: "Haunted they come, their baleful intaglio psyches sublime with illusory grandeur . . . acquiescent with restless self-deception." Some of you, we know, are going to say that it is Not Very Nice of us to print that line out of context but we can only say that there doesn't seem to be any context . . . it's one of those do-it-yourself poems.

* * * * * *

A former college editor, now NBC's White House correspondent, revealed in his old paper, Valparaiso University Torch, why he switched to radio: It was Ray Scherer's first day as Torch editor and the hand-set page forms were on the bed of the press. The pressman pushed the start button and 10,000 pieces of type were sprayed on the pressroom floor. Friend pressman had forgotten to lock in the chases!

Quotable Quotes

From last Monday's chapel comes this gem: "America is dedicated to the principle that 'where two or more are gathered together' . . . someone must keep the score."

On Macbeth's murder of Duncan: "Murdering a guest in your own home is a violation of all the rules of hospitality." (no doubt an echo of the sixteenth century Emily Post!)

On Edward Fitzgerald (of Rubiayat of Omar Khayam fame): "He's out lighting pagan Roman candles to Asiatic gods."

Finally it's time to sign off, always the hardest thing about a column. We could say good luck on your finals and have a good time this summer and see you next fall. Or we could say if you can't be good be careful and don't do anything we wouldn't do. But all these things are trite so we won't say them. Over and out!

News Views ....

Atomic War, Conference Tables, JC Students

—Shane

In keeping with the title of my column, I have thus far made weekly attempts to present happenings on the state, national and international level. In this final edition of the paper for this school year, I intend to stress the views portion of the title of my column.

The future of the world does not seem dark to me. I believe that the major powrs of the world have too much sense to start a nuclear war. If the total number of atomic bombs, which the United States now has, were added to the amount possessed by the Soviet, the total is capable of destroying this planet. If the orders for atomic bombs which these two world powers have proposed for next year are completed, each nation will have enough atomic bombs to destroy the world without any help form the other. Does it seem reasonable that a nation would start a war which would lead to its own destruction? I seriously doubt it. That is why the possibility of an atomic war does not seem possible or probable to me.

Since man has advanced to the point of self-development where he is capable of self-destruction he must now turn to a better way of solving his disagreements. At one time you could club your neighbor, a little later stabbing was the vogue, the bow and arrow ran their course until replaced by gunpowder and finaly we have advanced to the point whre we can destroy the world. Now after spilling blood from the beginnings of civilization, man turns to the conference table because he is forced to do so.

With a world situation such as this in the future, what is our generation to do? We are known as the worst generation which our nation has ever produced. We are members of the "beat generation" or the "generation we existwithout a cause." We are a disgrace to thtsociety in which we exist and a disgrace to the generation which spawned us. What will become of our nation when this generation gets hold of the reins of government?

This generation is forced to be a generation of thinkers. Due to the fact that we are no longer able to club, stab or shoot our neighbors, we must talk to them. Granted that clubbing, stabbing or shooting might be the easier way, we are forced into this situation. We must be a generation of free thinkersand be able to present logical arguments to support our views.

Do you, dear reader, consider yourself to be a free thinker? How much personal integrity do you have? How many times do you say something which you do not believe? At a small college it is much more difficult to be a free thinker than at a large one. Do the ideals which you hold to be valid correspond with the ideals which most of the student body holds? If not, do you dare to go against this opinoin? I doubt it. No one wants to be damned socially. Especially at Juniata. Do you dare to disagree with a professor if you can't go along with what he says? I doubt it. Why is this so? This college is supposed to help you grow and give you a liberal education. Are you getting it? If not why? The answer to this question lies not with the administration and faculty, but with the student body.

The faculty and administration would listen to reasonable requests from the students. Why do they never hear these requests? These matters are the main topics of discussion in the dorms but they never stick their heads outside the door for fear of the criticism they might arouse. If a request is submitted to the "powers that be" in good faith I am sure that it would receive some attention. If not, does the faculty and administration deserve our respect?

In conclusion, give free thought a try. You may be surprised with the results.

Movie Of The Week

Old Man And The Sea

The sharks came in a pack and he clubbed desperately at what he could only feel and hear and he felt something seize the oar and it was gone. A thrilling battle with the giant sharks in Ernest Hemingway's "The Old Man and the Sea," a Warner Bros. presentation starring Spencer Tracy and filmed in magnificient WarnerColor.

by Wally Berkey

Last Saturday's game with Lebanon Valley was probably one of the fastest played games on College Field.

Ron Reynolds pitched his finest game of the year, shutting out the Dutchmen 3-0 on a masterful four hitter.

It only took an hour and 45 minutes for the Indians to win their first errorless victory.

Tomorrow's encounter with Susquehanna will be the 57th contest between the two schools in a series that dates back to 1904. The Tribe holds the series lead, 33-23.

The Ball Busters' defense when Paul DeSesso is pitching is much like a Richie Ashburn defense only pulled around to the other side.

DeSesso's fast offerings force the batter to swing late and thus hit to the opposite field. The rightfielder plays the line, the centerfielder covers rightcenter and the leftfielder plays shallow behind the shortstop.

Result—a 5-2 victory over Sobieray's Finance Company in the showdown between the top contenders for the IM softball crown.

Juniata-Harriers Capture Win Over Muhlenburg In Local Meet

Juniata's Indians slashed past Muhlenberg 72-52 for their first victory of the season Monday on the local cinders.

The Mules brought a surprisingly strong team to the JC track and kept the meet close most of the way. The 12 man squad carried away six first places with hurdler Loeffler a triple winner.

The Indians nailed down eight firsts in the victory, Frank Hrach coming in as a double winner in the mile and two mile runs. Juniata's five-pointers also were contributed by Phil Rohm, who soared to score in the broad-jump; Ray Trimmer in the 440 yard run; and Steve Arcade, who broke the tape in the half-mile.

George Patrick and Terry Digruttolo pounded their way to victory in the 100 and 220 yard dashes respectively to round out the track event. Dick Johnson captured the only other field event with a victory in the javelin.

Second Places Taken

Six of the second places and two ties were registered by Juniatians, and all of these were on the track. Galen Heckman was second in the mile and two mile runs. Terry Digruttolo was runner-up in the 100, and Jim Secrist crossed the lin ein the number two position in the 220 for places in the dashes. Chuck Brown and Mike Kolitsky finished in a dead heat in the 220 low hurdles.

Also placing for the Indians were George Patrick with a third in the broadjump; Alan Beech in the javelin; and Jim Secrist in the 100 yard dash, completing Juniata's only sweep; Jim Chesney, pole vault; Dick Johnson, discus; and Henry Crocker, high hurdles racked up the remaining points.

Ball Busters Win IM Softball League Title

This week decided the IM Softball league with the defending champion Ball Busters proving their superiority by downing Sobieray's Finance Company and the Conquerers in successive games.

The Conquerers who were lading the league with a 6-0 record found this week a rough one. Their first defeat came at the hands of the Ball Buster's Bob Schwallenberg, who struck out 13 in a 7-2 contest. Sobieray's Finance Co. delt them there second defeat, with a 18 hit and 18 run barrage, while the Conquerers could only come up with 7 hits and one run off Jim Oriss.

Scrubjays Upset Ball Busters

However the Ball Busters also received a jolt before claiming the league title as the Scrubjays got to Bob Sill for six runs in the first two innings and lasted it out for a 7-5 victory. Entering into the league deciding game both the Ball Busters and the Finance Co. sported identical 7-1 records.

The pitching for both teams was top notch with Bob Solomon allowing three hits and Paul DeSesso allowing four. A period of wildness and errors enabled the Ball Busters to take a 4-1 lead in the fourth inning which they never relinquished in their 5-2 victory.

Ron Wingard was the batting hero for the victors, as he picked up two of their three hits, as did Bob Cressman for the losers.

In other games the Crusaders came out of hibernation to defeat the All White 9 plus 2, 11-4, and the Darkhorses handled the Amish 13-10.

JC Baseballers Dump Lebanon Valley, Face Susquehanna U.

By gaining a 3-0 decision over Lebanon Valley, the Indians put the topping on Saturday's May Day festivities.

Working with an air tight defense, Indian pitcher Ron Reynolds allowed only five men to reach base while gaining his second victory of the campaign. Ron fanned five and walked only one in going the distance for the Bunnmen.

The Tribe collected eight hits off Lebanon Valley hurler Art Ford, two each by Roy Martin, Sandy Warren, and Don Ross.

Juniata gave Reynolds a one run lead in the first when Don Ross slapped a singe to center, stole second, went to third on an error and came home on a Dutchmen wild throw.

The Tribe added another in the fifth when Ross singled in Wally Berkey. The final Indian run was chalked up in the sixth with Skip Walasik coming across on another Dutchmen misplay.

The only serious Lebanon Valley threat came in the seventh inning when with only one down Weaver and Slatcher stroked successive safeties, but Reynolds retired the next two batters to get out unharmed.

E-Town Game Cancelled

The scheduled contest with Elizabethtown, which was to be held Wednesday was postponed on account of rain; however weather permitting, the Tribe will face Susquehanna University tomorrow on College Field.

The five lettermen squad of Coach Dick Hummel is sparked by a pair of senior pitchers, Joe Barlow, a right hander and Jim Stone, a lefty. It will be more than likely that the Indians will see one or the other of these hurlers in tomorrow's outing.

The other lettermen include outfielders, Vance Maneval and Larry Updegrove, and infielder Jim Kenneth. The remaining berths in Susquehanna's line up will be filled by rookies.

Golfers Take Third In MAC Championships

Sophomore Jack Vernocy paced the Juniata Golf team to third place in the Middle Atlantic Championships, which were held in Newark, Del., last Monday.

Vernocy turned in a 76-80 performance for a 157 total to finish third for medalist honors. Low score for the day was turned in by Bob Etzweiler of Bucknell, who shot a 154, as Bucknell took the team championship.

Coach Bill Germann's four man team of junior Jay Gettig and sophomores, Vernocy, Jim Williams and Steve Gerlock posted a total score of 669 in the 36-hole championship play at DuPont Louviers Country Club.

The Indian golf team entered the championships with a 6-2 record in dual meets. Last year the Tribe had an 0-9 record.

Individually for Juniata, the scores were: Gettig, 87-78; Williams 85-85, Gerlock, 93-84; and Vernocy, 76-80.

Dutchmen Dump JC Netmen, 8-1

The Juniata netmen wer trounced by Lebanon Valley 8-1 on the home courts Saturday.

Ray Pfrogner started things off for the Indians by losing to his opponent 6-1, 6-3. Jack Merrill continued in the losing ways of the Thomasmen by going down to defeat 6-1, 6-2, in straight sets.

Dick Ott followed in number three spot with a 6-2, 6-2 loss. Pete Christie playing number four position, lost 6-0, 6-2. Don Burnich provided the only bright spot in a dark day for the Indians by coming through with a 6-1, 6-3 victory. James Lear rounded out the singles play with a loss in straight sets.

In doubles play the Indians faired no better than they did in singles competition. Jack Merrill and Dick Ott lost in straight sets. Pete Christie and Ray Pfrogner also were defeated by a good L. V.C. duo. Don Burnich and Jim Lear finished the competition by losing to their opponents.

The Indian's next match is with Dickinson on the foreign courts Saturday.

Olver Bids Fond Farewell To Term; Looks To Summer

by Wendy Olver

Farewell, oh Juniata, we really hate to go.
We'll miss required courses,
The Springtime filled with snow;
And searcing hidden sources
In the library we love so.

What will we do at ten o'clock
Without our chapel hour?
And how we'll miss the nightly flock
Surrounding our bell tower.

How nice it will be to sleep past eight
Not having cut a class,
To come in at two and not be late
Don't worry—fail or pass.

The joy of summer with its swimming and sun;
No book to read, no sonnets
to learn!
Hating to ruin the underclassmen's fun,
I won't mention we must return.

The overseas work program for the summer months is being expanded this year to include more students and jobs.

In addition to these new jobs there are opportunities in Ireland, Switzerland, England, France, Italy, Spain and Holland.

Society Honors New Members

Juniata College honored the eight new members of its Honor Society at last Monday's Honors Chapel in Oller Hall.

Following an address by Dr. Harold Binkley, adviser to the Honor Society, President Calvert Ellis introduced the new members: juniors Betty Ann Clark, Barbara Fritchey, Leora Furlong, Norma Jedinak, Edward Jones, Jane Herbster, Dick Quinn and Jim Swarr. Senior members, who were elected last year, are Terry Fouse, Joan Fycock, Bonnie Gunther, George Hess, Kathryn Holsinger, Arthur Norris, Barbara Shaffer, Sam Shore, Barbara Walls and Marjorie White.

The Juniata Honor Society was organized in 1942 "to encourage, recognize and honor high academic attainment, moral integrity and broad cultural interest." Members are tapped during the spring of their junior year.

Also honored were four winners of the C. C. Ellis scholarships: Miss Fritchey, Miss Jedinak, Quinn and Swaar. These scholarships, considered among the highest of academic honors here, were established in memmory of Dr. Charles Calvert Ellis, president of Juniata from 1930 to 1943, and are given to outstanding members of the junior class for their senior years.

Miss Shaffer has been honored by an award from the Pennsylvania division of the American Association of University Women of membership for one year in the local chapter.

The Honor Society held its eighteenth annual dinner at Motel 22 Monday night. President Ellis served as toastmaster for the event and Donald Durnbaugh, instructor in history, read a paper on JC's Cassel book collection.

Klebe, Edwards Visit Senate, Speak On Musicale Expenses

Sherril Edwards and Dianne Klebe were on hand at Wednesday's Senate meeting to discuss the expenditures and profits from the all college musicale.

Norma Jedinak, former treasurer of JWSF, had requested that a JWSF represeatative be authorized to work with the musicale so that the most profit possible be obtained for the fund. However, the Senate approved Edward's motion that the coordinator, who is the most familiar with the proceedings of the production, handle all expenditure problems.

In addition to the motion, it was agreed that the Senate and the administration would provide a fund to cover the working expenses involved in staging a musicale. Such a fund would be used to pay deposit fees and to meet any other incidental, preliminary expenses.

President Quinn read a proposed article to be placed in the Scout to acquaint incoming freshmen with the intention of student leaders regarding the honor system.

Leadership Conference Discussion

It was decided that leadership conference would this year dissolve on Saturday evening instead of Sunday. Each senator is to bring a list of items to be considered in his particular area to next week's meeting.

There will be at least two faculty members present as guests at each session. Each senator is responsible for the guests he wishes to attend his discussion.

Hank Hain proposed the initiation of an educational affairs committee whose goal will be the educational development of Juniata. He proposed a list of nine people to serve on the committee.

The Senate approved the establishment of the committe and the proposed list. An amendment passed added that the committee be a standing one and make periodic reports to the Senate concerning its activities.

Dr. Livingstone?

What a happy man he would have been if his man Stanley could have brought along a carton of Coke! That cold crisp taste, that lively lift would certainly hit the spot with any tired explorer. In fact, after your next safari to class—wouldn't Coca-Cola taste good to you?
